By Law of Averages Pres. Denne Thinks Exhibition's Turn For Good Weather Due.

MAY CHANGE DATES

The first draft of this year's Exhibition indicated to the directors at last night's meeting in the Chamber of Commerce was the investment of $2,100 in permanent improvements as tangible results of their year's work. Hopes that the overdraft would be materially reduced, if not wiped out entirely, were shattered when the weather failed on practically all four days of the Exhibition, and the disappointment that was felt then had disappeared before the determination of the members to stick to it.

"We had about three years of good weather," said President Denne, recalling some grateful Septembers gone by, "and on the law of averages our turn is getting close up again."

All the members present last night, nearly thirty, signed the renewed note for $6,500 with the Bank of Commerce.

Director Dunsford, manager of the Bank, remarked the association's credit had been considered good before, and was now regarded everywhere as better than ever.

Best Exhibit Yet.

Tom McIndoo declared that Peterboro's Exhibition this year was positively the best in the history of the Board. The judges of the horses admitted that the Cobourg Horse Show wasn't better than Peterboro's classes of horses. All the judges had highly praised the quality and quantity of stock, the exhibitors themselves were well satisfied, the public of the city and country had been more interested and sympathetic than ever, and every phase and factor but the weather had surpassed specifications.

"And the weather can make or break us," commented Mr. Denne with a philosophical resignation borne of three or four years of continuous progress which produced only part of their possible success.

The Actual Attendance.

The attendance was 20,940, according to Fred Holmes' report, as compared with 21,549 last year and 24,678 in 1921. In that year one ideal day gathered perhaps the record attendance for one day at the Exhibition.

Looking Forward

Last night the directors turned immediately toward the 1924 Exhibition, and were asked by the President to consider seriously for discussion at the annual meeting the question of changing the dates, in order that Peterboro will follow the London and Ottawa Exhibitions.

President Denne said that Superintendent Dan McMillan of the Canadian National Railway, promised to provide a platform for loading and unloading cattle, either at Ware Street or on the Brinton Carpet Company's siding. This facility will be ready for next year.

"And we're going to need it," said Bob Grandy, who had visions of a cattle exhibit exceeding even this year's big display.

DICTATOR MAY BE APPOINTED IN EMERGENCY

SELECTING CABINET.

BERLIN, October 5 (Canadian Press). — Experts in constitutional law who ventured to discuss the parliamentary situation growing out of the retirement of Chancellor Stresemann's Coalition Cabinet, because of the Socialists' refusal to approve the authorisation law, believe the only alternative left to President Ebert is recourse to prerogative allowed him by paragraph 48 of the constitution.

By the terms of that paragraph, President Ebert—if the Chancellor's Cabinet represents a minority government—must dictate such laws and relief measures as are demanded by the economic, financial, and social situation.

A constitutional dictatorship, it is believed, is the sole alternative left to the president and the former chancellor, in view of Stresemann's inability to command a two-thirds majority support in the Reichstag, which is necessary to legalise his authorisation law.

Support Doubtful.

The parliamentary situation yesterday gave no indication that Dr. Stresemann would be able to count on a dependable working support, even if he were assured of the votes of the German Nationalists. In order to relieve him of any apprehensions or feelings of insincerity, so far as accounting for his stewardship to the Reichstag is concerned, it will become necessary for President Ebert to decree an extraordinary dictatorship protest, as provided by paragraph 48, which would permanently relieve Dr. Stresemann from the shifting approval of permanent hostility of the Reichstag.

SAVED TWO CHILDREN WHILE AFIRE HERSELF

But Seven-Year-Old Son Burned to Death in Bed

OTTAWA, October 5. Canadian Press. — David Bull, aged seven, a son of G. Bull of Woodruffe, about 5 miles from here, was burned to death in his bed late last night, when fire destroyed their home on Richmond Road. Mrs. Bull and three other children were rescued after a narrow escape. The residence, a two story frame cottage, was burned to the ground.

Mrs. Bull was awakened by her baby crying and just had time to force two of her children downstairs while her night clothes were partly burned off her. A passer by saved her as she was about to return for her son, David, who perished.

COMPLETE HIGHWAY WORK

Provincial Road to be Finished by Wednesday Next.

OSHAWA, October 5. — The Standard Paving Company, finished paving King street east here last night. This completes the paving of the streets in Oshawa except a few side streets in remote parts of the town.

According to A. A. Shaughnessy, Superintendent, the paving plant will be moved to about three miles west of Oshawa to assist in rushing the completion of the Kingston highway into Oshawa. The work on this last link will complete the road from Toronto to Oshawa and will be finished by Wednesday of next week.

AMARKED INCREASE.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— A marked increase in the volume of grain transportation on Wednesday over figures for the corresponding day of 1922, was reported by local railway officials yesterday. There were 5,501,866 bushels marketed yesterday, as against 4,737,650 bushels for October 3, 1922. Loadings also showed an increase, with 2,676 cars loaded yesterday as against 2,606 cars for the same day last autumn.

It is believed that Mrs. MacDonald left the house unnoticed and stumbled into the brook which has a bank three feet high at the point where the body was found.

DISTRICT ROBBERS EVADING POLICE

False Clues Around Omemee Keep Officer Busy.

LINDSAY, Oct 5.—The epidemic of thefts in this section of the country still continues and the police are kept busy following up clues, which amount to nothing. Provincial Officer Storey was in Millbrook on Wednesday in connection with the recent theft at Parsons store in Omemee, but it turned out that he was on a false scent.

On Sunday morning thieves broke into Joseph Kift's store at Cannington and carired off $25.00 in money and considerable groceries. They also visited McLeod's jewelry store and stole a small sum of money and some jewellery.

There appears to be an organized gang in the district the members of which travel in automobiles.

200 MILLION BUSHELS ESTIMATE OF ALBERTA

CALGARY, Oct. 5.—Basing his opinion in returns available at the present time which include a large number of yields of more than forty bushels to the acre John I. McFarland, president of the Alberta Pacific Grain Co., estimates that the yield per acre in the entire province of Alberta for this season's crop will be close to thirty-five bushels.

On this basis Mr. McFarland believes that the total crop for the province of Alberta will be between 175,000,000 and 200,000,000 bushels.

Robbed The Man Who Took Him In And Sheltered Him

SARNIA, Ont., October 5 (Canadian Press). — Last night a young man giving his name as Stewart Olmstead, told Basil McDonald, 189 Bright Street, he was without funds and without a place to sleep.

The Sarnia youth befriended him, and took him to his home.

Late in the night McDonald was awakened by sounds in the room, and found Olmstead on the way out of the house.

He followed him to the Grand Trunk Station, being joined by several friends.

Olmstead climbed on the blind baggage of the four oclock train as it was pulling out, just ahead of his pursuers.

The attention of the engineer was attracted and the train was stopped.

Olmstead jumped off and made a dash through the yards with his pursuers in hot pursuit. He led the race for a quarter of a mile before he was overhauled and captured.

In the Police Court yesterday he was charged with theit of $25.00 from McDonald, but no sentence was passed.

Olmstead is wanted by the Barrie police for implication in a theft in that town on 8th September, when a quantity of goods was stolen.

The prisoner was taken back to jail, and the Barrie authorities notified of his detention here.

Inquiries also indicate that Olmstead was held in London for vagrancy under the name of Harry McAllister, but was allowed to go on promising to leave the city.

SUSPEND REICHSTAG TO AVOID CIVIL WAR

Fear Winter Elections While People Are Hungry — Rumored Personnel of New Cabinet.

DELICATE SITUATION.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The new German Cabinet will consist of four ministers, says a Central News despatch from Berlin last evening. Dr. Stresemann, Chancellor and Foreign Minister; Herr Minoux, Minister of Economy and Finance; Dr. Otto Gessler, Minister of Home Affairs and Defence, and Heinrich Brauns, Minister of Labor and Food.

The Reuter correspond at Berlin says that the Cabinet has not yet been definitely formed, but probably will include Gessler, Minister of Defence and Interior; Von Oppen, Agriculture, and Food; Luther, Finance and Economics; Brauns, Labor, and Fuchs, Occupied Territories.

The same despatch says that Dr. von Kahr, Military Dictator of Bavaria, has at last suppressed the Voelkische Bloblachter, the Hitler organ, until October 14, owing to an inflammatory article entitled: "Artillerymen, Get Ready For Action," and adds that Premier Von Knilling yesterday sent a telegram urging Chancellor Stresemann to discontinue collection of the increased taxes, owing to the danger to public law and order. This would appear to show that the reports of Von Knilling's resignation were unfounded.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EARNINGS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending Sept. 30, 1923 ,were $7,254,952 being a decrease of $97,464 ,as compared with the corresponding period of 1922.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1923 have been $181,558,228.49, being an increase of $17,175,882 as compared with the corresponding period of 1922.

Police End This Game

CALGARY, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Football competitions are ended in Calgary. There will be no more fun in store for the boys who try to pick the best score in the Old Country games as compared with the goals by the same clubs last season. The knockout came in police court this morning when Magistrate Davidson fined Harry Smith, Morris Shapire and Seth T. Smith, one dollar and costs each for selling weekly publications in which these contests are advertised. They pleaded guilty to the charges and from now on there will be no more sales of these papers in Calgary.

ESTIMATES OF FRUIT CROPS

Nova Scotia and British Columbia the Heaviest Producers of Apples.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Nova Scotia will market 1,500,000 barrels of apples this year, while British Columbia will have 3,142,000 boxes of apples for sale, according to an estimate issued to-day by the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture. The estimated commercial supply of apples in Ontario is 650,000 barrels; in Quebec 33,000, and in New Brunswick 10,000.

Quebec will lead the provinces as to potatoes with an estimated production of 18,786 centals (100 pounds); while Ontario's crop is set at 9,922 centals. New Brunswick will come next with 4,666 centals, according to estimate; Saskatchewan, 4,406 centals; Alberta 3,823; Prince Edward Island 2,977; Nova Scotia, 2,930; Manitoba 2,821 and British Columbia 2,241 centals.

The marketable onion crop in Ontario is expected to reach 9,250 tons, while in British Columbia is estimated at 4,500 tons.

A NEW RECORD.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Oct. 5.—Again yesterday the record for the season's shipments of grain was broken. Nearly 3,000,000 bushels cleared down the lakes. Of this 2,461,000 bushels were wheat, 60,000 barley, and 320,000 oats. The prospects are that the week end reports of stocks at the end of this week will not show nearly as large an increase as that of last Saturday.

FRENCH SHORES WRECK STREWN BY ANGRY SEAS

Fishing Smacks and Ocean Liners Among Victims of Hurricane.

RAGED 48 HOURS.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—North to northwesterly winds, at times developing into a hurricane, have been raging during the past 48 hours, causing the loss of many lives and strewing the French shores on the English Channel and Atlantic seaboard with wreckage. The storm showed signs of abating last night.

The steamships Majestic, Minnedosa and Empress of Britain were hove to outside the Cherbourg roads for twenty to forty-two hours, but succeeded in entering port late this afternoon and cleared before evening.

The steamer Pacific, from Hamburg for Panama, is ashore two miles south of Cherbourg; the crew was saved. Two fishing smacks foundered and four men were drowned. Tramways and transportation and telephone services are badly interrupted. The Channel services to Folkestone, Dover, Calais and Boulogne was at a standstill throughout the day.

The steamer Engadine, the only one attempting a crossing, was unable to make Boulogne and was forced to put to sea again. Premier Bruce of Australia, and a party of twenty-three were held up at Boulogne on the way to London.

The British steamer Anrico, coalladen, is aground off Etaples, and the fate of the crew of 22 is not yet known. A British freighter is a total loss two miles north of Dundirk and Gravulings, and four of the crew are missing. The Belgian steamer City of Ghent was rammed by a dredger in the port of Dunkirk and seriously damaged.

The wireless installation of L'Orient was smashed to the ground and four fishing smacks went down with all on board between Ushant Light and Brest.

HAITI CONTROLS DRUG TRAFFIC.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press)—The Haitian Council of State has passed a law to regulate and control the exportation, importation, possession, use of narcotics, poisons and habit-forming drugs in Haiti.

The specific purpose of this legislation is to prevent the possible use of Haiti by German firms as a base for the distribution of narcotics. Previously there was no law of any description bearing on the narcotic problem and Germany, not being a signatory to the Opium Convention, was steadily increasing its imports of such substances. The passage of the act has made Haiti eligible as a signatory to this convention.

The new law is based on that which controls the use of narcotics in the United States, with certain modifications to fit local conditions.

PETERBOROUGH'S LOSS.

In the passing of Mr. Robert Hall this week Peterborough has lost one of her most highly esteemed citizens and the customs service of Canada one of its most efficient and expert officials.

During the long period in which Mr. Hall acted as Collector of Customs in this city he was regarded as being among the best posted officials in the service, and his courtesy and fairness in connection with his relations with the public had earned him the respect of all with whom he had come into contact.

By the older generation he will be remembered as a business man who carried out in that role the same honesty in dealing and the same kindliness in his relationship with the people of Peterborough that have characterized his many years occupancy of the position of Collector of Customs.

Although he never sought municipal honours, Mr. Hall nevertheless took a keen and intelligent interest in municipal and public affairs, and was in general a most useful and substantial citizen of the type that can ill be spared by any community.

His death removes another of the oldest and best known residents of Peterborough.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY.

When Professor H. H. Dean, Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, in opening the first session of the World's Dairy Congress at Washington emphasized the fact that "prosperity follows the dairy cow," he was merely repeating a truth that is becoming more and more apparent to the farmers of Canada.

This is indeed the era of dairying, for, as Prof. Dean pointed out, there never was so much interest taken in the dairy cow and in the dairy farm as at present.

The interest is not confined to the farmers, for business men and bankers believe it good policy to be interested in the cow and her associates, the sow and hen, because to a large extent these make for the financial salvation of farmers in most parts of the civilized world.

Prof. Dean's address confirms a belief that is growing general, and that it is that we are at the beginning of a wonderful development along the line of milk and its products as food for the people.

More interest is being taken in milk because of the discovery that it contains certain necessary vital principles.

As a result there seems to be a bright future for the dairying industry, so bright indeed that it is no wonder that more and more farmers are getting into it on a larger scale.

THE HOME BANK FIASCO.

Canadians have always prided themselves upon the soundness of the Canadian banking system, but while it is admirable in many respects it is evident from the statement of the curator of the Home Bank that the system is far from perfect.

The Globe argues that the finding of the curator provides a very strong case for thorough and systematic bank inspection by inspectors of the Dominion Government, and there are not many laymen at least who will be liable to quarrel with that contention.

If a bank can carry on as the Home Bank apparently has done, plunging the money of the depositors into all sorts of shaky speculations, handing huge sums over to enterprises in which directors of the bank were interested and providing no real audit for the protection of its shareholders, then it must be admitted that some other check than is at present provided will have to be furnished.

Surely under a system of Government inspection such financing as this would not have been possible.

It should not be open to any Canadian bank to fling away the money entrusted to it as has been done in this case, and as the existing regulations failed to protect the depositors and shareholders some other means will have to be found.

The Federal Government will be expected to study that phase of the situation while the courts are delving into the amazing story of frenzied finance as revealed by the Home Bank fiasco.

A NEUTRAL VIEW.

The Peterborough Examiner calls attention to an incident which happened in the recent baseball series between Niagara Falls and Peterborough which is often overlooked in hectic excitement which accompanies the settlement of sport supremacy in nearly every town in Ontario, says a St. Catharines contemporary. Because a few Peterborough fans misbehaved themselves when the Falls visited that city, when Peterborough played at the Falls, the players were chagrined at the personal abuse and treatment with which they were met. It was all done in a revengeful spirit, the players having returned home with the complaint that they got a rotten deal in Peterborough. Hence the fans in the home town took it upon themselves to "get even."

As a rule the players on either team contesting can settle all their own differences in their own way. Loyalty to one's team does not consist of mob cowardice and rowdy practices. The crowds which indulge in such are lacking individually and collectively in the very qualities which sport should teach, control and restraint.

Those responsible for the training of youth should make it a point when possible, to inculcate into the minds of their charges what good sportsmanship really is. We think a recent example in cricket holds first place as an illustration of the spirit which young Englishmen are imbued with. The bowler of a game had an accident which made him deliver a few bowls with his left hand. The report read, "Of course, Mr. So and So did not attempt to score on these bowls."

How different indeed to some of the yelpings of the lacrosse field. "Cut him down," or the infuriated ravings so often heard in the baseball bleachers? But then, it must be remembered that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton.

WHY NOT TO CANADA?

The announcement from Hon. J. A. Robb of a more vigorous immigration policy and of the intention of the Government to throw the doors of Canada open wide to new citizens would have had more force if it had been made a year ago.

Canada has been losing a glorious opportunity to get immigrants of the finest calibre, people who would have made splendid citizens and have done their part in building up this vast country of ours.

The other morning on the early express from the East there were two cars containing Scottish people—men, women and children—an especially sturdy, intelligent and likeable type, just the sort of folks Canada should be glad to welcome.

But the sad part about it was there were none of them for Canada.

Their destination lay across the international boundary.

The prospects of employment and big wages in Pittsburg and Cleveland and Canton and other American cities beckoned them away from the British Empire.

To the Examiner many of them expressed their admiration for Canada, based upon what they had already seen.

"Canada's a grand country, but it's all agricultural," remarked one.

Apparently that was the viewpoint of all. The impression had planted itself in their minds and doubtless in the minds of thousands yet to come that Canada offered nothing for industrial workers—it was merely a country of wonderful possibilities for the farmer.

And so none of them had given a thought to remaining in the Dominion. They were off over the border to become citizens of another country.

Canada should not lose such fine people, and it is time the Government realized how far back in the race we are falling.

There are still many thousands of just such families in the United Kingdom with their eyes directed upon the land across the seas.

Unemployment is ripe, the shipyards are idle.

Men realize that they must make a new start somewhere.

Why can they not be brought to this country?

Canada needs them—the Empire needs them; why do nothing while they pour into the United States as fast as the regulations there will permit.

TOO MUCH TALK.

The world is suffering from too much talk. It has learned nothing from the futility of the supererogatory debating societies created in the past decade. It almost appears as if everybody were talking and nobody were listening. It would not be quite so bad if everybody were talking about his own business. Contrary to the general belief, the man wh talks shop is seldom a bore, because he knows what he is talking about and gets his ideas at first hand.

But when the American Bar Association sets a bad example t othe United Mine Workers, in hysterics about communism, or when the American Bankers Association, with plenty of matters looking for adjustment in the banking world, has to offer its own views on international obligations and wages and a number of other things which concern a banker, undoubtedly, though not more than they concern the rest of us, it is time that somebody suggested that they should tend to their knitting.

But at least these institutions, only mentioned here for example and partly because they are rather better than a number of other debating societies, do represent something. In these cases they stand for law or banking or manufacture. The country is deafened with congresses which stand for the generalizing of people without special knowledge, calling themselves by some portentious name allied to good government, or conomics, eor the liberty of the citizen, and not one of them is in any sense representative in, for instance, the way Congress is representative. The whole thing is an imposition because it has imposed upon public opinion something for which our method of governing ourselves already provides. Few citizens have any illusions about the wisdom of Congress or about the foolish way in which it enacts opinion into statute. But incompetent as it is, there is something to lose and nothing to gain by distracting it with the findings of these irresponsible bories.

What has become of the American sense of humor when men will sit for session after session of these various conventions, listening to platitudes and generalizations which get nobody anywhere, which settle nothing and merely serve to make the confusion of public opinion worse confounded? It is to be feared that the condition is largely the fault of the newspapers. Notoriety is the breath of life to the organizers of these debating societies. If newspapers will cut down 90 per cent. of the irresponsible opinion they publish and confine themselves to facts and news, they will perform a great and patriotic service. Indeed, the New York newspapers were doing something of the kind during the recent pressmen's strike.—Wall St. Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If some of the interest that is being taken by the authorities in the Home Bank's affairs could have been taken some time ago the depositors might have got more than 25c on the dollar.

Thanks to her ball teams, Peterborough can claim to be the City of Championships.

New Zealand is setting the pace in dairy production. In this respect Canada would do well to study the methods used by the Dominion below the Equator.

American horse owners are quarreling over the question of which horse is to represent the United States against the English champion, Papyrus. It might be imagined that "Spark Plug" would be the popular choice.

The best answer as to why Canada does not want the Ku Klux Klan is furnished by the experience of Oklahoma with that organization.

COBOURG, Oct. 5.—The Durham Fruit Growers Association is looking forward to a busy season. It is expected that the pack will reach about fifteen thousand barrels. The Association now has a membership of about eighty. A number of new ones have been added this season. There are a large number of good orchards owned by the different members but five of the larger ones are expected to produce four thousand barrels of the expected pack. Mr. W. J. Oke is secretary of the Association.

Mr. C. H. Winter and Mr. George Wright are just finishing up their part of the work by turning out fifteen thousand barrels. The apple packers are hard at work in many orchards. Further north, it is stated that some orchards have been affected by the frost.

An Interesting Lecture.

At the Baptist church here a very interesting lecture was given by Rev. G. A. Clarke, B.A., pastor of the First Baptist church at Edmonton and formerly of Port Hope, who has just returned from attending the World's Baptist Congress in Sweden. Mr. Clarke's subject was, "Our Age of Destiny. Will Europe Build or Blaze?" It was illustrated by over one hundred sildes showing conditions in the Irish Free States, in England, France, the Rhur, Sweden and Norway. Mr. Clarke was listened to with much interest by the large assembly present, as he had much first hand information to impart, having just concluded an extensive tour throughout these countries. He is an eloquent speaker, also. The chair was occupied by the pastor of the church, Rev. J. N. Norton, who by brief remarks introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. J. F. Dingman, Hagersville and Mr. Geo. Page, Cobourg, were heard with much pleasure in solos and duets.

It is now stated that Toronto and Eastern Electric trains will be operating from Oshawa if not from points further east, to the heart of the business section of Toronto by the Autumn of 1924. It is further stated that the most modern type of interurban cars will be used on this line, which it is expected, will be extended later to Port Hope and Cobourg. An hourly service, it is stated will be operated upon the Toronto and Bowmanville. From King street up through the Don Valley to the edge of what is known as the surburban area, a half-hourly service will be operated, it is expected, and between Whitby and Bowmanville there is to be a stub line ½ hourly service. Work is now going on all along the line, and bridge work will be continued throughout the winter if weather permits.

Jubilee Service.

The fiftieth anniversay services of Mount Olivet church, East Northumberland were of a very interesting character. At the fowl supper and entertainment a large crowd was present also. Mr. D. H. Orser gave an interesting historical talk and told of services being held in a schoohouse before the erection of the church. He was one of eight persons present at the anniversary who could recall incidents in connection with the building of the church.

At the close of the service at the Port Hope Methodist church on Sunday night the congregation wished him God speed and presented him with a well filled purse.

Practical Union at Grafton.

On Sunday morning there was a union Sunday school rally held in the Presbyterian church at Grafton that proved to be an interesting community event. It was well attended and the offering was a generous one. Rev. Mr. Moyer, pastor of St. Andrew's church preached. The boys and girls gave a good program, a union choir led in the service of praise and Mrs. Morgan sang a solo, that was appreciatively received.

SELL ART TREASURES.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(Assotiated Press)—Art collectors from America have sent more treasures to America since the war than were purchased by American during the 20 years previous to 1914.

English collectors explain that this is the result of the need for cash which is being acutely felt in England. Many formerly wealthy art collectors are forced to sell their possessions in order to meet high taxation and living costs. There seems to be no such condition among the American collectors, for their English agents are everywhere and always ready to seize upon any treasures that are for sale. In fact, so anxious are some of the agents to buy that they have adopted the method of calling on well known collectors and making them offers for various objects.

Art objects to the value of $10,000,000 were shipped to the United States last year.

An occasional dose of DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN Keeps young girls fit

False Modesty Wrecks Health

THE young lady just assuming the responsibilities of a woman is very apt to be self-conscious of her physical functions, and in consequence neglect them. There is no time, however, when it is more important for her to look after them. Chief among her troubles is constipation, and her suffering will be serious when she gets older if she does not regulate her bowels now. Mrs. J. Charbonneau, 3410 Adam, Montreal, recommends Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to all her friends, and Mrs. Henry Joyce, Croton, Ont. says it is the best remedy for constipation she ever used.

Safe for Young and Old

Let mothers with growing daughters interest themselves in this matter and see that their judgment is enforced. A rule followed by many is to take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin once a week until the bowels function daily, and at such other times as there is headache, biliousness, sores and fever blisters, lack of energy and appetite, sleeplessness, indigestion.

A dose can be given in these conditions to any member of the family however young or old as Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a simple compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasing aromatics, and perfectly safe.

Public Recognizes Merit

You will quickly see the difference between a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin and castor oil, or rough cathartics and physics. Syrup Pepsin acts gently and does not gripe. Increased doses are not necessary. A bottle can be had at any drug store, and a spoonful costs less than a cent. It has been successfully used for thirty years and is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles having been sold in drug stores last year. Keep Laxative Syrup Pepsin in your medicine chest.

INDIANS THEMSELVES COLORFUL FEATURE OF CHEMONG'S FALL FAIR

Parade of Braves and Maidens and Ancients in Ancestral Feathers — A Rare Pageant For Visitors

MEDICINE MAN THERE

The Curve Lake Indians held their annual fair yesterday. It commenced with the dance that they held the evening before, but the Fair itself took place yesterday, on an afternoon of rain and chilly winds and hail and some sunshine—in spots.

The Indians had prepared for a big day, but the crowd, all told, hardly mustered more than five hundred people, the majority of whom, however, seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly. A score of cars lined the bank of the township of Ennismore across the Little Mud Lake, and the bronzed ferryman who takes passengers and cars across the third of a mile of choppy lake that intervenes, had a splashy time of it on his teetering planks. Anyone who essays this "passage perilous" may be assured of a new sensation, and a distinct feeling of wonderment as to just how it is contrived. Cars and passengers are hoisted onto the rude planking, and the whole thing propels itself slowly across the twenty-foot depth of waters, a creaking steel chain rotating about a windlass, one end hitched to a stump on the Ennismore side, the other attached to a piece of stout timber.

The taciturn Charon of this primitive conveyance draws the chain through his hand, but the two lads, Dallas and Ralph Johnson, sons of Isaac, grasp the windlass handles tightly and sing as they make their way across. The fare is elastic, and ranges all the way from a free passage for visitors of the same blood, to a price of a nickel apiece, fifty cents, or seventy-five cents (return) according to the good-humored countenance of the passenger.

Indians Main Attraction.

The Fair is really not a fair, in the strictest sense of the word. The Indians are the principal attraction. To watch them enjoy themselves, to see them parade by, is the main thing. Here is a buxom girl, white fox furs around her dark-skinned face, on her arm a white admirer and coming along the road is a white woman, her Indian escort by her side. In the parlor of the chieftain is a piano with the latest jazz music on its shelf, and the Indian braves in Indian costume smoke long and strong cigars.

On the steps of the little town hall stands an Indian girl, rouge on her cheeks, her hair in dusky braids, a feather stuck in the band of bright beads that binds her brow, fringed trimming on the blue sateen of her Indian costume. Her husband, clad in brown suit and wide black hat, holds the baby, bright in red silk.

A girl whose father was a Mohawk and whose mother was a Chippewa wears a black crepe dress with deep lace bertha collar, her hair netted in the latest mode. Another with bright red spots of color on her high cheekbones, hair marcelled, with long ear-rings and expensive gown of sand-colored canton, chats in the Indian tongue with an old lady, whose native costume is held about an ample waist with the aid of a brown curtain cord.

Grand Marshall Taylor.

They had a wonderful parade that started away down the road at the cemetery and wound up in the grounds, where the judging was done. Billy Taylor, in 'civies' and waving a pompous baton, led the way, followed by a noble display of ancient red men and women, in fringed buckskins and war-bonnets, brandishing tomahawks and riding portly steeds. Squaws walking in the mud carried papooses in the ancient fashion, an old fat lady rode in state in a chariot whose wheels were wound with red and green, a small dog, decked out in colors, accompanied its bedizened owner, and Chief Dannie Whetung and his wife rode astride in Indian costume, the former in a magnificent suit of slashed and fringed brown leather, his face streaked with red, feathers in a metal circlet.

The 'medicine man' of olden times was there, Tom Wesley of Rama Reserve, an awesome figure with a buffalo robe paunch, club with long black horsehair mane attached, a trailing tail and horns on either side of his brown fur cap. Around his neck the witch doctor wore a double necklace of bright red haw berries. Behind him, brandishing a tomahawk and uttering a war whoop, bow and arrow on his back, little gold ear-rings in his brown ears, came an Indian brave. The uniformed bands of the Mississaugua, Alderville and the Rama reserves played nobly fore and aft.

From Other Reserves.

From Hiawatha and Alderville, from Scugog Reserve at Port Perry and Christian Island and the Rama Road Reserve at Orillia, the Indians came yesterday, many of them in cars, and with them mingled the Mississauguas of Curve Lake. They congregated about the doors of the Post-Office and the little Town Hall, and stayed away from the frigidity of the ice-cream man's wares. They liked the kewpie booths, and great shrieks of harsh merriment marked the acquisition by some brave or squaw of a bright red or yellow painted doll. The children here sing "O kewpie doll" in a manner that suggests an Indian melody. Isaac Johnson's rendition of this evident favorite, while riding into the village in state yesterday on the running-board of a runabout, proved a real incantation that brought from above a sudden rush of hard hailstones.

In the little church, everything is bright and clean. There is a sign at the rear that requests intending departees from divine service to do so "during the singing." Up near the pulpit, one on either side, is a curious contrivance, a sort of counterweight that holds two ordinary kitchen chairs about ten feet above the ground. Pendant in the air, they swing, and if one is lowered, up goes the chair on the other side.

Women's Work.

In the town hall, there was a pretty display of women's work, with a quantity of good-looking preserves, cakes, pies and vegetables, King Edward looked down from the wall, flanked by a noble mounted lunge. and Mrs. James Roberts, gentle-faced wife of one of the first ministers of the district, reigned over the room where the fancy work and basketry was displayed. There were some pretty things in sweet-grass baskets; gaily-colored samples of shopping bags and trays, a yellow and green-plaited sandwich tray, prettily curved, a triolet of sunflowers on a green bag; a British bulldog in red and blue porcupine quills topping a birch-bark case. There was a red and blue woven rag rug, a warm-looking rabbit-skin blanket and a novelty in the form of a doorstep mat, laboriously constructed with embedded pop bottle covers. An there were miniature canoes of birch bark and a tiny teepee in one corner. A doll carefully formed from a yellowish stuffed stocking had bright black bead eyes and an Indian costume of red sateen, fringed and beaded.

The live stock display, as far as could be discovered, confined itself to a group of half-a-dozen cows of the 'maverick' type. The prizewinner became excited and created a diversion by running away with her small calf from the rope that bound her to a long stake, and an unfortunate cow, coming in contact with a racing horse that had decided to create a short cut in one of the events by cutting across lots instead of going around, turned a double somersault to the intense edification of the assemblage.

Thomas Braden's Escape.

The horse races were immense. The 'Indian pony' myth has developed into bareback races on befuddled work horses. The starter, Thompson Braden of Lakefield, had a spectacular escape from injury when a wild-eyed bay crowded him hard. The trotting race was won by Isaiah Graham of the 16th Line of Smith, with his single opponent, Joseph Howden of Ennismore getting second place. George Whetung of the Reserve and Jack Sullivan of Ennismore were first and second respectively, in a bareback event. Madden Crowe of Alderville had no opponents for the best team.

Costume Parade.

In the prize-winning list for good costumes was included Benjamin Simcoe of Rama Reserve, Orillia, first prize for Indian Chief; William Knott of Chemong, second, and Tom Quinguish of the Reserve was third, with an imposing costume that included a wonderful pair of beaded gauntlets ,ear-rings of long gold beads, and hanging black locks. Best dressed Indian women were Mrs. Dan Whetung, Junior, and Miss Ella Taylor of the Scugog Reserve.

The Indian Princess prize went to Mrs. Herb Irons of Curve Lake, and prizes for the best-dressed Indian families were won by Dave Taylor and Sam Taylor. The Indian Prince prize went to Berenice Tobico. Judges were H. McConkey of Smith, W. Harrington of Ennismore and T. Braden of Lakefield.

Three fat ladies in full costume with braided locks and moccasins, storve for the Fat Ladies' prize in the racing event. Winners were Mrs. Taylor of Scugog, Mrs. R. Shillen of Rama Reserve, and Mrs. Quinguish of Curve Lake. The men's hundred yard dash went to S. Taylor and Merritt Taylor, of Curve Lake, and Dell Watson of Lakefield won the dash for girls of eighteen years and under.

Jack Jacobs was the victorious fat man.

Patriarch There.

Over against the band stand where the band tooted valiantly in the chill, one brass-player encased in a big fur coat, sat the almost centenarian of the Reserve, old John Taylor of Curve Lake, with hooked fingers curved over the head of a curiously formed stick, grey beard resting on a broad chest. His neighbors included a lady in sateen suit, its Indian fringe falling over the edge of a red sweater sleeve that ended in a long white kid glove, and a woman whose brown fur collar gave an enquiring look to her airy red and white paper hat. Short black kid gloves completed another native costume, giving a modern note to the primitive buckskin dress that ended above a pair of up-to-date shoes.

Curve Lake Team Won

Yesterday morning, the Curve Lake baseball team had a game with their visitors from the Rama Road Reserve near Orillia, and beat them by a score of 15-3.

Among the visitors to the Fair yesterday were the old chief, Dan Whetung, the Indian agent, R. J. McCamus of Keene, Miss Emma McCamus, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Mr. and Mrs. E. Maybee, Messrs. N Douros, M. Pappas, P .Gettas, J. Mervin, J. Long, G. McClelland, E. and R. Jones, J. Stuart of Peterboro, and Miss Loft of Belleville.

POSTER ARTISTS TO MEET.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press)—Many of the greatest artists and art teachers in the world are expected here next week to attend the 33rd annual convention of the Poster Advertising Association. Approximately 1,000 delegates will be present.

The general public has been invited to attend all sessions in order that it may learn of what the poster people are trying to accomplish in their crusade for clean outdoor advertising. The organization, according to the officers, does not go in for the erection of bill boards but considers them an "abuse" of outdoor advertising.

It's the favorite of Lord Renfrew

"Runnin' Wild"! That captivating fox-trot! And so all evening long on the Empress of France, out on the high seas, the orchestra played "Runnin' Wild" for His Lordship to dance to!

"RUNNIN' WILD" is Lord Renfrew's Dance favorite! And no wonder! Hear The Great White Way Orchestra play it on "His Master's Voice"-Victor Record No. 19063—and then you'll say he has rare judgment.

To cap the climax—on the reverse side there's "Little Rover." Once you hear the International Novelty Orchestra play this fox-trot you're sure to say "I hope His Lordship has this record.

"Runnin' Wild" is equally as good in song. Hear Miss Patricola (accompanied by The Virginians) sing it. On the reverse side Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray sing "You've Got to See Mamma Ev'ry Night". Tell "His Master's Voice" dealer you want "His Master's Voice"-Victor Record 19027.

TORONTO DAILY STAR. THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.

Miss Margaret Parker the pretty sub-debutante, who was one of the two Toronto girls to dance with Lord Renfrew on the Empress of France, arrived in Toronto to-day after a summer abroad

The prince danced every evening except one. He spent most of the day walking about the deck, playing tennis and exercising in the gymnasium. His favorite dance was Running Wild. Miss Parker said, and the orchestra played it for him all the time.

It's said wherever the prince was dancing it played twice as long. Indeed as it lay within the power of an orchestra, it was determined to give the five young women with whom he danced on the passage over something to remember the rest of their lives.

And then have "His Master's Voice" dealer play these great big hits for you too..

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, October 5. — The usual Thursday's run was in yesterday morning at the Union Stock Yards, consisting of 171 cattle, 22 calves, 286 hogs, and 214 sheep and lambs. On Wednesday 1,339 cattle were sold, and this left 1,680 on sale yesterday.

Quite a number of good Westerners came in late on Wednesday, and for a load of well set up butchers' heifers 5 1-2 cents was paid. Fred Bailey bought one baby beef out of the bunch at 8 1-2 cents a pound.

Shields & Atwell had two loads from the stocker show at Winnipeg. One load of Herefords, which took second prize, was sold to W. G. Hutchison of Princeton. These averaged a little over 900 pounds each, and brought close to 6 1-2 cents a pound.

Outside of the Western cattle there was not much business doing, and commission men have concluded that this week will witness another good-sized carry-over. In addition to the heavy steers the exporters have taken a few lighter bulls this week to fill space at around 3 1-2 cents a pound. Two hundred steers were bought for export at an average cost of $7.00 a cwt.; this is 50 cents a cwt. lower than last week.

Few good butchers made over 6 cents a pound yesterday, and the bulk traded in did not realise as high as 5 1-2 cents. Some common butchers are selling below 4 cents a pound. Bulls are holding steadier than other cattle, but cows are down in proportion to other butchers.

There were no choice calves in yesterday, and the best of the mediums brought from 9 1-4 cents to 10 cents a pound. Quotations close the week unchanged, but there is an easier tone to the market.

Lambs are steady, and bunches yesterday morning sold at 11 1-2 cents for ewes and wethers and 10 cents for bucks. Breeding ewes are selling at 7 1-2 and 7 3-4 cents a pound.

Hogs close the week steady at $8.75 f.o.b., but packers are going to try to lower the quotation 25 cents a cwt. for this week-end loadings.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, October 5 (Canadian Press). — A fairly active trade was done in the domestic market for barley here yesterday. A feature of the export trade was the increased demand that developed from British importers for Canadian Western barley and a more active business was done. The trade in oats on spot was better. There was no further change in the condition of the market for winter wheat flour yesterday, prices being steady. A fair amount of trading as done in millfeed. The demand for baled hay showed no improvement, and the market was quiet. There was no change in the local egg situation yesterday, the tone of the market being steady. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for potatoes under a fair demand. The volume of business in the butter market was small. The feature of the cheese trade was the improved demand from foreign buyers for supplies.

PRESIDENT DALY HAD WARRANT READ IN BED

Gave Friendly Greeting to Provincial Inspector Greer—Doctor Certifies As to Illness.

BONDSMEN ARRIVE

Island Grove, Lake Simcoe, Oct. 5—The Elms cottage, summer residence of H J. Daly, fronts on one of the most charming stretches of Lake Simcoe, immediately opposite Snake Island. Here, in an upper room, with an attendant, lies the president of the Home Bank of Canada who was placed under indictment by provincial and city police officers Wednesday.

The household knew of the despatch of the officers, and word was sent to Dr. E. D. Graham of Keswick, who has attended the Daly family at Lake Simcoe for several years, to come up. Dr. Graham was on hand when Detective-Sergt. Mulholland, of the Toronto police, arrived first and when Inspector Greer of the provincial police walked in later. He had examined Mr. Daly and told the officers plainly that they might see him but that he was to ill to be moved.

Sergt. Mulholland remained only a moment in the sick room but Inspector Greer, who was known to Mr. Daly remained longer.

"Good day, Mr. Greer," said Mr. Daly as the Inspector walked in, holding out his hand.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Daly," replied the inspector. "I suppose you know what I have come for? I have a warrant for your arrest. Would you like to read it?"

"No, you had better read it," answered the sick man.

The warrant was read, a few more words exchanged, and Mr. Greer went downstairs with Mrs. Daly. They discussed the question of bail, and a telephone message was sent to Toronto to have friends who would act as bondsmen notified.

Neighbors Offer Bail

In the meantime news of what had taken place spread around the neighborhood. Most of the cottagers have gone back to their city homes, but a few, who love the out-of-doors, have stayed. These, and some permanent residents, quickly gathered at the little store, and several of Mr. Daly's neighbors offered to go bail at once. It was decided, however, to wait until the arrival of friends from Toronto.

Owing to Mr. Daly's condition and the doctor's advice that he could not be moved. Deputy Reeve Willoughby of E. Gwillimbury, who is also a Justice of the Peace, waited around to go into the sick room and complete the necessary formalities. So also, Inspector Greer arranged to stay overnight. Sergt. Mulholland and County Constable George Thompson, who executed the warrant sworn out before Magistrate Jones in Toronto, left shortly after six o'clock.

Six on Bond.

However, the inspector's vigil was cut short with the arrival at midnight of Magistrate Jones of Toronto, accompanied by Thomas N. Phelan, K. C., Daly's Counsel. By 12.30 formalities had been concluded There are six bondsmen for $17,000 each. They are: Frank McLaughlin, 83 Glen Grove avenue; Frank O'Connor, 60 Castle Frank road; T. N. Phelan, K.C., and William Cluff, 171 Springhurst avenue, all of Toronto; Chas. T. Willoughby, farmer, reeve of North Gwillimbury; and Ernest Sprague, the deputy reeve.

Mrs. Daly served refreshments, and inspector Greer and the magistrate returned to Toronto.

This morning it was stated that Mr. Daly spent a very restless night and was in need of stimulant.

Daly is Popular.

Herbrt Daly has been, and still is, well liked and respected in the neighborhood, and there might have been no difficulty in getting local bondsmen. One of these who did offer himself was County Constable Sheppard. But as the bondsmen will be required in Toronto from time to time, counsel thought it advisable to have a majority of city men. Mr. Daly is said to have expressed his deep appreciation of his neighbors' regard. The events of the day though had such a reaction on him that his physician remained at the house during the night. Mr. Daly's illness is of long standing. He is said to have gastric ulcers and for the past ten days or so has scarcely been able to retain any food

Where Every Prospect Pleases.

The Elms cottage is a spacious summer home standing within a two and a half acre lot, facing Lake Simcoe, and opposite Snake Island. It lies about midway between Easthourne and Jackson's Point. The house is surrounded by stately elms, from which it gets its name. A clear open view of the island, something less than a mile away, the open lake beyond, the landscape all around tinted with the rich colors of the autumn foliage, make the location one of special attractiveness.

President Daly.

Inside a spacious living room greets the visitor. On the west side is a mantel and fire place, built out of boulder stone. A fire of birch logs was burning. A Chesterfield, a few rugs, half a dozen chairs, four or five hunting trophies, adorned the walls. Back of this is the dining room, where now and then one saw a Japanese servant flitting quietly to and fro. And then in romped a child with his toys and a big Airedale terrier, to begin to make friends with the new faces.

Why the Haste? Wife Asks.

In the midst of this stood Mrs. Daly. To her it was indeed a trial, and as she talked to Inspector Greer, or the newspaper men, she bore up bravely and well.

Only once did a word savoring of complaint or criticism escape her lips.

"Why was it necessary to hurry so much after the report was out?" she asked of Mr. Greer.

The remainder of the conversation corcerned the arrival of the bondsmen and of Dr. Lockwood of Toronto, who was xpected later in the evening.

As evening aproached Mrs. Daly became hostess.

"You will have a bite of supper?" she said to the officers and newspaper men. "We have not a lot to offer, but the but the boy will look after you. I will ask you to excuse me because I must go upstairs with Mr. Daly."

So half a dozen uninvited visitors, as it were, sat down. Once or twice Mrs. Daly came in to see if they were well catered to.

Thus the evening wore on, and when Inspector Greer announced he must remain in the house all night Mrs Daly again set out to make him comfortable.

In Bad Condition

That Herbert Daly, aged 41, president of the Home Bank, under arrest, "is in a precarious condition; do not think it is possible for him to recover," was stated yesterday by Magistrate Jones. He saw Mr. Daly at his home the night before.

"His hair is quite white and he looks like a man of sixty years of age instead of forty-one," declared County Constable George Thompson of Richmond Hill, who returned to the city after accompanying Detective-Sergt. Mulholland, who made the arrest of Daly at his summer residence Island Grove.

"His picture in the press shows Mr. Daly as a young man, as his age would indicate but he doesn't look like his published photograph, at all.

Lost Much Weight

"Mr. Daly is confined to his bed, and from what I saw of him he is a real sick man. He is seized at intervals with spams of violent coughing, and this coughing terminates in retching.

"Mr. Daly has aged rapidly, lost a lot of weight, failed terribly, and I doubt if he weighs over a hundred pounds now."

Reeve Willoughby and Deputy Reeve Sprague of East Gwillimbury township, bondsmen and neighbors of Mr. Daly, who came to Toronto from Lake Simcoe, confirmed the statement that Mr. Daly is in exceedingly bad health.

"Wasted Terribly"

"He has wasted terribly," said Mr. Willoughby. "No man can maintain his weight and not take food. I have taken to him fresh bass and delicacies from the farm but he is unable to retain them. Mr. Daly has been a neighbor of mine for six years. Our places adjoin. His children come over on to my farm perhaps twenty time a day. The entire community feel keenly for him."

"He is indeed a sick man," added Mr. Sprague. "I have never seen a man waste so quickly."

WORLD EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

Poincare Says Germany's Surrender only amounts To Words Yet—The Prohibition Question.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The German government, having surrendered unconditionally to France in the Ruhr, acted energetically to prevent a rising by those who wanted to "fight it out."

Minister of Defense Gessler became, virtually, dictator.

Bavaria, a German state where anti-government feeling is very strong, proclaimed a separate statewide dictatorship under Dr. von Kahr. The government didn't like this independent action very well, but Von Kahr seems to be cooperating with Gessler. Anyway Adolf Hitler, leader of the Monarchists, who, it was feared, would revolt, told his followers to wait a better time.

This appears to end the danger of civil war for the present, though the situation remains tense.

France is Waiting.

Premier Poincare of France says Germany's surrender is all right as far as it goes, but as yet it amounts only to "words." France, he explains, wants the Germans to act, too; when they do the French will be ready to talk business.

Wets and Dry.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia told National Prohibition Commissioner Haynes that they'll cease trying to help him enforce the Volstead law in Washington unless he immediately ends bribetaking and looting by dry agents.

That prohibition has failed was declared at the American Bankers' Association convention at Atlantic City.

General Counsel Brookmeyer of the Retail Druggists' National Association appealed to the organization, in convention in Boston, to co-operate toward ending "insane administration of the dry law."

In San Francisco President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, as the federation's spokesman, again demanded light wine and beer.

Acquittal for Ward.

Walter S. Ward, a New York millionaire's son, having killed Clarence M. Peters, a penniless sailor, was tried on a murder charge. Ward had no witnesses, but his lawyer told the jury he killed Peters in self-defense, that Peters was trying to blackmail him and that it would disgrace his family if he gave any details. The jury took Ward's word for it an acquitted him.

HEATON FLAYS SYSTEM OF PROTECTION WAWA

"Inadequate. Ineffective, Incomplete," Some of the Terms Used by Marshal, Referring to Fire-Fighting Equipment in Official Report Made Public To-day.

PANIC WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS OF LIFE

TORONTO, October 5. — The report on the fire at the Wawa Hotel by the Fire Marshal of Ontario was made public yesterday morning. The entire fire-fighting organisation and equipment is seathingly condemned and he find that the loss of life might have been avoided if panic had not unfortunately dethroned calmness and good judgment.

Having reviewed the evidence he comes to the following conclusions:

The loss of life might have been avoided if panic had not unfortunately dethroned calmness and good judgment.

Although the property burned very rapidly, all might have been saved but for the almost inevitable panic that arises in the case of such a fire.

The construction of the hotel contributed to the rapid spread of the fire and the baggage-room offered an added communicating channel by way of the open hoist.

It was too large in area, particularly in view of its flimsy construction, and the fire wall dividing the north wing into two sections was not sufficiently parapeted on either roof or sides.

Inadequate, Ineffective.

The so-called fire escapes were inadequate and ineffective.

The system of red lights indicating stairways and fire escapes was incomplete.

There was no direction in rooms and corridors, or displayed in the lounges, of how to find the fire escapes, or of how to use the ropes as a means of exit, and further that not all of the rooms on the first floor and none of the tower rooms had ropes.

The only ladder available was one taken from the boiler house that proved too short to permit its effective use from the hotel verandahs or balconies. It is in evidence that this solitary ladder was used to advantage at the south-east balcony attached to the dining-room, but only by the helpers raising and steadying it.

There was no means of announcing fire simultaneously and promptly to all parts of the hotel should one be detected.

No Organisation.

There was an entire absence of a fire fighting organisation or of any pre-arranged responsibility for calling the occupants in the absence of a simultaneous and automatic fire alarm.

The interior standpipe protection was practically out of commission by reason of the water supply being shut off at the main valve in the kitchen.

Three of the outside hydrants were practically useles because the hose was in a remote part of the property instead of being in a hose house immediately adjoining the hydrants; utility should be the consideration in such an important feature, even although the hose houses might be considered a scenic defect.

Testimony Conflicting.

With reference to the inside fire protection, the report says:

"Much conflicting testimony was given at the investigation as to how the hose operated. The manager, for example, stated that after he heard the cry of fire he ran along to the standpipe in the south corridor nearest the ladies' parlour on the first floor, took it down, turned on the valve, and for ten minutes directed a continuous stream from there to the seat of the fire. No witness was heard who had seen this hose at work as described by him. On the other hand several credible witnesses testified that from several distinct sections the hose had been taken down, the valves opened, and the water only oozed through. As a matter of fact, since the investigation revealed this marked difference on a statement of fact, we have had the controlling valves located and removed to our office, and it is very clear that at the time of the fire the valve was closed and the only water that was in the system was that that remained in the standpipes after the valve had been closed; the statements of witnesses that water only 'oozed' through is therefore fully corroborated.

Whose Orders?

"Notwithstanding a very earnest effort to ascertain under what circumstances or by whose orders the valve was closed, we have not been able to secure any evidence to help us in reaching a satisfactory explanation."

The report states that it is impossible to hazard even a guess at the cause of the fire, and adds: "We are therefore compelled to class this fire as of unknown origin."

"The evidence is quite clear that the fire started in the baggage room near or under the hand power rope hoist. Whether the platform of the hoist was up or down we have not ascertained, but it has been given in evidence that the necessarily shallow pit was usually full of rubbish and litter, and afforded an accessible place for a fire to start and from which to gain momentum."

WANT PETERBORO TO ASSIST THEM

Victoria and Haliburton Chambers of Commerce Join Forces.

LINDSAY, Oct. 5.— (Special to the Examiner).—At a meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade at Victoria and Haliburton on Wednesday regret was expressed by some of those present that Peterboro Chamber of Commerce was not represented.

This associated body has been organized for the purpose of booming Haliburton as a tourist's paradise. It is out after improved highways better railway service reforestation, etc., Lindsay is interested in the activities of the organization, as it realized that improved train service and good roads means more grist to its mill.

In discussing a highway from Minden to Kinmount, the Reeve of Woodville thought it was a mistake to build roads for the benefit of Peterboro to take tourists to that county.

Mr. George Potts of Bobcaygeon said that good roads to Haliburton would not help Peterboro or take tourists in that direction. Haliburton needed good roads, and Peterboro would help to get government assistance. Peterboro, he said, was vitally interested in opening up the north country, not from a selfish standpoint, but as an idea to get more tourists into the country.

FIELD DAY OF HIGH SCHOOL CAMPBELLFORD

Jack Cowell Won The Senior Championship, Defeating Runner-Up, Loucks, by One Point.

THE PRIZE WINNERS

CAMPBELLFORD, October 5.—Jack Cowell won the senior championship of the Campbellford High School at the annual field day held on the Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon, beating out Arthur Loucks, the runner-up, by one point.

Both these boys are promising athletes who have already established their reputation. Cowell is one of the best players on the Campbellford Junior lacrosse team, and played third base for most of the past season for the Northumberland League team.

Loucks has held the championship trophy in his grade for the past three years, winning it twice as an intermediate. This is his first year as a senior. He took four firsts, one third, and one fourth yesterday for a score of 23. Cowell's record was two firsts, four seconds, and one third, his total number of points being 24. The competition for the trophy, a handsome silver cup, was keen in all the events.

Four other silver cups are awarded every year, and these were won yesterday as follow:

Intermediate boys' championship, Purdy Petty.

Junior boys' championship, Thornton Ibey.

Senior girls' championship, Helen Black.

Junior girls' championship, Helen McDonald.

The cold weather of yesterday no doubt prevented a large number of parents from attending, but there was a good audience notwithstanding, and everything on the programme was pulled off on schedule time. No records were broken, and the almost zero atmosphere prevented anything like extra good showing, especially in the running races, those who took part shivering in their athletic costumes while they waited for the word.

The general verdict of the spectators, however, was that yesterday's was the best field day yet held by the Association, as the system under which it was conducted had been changed by Principal Greig.

The interest taken by the students, for one thing, was more general, as the prizes offered were all valuable and there was no record in each event.

The number of these prizes that could be won by a single contestant was limited. Unlike last year, the best of the athletes had no chance to carry off all the honour.

Principal Greig acted as master of ceremonies, and was assisted by Earl Stephens, mathematical teacher in the High School.

Chairman D. W. Douglas of the Board of Education, and Trustee George O'Sullivan, who has not missed a field day since these functions were started, were two of those who judged the events, the others who officiated in this capacity being R. T. Cowell, Major J. M. Bygott, and Alex. McGregor.

Snow fell at intervals during the afternoon, but this did not diminish the friendly rivalry of the students, and the spectators showed their interest by remaining until the last race was over. The following is a list of the two prize-winners in each event:

Senior boys, 100 yards race—A. Loucks, 1; Jack Cowell, 2.

The prizes, which had been purchased with donations in cash received from the citizens, were on exhibition in the windows of J. M. Ferris and Company, and made an attractive display. For the different events these were as follows:

Senior boys' events—100-yard dash, pencil and Gillette razor; 220-yard dash, gloves and cuff links; 440-yard dash, auto-strop razor and pair socks; broad jump, military brushes, pair socks and knife; high jump, flashlight and tie; bicycle race, thermos bottle and pair of socks; hop, step and jump, two pair socks and one pair socks.

Field Day Notes.

Principal Greig will keep a record of the records made yesterday so as to be able to note the athletic progress made by the various pupils during the coming year. All that is needed is more practice.

The delusion that driving a nail is above feminine capacity was shattered by Grace Blue, hockey star and softball pitcher, who won in that contest by an easy margin. No professional carpenter can bury a nail in a hard scantling more expertly than Grace did yesterday.

It was noticed that the students, boys or girls, who excelled in athletics yesterday are those who take the lead in class work.

The five silver championship cups will be presented to the winners at the High School commencement. Winners of prizes yesterday will receive these next week.

BATH DEFEATED.

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— In a rugby union game played here yesterday afternoon, Newton Abbott defeated Bath by a score of 11 points to nothing.

DUCK SHOOTER LOST HIS LIFE ON RICE LAKE

Gun in the Hands of a Companion Was Accidently Discharged---Both Men from Toronto

While out duck shotting on Rice Lake early this morning, Walter H. Saunders, of 138 Redpath avenue, Toronto, aged 30 years, was shot and killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of Melville W. Waddington, of 144 Lawton Boulevard, Toronto.

The accident took place about six o'clock in what is known as a blind channel, on the North Monaghan side of the Otonabee River, near Jubilee Point.

Coroner Dr. C. D. King was notified and he decided an inquest was unnecessary.

As two ducks passed overhead, Saunders stood up in the canoe, and fired and lost his balance. Waddington fired almost simultaneously, and in the scramble to right the boat the second barrel of Waddington's gun was discharged, with fatal effect.

The police were notified, and arrangements are being made to ship the remains back to Toronto. The charge entered Saunder's side.

Both men were accustomed to the use of firearms, but Saunders was not used to a canoe, it is said. As the gun discharged Saunders fell into the water and his companion thought that he had merely lost his balance. It was some minutes after before he discovered that Saunders was dead. Waddington ran to a near-by house, and after notifying the authorities, telephoned Toronto. Constable S. R. Pearson of Peterbor, was notified, and he in turn notified Coroner Dr. D. C. King.

How to have beautiful hair

For really beautiful and attractive hair, just follow this simple method:

Dissolve a tablespoonful of Lux into a gallon of very hot water. Whisk into a foamy lather. Cool down with cold water, then work the lather through the hair thoroughly, rubbing the scalp briskly with the tips of the fingers. Rinse with fresh water, gradually cooling it. Dry by gentle rubbing—in the sun, if possible—but not with strong heat.

Sold only in sealed packets—dustproof.

Everybody admires her beautiful hair—

it is so richly luxuriant, soft and silky, and always so delightfully fresh-looking.

And when her friends openly admire it and beg her for the secret of its lustrous beauty, she always smiles and answers, "Really it's so simple. I just shampoo it frequently with Lux."

Try a Lux shampoo the next time and you will be both surprised and delighted with the result. The creamy, soothing Lux lather will leave the scalp fresh and healthy, and will bring out the natural wave and colour in your hair, making it soft, silky and bright-looking.

THE WEEKLY LONDON LETTER

LONDON, Oct. 5 (By Canadian Press).—Rapid progress is being made it opens next spring. The foundation stones of the West African and Malta Pavilions have been laid this week. Over 2,000 men are now at work, and during the winter months the number will be increased to 5,000. The contractors are said to be ahead of time, as some of the buildings are expected to be finished this Autumn, and all quite early in the New Year. The Indian section may be completed early next month, and the Canadian section in the first few days of November. In the West African section four compounds (enclosures) are now being prepared as "homes from home," to receive skilled native craftsmen of different types and tribes. A few of the exhibits promised us are a whole Zoo from the Malay states, a reconstruction of a working colliery, a Chinese quarter, and a marvellous display covering every branch of electrical science—the generation, distribution and application of electricity for all kinds of industrial, commercial and domestic purposes.

Hampton Court, Cardinal Wolsely's red palace in its glorious garden by the Thames, is one of the most popular summer resorts of the Londoner and his visitors from the provinces and from overseas. This August it has had a new attraction in the shape of three rooms, part of the great Cardinal's own lodgings, now open to the public for the first time. The Palace underwent very drastic alteration by Sir Christopher Wren in the reign of William III., and by Kent in that of George II., when much Tudor work was demolished. It is only by a happy chance that these little rooms were spared, and their fine oak panelling preserved under modern battening and papered canvas. An interesting sideshow in the Palace garden is the Great Vine, planted in 1768, with its tree-like trunk six feet in girth and a main branch 114 feet in length. It is of the Black Hamburgh variety, and produces each year about 500 bunches of fine grapes, which were given to the hospitals before the war, but are now sold for the hospital's benefit. The grapes have just been cut, finding eager buyers at 5 shillings a pound, with an extra charge for baskets specially made by blinded soldiers. One visitor wished to purchase the whole crop, but his offer was not entertained.

One often hears Canadian visitors remark that England has no wild fruits; she is, they think, too trimly cultivated to have any room for them. As a matter of fact, the woods and commons, and especially the hedgerows which give the whole country so neat and garden-like an air in Overseas eyes, shelter plenty of wild apples, plums and berries, but one hears little about them, as they are usually left to local housewives and children, and with one or two exceptions are seldom gathered for market. Blackberries (bramblés) are one of these exceptions. Huge quantities are gathered and sold, for a few pence a gallon, by children and persons who have no better employment; but blackberrying is still a pastime—usually a family pastime—in the main. Within the last year or two London has instituted a "Blackberry Sunday." Greater London (a circle with a radius of fifteen miles), includes wide tracts of rural country, all of it easily accessible by motor bus. This year it has been announced that the berries will be at their best on September 16, when thousands of London families from the inner suburbs will spend a happy day in the country, collecting the raw material for jam and pies.

Near the Marble Arch, at the north-east corner of Hyde Park, (a landmark known to all Canadian visitors to London) is the site of Tyburn, for 687 years (1196-1783) a place of public execution, to which criminals were brought from Howgate Prison and the Tower. Here, in 1661, the bodies of Oliver Cromwell and his lieutenants, Ireton and Bradshaw, exhumed from their graves in Westminster Abbey, were beheaded and exposed. Workmen, making an excavation for the laying of water mains near this historic ground the other day, came upon a find of bones and skulls which were certainly those of the malefactors who died at "Tyburn Tree." It has been asserted that some of these relics may well have been those of the Protector, and the romance of this idea attracted many people. Unfortunately, no evidence can be produced in its favour, especially as Cromwell's skull has already been located in several different places. In 1847 it was stated in the Times that the embalmed head was then in the possession of one Mr. Horace Wilkinson, of Sevenoaks, Kent. It had the appearance of dried leather, with a small hole in the forehead, representing the famous wart. A story of more recent date credits a Miss Wilkinson, of Shortlands, Kent, with the ownership of the relic. This lady, who claimed descent from Cromwe l, is said to have been in the habit of giving what she called "head parties," when, after refreshment, the skull was passed round for inspection.

Dog Still Keeps Watch At Harding Tomb

CANINE GUARD A T HARDING VAULT.

By Nea Service

MARION, O., Oct. 3.—Where he came from no one knows.

But ever since the day after President Harding's remains were placed in a vault in the Marion Cemetery, a dog of uncertain lineage has remained on guard at the tomb.

Soldiers on guard sought to drive him away. Always he came back. Finally he won out; the soldiers accepted him as one of the guard, and now consider him a mascot.

The entrance to the tomb is the place he regards as his special post. He occupies it every day. The troops on guard at the vault, and people in the neighborhood see that the canine sentry gets his meals regularly.

Exercise Is Really Natural Medicine.

Exercise—much discussed and more abused—is really a natural form of medicine—preventive, tonic—to be taken every day, in rational doses, as needed. And it is prescribed, not alone for her who would be thin or for her who would be plump—the exercises in such cases supplementing a carefully chosen, balanced diet—but for her who would be supple, strong and nerveless—an all round healthy woman. For exercise increases one's resistance to chance colds and stray diseases; prevents, as well as corrects. It smooths out one's mental worries by the simple process of making them easier to endure; it restores overwrought nerves to a normal balance; it is an effective health builder and a valuable asset in disposing of the liabilities of worry, fatigue and disease.

It assures a clear skin, clear eyes, and a clear brain for the accomplishment of one's purpose in life, but it should be carefully thought out that it may meet the individual need, and then persistently, painstakingly done every day of the week, not spasmodically, now and then. Whatever the choice of a "setting up" drill—and there are many excellent ones to be had in book or pamphlet form—one simple form of exercise should always be included. Brisk walking clears the brain of cobwebs; stirs sluggish circulation; changes one's entire outlook. Do—for the sake of health, both mental and physical—exercises adapted to your special needs and the type of life you live, regularly, every day. Morning—the hardest time to exercise—is the best time in every way.

Italy Again Reaping Big Travel Harvest.

ROME, Oct. 5. — (Associated Press).—The Italian tourist trade has resumed its pre-war status. Before the war the tourists flocking into Italy from all parts of Europe added 500,000,000 lire, or $100,000,000 at the exchange rate of those days, to the wealth of Italy. In 1922 tourists from all over the world brought 2,000,000,000 lire to Italy which, calculated at the present rate of exchange, would give about the same sum, $100,000,000.

Coupled with remittances received from Italian emigrants, mainly in America, this tourist revenue used to be sufficient to balance Italy's adverse trade balance. The emigrant remittances, especially during the present year, show a considerable falling off, probably owing to the restricted immigration system now in force in the United States. In 1922, however, the emigrant remittances equaled their pre-war figure, which was about the same as that of the tourist expenditures.

The falling-off of revenue from the emigrant source has stirred the various commercial organizations to look for the missing income in an extension of the tourist business. At present tourists go over the beaten paths outlined by the travel companies. But that is not all of Italy, say the Italian promoters. While they point to Rome, Naples, Sicily, Florence, Venice and the Italian Alps as being very worthy of tourist patronage, they insist that regions of the Abruzzi, the Puglie and Romagna are also to be considered as possessing great tourist attractions.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN

When Mr. Myers of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, stepped into the drug store and asked his druggist for the best medicine he had in his store for woman's ills, is it any wonder he was handed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Mrs. L. K. Myers in writing of it says: "I have been weak, run down and had a pain in my left side for a long time, so I could not work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me in a short time so I was able to do all of my housework including washing and ironing, and now I feel fine all the time." As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for benefiting 98 women out of every 100 women who take it, it will pay every suffering woman to try it.

The champion home brewer is discovered in Haverhill, Mass., and gets 30 days in the workhouse. His wife testifies in court that he drinks 12 quarts of 'red wine" every day.

There is no particular editorial moral in this, which seems to be characteristic of the most interesting things of life. However, a man who can drink 12 quarts of wine a day does a public service in the way of furnishing material for conversation to enliven dull evenings. So we pass the news along.

Tested Blood May Wreck Romances, But Will Prevent Any Mismating

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5. — (United Press).—Science may govern future marriages and obliviate the divorce evil.

Ante-nuptial blood tests to prevent mismating and promote happy marriages is predicted by surgeons within the next twenty years.

This fact was brought to light at the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists and Abdominal Surgeons, recently held here.

Dr. O. M. Gruhzit of Detroit read a paper on "Incompatible Blood," which in effect said there were four kinds of blood as far as temperament is concerned and they make for various sorts of dispositions and natures among those in whose veins they flow.

Pursuing Dr. Gruhzit's topic, Dr. William S. Bainbridge of New York declared that the whole fabric of marriage and propagation should be woven along lines more in keeping with medicine and science.

"If blood tests are taken of men and women before they were permitted to marry we would possess solutions for many problems which have hitherto proved vexing, if not actually insoluble," Dr. Bainbridge said.

"We would know the best methods of eugenics and we would also have an effective means of doing away with a great number of divorce cases."

Dr. Bainbridge said that through blood tests persons could discover whether others had a natural affinity for them and whether they were possessed of temperaments that were suited for each other to live in wedded bliss.

Adoption of the blood test within twenty years was predicted by many surgeons attending the convention.

They jokingly pointed out that before many more years the prospective father-in-law will ask the young swain who is seeking the hand of his daughter:

"Have you had your blood tested and is it of the type that scientists decree best suited to the red corpuscles of the girl of your heart?"

Thus, many romances of the future may be wrecked on the rocks of science, but physicians are fully convinced that the blood test will reduce divorces, promote happy marriages and prevent mismated marriages.

HUNTS SACKS OF GOLD TO PROVE HE ISN'T LIAR

NORFOLK, Neb., Oct. 5.—(United Press).—Jim Bird, member of the Omaha Indian tribe in Thurston County, Neb., honorably discharged from the American army as scout during the battles with the Sioux Indians, wants another chance to find four sacks of nuggets which he declares he and two Santee scouts buried under a tree in the bad lands of South Dakota, forty years ago.

A number of business men here interested in the old Indian's story are planning to fit up an expedition to locate the gold. The old scout, who is past eighty, declares he is not after the gold from a selfish point of view. He has plenty of money, government allotments to his family bringing into wealth estimated at $100,000. He says he wants a chance to scout around and find the tree and the gold in order to prove his story.

Federal agents from the Omaha Indian agency believe Scout Bird's story and will join the expedition to hunt for the gold nuggets.

The story told by Scout Bird is that, with two Santee Indian scouts, he became separated from the soldiers who were fighting the Sioux. The three scouts were trailed by hostile Indians and wandered off into the bad lands, where they were in hiding for several days. In the wanderings through the canyons, they came upon four Mexican prospectors who, believing they were attacked, fired upon the scouts, who, in turn, fired upon the prospectors, killing them. The scouts found four sacks of gold in the camp of the Mexicans—most of the gold being in nugget form.

They dug a tunnel under a tree and buried the treasure. They feared discredit upon themselves if they told of the killing of the Mexicans and kept the incident a secret. The two Santee scouts died, and recently Scout Bird told his story to an Indian police officer on the Omaha reservation.

Scout Bird has drawn a map from memory of the place where the gold is buried.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

LEFT-OVERS

Left-over bits of meat have a way of accumulating in a truely maddening fashion sometimes. The "tail" of a porterhouse steak, scrap ends of the Sunday roast, and old chop and a scrap of bacon are too "good to throw away" and yet seem hopeless to the inexperienced housewife.

Beef can be used in hash, lamb or mutton combined with rice, veal or pork worked up in croquettes, a meat pie or a cream sauce on toast. A combination of meats can be made into any of these dishes with very satisfactory results.

The secret of successful left-over dishes lies in the care with which they are prepared and served. Every particle of gristle or skin should be removed from the meat, the bone cut away and if the family objects to fat, this should be trimmed off.

Serve hash or croquettes garnished with parsley on the best platter. This has a psychological effect on the family which is worth dollars and cents to the cook.

Hash.

One and one-half cups chopped left-over roast beef, 2 cups chopped potatoes, ½ onion (minced), 2 tablespoons bacon fat or drippings, ½ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, salt and pepper.

Cooked or raw potatoes may be used. Pare Potatoes and put through coarse knife of food chopper. Mix chopped meat ,potatoes, onion, salt and pepper. Melt bacon fat in frying pan and when very hot add meat mixture. Pour the water in at one side of the pan, cover closely and cook over a slow fire for 20 minutes. Remove cover and cook until hash is dry. Add butter and turn frequently with a spatula to prevent burning. The hash will become brown and crisp and quite light and fluffy made this way. If wanted folded, do not stir, but let brown on the bottom. Then fold like an omelet. Cooked potates should be used.

Meat Croquettes.

Two cups chopped meat, ¾ cup dried bread crumbs, 1 egg, salt and pepper, milk.

Put meat through fine knife of food chopper. Mix meat, salt and pepper and bread crumbs thoroughly in a deep mixing bowl. Add egg, unbeaten and mix well with a fork. Add milk slowly, beating constantly. The mixture should be quite moist, the bread crumbs will absorb quite a lot of milk. Pack mixture in a big iron spoon and push into a frying pan containing about one-fourth inch depth of hot fat. The mixture should be too moist to form into balls with the hands. Cook until brown on one side, turn and brown on the other side. Serve with tomato sauce.

This is on excellent way to use up several kinds of meat.

Meat Pie.

One cup coarsely chopped left-over meat, 1 small onion, 1 medium-sized potato, salt and pepper, boiling water. Crust: One cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon lard, milk.

Oil the bottom and sides of a baking dish with bacon fat. Cut onion in half and put in center of dish. Add potato thinly sliced. Add meat, season with salt and pepper, sprinkle with flour and pour in boiling water at one side of the dish to more than cover contents. Cover with crust and bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

To make crust: Mix and sift dry ingredients. Rub in lard with tips of fingers. Cut in milk with a knife. Use enough milk to make a soft dough.

These are the quickest and most economical ways of using left-over meat I know. The dishes are palatable and nourishing.

Your Health

INFANTS' DIGESTIVE DISORDERS

Indian summer gives the baby as much to worry about as midsummer heat. Dyspepsia, intestinal disorders and fermentation are common at this time of the year. Overfeeding is the chief cause. The symptoms are diarrhea, colic and vomiting.

To remedy this condition as soon as possible, change regular feeding to barley water and small amounts of orange juice, followed by a weak mixture of milk, which are increased gradually.

There is always the danger of anxious mothers to increase feeding too rapidly. It is well to avoid using laxatives and enemas, as unnatural conditions are easily set up. Consult your physician before using them.

The chronic state of malnutrition is also caused by derangement and never impairment of the digestive process. The baby in this condition cannot properly assimilate food and is emaciated under weight.

The infant may sleep well and have a fairly good appetite, but the skin is not a health tone and there are frequent periods of diarrhea alternating with constipation. For this trouble, breast milk is the best remedy. Very careful nursing, to exclude any infection, temperature troubles or collapse is necessary.

Alimentary intoxication, cholera infantum or summer complaint is also a serious digestive disorder. The most serous phase of this trouble is lack of proper attention and early treatment. It is caused by torrid weather, bad feeling and contaminated food.

The first corrective measure is to stop regular feeding for about a day. Boiled water with a small allowance of tea flavor or milk of magnesia is good to feed during this period. If the baby is living on a pure milk diet be careful to give nourishment, after the fasting period, that is low in nutritive values of fat and sugar. Skim milk or albumen milk is good.

Potatoes And No Potatoes

By MRS. J. E. LESLIE.

Used to be that the potato was an essential to most every meal. Father and grandfather felt that neither breakfast, dinner nor supper was quite complete without the starchy adjunct.

Now, in these days of calories and balanced meals and "Watch Your Weight" warnings, the faithful potato is enjoying a well-earned rest.

Even a dinner nowadays without potatoes is an ordinary occurrence—and a wise one, and they are almost an unknown quantity at the other meals. Too much starch is clogging to the digestive system. Young people "pooh" at this suggestion—just as they always have, and always will, at any health precautions. Maybe if they do not work their digestive organs so hard when they are young, they will have better health when they are old. Looks a bit logical.

From the housekeeper's side of the question, the omission of the potato from the dinner menu, offers complications. She has depended upon it so long that the meal seems incomplete without it and she has trouble thinking up a substitute.

No need of a substitute, if she can only make the family think so. They will like it after they get used to it.

A perfect dinner no longer means a great number of dishes. A few things, well-cooked and served, are more enjoyable and healthful than an elaborate meal.

A thick tender steak, served with a tasty vegetable — beans, tomato scallop, creamed onions or anything else the cook may plan—with bread and butter and a good dessert and coffee, will make a dinner that will send the man of the house to his easy-chair and his cigar satisfied in body and cheerful in mind.

The potatoless meal is a good time to have a more or less heavy dessert—apple cake with carmel sauce makes a perfect ending — boiled rice with raisins or fresh fruit cooked in it, or pie, are good.

As compensation for the dinners served without potatoes, there may be tasty, nourishing menus where the plebeian "spud" holds first place. A dish of scallopped potatoes or potatoes au gratin contains the principal elements of nourishment within its creamy depths. The milk and butter and cheese carry sufficient sustepance in themselves. Supplemented by a salad or cooked vegetable like spinach or carrots or beets, and a dessert that is not over-starchy — fruit cup or stewed fruit with plain cake is good — the home maker has a meal complete in calories and delicious to the taste.

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest help in motherhood of any medicine I have ever known. I am the mother of six children and I suffered greatly each time except the last one, when I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did, and I got along just fine; felt well and strong and had practically no suffering, and had a grand baby, that has always been healthy. I regained my strength very quickly afterward. I was so thankful to have been advised of this medicine, it gave me such wonderful help."—Mrs. Henry McDonald, 3 Wilmot Avenue.

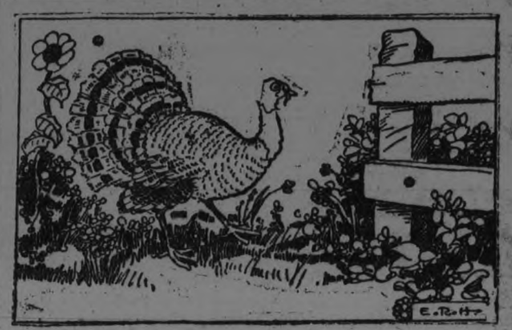
ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton



MISTER GADABOUT GOBBLER

And, oh, but he was proud of himself.

Mister Turkey Gobbler was the limit. He was always gadding about somewhere or other, with his wife and relations trailing after him, poor things, until they were almost dead. Even the children had to tote along, because their mammy was afraid to leave them at home alone.

And, oh, but he was proud of himself.

As Mr. Dodger said to the Twins, the peacock at the palace wasn't in it when old Mister Gobbler spread out his tail like a fan, and got red in the face, and swelled himself out like a Fourth of July balloon ready to go up.

"Why does he like to gad about so?" asked Nancy.

"Because he is vain, I suppose, and likes to show himself off," answered Mister Dodger, blowing a cloud of corn-silk smoke out of his corn-cob pipe. Then he pulled his corn-husk hat down over his eyes, and said, "Come on, Twins. That reminds me. I heard Farmer Smith say to Farmer Brown that if he did not keep his turkeys out of his buckwheat field something dreadful was gonig to happen to them."

"Do they tramp it down?" Nick inquired.

"No, they swallow it down," nodded Mister Dodger. "They snip it o with their bills and eat it. I don't blame Farmer Smith for getting cross. Well, it's getting dark now and the moon is coming up and Mister Gadabout and his family will be coming back to sleep on top of the woodpile. Yes, sir, there they come now."

The Twins looked toward the place where Mister Dodger was pointing, and sure enough! There was a long dark line trailing slowly along toward the barnyard. They knew it must be the turkeys, for nothing else could move so slowly—except molasses in winter time.

Pretty soon Mister Gadabout flew up to his roosting place, then his wife and then his children, and then all of his relations.

And before long they were sound asleep.

"Now then, Nancy!" said Mister Dodger. "Have you got a bit of red ribbon about you?"

Nancy had the very thing right in her pocket.

"Well, I declare! That's lucky," said the fairyman. "Can you tie a bow, Nancy? I never was any good at it."

"Yes, indeed!" cried the little girl excitedly. "What do you want to know for?"

"Because we're going to tie a large red bow of ribbon right around Mister Gobler's neck. When he wakens tomorrow he's going to be the most surprised bird in Squealy-Moo Land. I'll tell you why later."

RICH SPOILS FROM MOTHER OCEAN

By LYLE C. WILSON.

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (United Press).—History's effect on Davy Jones' hoard of money and jewels has been enormous.

Forty years ago Lloyds Register recorded an annual loss of two thousand ships by wreck, fire, miscalculations of position and a hundred and one other causes that plague the mariner and make life hazardous.

By 1898 this annual toll had been decreased by 15 per cent.

Governmental lighthouses, stricter regulations in the granting of master mariners' certificates and an increasing knowledge of the sea and its ways were responsible for this reduction.

As the floating tonnage of the world increases, the loss of vessels decreased, until, in 1914, it was as safe on a monster trans-Atlantic liner as on a Dayton, Ohio, street car.

The Great War altered this. Sea travelling approached trench taking as a hazardous occupation. Submarines, mines and insufficiently trained seamen combined to change ships from safe refuges against worry and danger to the exact opposite.

Countless wars of the centuries have had the same effect.

The wreck of Xerxes' mighty armada at Salamis; the destruction of Antony's splendid vessels after the retreat of that moon-struck leader in the arms of his false Cleopatra; the loss of the powerful fleet which Penelope awaited and which returned a single ship; each disaster has heaped treasure on the sea bottom.

In 1588, a haughty king of Spain, protector of the Catholic religion and ambitious to the point of insanity, sent the Great Armada against the puny fleet of Elizabeth of England.

English nerve and the will of God combined to scatter the bones of Spanish men and ships along the rocky coasts of northern Scotland and Ireland. A great storm separated the Armada. The flying remnants of the greatest collection of fighting vessels ever assembled up to that time were destroyed.

Those Spanish galleons carried fabulous treasure. They came to fight and to conquer and also to buy. A Spanish warship was as much a trader as a fighting unit.

When the Armada went down during the terrible week after it proudly sighted the English coast there was scattered along the coast fringe of Scotland and Ireland a wealth of gold and jewels as as yet uncounted. It is still there, waiting a man with the nerve and skill to recover it.

There have been lesser wrecks.

Grace Darling, the plucky daughter of an English lighthouse keeper, won immoral fame by her exploit in saving the crew of the merchantman Forfarshire, wrecked on the rocks from which her father's light should have been a warning.

The poem telling of Grace Darling's heroism has thrilled every English-speaking child. The eerie lighthouse; whistling wind; stormy waves dashing against foam-flecked rocks; the frightened girl; and then the call from out beyond, the hopeless cries of drowning men; is a story known to all.

Grace Darling could save the lives of wrecked sailors, but the money aboard the Forfarshire was never saved. It was not a large amount, but enough to excite the envy of any but a very rich man.

The Forfarshire was one of thousands of ships wrecked and abandoned after the precious human freight had been removed.

The second chapter in the rescue of these ships will soon be told. Divers, with newly perfected apparatus, will soon reap the golden harvest that has lain under the seas for years.

It will be a less inspiring tale than that of brave Grace Darling. No poet will fit the action to metrical music. The second chapter will be recorded on the profit and loss ledgers of mercenary salvage companies.

SQUELCHING INQUIRY ROUSES STATE'S IRE

GOVERNOR W. W. BRANDON (RIGHT) AND STRAP, FIVE FEET LONG AND THREE INCHES THICK (ABOVE), WITH WHICH CONVICTS ARE SAID TO HAVE BEEN BRUTALLY BEATEN.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 5.—Political revolution is in the making here.

Its area of agitation centres about the alleged heckling by Governor W. W. Brandon of the grand jury probe investigating alleged brutality and return of the lash system to Alabama's prisons as brought to light during a recent convict revolt in the Banner coal mines of Jefferson County.

Feeling Grows.

During the insurrection prisoners dynamited thousands of dollars worth of valuable machinery and held peace officers at bay during a complete day of undisputed, absolute control of the properties where they had been hired out under lease.

The uprising created but brief stir, until members of the Alabama State-Wide Anti-Leasing Committee and Solicitor James C. Davis alleged deplorable conditions existed among the convicts rented on lease.

Charges have been made that prisoners were forced to work beyond the point of physical endurance, that medical supervision was lacking, that many were compelled to dig coal while sick and bare-footed, and that Warden J. D. Evans, an ex-saloonkeeper, was incompetent.

The situation has just come to a crux due to Governor Brandon's refusal to permit riotous convicts said to have been brutally beaten with a three-inch strap to testify before the grand jury now in session.

Governor Recalcitrant.

It has been further aggravated in the face of an official writ issued by Circuit Court Judge H. P. Heflin, ordering the immediate surrender of the prisoners to examination of the jury probe.

Although the court's order bristles with "teeth," and by innuendo warns against interference, Governor Brandon has reiterated his stand, that the convicts shall not testify and has even gone so far as to order the quiz halted.

Feeling has grown throughout the state and open accusations have been levied charging Governor Brandon with attempt to subserve the civil authority of the courts and take upon himself the mantle of dictator with "a cat in the bag to hide," tantamount to existing martial rule in Oklahoma.

ASK FOR CURFEW BYLAW.

Would have Children Off the Streets Early—Letter re Safety.

OSHAWA, Oct. 5. — A communication was received from the Home and School Council asking the Town Council to provide a curfew by-law taking effect at eight o'clock in the winter and nine o'clock in the summer. The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

A letter from the Ontario Safety League referred to accident prevention measures which weer necessary at the lake front, urging that the council provide for safety first work being taken up by the police and fire fighting forces. The fire and water committee will deal with the matter.

HAS RESIGNED.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Joseph Archambault, K.C., M.P., Crown Prosecutor for the district of Montreal, has sent in his resignation as Crown Prosecutor to the Attorney-General of the Province. The resignation has, however, not been accepted, and a letter from the attorney-general's department has been received by Mr. Archambault, asking him to reconsider his decision and to wait for some time before giving it formal consideration.

TO PRESENT NEW CABINET TO-DAY

Formation of Stresemann's New Cabinet is Practically Completed.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—(United Press.)—Chancellor Stresemann was expected to be able to present his "new small cabinet" some time to-day.

Formation of the new government was reported practically completed, after considerable difficulty. A declaration of policy, in the Chancellor's speech presenting the new government, also was expected.

The list of new ministers was reported tentatively as follows: Stresemann, Chancellor of Foreign Affairs; Gessler, Army; Brauns, Labor; Luther, Finance and Economy; Von Oppen, Food and Agriculture; Fuchs, Occupied Area; Heimrich, Interior. Post Offices and Railways still were unfilled and the portfolios may be left vacant.

SAYS DIAMOND HUNTERS MAY WIN OUT AFTER ALL

Father Writes That Conditions Not as Bad as First Reported.

TORONTO, Oct. 3. — Diamond hunting conditions in British Guiana are not as bad as first reported, according to a letter from Mr. George W. Hatton of Peterboro, whose son is a member of the expedition known as the "Diamond Venture." One young Canadian lost his life, from fever in the expedition already, and great hardships were reported by the party.

Mr. Hatton writes: "I am in receipt of a letter bearing date Sept. 6, from my son, who is with the party saying that conditions are not as bad as reported by the Detroit paper. Owing to the party having to return to Georgetown it was deemed advisable to sell a large part of the stores as the boat was overloaded even with what was left, half of the load had to be taken down and unloaded below the first falls and the remainder returned for.

"Five of the party had to return to Georgetown and are now in the hospital, three suffering from fever, one with bush sores on his feet, caused by the drinking water at the camps as the river banks are very low; one has an abscess on the back of his hand caused by paddling.

"The patients are convalescing and expect to return up river within a few weeks taking on this trip a tent-boat that they may sleep and be protected from the sun and rain. Some of them have had their personal kit stolen.

"As this will doubtless be of comfort to the friends of the members of the party, I am writing this letter which you may publish or not as you see fit.

"Doubtless the party have encountered hardships, but with experience and luck should win out, as nearly all of the members are overseas men and will not take set back, without endeavoring to overcome them."

"100 MILLION" STORES.

(By Gus M. Oehm.)

BERLIN (By Mail to United Press.)—The crash of the mark has eliminated the 5 and 10-cent store in Germany. Before the war Germany had, here and there in its biggest cities, what were similar to our 5 and 10 cent stores in America. All articles were sold for a like number of pfennigs.

Although there are still stores which sell everything at the same price, they are now instead of 10, 20 and 30-pfennig stores, 10, 20 and 30-million mark stores.

That is, one one day they are 10, 20 and 30-million mark stores, but on the next they may be 20, 30 and 40 million mark stores. For instance, in the Friedrichstrasse in July, 1922, there was a little store where everything was priced at 30 marks. One could buy a nice pocket knife or a cheap piece of jewelry or a box of stationery—all for 30 marks each.

Day by day the mark decreased in value and the sign in the store window showed an increase of price, until during the first week of September of this year everything in the shop was marked 10 million marks.

By the time this gets into print Berlin 10-cent stores may have turned into 100-million mark stores.

WESTMINSTER HALL THE SILENT WITNESS MANY PAST EVENTS

LONDON, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press)—In connection with the reopening of Westminster Hall, a short time ago by the King, after it had been closed for about eight years while repairs in its magnificent roof were being made, many incidents of an historic character have been recalled. This hall was the only part of the old Parliament Buildings that escaped the destructive fire of 1834 and when the new buildings were constructed it was brought into use as a vestibule for the House of Commons and the House of Lords. It was erected by King William, surnamed Rufus, who reigned from 1056 to 1100, and was altered by Richard II. (1367-1400).

High revel was held in the newly built hall in Westminster in the last half of the eleventh century and the last year of the life of William Rufus, the second of the Norman Kings. Royalty was lusty in its pride, and the King told his guests that this new hall was "but a bedchamber to the palace that I will ere long raise up," yet it was a building such as London had scarcely ever seen, and the King himself was to live but a short time. Further eastward along the Thames river was the Conqueror's Tower, but except for that grim keep there was little in London to challenge comparison with Westminster Hall.

Since then, through eight centuries, Westminster Hall has been one of the principal theatres in which the more coloured and pageant-like episodes in the national drama have been staged. When it had reached only 70 years a prince was crowned in it during the father's lifetime, and it invariably was the scene of coronation banquets Here Pepys, the man of the diary, observed the quaint old custom of the King's Champion, a knight riding, fully armed, into the Hall with spear and target carried before him, while a herald proclaimed that if any one dare deny Charles Stewart to be the lawful King of England here was a champion that would fling down a gauntlet and fight him.

Such amiable junketings were often seen at the Hall up and down the centuries. As late as the reign of George IV., it is stated, 100 dozen bottles of champagne and 100 gallons of iced punch appeared on one occasion under Westminster Hall's venerable roof.

The Hall, however, has seen sterner and more dramatic things than even the most costly dinner parties. Here was the stage upon which the most important state trials took place. Early in his reign, Henry VIII. sat in judgment upon 480 men and 11 women with ropes about their necks for being implicated in a prentice uprising. Three queens, they of England (it was still Catherine of Aragon then), of France, and of Scotland, and also Cardinal Wolsely pleaded for the 491 prisoners. The prisoners were forgiven and they flung their halters toward the beautiful carved rafters of oak as a signal of appreciation of "the mercy of a King to his erring subjects."

A century and a half later a King, this time in the dock, found no such lenient treatment. Westminster Hall to Charles I. was but the prologue to the scaffold at Whitehall. However, King Charles I. was not the first man doomed in this splendid building. Sir Thomas Moore was arraigned there, and the news of his execution was brought to Henry VIII. while the latter was engaged in playing a game of "tables" with Anne Boleyn, one of the hapless wives of this much-married monarch. Many other notabilities were condemned in Westminster Hall, including Guido Faux and Sir Everard Digby, who had plotted the gunpowder treason, and the Earl of Strafford, whose policy of "thorough" cost him his head.

A whole history of high treason and of the proud, wayward Englishmen who dared too much might be written around Westminster Hall, notable among them being Warren Hastings, the famous Indian administrator, at whose trial Burke spoke, and to whom Macaulay has given immortality."

In its present form, the Hall, is largely due to Richard II. It has witnessed a celebration of King Henry V.'s victory at the Battle of Agincourt and in the same hall another great English captain, the Duke of Wellington figured once, riding on a white charger after the coronation of George IV.

Westminster Hall surely has been surfeited on the pomps of history. History itself is something of a pageant, and to any Briton who has in him a spark of imaginative insight into Great Britain's eventful past the recent recalling of the stirring scenes witnessed in the storied precincts of this venerable building must strike fire.

Westminster Hall is English, entirely English. Obscure men, as well as great ones of the earth, who are yet intimately part of England, have taken their unrecorded walks in it, as they will do again, now that it is once more open to the public. One obscure young man early in the nineteenth century turned in there for half an hour one day, but his stroll was recorded, years afterwards.

He had just bought a copy of the Monthly Magazine in the Strand, and had hurried to Westminster Hall to calm his delight over seeing his first contribution in print. He was obscure then, but he afterwards became world-famous as a novelist.- It was Charles Dickens. His eyes "were so dimmed with joy and pride that they could not bear the street and were not fit to be seen there," so he went pacing through Westminster Hall, as he has told his readers.

Truly beloved of Englishmen is this ancient yet ever new building, Westminster Hall. It links up eight centuries of interest, and appears good for many centuries to come.

STINNES ARRANGES FOR PARLEY AS TO RUHR

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press):—Hugo Stinnes, German industrialist arrived here this morning and it is known that he and several others of Ruhr industrial group have arranged for a conference with General Degoutte, French Commander in the Ruhr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(Canadian Press).—Prices were fractionally lower at the start of trading in the stock market to-day reflection some revival of the short interests courage and the falling off in the reserve ratio shown by the weekly federal banking system statements American Woollen was especially weak dropping 1 1-2 to 74 against Thursday's high of 77 betraying apprehension lest the entire New England Textile industry be affected by the conditions which forced the closing of the Amoskeag plants. LAW THE SAME and a couple of friends, arrived and Mr. Stewart was brought out from the office where he gave his own bail of $50,000 and Mr. Shaw for a similar amount.

Bail Was Increased

At the time of Mr. Stewart's arrest the bail was fixed at $50,000, but about 4 o'clock Crown Attorney Murphy phoned the police station to increase the bond to $100,000, and the sureties must be ratified by the Crown. Mr. Stewart seemed to be quite shocked when Provincial Inspector Hammond called him away from a party of friends in the restaurant and informed him of the warrant for him and took him by the arm. Asking permission to go for his hat, he enlightened his friends and then left.

Magistrate Condemns Cells

Magistrate Jones took the opportunity to examine the cells to which he and his brother-magistrates are daily consigning unfortunates who are less used to the comforts of life than is Mr. Stewart. The Magistrate held up his hands in disgust. "This is worse than Agnes street," he said, meaning No. 2 (now West Dundas street), "and no fit place to put men." The cells are small, and dark, and provided with the wire mattress used as bench and bed.

Mr. Gough's Ordeal

Mr. Gough, too, had unpleasant experiences after having gone to Provincial Police headquarters at the Parliament Buildings to surrender himself.

Mr. Gough arrived at the City Hall walking with Provincial Police Inspector Killing, about a quarter to four, from Dundas Street West Police Station.

Inspector Killing had taken Mr. Gough from the Parliament Buildings to the police station in an automobile, and at the police station Mr. Gough sat in the waiting room, next to the cells. He was asked to hand over a penknife which he carried, after his name had been affixed to the police blotter. He waited there for about 15 minutes until Inspector Killing had received instructions to proceed to the City Hall where the bondsmen were waiting Mr. Gough's arrival.

A group of about six of Toronto's most prominent business men, accompanied by Mr. Gough's solicitor, R. H. Parmeter, had gathered at the Crown Attorney's office, and directed by Assistant Crown Attorney Edward J. Murphy, the group proceeded to the office of Magistrate Jones, where Mr. Gough arrived. The group including James J. O'Neil, Mr. McGrath, Mr. Gus Gough, Mr. Parmenter, and two other friends waited, standing in Mr Jones' office while the magistrate wrote a letter and Crown Attorney Murphy made out the bail bond on the corner of the desk.

Looked Out Window

Mr. Gough seemed to take the ordeal of bond as a matter of fact, standing looking out the window and chatting with the other men in the room. He appeared to be just a trifle nervous and shifted from one foot to the other.

Police officers connected with all these arrests felt their position keenly. They hate the job, but they had to do it. They would much rather have been hunting bandits and desperadoes and malefactors who shoot to kill.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to "Harky."

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Miss Caroline's well-meaning advice to the "Million Dollar Doll" leaves Terry bewildered and miserable.

Nazlo reviews what had gone before between him and Terry. The girl had run away from him one night, back in New York and her unscrupulous father Desmond, had told Eustace she had gone to stay with friends.

Putting two and two together Nazlo realizes that the supposed Million Dollar Doll is Terry Desmond. He determines to question Mrs. Harkness whom he sees coming ashore from the yacht.

CHAPTER LVIII

Still the Convent Child

When Mrs. Harkness landed she looked about for the taxi which, she understood, had been ordered for her. Only an important car stood in the place where the taxi ought to have been, and "Harky" hesitated. "I suppose you're not a taxi, are you?" she enquired of the chauffeur.

He, not understanding English, shrugged, and answered volubly in French. It was then that Nazlo turned from his inspection of boats, and hurried to the rescue. He took off his hat to the old servant as politely as if she had been a duchess.

"I saw you trying to ask the chauffeur some question, Madam," he said. "But he doesn't know any language except his own, so I came to see if I could help you."

Mrs. Harkness was impressed. She considered the gentleman most distinguished.

"Thank you very much, sir," she replied, with her Ulster brogue. "I thought the car couldn't be a taxi. But never mind I'm not too old to walk up the hill, and get a taxi there."

"Please don't do that," Nazlo urged. "I shall be glad to take you up. I'm just ready to start. And we may be going the same way, further on. If —"

"Ye're more than kind, I'm sure, sir" she thanked him. "But I'm for Mentone, and that's not likely to be your way—"

"As it happens, it is my way" Nazlo answered. "Delighted to be of service."

"Well, sir, if that's so, I won't refuse," said Harky. "If ye'll let me ride with the chauffeur—"

"Certainly not. You'll ride with me," insisted Nazlo.

"But I must tell you, I'm a servant, sir," explained the old woman.

"I'm sure you're a faithful one," Nazlo complimented her.

Being sixty, and looking every day of her age, Mrs. Harkness had no fear of a "kidnapping" plot. She accepted the pressing invitation, and was not astonished to hear, after the start, the Mr. Cozzens (so he introduced himself) was slightly acquainted with the owner of "Silverwood."

"I was surprised to see Mr. Sheridan on the terrace this morning," he went on. "I suppose the young lady with him (whom I know by sight also) isn't a guest on his yacht?"

Mrs. Harkness was ordinarily a dour woman to "pump" with questions about her master's affairs, or her own. The kindness of Mr. Cozzens, as Nazlo called himself, however, and the pleading tone which seemed to say "I hope you can disabuse my mind of a painful impression" tempted her to speak.

"The young lady is a guest, sir," she admitted. "No doubt you've heard that, and ye'll hear more. What Miss Divine may be at home,I don't know. It's not my business But it is my business on Mr. Sheridan's yacht, where I look after her like her own mother would. Not that I have to protect her from anything or anybody, sir If she was one of them Russian Princesses bein' saved from the Bolshies, no greater respect could be shown her on board, beginnin' with my master, down to the sailors.

"And a nicer behaved young lady I never met with. She keeps herself to herself, but she's sweet and considerate And I shouldn't like to hear a word spoken against her"

"You won't hear one from me" Nazlo said cordially. Safe under the name of Cozzens, (there was a Cozzens at Monte Carlo who had laughed with him over the 'Divine Comedy' in the Sporting Club bar) the Shoe King contrived to coax a little more information from Mrs. Harkness. He did this so gently, that the old woman hardly knew what she let drop.

If he had not feared an encounter with Sheridan, who might have tired of gambling by this time, he would have offered hospitality for the run home; but he dared not do that, and the two parted at the gate of Miss Caroline Sheridan's villa in Mentone.

Nazlo felt rejuvenated, as the car spun him back to Monte Carlo, for not even the most confirmed cynic could doubt the word of a Mrs. Harkness. Little details of the voyage gleaned from her were like bits of a jig-saw puzzle making up a surprising picture.

He pieced together morsels of gossip he'd heard about Miles and Betty Sheridan, with other morsels concerning Betty and Paul di Salvano. Then he added to these the news from his detectives in New York, that Juliet Divine was said to have married a Spaniard, Next to this went the facts about Terry which were in his own possession; her likeness to Juliet: her start at sight of him on the terrace; and, with a few more items that fitted in, Nazlo had before his mind's eye a picture sketched on the lines of reality.

He had enough imagination to see that a man of Sheridan's type might throw away his reputation to save that of his wife, without any wish to profit by the situation. By the time that Nazlo stepped out of his car before the Hotel de Paris, he had deduced the truth as it stood between Miles Sheridan and Terry Desmond, with the exception of two important details. It did not occur to him that Sheridan might be ignorant of the girl's identity: and he could not comprehend how Teresa Desmond had come to play "stool pigeon" in the place of that notorious young woman, the Million Dollar Doll.

His curiosity as to this was almost unbearable, but he resolved that sooner or later he would get to the bottom of the mystery. Meanwhile, he rejoiced like a boy in the conviction that the convent child was still the convent child: and the idea that Sheridan might mean to marry her when the divorce was got, crystalized his own wish to have the girl at almost any price, into a firm intention.

LAVAL, BISHOP OF QUEBEC.

(By Canadian Press).

October 1, 1674. This date marks the day in Canadian history when Quebec was made into a bishopric and Francois de Montmorency Laval was appointed its first Bishop. Born of an illustrious French family at Montigny-sur-Ayre, two brothers having died in battle, Francois inherited the family title and estate. Nevertheless he persisted in his determination to devote himself to the service of the Church. Ordained in 1647, he was appointed Vicar Apostolic of New France with the title of Bishop of Petraea, and sent to Quebec when there were less than 500 inhabitants, and the whole French population of Canada did not exceed 2,200 souls. It was not until 15 years of hard labor and the travail of settling many problems incident to the settlement of the infant colony, that Laval received the appointment and title which made him the first Christian prelate of Canada.

The years during which Bishop Laval worked for Canada were filled with struggle against conditions. To suppress the ferocities of the Iroquois who some years previously had exterminated the Hurons, 1,200 soldiers with the Marquis de Tracy were sent to Canada. A struggle of another kind was the fight put up by the Bishop against the sale of brandy to the Indians. In this he was at first supported by Governor d'Avougour, who later withdrew his aid. Nothing daunted, Laval had resource to Louis XIV., making a perilous trip to France. He was well received and the Governor recalled.

Zeal for education was outstanding in the work of Canada's first bishop. He organized a complete system of primary, technical and classical courses. He built two seminaries for the education of theological students and encouraged farming by the establishment of an industrial school at St. Joachim. After many years of hard work he resigned in favor of a younger man. The vast territory which he governed is now divided into some 100 Bishoprics. On April 30 of this year the Tercentary of the birth of Laval was celebrated.

OBSERVERS SEE BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR EGYPT

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 5.— (Associated Press).—Egypt was never so tranquil or so full of promise for the future as it is today, in the opinion of disinterested observers in this city. Great Britain's decision to "stand clear" and give the Egyptians a fair chance to run the country themselves has proved a wise measure, it is averred. It has allayed anti-foreign feeling, put an end to the subversive activities of revolutionary organizations, and created generally a much clearer political atmosphere.

Meantime General Allenby, the British High Commissioner, is keeping a vigilant eye on the course of events. If Egypt finds the task of administering the country and promoting its progress and prosperity too great a task, England will again step in and guide the forces of the nation.

The most ardent Egyptians, even Zagloul Pasha himself, who is now returning to Cairo after an absence in France, never envisaged England giving way as she has. It was Zagloul's ambition to constitute himself a great heroic figure in Egypt's history. The British Government cut the ground from under him by releasing him from his bondage in Malta and virtually placing the future of Egypt in his hands. The sudden capitulation of England would appear to have confounded him. He is now asked to array all of Egypt's forces, to construct and not to destroy. It is admitted by all that he has a great task before him.

CROP REPORT

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Autumn growing crops such as corn, buckwheat, late potatoes, roots, etc., and also apples, have been much improved by the favorable weather of the last two or three weeks.

Pastures have also been in good grass and the milk flow has been from fair to good, with an improvement upon that of a month ago. Cheese factories and creameries have been taking in an average quantity of milk.

Silo filling is general. A portion of the crop was frosted, but the bulk of the corn while small in stock and general weight, as a rule, is fairly well eared and will make good ensilage.

Fall wheat is doing well with the suitable weather prevailing for the last few weeks. Recently sown wheat has caught nicely and that put in earlier also looks well. A fair top is assured for the winter. Some are still sowing.

Fall plowing is still going on briskly. In most localities both soil and weather have been very favorable for this work. Much remains to be done and will likely be done.

Wellington—Turnips are selling higher at this time of year than they have been for several years. A year ago they were selling at 8c or 10c per bus. and now the buyers are offering 25¾ and 30c. This means that either turnips have gone up considerably in the United States or else our little campaign that we have put on with the turnip producers has raised the price considerably. At any rate there is a vast difference between selling turnips at 8c a year ago and selling them at 30c this year.

Wentworth — The Hamilton market is the heaviest it has been in years. There is an abundance of all fruits and vegetables being offered for sale. The cauliflowers are much the best in quality that has been for some years.

Hastings — More farmers have grown alfalfa for seed. In nearly every case prospects for an unusual good crop are to be seen. In Hungerford Township one man has a ten acre field which is exceptionally well filled with seed.

Kenora—Bees have done exceptionally well this year and one bee keeper reports extracting already 10,000 lbs. of honey.

Prescott and Russell—Large quantities have already been sold at low prices. Brown honey is selling as low as 12c a pound while the bee keepers have to pay as high as 11c and 12c a pound for sugar for fall feeding. This is not considered as being profitable and good bee keepers have decided to feed back part of their crop of honey instead of sugar syrup.

Kenora — All farmers who have grown sunflowers for silage purposes are well satisfied with the results and now have their silos filled and many have had to wait until the first filling settles to finish putting in the balance of the crop. It is expected that a lot of western cattle will be brought in this fall as there will be a lot of cheap roughage owing to bad hay and harvest weather, and with this to supplement silage a number of farmers will take advantage of the cheap cattle on the Winnipeg markets for winter feeding.

Peterboro—There was a fairly heavy shipment of live stock during the week made up of hogs, lambs and cattle. Cattle of inferior quality were hard to sell but good stuff brought a fair price. Lambs were slightly higher than last week with hogs twenty-five cents lower.

Bruce—A car load of heavy steers were gnished by Mr. Jas. McEwen near Chesley. wenty head averaged 1472 pounds and it is stated that they are the heaviest average lot that have been shipped from Bruce for some time. A car load of hogs were shipped from Walkerville this week, 38% of which graded selects, 40% thick smooths, 7 per cent heavies, and 15 per cent ships. A car load lot of choice heifers were also shipped, the owners realizing around 7c per pound for them.

Kenora—All live stock is in good condition as pastures are good. A few pure bred Holsteins were sold at a sale this week and the highest price received was $85.00.

Manitoulin—Live stock is improving rapidly in condition, but there are still a large number which are rather thin. A considerable number are being picked up by local buyers and some men from Eastern points have been picking up feeders.

CANADIAN EXHIBITION IS TO TOUR BELGIUM

PARIS, October 5. Canadian Press —The organizers of the Canadian travelling exhibition have received an invitation to tour Belgium in the same manner as the tour of France had been conducted. In spite of the protests raised in one quarter the exhibition will after all be placed in Eulleries, opening on October 9th.

ARRANGING TRIAL MURDER SUSPECT

Extraordinary Precautions to Frustrate Attemptto Rescue Sydney Murrell.

LONDON, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press). — On October 15 Sydney Murrell will be arraigned at the Assizes here before Mr. Justice Wright, charged with the murder of Russell Campbell at Melbourne in April of 1921, and John Williams, also known as "Slim," who was with Murrell when the killing took place, is to be brought back from Kingston to stand trial also. It is expected that J. M. Donahue, who is acting for Murrell, will also defend Williams, who has been serving a term in Kingston for banditry.

The authorities of Middlesex Couty jail are making extraordinary preparations to frustrate any attempt at the rescue of Murrell by his friends. When the trial opens the prisoner will be brought to the court-room by an underground passage instead of through the corridors, as has been the custom for some years.

VERY COMPLETE STILL FOUND NEAR CASTLETON

GERMANY COMING BACK.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press)—German shipping is showing remarkable recuperative powers, so much so that other maritime states are today concerned lest this "dreaded competitor soon will regain her old position." The quotation is from the Scandinavian Shipping Gazette, which publishes an article on the subject.

In 1920 Germany had 420,000 gross tons of steamers and motorships, according to this authority, and in June of 1923 a total of 2,510,000 tons.

"Bitter complaints are made against the resumption of the German competition in practically all waters, but perhaps principally in South American seas," the Gazette says in conclusion.

BRITISH COMPETITION.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press)—Cheap travelling on the Continent has temporarily superceded non-stop dancing and long distance cricket scoring as the summer craze of England. The honors of the cheap travelling contest, it appears, will go to the person who travels the farthest and the longest on the least money. The daily papers are being swamped with letters from claimants.

A London vicar requests the blue ribbon for the feat of having travelled from London to Switzerland, and gone on a 15-day walking tour through that country, and then returned to London with a net expenditure of eight pounds 16 shillings, equal to $40.50.

Two London school teachers have completed a 40-day hike through Germany and Austria and their pocketbook was set back only $175.

MONGOLIAN RACE WERE IN AMERICA 10,000 YEARS AGO

Archaeologists Find Oriental Remains From Alaska to Patagona—Chinese Diplomat Recognized the Primitive Chinese Characters on Ancient Mexican Walls.

Was there, thousands of years ago, a Mongoloid civilization stretching all the way from Greenland to Cape Horn? Recent investigations answer this question in the affirmative.

The remains of a Mongoloid invasion of America or of an ancient native American Mongoloid race are found across the far north of Canada; and there are strong Mongoloid traces among the natives of Alaska and certain of the tribes of British Columbia, writes Pepe Rey in the Boston Globe. Mongoloid eyes and features are constantly appearing among races of North, Central and South America.

Excavations over a vast extent of territory show Mongoloid types in the remains of primitive American civilizations. One constantly meets Mongoloid features in Mexico and they crop out frequently in Bolivia, Eduador and Peru.

Educated Chinese have identified the Mongoloid type in the remains of primitive American races; and my Chinese laundryman at once recognized little clay figures with upward slanting eyes and high cheek bones. Professors Mena, Niven and Hyde and various members of the staff of the National university and the National museum of Mexico have pronounced the primitive remains of the Valley of Mexico Mangoloid, and Professor Morely of the Carnegie Institute is a believer in the Mongoloid theory.

The secretary of the Chinese legation in the City of Mexico recognized primitive Chinese writing in signs encountered on Mexican walls from 8,000 to 10,000 years old; and he asserted that terra cotta figures found twenty feet below the surface, in the Valley of Mexico, were ancient mandarin dresses; and that the primitive terra cotta figures found with them are similar to the primitive Mongoloid gods of early Chinese civilization. In the Valley of Mexico alone there are millions of these figures.

Exterminated By Deluge

Faces on submerged walls of ancient Mexican temples, sculptures and paintings on stone tablets and adobe brick bear the unmistakable Mongoloid stamp, and the early primitive gods of the Mongoloid, the gods of nature, fire, sun, earth, water, are in evidence everywhere among the remains of early Mexican civilization now being excavated.

The most remarkable finds among the remains of these buried Mongoloid cities are stone slabs, adobe brick, terra cotta tablets and cylinders covered with primitive hieroglyphic writing. Some of these the Chinese secretary recognized and interpreted without hesitancy, and since then other Chinese have confirmed his interpretation.

The first civilized races of Mexico were swept out of existence by a continuous deluge, so stupendous that it is recorded, in the chronicles of the Aztecs, as the "Water Sun," or the period when the sun was finally destroyed by the deluge of water, which, descending from the sky, swept him out of existence in his daily journey across the heavens.

The huge crater-like throat of the Valley of Mexico was, a second time converted into a lake, the waters of which rose high up on the mountain sides. The marks of the flood are everywhere. The dead are huddled together in their houses, their household utensils and goods about them. Their corn and beans —for they cultivated corn and beans in this remote age—are found burned to cinders upon the hearth. This charring saved them from putrefaction. Their clothes of woven fabrics were also similarly saved from decay. Ruins of houses, walls, temples and monuments dedicated to the primitive gods are found inextricably mingled by the disturbing hand of the deluge.

Later Came a New Race

Long after the edifices had been submerged beneath the waters of the lake, the swollen streams of the mountain sides carried down fluvial matter, finally covering the doomed race. Land slowly reappeared above the surface of the water, forming a blanket from one to several metres thick above the ruins. In this upper cap no human remains are found, indicating the absence of human habitation when it was formed.

Later came a new race much like the first in appearance. Mongoloid features; and it was probably a descendant of the early civilization so tragically destroyed. Living outside the influences of the flood, it had not been engulfed in the cataclism which swept the former out of existence.

While the Valley of Mexico lay a dead land this race had evidently been travelling the highway to a more advanced civilization; for it had discarded the rude sculpture of the earlier Mongoloid with its stuck-on eyes, ears, nose, mouth and limbs, and it had advanced from primitive wall paintings to well executed stone sculpture. Pottery had developed from simple to more complicated forms, and terra cotta figures had approached nearer to a reproduction of the human features. This new race had already begun to make curious hieroglyphic figures and signs on bricks, sundried adobe, terra cotta cylinders and stone tablets. It is startling to find these hieroglyphic signs and symbols so well developed some eight thousand years ago.

13,000 ALIENS HELD CAPTIVE

All Because Vessels Crossed Line Too Quickly; Human Freight Law's Pawn

NEW YORK, Octt. 5.—Again, the brutality of the "immigration race" has been demonstrated so plainly that its injustice, cruelty and hardships should be plainly apparent to all. Thirteen thousand persons—guilty only of a desire to become residents of the United States—have been kept prisoners in New York Harbor, some of them for a week, before being allowed to set foot in the country which to them was the "promised land."

Neither the United States Immigration Department nor the owners of the ships that brought them here desired to hold these prospective citizens in stuffy, hot, cramped quarters on board ship.... with the shadow of deportation hanging over them. But this did not relieve the discomfort, the worry and anxiety of these men, women and children. Nor did the fact that the Immigration Law makes possible the race each month that causes such conditions, afford any relief.

Under this law ,each month, 20 per cent. of the annual quota of immigrants of each country may enter. This makes the race possible because steamship companies compete keenly and the late comers must be returned because the quotas are exhausted rapidly.

Jockey For Posit'on

Consequently, the race begins at the seaport near the home of the immigrant. It extends all the way across the Atlantic, with each chief engineer nursing his machinery and each master quick to take every possible advantage. The object is to reach The Narrows as near midnight as possible on the last day of the month. Crossing the imaginary line between the two forts that guard the harbor entrance ahead of midnight means the inclusion of the immigrants in the quota of the preceding months.

As the hour approaches, the captains jockey for position. The channel is narrow and in places, the tide is tricky. So far, there has been no disastrous collision, but the chances of such always are present. Promptly on the stroke of 12, the ships slide over the line. Thus is entrance into America made dependent on quality of bunker coal, seamanship, nerve and recklessness.

Just before midnight, Aug. 31, an official from the United States Immigration Department took a post of observation at the imaginary line which was marked by the beam of a powerful searchlight. Stop watch in hand he waited. A fleet of ships was lying there, with steam up, so close together that a biscuit could be tossed from the deck of one to the deck of another. Thousands of men, women and children were up and waiting. They were a part of the gamble—a gamble that might mean death by drowning, due to collision, deportation because they arrived too soon or too late for entrance into the United States.

Umpire of Fate

Picture the situation. Here were thousands who had sold everything they possessed to come here. Their arrival was a dream come true. They had braved the perils of the ocean; they had endured discomfort; among them had been births, deaths and marriages. Fights had broken out and estrangements had been suffered. Some were coming here to make homes for men who had come before them; others were to marry childhood sweethearts.

Before them was the promise of a better lot in life, freedom, liberty, equality. Hundreds had left war-torn lands, bringing with them an intense love of peace. Yet they were only a part of a gamble—a gamble by steamship companies who were seeking to defeat a law which is administered wrong-end foremost.

The minute hand of that stop watch held by the observer crept closer to midnight. He was the umpire. On his decision rested the fate of many hundreds. The quiet fleet took on life. Suddenly, one of the boats slid across the line. Three others followed. Those peering from the port holes cheered. They believed that they had won.

But they had not. That stop watch showed that the Braga, the Byron, Esperanza and Estonia had crossed that line a few seconds before midnight. The four ships carried 1,875 persons, most of them from countries with August quotas filled. An appeal was taken to Washington and while that was being determined, the 1,875 and those who arrived on the other ships, the total being about 13,000, were kept prisoners on the ships that brought them.

Could Not Understand

This in itself was calamity. Hundreds did not understand what caused the delay. They could not comprehend why they were not allowed to enter. There was much restlessness, bickerings, quarreling and fighting. In the main, however, emotions were repressed for fear of doing something that would count against them in the final examination.

Hundreds of dollars were spent by relatives, who employed boatmen to take them close enough to the ships to greet loved ones. Anticipating a favorable ruling, the passengers of one ship were sent to Ellis Island and preliminary examinations made. This done, there was nothing left but to send them back. Some ships, due to sail, transferred their immigrants to others lying in the harbor.

The decision from Washington to admit the 1,875 who had arrived too soon was received by Henry H. Curran, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, just as those examined were being loaded on a barge.

That they would be allowed to enter the United States was explained in a half dozen different languages by members of the island staff who had rushed to the pier. But it was only with difficulty that the immigrants could be made to understand. When they finally understood that they were not to be sent back to their native land but could come in, pitiful scenes were enacted. Women became hysterical; stoical men burst into tears and children, not knowing what was happening, added their wails to the confusion.

Companies Penalized

The lines owning the four steamers that slid across the boundary too soon were penalized heavily. They were fined $200 for each immigrant brought in and in addition had to return the passage money as compensation for inconvenience and trouble. The bureau took the stand, in making the ruling allowing entrance that the immigrants could not be blamed for the action of those in command of the ships. They were just pawns in the gamble.

But despite this, the race will occur again at the end of this month. Masters will be more careful in watching the time and their chronometers will be adjusted more closely, but again there will be the possibility of disaster and the certainty of inconvenience, worry and disappointment.

JAZZ BETTER THAN RAZZ

(By JACK JUNGMEYER)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.— America's funniest human semaphore is Officer P. A. Ackley.

He jazzes the traffic at Los Angeles' busiest street intersection—a gesticulating example of the efficiency of infectious good humor on the job.

With antics that would shame a college yell leader or an Indian coryphee, Cop Ackley's chortling white-gloved hand beguiles the halted autoists or moves them with snappy precision. No snarls or verbal backfiring where this bluecoat "Coue" does his stuff.

"Jazz beats razz in the traffic," asserted Ackley, interviewed on the jump during his busiest hour, while tooting horns applauded his athletic shimmy.

"It keeps 'em moving and cheerful. It makes 'em forget the price of gas and the desire to sass. Funny what a little wiggle of the hand will do to human nature. It peps folks up in the theater—sort of puts 'em in step. And I soon found that it did the same thing in the auto line. Now watch 'em go."

The traffic purred forward smartly at the only cussless corner in the town of rubber-tired angels. Motorists will drive blocks out of their way to get a jolt of good humor from Ackley. Thousands of visitors from many states have nominated him America's most popular road cop.

"That guy gets more fun out of his job than a cop ought to have," said a harried truck driver, lulled to such patience by a dancing hand that he forgot to snarl at a trespassing lady driver. A hundred times a day Ackley's cunning kidding is thus attested.

And the material proof of the jazzing is that there are less delays and accidents at this street corner than any other intersection in Los Angeles.

LATE JUDGE SYMMONS WAS NOTED FOR WIT

(By MILTON BRONNER)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Israel Alexander Symmons, one of the senior magistrates of London, died the other day, and with his passing there disappeared the successful lawyer who gave up his practice to go on the bench and earn the soubriquet of "The Solomon of South London."

Keen, kindly and witty, many of his shrewd comments have been treasured by the attorneys who practiced in his court. Here are a few:

"Nagging is the constant reiteration of unpleasant truths.

"If some women were better cooks there would be fewer domestic squabbles for courts to settle.

"There is always a chance for the good joke.

"After the wife, the husband is the most important person in the household.

"Good housewives and good mothers are sure to have sharp tongues.

"Any man can talk a woman over if he tries."

As illustrating his human sympathies, they tell many stories. This is one of the best:

A poor woman without money or friends was clearly convicted of an offense. The law left the magistrate no option. He had to sentence her. So he pronounced judgment—one day in jail. As the prisoner was being led away, he beckoned to the officer and said in a half-whisper:

"Make it a short day, Mr. Jailer."

All parliamentary France is excited. Aristide Briand—who, as prime minister, came over to the Washington disarmament conference—has had his long iron-gray locks cut.

Somebody turned back the pages of French history, studied them for a time, and then gravely announced:

"Every time Briand has his hair cut, he's been on the eve of taking supreme power in a French cabinet."

This was reported to the ex-premier, who pointed to the thermometer.

"What does it say?" he queried.

"Ninety-five."

"That's the answer to the mystery of the hair cut. It's Fahrenheit rather than Poincare that has been troubling me."

Maybe it's because I never traveled in the tropics, and maybe they wanted to pull my leg. I was sitting in a little Fleet street restaurant and my table companions began talking about monkeys.

Said one of these blooming Britons: "I once lived on a plantation where the owner had trained a monkey to climb the cocoanut trees and gather the nuts."

Said the second B. B.: "Out in China where I lived the Chinks have trained monkeys to pull rhubarb and gather rice."

Said the third B. B.: "In Abyssinia the native swells have monkeys as torch-bearers at their supper parties."

Said the fourth B. B.: "The station-master at Uitenhage, Cape Colony, has trained a baboon to act as signalman and work the switches."

"Waiter," I gasped. "Bring my bill, and no monkey business."

If you can achieve the glory of getting up to the "tea bar" in the House of Commons, you may ask the waitress for a Lady Astor and a Sir Frederick. The Lady Astor isn't a cocktail. It's simply ginger ale. The Sir Frederick is a Banbury cake. Sir Frederick Banbury is Lady Astor's pet aversion.

HAPPY MEDIUM SKIRTS

There's a hurry call for "props" to remove the desert stuff from the fashion stage. The sweeping skirts that have made business dull for those knights of the white uniform and the busy brushes, are out.

Skirts, say the modistes, are to be the 'happy medium"—that is, between eight and nine inches from the ground. All the Shebas will have to get out the scissors and snip, snip, snip, or pass into the background, which every girl will honestly admit is worse than the flowers and slow music stuff.

Many Colors Popular

Changeable moire is one of the prettiest fabrics for dinner gowns. Gold, reseda green, bonfire, jade, sea blue, cocoa, pearl, mohawk, sapphire, porcelain blue and platinum are the shades that are attracting attention in that and other new materials. One striking changeable moire is of gold and rose the gold predominating.

Chinese blue velvet, brocaded velvet and some of the handsomely colored wedding ring" velvets are attracting fall brides.

Many frocks are made on a camisole instead of a slip where bloomers can be worn beneath without the customary slip. A better line is obtained, say the modistes, and that, this season, is the thing. Simplicity predominates.

STICKY PANS.

Instead of spending several precious minutes rubbing and scraping cooking dishes and pans, turn them upside down on the draining shelf or tabl after rinsing out with water. In a few minutes, while washing those that don't stick, the sticky cream sauce or whatever it is causing the trouble will wash off easily. Spiders should always be filled with water as soon as the meat and gravy are taken up.

CROWDS CHEER A GREAT MAN

American Citizens Extend a Warm Welcome To David Lloyd George in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—David Lloyd George, wartime Premier of Great Britain, today set foot on United States soil for the first time. Coming here as a private citizen to tour Canada and the United States, the little Welshman and his family were taken from the liner Mauretania at quarantine and landed at the Battery by the police boat Macom. At quarantine, the latest member of the "big four" to come to the United States made it known that he intended while here to call on former President Wilson. He defended the treaty, asserting that it was the manner in which it was operated that had caused unhappiness, and endorsed the proposal of Secretary of State Hughes that an international committee of statesmen and economists study the troubles of Central Europe.

A crowd of several thousands was massed at the Battery to greet the man who had steered Britain through troublous times. As Mr. Lloyd George stepped ashore he beheld nine platoons of mounted police drawn up to escort him to the City Hall. With the police were delegations of British and Canadian war veterans.

Crowds lined Broadway as the procession moved up through the canyon to the City Hall, where shortly before the Macom had landed. The police reserves had broken up the parade of Irish women carrying anti-British banners.

A huge crowd surrounded and filled the corridors of the City Hall as the ex-Premier reached it. Mr. Lloyd George arrived at the City Hall Park at about 12.30. He received a volume of cheers, and Acting Mayor Hulbert then extended the welcome of the city in a speech dwelling on the relations between Great Britain and the United States.

On board the Mauretania Mr. Lloyd George was asked, "Has the Versailles Treaty brought happiness and settlement to the world?"

"No, but I do not think that the mischief is with the treaty. The trouble has been with how it has been carried out," he replied.

The most important factor which might lead towards a settlement of the difficulties of Central Europe, which Mr. Lloyd George said were still grave, was the acceptance of the proposal of Charles E. Hughes, United States Secretary of State, in his New Haven address, that the situation be analysed and adjusted by an international committee of competent statesmen and economists.

"There is always danger in Central Europe," he said. "The situation is pretty bad, isn't it" To his mind it was not any more hopeful now than it has been since the French occupation. And added that he did not thing rapprochement between Britain and France was in sight on this question at the moment.

LONDON NOW FORMS IN LINE FOR EVERYTHING

LONDON, Oct. 5.—United Press — "Queueing-up" has become the municipal indoor and outdoor sport in London.

Londoners live packed in a city as sardines are packed in a can. When any considerable number of Londoners decides to visit any single point in London it is necessary to queue-up. A London queues-up by joining a snakey line of fellow Londoners and settling down to a wait of ten or 100 minutes until the line is gradually swallowed through the door he hopes to enter or into buses one of which he hopes to ride.

Whatever occurs in the English metropolis is finally interpreted in terms of queues.

Ther are queues for royal weddings, picture shows, murder trials, street cars, coffee stalls, churches and restaurants.

To Americans a queue is a howling nuisance, but Londoners consider them a necessary and convenient institution.

BABY PICTURES AT ROY STUDIO

Fine Examples of Photography Now on Exhibition in Window.

In the display window of The Roy Studio this week some of the lovely baby pictures in which Mr. Roy specializes are on view. They have excited much admiring comment from all who have seen them. Large pictures, done in the light grey tones and soft focus effects that seem to harmonize so well with soft baby contours, they are beautiful examples of the latest ideas in such work.

Little lads and lasses, caught in expressive poses, their small faces showing in every instance a bright and alert expression, big eyes bright with happiness they sit and stand and watch the observer in varying attitudes. A little frilled girlie, with curly locks, wears a shy smile, a chubby babe is vastly interested in something pleasant off in the distance somewhere, and a mite of a man in white sailor suit, cap slightly askew, looks out at the world with happy-go-lucky face, hands stuck in the pockets of his little jacket, legs braced in proper sailor fashion. In another pose, the same wee lad appears to be just on the point of commencing the hornpipe.

They are excellent examples of the attractive childhood with which Peterborough seems to be blessed.

DEATH RATE HEAVY

BUENOIS AIRES Oct. 5—In the majority of the provinces and cities of the Argentine tuberculosis is increasing at an alarming rate, especially among the working classes according to statistics made public by the national health department.

The centres of this disease are the slums of the big cities, where families of as many as eight or more, most of whom are underfed live together in one small room, unventilated and unclean. Although members of the family may die in these centers of tuberculosis, the family continues to live on in the same room which is never disinfected.

Tuberculosis claims its victims amongst the working classes as a rule between the ages of 20 and 30, especially those who are employed in cigarette factories. At least 20 per. cent. of the conscripts for the army are rejected as suffeing from the tubeculosis.

Avellaneda, the city that heads the list in tuberculosis mortality in the province of Buenos Aires, is one of the biggest industrial centres in the Argentine.

Statistics show that at present in the city of Buenos Aires, out of every 100,000 of its inhabitants approximately 200 die annually of tubercuiosis.

CLAIM FOR FAME WAS THRASHING THE KAISER

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press.)— The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russell Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have itched to do but could not, he gave the boy who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.

It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the Crown Prince and was visiting Ilfracombe, an English seaside resort, with his tutor, Wilhelm, in a playfully destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Prices' father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.

WANT OF CONFIDENCE IN CHANCELLOR STRESEMANN

BERLIN, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press). —The German Democratic party in Reichstag to-day adopted a resolution declaring that the party could not support a government which had no parliamentary basis. As a majority of other parties have already adopted the same view, it is not believed that Chancellor Stresemann will try to form a cabinet having support of Parliamentary parties.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ALL SAINTS'

Sacred Edifice Appropriately Decorated — Inspiring Service And Sermon.

The annual harvest festival service of All Saints 'church was held last evening. The sacred edifice was appropriately decorated for the occasion by the Young Men's Athletic Association, the Chancel Guild and several members of the congregation, with flowers and fruits of the gardens and fields.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Marsh, of Lindsay, assisted by Rev. R. B. Grobb, rector, Rev. W. R. Courage of St. George's church and the Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's church.

The processional number by the choir was "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," sung under the capable leadership of George Chandler, choirmaster, and to capable organ accompaniment by organist, Mrs. Logan.

The Rev. Canon Marsh's discourse, based on the text, 3rd chapter of Ephesians, 19th verse, "To know the love of Christ that passeth not," was deeply interesting. He stressed Christ's love for us, and said that when God gave up his only son it was to show his love towards the human race. "No matter how many times you sin Christ will forgive all who ask forgiveness."

Turning to the frailty of human nature, the reverend visitor pointed out tht awhen Christ was arrested and in court, his disciples, his best friends, turned away and said they did not know him. Also that Peter, when they asked him if he could prove Christ's innocence, had replied, "I do not know the man, and never saw him before." And yet the Masters' love for these men never faltered.

"There should be more love like that of Christ's in the world to-day," concluded the speaker, "for his love is the greatest of any. In fact, Christ himself is the creator of all love."

HEARD GRIEVANCES

WINNIPEG, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Before leaving for Ottawa late yesterday afternoon Lord Renfrew received the representatives of unemployed British harvesters in his hotel. He listened to their alleged grievances and expressed the view that if harvester immigrants could get work during the winter it might be well to take it. He asked Sir James Aikins to investigate complaints.

WHEN WINTER COMES

By CARL D. GROAT.

BERLIN, Oct. 5. (United Press.) —Berlin's burgomaster, Herr Boesz, repeated today his warning that "the very existence of thousands of families" is threatened by unreachable gas rates.

He has appealed on several occasions to the National Economic Ministry to keep coal prices down—artificially, if necessary.

For, he contended, "thousands of families, especially in view of dwelling shortage, are dependent upon gas for cooking; take away their gas and you remove their ability to exist."

So far the National Ministry has been unable to help the city leader. Every week, and sometimes twice a meek, the coal prices mount, kiting past the devaluation of the mark. At the moment English coal is vastly cheaper than German coal.

Down in the Ruhr, as this is written, the coal miners get wage increases about as often as they ask them. They go down to the mines but they no longer dig out much coal. What comes to the dumps goes to the French.

This condition puts coal in the luxury class. Just now the German metropolis, according to Boesz, is in danger of new factory closures, especially municipal works, due to the high coal prices. The city is unable to avoid continued heavy increases in gas prices.

Gas will be available for workers' families, but for the middle class man it will be impossible. As gas is now scaled it takes $6 to $10 a month for a small family's needs.

At the same time electricity is soaring proportionately, meaning that trolley traffic is curtailed and lighting regarded not as a necessity but as a luxury.

(By Carl D. Groat.)

BERLIN, October 5. — (United Press). — Germany, already inured to cold, coalless winters, faces this winter the greatest coal famine in her history.

House heating in thousands upon thousands of homes will be an unknown quantity. Last winter saw many cheerless, cold dwellings. The writer himself, ensconced in an almost palatial residence on fashionable Kurfuerstendamm, never knew the meaning of a really comfortably heated dwelling. This winter is destined to be even worse.

In houses with so-called central heating, the furnaces are not stoked unless every tenant agrees to pay a share of the coal. Practically everly apartment house in Berlin houses one or more down-at-the-heels families who cannot pay. That means no heating, unless the tenant is rich enough to afford stoves and to buy his own coal.

But coal to-day is selling at $20.00 or more per ton. The labourer earns at the best $9.00 or $10.00 a week; the middle class man by far not so much.

Even out of the Ruhr, one of the world's richest coal regions, there comes the cry, "Give us coal, or we die." The Government, as this is written, is trying to puzzle out how to mine coal, keep it out of French hands, and still supply Germans. It cannot be done, it is generally admitted. When coal is again mined it means passive resistance has ceased. It also means that France will get the coal.

Hence, Germany shivers already in anticipation of the bitter days ahead. Not merely cold, but perhaps industrial decay and political upheaval will be the outcome of this coal-less condition.

C. G. E. OFF TO A GREAT START

Peterborough Team Score Five Runs in First Innings at Napanee.

NAPANEE, October 5. — The Brockville team and the C.G.E. team of Peterborough met here this afternoon to decide the championship of Eastern Ontario in the Intermediate O.B.A. series, the winners to meet Welland in the finals.

The batteries were Whiting and Lane for Brockville and Rose and Ross for Peterborough.

In the first inning Peterborough scored 5 runs, and Brockville were blanked.

In the second inning, Peterborough did not score, and Brockville made two runs.

THE JAPANESE ARE "MOVIE FANS."

Recently compiled statistics by Japan's Minister of Education show that the motion picture is the most popular form of amusement in that country; next comes the public story-teller and, third, the theatre. It is less than ten years since motion pictures were introduced into Japan and now there are eight hundred theatres devoted to "movies."

The most popular foreign films are the ones with much swift action, Wild West scenes, hairbreadth escapes, cowpunchers and bad men of the wild and woolly West. Strange, indeed, must be the idea gleaned by the Japanese stay-at-home of the American civilization they portray.

In England 11,460 passengers were carried by aircraft last year.

FRENCH PEOPLE DECLINE TO ACCEPT FROZEN FISH

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The French government anxious to popularize the eating of fish has been conducting an extensive educational campaign to this end. Much money already has been spent, but the whole thing bids fair to end in failure because of the relutance of the people to change their ways. They are not heavy fish eaters, and the argument is now advanced that if the government recognizes this and stops its efforts it will save the unexpended portion of the propaganda allowance, something like 80,000,000 francs.

The campaign included "Fish Weeks" at Boulogne and elsewhere; exhibitions of deep sea fishing methods and the showing of films illustrating various aspects of the industry. Smart new and efficient fishing boats were provided in place of the old picturesque craft, and extensive refrigeration plants were established to care for the catch.

The main trouble seems to be in the popular aversion to fish that has been frozen. The people are not used to them and apparently they cannot be induced to change their point of view.

Do You Save Enough?

BANKERS say that saving money is largely a matter of habit—of systematically putting away something every pay day—of consistently thinking in terms of thrift.

The bankers are right. But remember that thrift embraces buying as well as saving. It is "penny wise and pound foolish" to save by scrimping and yet spend money needlessly in in making your every day purchases.

Has it ever occured to you every day you can save something simply by reading the advertisements in this paper? Do you realize that the advertisements tell you just where and when to buy to advantage—that they tell you how to avoid regretable expenditures?

Thrifty folks realize that advertising has reduced selling costs of thousands of factories and stores. Many of the things that to-day count as necessities or simple luxuries could not be sold at anything like their present prices had not advertising created a broad market for them. It has made millions of sales at small profit where otherwise there would be thousands of sales at large profit per sale.

Searching For Colorado's Death Secret

The perilously overloaded canoe in this picture is similar to the one used by Colonel C. H. Birdseye, who headed a U.S. Geological Survey party through the roiling current of the Colorado River several weeks ago and failed to return. Numerous searching parties have been sent out, but as yet no trace of the missing explorer and his men has been found and it is feared they met with mishap.

New and Interesting Facts of Science and Life

How Bad Teeth May Cause Blindness

MEDICAL science has recently discovered that decayed teeth and infected gums may bring such a great misfortune as total blindness. In many instances, perfect vision has been restored by the correction of abnormal oral states.

Among a number of such cases brought to the attention of Dr. Edwin F. Bowers, a noted dental authority, is that of Miss Katherine Bryden, of Grantwood, N. J. Miss Bryden was 28 years old last May. Until 12 years ago, she enjoyed perfect sight in both eyes. But in November, 1911, her vision gradually faded, until finally she became totally blind in the right eye, and retained hardly more than perception of light in the left.

Three years ago, Miss Bryden's health failed utterly. She suffered from nervous prostration and was rarely free from "colds" and throat trouble. Appetite and nutrition were affected to such an extent that she lost more than 30 pounds in weight.

Finally, Miss Bryden was examined by a New York specialist in oral surgery and an authority on X-ray diagnosis. He made a series of X-ray photographs of this patient's mouth. Numerous abscesses were revealed. Extraction of all the upper teeth was advised.

"The results of this extraction were almost miraculous," Dr. Bowers says in Popular Science Monthly. "The patient's vision improved immediately. Her throat trouble vanished and she gained steadily in weight, in appetite, and in her ability to digest and assimilate food. Her bodily resistance has been so enhanced that she hasn't had a 'cold' for upwards of two years.

"The explanation for this miracle of healing is simple enough. The germs and poisonous products that had exerted their disturbing effect on the functioning capacity of the optic nerve were removed—therefore sight came back. At the same time, every cell and tissue in the body was relieved of an overdose of poison, and began to function normally.

"There is hardly an oral surgeon in active practice who cannot detail cases that seemingly have not the slightest connection with the teeth, yet which have made complete recovery, following the extraction of abscessed teeth, the clearing up and proper filling of infected root canals, the aseptic treatment of pus-laden pyorrhoea packets, or the removal of a molar tooth—buried crosswise in the jaw.

"Neuritis of years' standing, sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, headaches, and many other painful conditions have been overcome almost as though by magic, when septic mouth conditions disclosed by the searching eye of the X-ray were cleared up."

Dr. Bowers recalls another case—that of a healthy, robust looking man, who suddenly began to suffer from neuritis in the shoulder. He had tried all sorts of treatment, diet, mineral waters, and various rheumatism remedies without relief.

Finally, an X-ray of his teeth revealed a huge abscess at the apex of a molar tooth that had caused "gum boils." The tooth was removed, with the result that the very next morning this patient was relieved completely. The neuritis never has returned.

"The X-ray, without doubt, is the greatest scientific informer of modern times," says Dr. Bowers. "It most nearly insures the certainty of determining whether or not a focal abscess exists at the root of a tooth, or whether a root canal is, or is not, properly filled.

"Nearly every dentist in active practice has seen openings at the roots of apparently sound teeth, through which there is constantly draining poisonous material. Indeed, careful investigators now contend that before the X-ray came into general use, fully 79 per cent of all root canals were imperfectly filled. Faulty dental work—even work done conscientiously and painstakingly by able men—may prove a definite source of danger. Crowns that fail to fit the necks of teeth, badly adjusted bridge work, faulty abutments, overhanging fillings that constantly collect food particles and facilitate decay, almost invariably can be checked up by the X-ray.

"In fact, there is no other method by which a dentist can determine definitely the presence of an impacted molar or wisdom tooth, whether a root filling is perfect, or whether a tooth which he proposes to use as an abutment for a bridge is sufficiently sound for the purpose.

"Strange as it may seem, it is now conceded that a dead tooth requires watching more than does a living, functioning tooth. With its source of nutrition cut off by local tissue degeneration, the dead tooth is much more likely to start putrefactive changes in its surrounding tissue. Abscesses therefore are quite common in these teeth."

The bacteria that actually cause tooth decay finally have been discovered and isolated by Dr. F. E. Rodriguez, Captain in the Dental Corps, U. S. A.

Dr. Rodriguez has isolated three types of bacteria with an exceedingly high acid-producing power. They produce acid fast enough and strong enough to dissolve the hard, limey structure of the teeth, and penetrate right through the enamel into the deep tissue.

"There is one phase of the subject of dental care which only within the last ten years has begun to be understood," Dr. Bowers goes on to explain. "This has to do with the relation of tooth nutrition to food intake.

"Primitive man kept his teeth in very fair condition. This is proved by the condition of the teeth in the skulls in the British Museum and the Smithsonian Institute. They are wonderfully sound and free from evidence of dental decay.

"In a large measure, this was due to the fact that primitive man ate his food without cooking it. He tore the flesh from the bones and gnawed these bones in quite as workmanlike a manner as any dog would. Later on—a hundred centuries later, perhaps, he became a grain eater. And on the coarsely cracked grain, baked as hard as a rock in its red bed of embers, he gave his teeth still more exercise. At the same time, he supplied his body with the tooth and bone-making mineral salts which to-day are sifted out from our ground grain, and fed to cattle.

"Proper diet, with consistent dental care—which includes a semi-annual cleaning of the teeth and gums—is a necessity. In addition, the secretions of the mouth should be rendered neutral or alkaline by the use of milk of magnesia, or milk of lime.

"A good dentifrice should be selected, and scrupulous attention should be paid to maintaining a clean condition of the teeth."

The Force Behind a Speeding Motor Car

THE momentum developed by autos of various sizes is illustrated by a chart prepared by the Safety Council of Cleveland as a result of numerous highway experiments. For instance, a car weighing 1000 pounds, starting off at a speed of five miles an hour, would increase its momentum 288 pounds each second. For every additional speed of five miles the increase would be 228 pounds each second, so that at 25 miles an hour the car would have a force of 1140 pounds, and at 50 miles an hour a force of 2280 pounds.

Momentum in pounds for cars of other weights is shown in the following table:

How Nature of THIRST Is EXPLAINED

HUNGER and thirst are sensations that not infrequently demand serious clinical consideration. They may become sources of distress to a patient and therefore require to be combated in some way. Now and then circumstances arise which preclude relief through the simple expedients of eating and drinking. Conditions often ensue whereby food cannot be ingested in the usual way, or it cannot be digested and utilized even if it can be consumed.

The control of hunger as a sensation consists primarily in checking the distressing contractions of the gastric musculature when the stomach has been empty for some time. Inability to drink fluids can be more easily combated because water can be introduced into the organism with considerable ease in a variety of other ways than by mouth in an emergency. Nevertheless, as a writer in the Journal of the American Medical Association points out, it is important to know whether the sensation of thirst represents the direct effects of loss of water from the tissues and is "general" in character, with only a secondary local reference to the pharynx; or whether it is essentially a sensation limited to the mucous membrane of the mouth and throat to which it is popularly referred by the subject. In case the latter was true, relief might temporarily be secured by purely local treatment.

W. B. Cannon has championed the view that thirst is due to a relative drying of the mucosa of the mouth or pharynx. The desiccation, he believes, may be due to either a diminution or absence of the salivary secretion, a condition arising as the result of loss of water in the tissues through diarrhea, polyuria, etc., or such local factors as mouth breathing, prolonged singing and speaking. Substantiation of Cannon's theory has been furnished recently by G. T. Pack at Yale University. He has observed that thirst is relieved, in animals deprived of water, by administration of drugs, such as pilocarpin, which promote the flow of saliva. This method, however, has not been found successful in severe cases of diabetes insipidus or chronic polyuria. It still remains an open question, therefore, whether in the latter malady thirst is not the expression of other factors than mere dryness of the oral membranes.

PAPER Used to PROTECT the GARDEN from FROST

WHILE the use of paper for many useful purposes in gardening, raising flowers and vegetables may not be new, nevertheless the advantages which may be gained by such practise are not generally known. Most people know that paper is a good heat insulator, that is, it is a very poor conductor of heat. Hence, when an object is enveloped in paper, its inherent heat is prevented from being rapidly dissipated and at the same time the cold or hot air surrounding the object is prevented from coming in contact with it and either detracting from or enhancing the heat contained in the body. It is this property of paper that makes it so useful in gardening. Furthermore, while ordinary paper is non-transparent and non-translucent, when the paper is oiled, it will allow light to pass through it, and at the same time it will be effectively waterproofed.

Actual practical experience has shown that it is possible to obtain effective protection for young seedlings and tender plants against the inclement weather of Winter and early Spring by the use of paper. Instead of employing expensive glass for the windows of frames and greenhouses, oiled paper, according to a writer in the Scientific American, may be used with just as good results and in fact, if taken care of as conscientiously as glass, it will last just as long.

In France, where intensive cultivation of vegetables is carried out to a far greater degree than in this country, the value of paper for making windows in hot-house frames has been appreciated for some time past and paper is largely used for this purpose in that country. Very good results have been obtained in the use of oiled paper for covering pits in which there were stored surplus chrysanthemums, tender shoots and similar plants that must be protected in greenhouses during the cold winter months. When the seedlings first send up their shoots above the ground, it is often necessary to shade them from direct sunlight. In this connection it has been found that the diffused light which penetrates through oiled paper is particularly well suited to them, and the shades which must be erected when glass frames are used, are unnecessary in this case.

How MAGNETISM Is PRODUCED

PROFESSOR T. J. SEE, government astronomer at Mare Island, Cal., announced before a body of scientists recently that after forty years of research and experiment he has discovered the cause of gravitation which has been a mystery to science since the discovery of its laws by Newton. He has also found, he said, that magnetism is due to ether waves longer than those of light and heat. His discoveries show a connection between magnetism and gravitation which proves, he believes, that gravitation is due to similar waves passing through space with the velocity of light.

Faraday, eminent English physicist, after long study of magnetic lines of force was led to believe that magnetic inductive action might be conveyed along these curved lines, but he could not prove the theory. Scientists since that time—nearly a century ago—have assumed that physical forces all act on straight lines. Magnetic lines of force, Professor See declared, are vertical. He explained, that the lines tend to shorten themselves as much as possible. He showed that when a small magnet is suspended by a thread near a larger one the former is drawn bodily toward the nearest pole of the latter. This, he explained, demonstrates the wave theory of magnetism.

Measuring Things That Cannot Be Seen

MAN is accustomed to hearing of measurements of tremendous distances such as those between the earth and some of the stars, which run into thousands of billions of miles. But what do you think of measuring accurately the 500,000,000th part of an inch?

The most accurate of ordinary instruments can measure the 500,000,000th part of a mile, which is less than three 10,000ths of an inch. To measure the 500,000,000th part of an inch an instrument must be 50,000 times more delicate; yet it has been done.

The appliance used is something like the tuning circuit of a wireless valve set. You know that if you turn the knob of the condenser the wave-length is altered. A condenser can be made by placing two plates of metal one above the other with an air space between them.

If the tuning circuit is a delicate one, an almost infinitesimal bending of one of the plates will make a difference in the wave-length. It is easy to calculate how much bending causes any given difference.

The measuring appliance employs a condenser of this kind, by means of which the tiny distances mentioned can be measured with ease. If a half-inch bar of steel is placed in a vise and connected with the apparatus, the distance it sags when a fly settles upon it is instantly and accurately recorded on a dial.

If a fly walks on a piece of iron the pointer records how the whole mass quivers under its weight, and it will even measure the expansion of the iron caused by the heat of the insect's body!

This invention is of great use to scientists, who hitherto have been baffled in their work when very tiny measurements were needed.

The MIGHTY POWER of the Invisible HEAT GIANT

EIGHTY years ago a young Englishman, James Prescott Joule by name, learned that water can be heated by stirring it and that the more it is stirred the hotter it gets.

Keenly alive to the significance of this simple fact, he set about to determine the exact relation existing between the work done in stirring the water and the amount of heat developed. Iron weights, suspended over a system of pulleys, were used to furnish the power and the water was stirred by a sort of a paddle wheel run by the falling weights. With such apparatus Joule discovered that a pound weight descending 778 feet exerted enough energy to raise the temperature of a pound of water 1 degree Fahrenheit.

Thinking of a British thermal unit (B.t.u.) as the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a pound of water through one degree Fahrenheit, and a foot-pound (ft. lb.) as the amount of energy expended in raising a pound weight through a distance of one foot, it is seen that one British thermal unit is equal to 778 foot pounds.

Now, herein lies a marvelous principle, which is explained in Science and Invention by J. C. Packard.

"If we can figure," writes Mr. Packard, "the amount of energy required to melt ice, to boil water, and to make steam or water vapor, we may be able to get a new line on the invisible giant, Heat, and to discover how much work he is performing daily, without fuss or worry in our kitchens and about our home grounds.

"Let's see. Two more facts and we are ready. To change one pound of ice into water at 32 degrees F. requires 147 B.t.u. To change one pound of water at 212 degrees F. into steam or water vapor calls for 960 B.t.u.

"Then, 1. Two cups of coffee, steaming hot, call for: a pint of water (1lb.) to be raised from about 50 degrees to 212 degrees F.; 162 B.t.u.: 126,000 ft. lbs. of energy. Energy enough to life the whole outfit, coal, range and all, to the top of a ten-story building.

2. "The tea-kettle has boiled away; two quarts of water changed into water vapor and poured into the atmosphere, while a friend was being entertained at the breakfast table: 8240 B.t.u.: 2,980,000 ft. lbs, which is energy enough to lift the whole house, bodily, fifty feet, straight up into the air.

3. "The ice is all melted: fifty pounds of ice changed into water in the refrigerator: 7350 B.t.u.: 5,718,100 ft. lbs. Energy enough to lift a carload of thirty men to the top of the Washington Monument.

4. "The snow has all disappeared: six inches of snow and ice melted away on the lawn (5,000 sq. ft.): 25 tons: 7,350,000 B.t.u.: 5,718,300,000 ft. lb. Energy enough to run a seven-passenger car from New York to Chicago and back at the rate of fifty miles an hour."

Fifty Pounds of Ice Melted Away Could Lift a Carload of People to the Top of the Washington Monument, if the Energy Required Could Be Completely Converted.

The Energy in Two Cups of Coffee, Steaming Hot Is Sufficient to Raise a Kitchen Range and Coal to the Top of a Ten-Story Building.

The Energy Required to Melt Six Inches of Snow on a Lawn 5,000 Feet Square Could Drive a Seven- Car Train to Chicago and Back at Fifty Miles an Hour.

Just How FOOTBALLS Are MADE

OF the millions of persons who witness football games there can be found scarcely one in a thousand who knows anything about the large amount of care and skill employed in the manufacture of the "pig skins," especially where good-grade balls are concerned.

Right from the purchase of the hides and the raw rubber to the final test applied to the finished football, each process is carried out by highly-trained workers and under expert supervision. That is why, having paid a fair price, one so rarely gets a "dud" football.

The leather for the cases has to be chosen with care, for while it must be strong and supple, it must also be quite thin. Special methods of tanning the hides are employed to obtain leather that has these virtues.

Certain firms carry on their own tanning operations, and it may well be mentioned that although modern methods enable a hide to be converted into leather in a few weeks, it is not unusual for special hides to be left in the tanks for as long as twelve months to obtain the best results.

When the leather has been passed as ready for use the various sections that go to make a case are cut out and sewn together. In good quality cases the whole of the stitching is done by hand.

The number of sections of leather that form the complete case varies considerably, and it is a point that should receive special attention when a football is being purchased.

Many balls are still made with only eight sections, but such cases speedily lose their shape. The best balls are now made with as many as eighteen pieces, and a case of this description will keep its form in spite of any amount of hard usage. It is not, at any rate, advisable to buy a case which consists of fewer than twelve sections.

Each case is weighed, measured and thoroughly tested for strain before it leaves the factory.

The bladders are made, of course, by the big rubber firms, and, again, only the best quality material is used. Para, or Brazilian, rubber is much employed for this purpose. The crude rubber is ground into a kind of dough, freed from all impurities and tinted to the familiar red color by the addition of antimony.

The rubber is then made into sheets, afterwards being cut into sections of the required size. Four of these sections are joined together with rubber solution, the inflation-tubes inserted and the whole bladder is then subjected to a vulcanizing process.

Each bladder is blown up and allowed to remain inflated for some considerable time before it is sent out, to make sure that it is perfectly airtight.

A Harmless Germicide for Your Paper Money

ALTHOUGH prominent medical authorities are of the opinion that the danger of disease being transmitted by money is practically negligible, C. A. Butler of Columbus, Ohio, declares that money may be and often is tainted in the literal sense of the word. Yearly, he says, scores of bank clerks and others who handle money lose their sight as a result of infections carried by dirty currency.

After being nearly blinded himself by such germs Butler enlisted the services of a chemist who evolved an odorless, colorless and harmless, but effective germicide. It is used instead of water in the sponge-cups of tellers, cashiers and others who handle money, destroying the germs on the fingers before they can be transferred to the eyes or other parts of the body. Butler has patented the secret preparation and has gone into the business of making and selling it.

CONCERNING BATTERY CONNECTIONS.

Solid wire is best for A battery and B battery connections, as battery current flows through the entire wire. Radio current which flows in the antennae and through all parts ahead of the detector remains on the surface of the wire, so that stranded wire or large solid wire gives it the best path.

OPERATION OF POWER SYSTEMS

The annual report of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for 1922 furnishes information regarding the operation of the various systems under its control and of the local municipal systems.

In Peterborough there were 4,814 consumers of domestic light, 752 of commercial light and 127 of power, a total of 5,693 consumers, equal to 26.5 per cent. of the population, and 4528.7 horse power was taken in December, 1922.

For the power purchased by Peterborough $98,427.15 was paid to the Ontario Commission; operation and maintenance cost $44,814.05, and debenture charges and interest $19,088.54, making a total cost of operation of $162,329.74. The revenue was $186,184.86, leaving a gross surplus of $23,855.12, and after setting aside $7,232.00 for depreciation a net surplus of $16,623.12. The erection of the new sub-station will increase the capital charges, but the local Commission still expects to show a surplus after those charges are taken on.

The balance sheet of the Peterborough system shows assets amounting to $434,965.43, and liabilities, including $40,253.56 set up for depreciation and $36,586.82 for a sinking fund to pay the debentures, amounting to $372,884.02, leaving a net accumulated surplus of $52,081.41 since the system was taken over by the city. The percentage of net debt to total assets is 68.

Of the cost of the Central Ontario system the Ontario Commission allocates to Peterborough $1,024,883.45 as its share for the purpose of calculating the amount of interest and fixed charges to be counted in fixing the cost of power to this city. The Commission charges interim rates for the power, and bills the municipalities monthly according to those rates, and at the end of the year (the Hydro-Electric Commission's financial year ends on October 31st) it adjusts the costs and the amount paid, and the municipality is given a credit or an additional charge according to which side of the ledger the adjustment places the balance. Last year Peterborough was charged for its share of the operating, maintenance and administrative expenses of the Central Ontario system $42,107.15, for interest $37,843.46, for renewals $6,838.73, and for contingencies $4,471.40, a total of $91,260.74, and the amount paid to the Commission at the interim rates was $100,606.04, giving a credit for the year of $9,345.30. Upon ascertaining the cost of power by the annual adjustment. However, Peterborough had a charge on power account on October 31st, 1921, of $40,656.39, which was reduced by the adjustment of 1921 power cost by $200.96. For 1922 the debit was added to by $1,618.22 for interest, and lessened by the credit on the adjustment for the year by $9,345.30, leaving this charge at $32,728.35 on October 31st, 1922. An account similar to this is furnished in the report respecting municipalities that purchase power from the Commission and distribute it, but no account resembling this is given respecting the municipalities, and they are a considerable majority, in which the Commission serves individual customers nor the rates charged by the Commission in those municipalities. It would seem to be feasible, and reasonable, that such information, at any rate as to the basis on which power is charged and the cost to the consumers, should be given for the other municipalities as well as for those in which the municipalities purchase the power and distribute it.

The operating account for the whole Central Ontario system (including the Nipissing system, which was included in the purchase from the Electric Power Co.) for the year ending October 31st, 1922, shows a surplus of $10,815.81. The expense account, however, includes $33,763.10 for contingencies and $44,399.81 for provision for renewals, while only $3,963.74 was expended to cover contingencies in the year and $21,424.67 was expended during the year out of renewals. And the surplus would have been over $100,000 but for the loss on the operation of the pulp mill taken over with the electrical properties and pulpwood areas.

The balance sheet of the Central Ontario system of October 31st, 1922, shows liabilities amounting to $13,494,453.18 and assets amounting to $13,339,333.64, showing a deficit of $155,119.54. But in the liabilities are included $1,179,922.25 for reserve for renewals and $38,058.00 reserve for contingencies, so that actually the system paid operating expenses and over $1,000,000.00 besides since it was purchased by the Government in March, 1916.

MYSTERY ISLAND WILL BE EXPLORED AT ONCE

What Explorers Will Find Is Only Question Mark At Present.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 5.—"Bouvet" Mention that word to a hardened mariner. Watch the lids of his eyes tighten. Watch him grow a shade white.

For "Bouvet," mystery island of the mysterious South Atlantic ocean, has baffled, so far as is known, all attempts at exploration, all eorts of civilized white men to plumb its secrets.

On or about the coming Oct. 15, 16, adventurous souls will point the nose of a three-masted schooner toward Bouvet, and the myriad of other romantic nooks in the South Atlantic and Indian oceans, about which folks know so little.

These men, commanded by George Finlay Simmons, will leave New London, Conn., in the interests of science. Sailing under the colors of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, they will be gone two long years.

They will visit many places, gather many natural specimens, see strange sights—but nothing so intrigues the imagination as their contemplated and determined exploration of Bouvet, mystery island.

About two years ago Paul Marshall Rea conceived the idea of a greatre museum for this city. His idea expanded so rapidly, he now is ready to undertake a $100,000 expedition in a vessel that costs $35,000, merely to insure something worthwhile for the Ohio metropolis.

A new building will be finished by the time the expedition returns in two years. And Cleveland promises to have an institution rivaling its famous "competitor"—the Museum of Natural History of New York City.

CORRESPONDENCE PLAN

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5. — Why not a correspondence school for prisoners?

Butler R. Storke, then a prisoner in state's prison here, asked himself the question some months ago, as he noticed how much idle time convicts had. And the more he thought of it, the more he realized it was the solution of the prison problem.

So he started the idea, which recently culminated in the incorporation of the National Intra-Wall Institute, which is destined, if successful, to carry knowledge into every federal and state prison cell in the country.

Free Now

Storke, convicted of forgery in connection with a financial deal, passed 22 months in prison. Now he is free—a conditional pardon that he continue with his work.

Storke interested Prison Chaplain T. O. Reed of Columbus and Napoleon Hill of New York in the idea. They eagerly took it up.

For his services, he consents to draw but $100 a month, instead of the $250 offered him.

Will Succeed

"I have but one wish," Storke says, "and that is to serve others who have been caught in the toll of justice in all parts of the country. When I went into the penitentiary, I was but a wreck of my former self—after months spent on the battlefields of Europe, during which time I was gassed and shell shocked," he said.

"I will soon be 31 years of age, physically, but my life in the prison has made me twice as old in experience and lessons taught.

"I am convinced beyond any doubt that the prison school organization is going to be a wonderful success. We have men of national prominence back of the organization who have pledged themselves to support the plan with substantial gifts."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

BIG ENGLISH COMPANY AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE

A treat in store for the patrons of the Grand Opera House will be the visit tomorrow (Saturday) for a matinee and an evening performance of the eminent English actor, Bransby Williams, and his company, who have come to Canada direct from the Lyceum, London, for many years the home of the late Sir Henry Irving. Bransby Williams has made a lifelong study of Dickens characters and gained for himself a world-wide reputation for his interpretations thereof. In England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales it has been one long triumphal march for himself and for his company. The oldest playgoers have turned out and become young again in their memories and enjoyment, and boys and girls from schools and colleges have made their first acquaintance with characters of fiction in the flesh. In Mr. Bransby Williams' version of "David Copperfield" to be presented at the Grand Opera House next week all the well-known characters in the novel will be seen in the play. David Copperfield, Mr. Wickfield, Traddles, Mrs. Gunmidge, Ham, Betsy, Tretwood, Mr. and Mrs. Micawber, Uriah Heep, Peggotty and Little Emily. Mr. Williams is responsible for the dual role of Peggotty and Micawber, while his son, Eric Williams, will appear as Steerforth. An artist who will be remembered in Canada, Fred Forrest, at one time Grumpet in "Maid of the Mountains" will appear as Uriah Heep, the rascally lawyer. Seats 50c to $2.00.

AT THE CAPITOL.

There are plenty of gaspy situations and thrills in "Red Lights," showing at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end. The "red lights" themselves are the mysterious omens that presage a series of exciting and awesome events. Where they came from, and what they meant, what was the reason for the terrible things that befell the life of the beautiful girl heroine, these make the elements of a real live mystery story.

There are deaths and sudden awful happenings, a murder, a train wreck that is vivid and realistic, in fact, it's a real mystery movie and a good one. Action, swift, breathless, is the keynote, there is a lovely dancer, Cherita, whose mission is another mystery, there is a love story and a mysterious, hateful ape, and there is a touch of comedy in the negro who consults his rabbit's foot whenever another link in the mysterious chain of events is forged. Most of the thrilling episodes occur on the "mystery train," racing on toward a collision scene. The cast includes Johnny Walker and the charming Marie Prevost.

AT THE ROYAL.

NEW CINEMA STANDARD IS ESTABLISHED.

"Merry-go-Round," a Gigantic Spectacle, coming to the Royal.

What the Royal believes is its worthiest cinema offering up to date comes to that Theatre next Monday. It is "Merry-go-Round."

"Merry-Go-Round" was in production for a long time, being a spectacle motion picture of ten-reel length telling a simple love story, but involving the great tragedy of Austria the downfall of its pretentious glory of before-the-war days.

"Merry-Go-Round" is the story of a count and a peasant girl, but it it isn't a fairy tale. They don't fall in love, marry and "live happily ever afterwards" without any obstacles. It requires the war and its grim lessons to bring into being the consummation of their desires.

"Merry-Go-Round" is laid entirely in or about Vienna, the picturesque old world capital that once was a centre of European pleasure and social life. Its military glory is pictured and its quaint, gray, historic style.

The players in "Merry-Go-Round" are interesting individually, and as an assemblage of famous talent. There is a new comer for whom the critics who preview the picture predict the greatest success: Mary Philbin. Three years ago she was not yet out of high school in a Chicago suburb. Two years ago she went to Universal City after winning honors in a big beauty contest. She played just two important parts before "Merry-Go-Round," and neither of them was anything like as big as the leading role of the latter picture, which is that of the peasant girl heroine.

Norman Kerry, who plays opposite her, has been marked by the leading critics many times as one of the really promising younger men of the screen. He is cast as the count in the story.

"MASTERS OF MEN."

A Masterpiece Picture Drama of Life at Sea With Especially Fine Caste.

The Royal has done it again. "Masters of Men," which was shown at the Royal Theatre yesterday, is one of the finest pictures this city has seen. Not only is the atmosphere of the sea realistically caught and maintained, but the selection of the players from the four principal roles to the least important extra has been accomplished with fine discrimination. All the heart interest and drama of Morgan Robertson's story has been retained, and the result is a thrilling, compelling picture. And add one more fact, it is clear and wholesome, a real story of a real boy. Dick Halpin, the hero, is the lad you wanted to be; I wanted to be! He's the fellow we dreamed of, whose fighting courage we envied. He's the fellow you and I used to talk about; that lad of strength and honor we built with boyish imaginations up in the haymow, or while idling with a homemade fishing rod down by the creek.

He's your kind and my kind, and because we had fathers and mothers to make our way easier we never managed to be him, but we wanted to, and we can live those dreams over again with Dick Halpin in this vivid, living tale, "Masters of Men."

Mothers should not be afraid of letting their children see this one. The added comedy is somewhat of a novelty, featuring Buddy Messinger and having baseball for its theme. Jack Mulhall is again seen in the chapter play, "The Social Buccaneer."

The orchestra was at their best last night and helped materially in rounding out an ideal evening's entertainment.

LAKEVIEWS PILED UP BRILLIANT RECORD OF VICTORIES THIS YEAR

Lost Only One Junior Game, Were Defeated By C.G.E. Intermediates and Tied Once With Adanacs.

WON 20 OUT OF 23.

The records of the Lakeviews, Ontario junior title holders show that they are real champions, real home brews and real juniors.

Only once this season have Lew Lebarrs' team been beaten by a junior club, Niagara Falls doing the trick at home last Saturday. Their only other defeat was a 5-4 loss to th C.G.E. team, last year's intermediate champions and altogether out of twenty-three City League, O.B. A.A., and exhibition fixtures the Lakeviews have won twenty, lost two and tied one, a most creditable record that shows how consistent has been the gait of the team all season. Here is the record:

City League Games.

Although they were not all born in Peterboro every member of the Lakeview team has lived here most of his life and all have learned their baseball in this city, so that they are a thoroughly representative Peterboro team.

Of the squad, Catcher Lambert Collins, Second Baseman Doug. Moore, Shortstop Don Cameron and Outfielder Harry Whitlow were born in Peterboro. First Baseman Lew Lebarr and Outfielder J. Lebarr in Bracebridge, Ont.; Pitcher Frank Whitehouse and Utility player Harry Halliday in England and Third Baseman Walter Bradshaw in Cobourg, and Outfielder Don McIntyre in Guelph. Infielder M. Fitzgerald and Outfielder Norman Elliott who were with the Lakeviews for part of the season were born in Hastings County, and Scarboro respectively.

All but Moore and Bradshaw are eligible for the Junior ranks next year, in fact five of the team including the battery were young enough this season to play Juvenile ball and Jack Lebarr the youngest member of the squad could have qualified in the Midget series.

Much of the credit for the success of the Lakeviews, should be given to Manager Lew W. Lebarr who since the organization of the club four years ago has fathered and financed this year's Junior champions, bearing all the expenses in connection with the team himself and taking the greatest interest in the organization. In return for this the players have given him faithful services winding up in the capture of the highest honors in their class.

QUEEN OF GOLF IS DETHRONED

Glenna Collett Outplayed By National Champion of 1915—Alexa Stirling Up.

RYE, N.Y., Oct. 3.— Out of the golfing past to-day came an old champion, Mrs. H. C. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, with a game so cannily correct and faultless that Glenna Collet, the Providence girl, who became queen of the links last year could not offset it with fighting spirit and the tournament for the 1923 title took on a new aspect. Miss Collett was defeated, 2 and 1.

In the other three matches of the round, Miss Alexa Stirling, a three-time national champion, eliminated Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, a western title holder of other years, 7 and 5; Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, defeated Miss Edith Leitch of England, 6 and 4, and Mrs. Elizabeth Goss of Baltusrol, N.J., won from Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Merion, Pa., one up.

Mrs. Vanderbeck's victory was accomplished through a straight steady game—safe and sane — that a bit more than equalled the 1922 champions' prodigous driving.

Mrs. Vanderbeck was national champion, in 1915, winning the title on the course of the Onwentsia Country Club by defeating Mrs. W. A. Gavin, of Great Britain, in the final round.

GOLF FAVORITES REGISTER WINS

Glenna Collett and Alexa Stirling Shut Out Their Opponents.

RYE, N.Y., Oct. 3.—The victory of Miss Alexa Stirlinfg, over Mrs. William Burns, of Kansas City, the western champion, at 18th hole; Miss Glenna Collett's fine medal score in defeating Dorothy Higbee of Chicago, and Mrs. Audrey Frost, of St. Louis, were the interesting points to-day in the second round play for the women's national golf championship..

Despite her fine driving and approaching, Miss Stirling tottered on the brink of defeat by the girl from the West, who was the better of the two at the shorter game. Miss Stirling made mistakes, and the western girl took advantage of all of them, and it was only the finest sort of golf on the last hole that brought victory to the former champion.

The best golf of the round was played by Miss Collett, the defending champion. She turned the first nine holes in 37, one stroke under women's par as it is figured on the shortened course and then in par figures won the next two holes and the match, 8 up and 7 to play. Her shots up to the green were faultless and sh, would have been three strokes better for the eleven holes had her putting been better. She missed three putts of less than two feet.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Peck Cup final will be played on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park between the G.W.V.A. and Canadian Woollens. Kick off at 3.30 prompt.

All spectators are requested to stand two feet off the touch line and keep away from the goals, so as to facilitate the work of the referee and neutral linesmen during the game. Let us co-operate.

Two weeks ago these two teams met in the Peck Cup Final and after tw hours strenuous playing they finished a draw—three goals each. At that time the Woollens had no games or practice for 3 weeks which ultimately told on the players who lacked the necessary training but they had an excellent work-out against Thistles recently and should make the G.W.V.A. travel the whole 90 minutes.

It is expected that Alex Kay will be present at the meeting of P. and D.F.A. on Monday evening to present the cup to the Association which will ultimately go to the winner of the School Soccer champions.

According to the reports from the various schools, the pupils have been practicing conscientiously during the hours of relaxation, in anticipation of the school competition, in fact, some of the boys were lost as to the procedure of the game but they have made great progress already in spite of the difficulties.

The Schools Athletic Association expect to have a complete list of entrants for the competition by the end of this week and the draw will be made on Monday evening, also all other arrangements. White Bros. has been busy this week supplying footballs to the boys.

Will the Canadian Woollen players please take notice that the final of the Peck Cup is to be played on the King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, October 6. Kick off 3.15. The following players have been selected: Hillman, Cridland, Chambers, Read, Monkman, Sayers, Mitchell, Shaw, Gaskell, Bramhall, Roberts. Reserves, Warman, Lauchlan.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP GOES TO HIGH SCHOOL BOY

Won Newspaper Decision in Ten-Round Fight With Mike McTigue — Crowd Was Belligerent.

WINNER IN TEARS.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 4.— The light heavyweight championship of the world changed hands here to-day when W. L. (Young) Stribling, an 18 year old boy, was awarded a decision over Mike McTigue, of County Claire, Ireland, at the close of their scheduled 10-round fight, featured by boxing, hugging, slugging and disorder on the part of the spectators. Referee Ertle, of Jersey City, who officitaed, first declared the fight a draw, but later, after a stormy scene, he held up Stribling's hand and announced him the winner.

The new champion, a high school student of Macon, Ga., won the fight, newspapermen agreed, by taking eight of the rounds. McTigue was awarded one round, and the other was decided a draw. In the remaining eight rounds, Ertle frequently had to separate McTigue and the challenger in the clinches. As the youthful Stribling would wade into the Irishman, his two arms were grabbed and they would wrestle all over the ring.

Tried to Postpone It.

The fight was put on before some 7,000 spectators at the Driving Park arena after McTigue had made an effort early to-day to call off the fight because of an injured hand. Doctors pronounced the cause an imperfect healing of an old fracture.

When it was officially announced that the fight was off police protection had to be sought for McTigue. He was prevailed upon to fight by leading citizens who were responsible for the match.

The fighting was one-sided, Stribling forcing the action, while McTigue, with the exception of one or two spurts, was contented with clinches and striking the challenger over the kidneys.

At the end of the tenth round the men continued to fight, apparently not hearing the bell. They were separated and Stribling retreated to a neutral corner. Ertle made a motion to the press box which was taken to indicate a draw and left the ring. He was followed by McTigue and both were surrounded by civil and military police.

The crowd yelled for Stribling and angry spectators pushed through the police cordon in an effort to get to Ertle. A member of the military police returned the referee to the ring. It was some time before the police could clear the squared circle. Ertle called newspapermen into a conference and asked Stribling to remain in the ring. The challenger sat down in a chair, looked over to where his mother was sitting and burst into tears.

Council of Reporters.

Twelve reporters responded. Ertle asked them their opinion and each voted that the youngster won eight rounds, lost one and that the other was a draw.

Stribling then was declared the winner.

Meantime, the police used their clubs in getting McTigue from the arena. He was taken to Fort Benning.

Referee Ertle explained to newspapermen that his gesture indicating that the fight was a draw was not intended and that he was going to announce the decision later. Twelve newspapermen were called into the ring and each cast their vote in favor of Stribling. The referee then held up the challengers' hand and declared him the winner.

Willie Pfiffer, of New York City, refused to meet Jimmie Findley, of Louisville, Ky., in the wind-up, and the match was declared off. Pfieffer was McTigue's sparring partner and left the arena with the former champion.

Won Title From Siki.

Mike McTigue, who lost the world's light heavyweight championship title to-day to a Georgia schoolboy at Columbus, Ga., gained his title when he defeated Battling Siki at Dublin last St. Patrick's Day.

Siki, who sprang to fame and the title, by knocking out Georges Carpentier, failed to train properly, and was outgeneralled by the clever, though weak-hitting Irish-American.

McTigue, a veteran of many ring campaigns, has run few risks with his crown since returning to the United States. He fought twice with Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, losing once at Philadelphia on a popular decision, but gaining the verdict of newspapermen in the other bout recently staged in New Jersey.

McTigue has done most of his fighting in middleweight ranks. Before defeating Siki, he laid claim to both the Canadian and Irish middleweight titles. He began his professional career in 1915.

INVITE LLOYD GEORGE TO TRIS SPEAKER'S GAME

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 4.—Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians and Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Washington Americans, will play in an exhibition game for the World War Veterans in Toronto, Wednesday, October 10th., the opening day of the World's Series.

According to a letter received here today from Peckinpaugh the Prince of Wales and Lloyd George will be invited to witness the game as the guests of the Canadian veterans.

MAY PLAY RUTH AT FIRST BASE

Pipp's Ankle Healing Slowly--Jones or Pennock to Pitch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees announced tonight that there was small hope of Wally Pipp being able to take his regular stand at first base during the world's series with the Giants next week. Pipp's ankle, which was injured in Boston last week, is healing slowly, Huggins said. Bab Ruth probably will hold down the first bag.

Bob Meusel's ankle, which also was hurt, continues to pain the Yankee left-fielder, and he too, faces the possibility of having a nice, comfortable seat on the bench while his team-mates battle with their fellow townsmen.

Pipp's ankle is in a "harness" Huggins said, and he is taking electrical treatments. The harness will be taken off on Monday when it will be decided definitely whether he can play in the series.

Huggins said he would probably start either Jones or Pennock on the mound in the opening game or the series, unless the skies were cloudy, in which event Joe Bush, who pitched and lost the first game of last year's series, would be chosen.

Most of the Lakeviews Are Eligible For Next Year — Y.M.C.A. to Entertain Teams.

Lakeviews, Ontario Junior champions, and Maple Leafs, who reached the Juvenile finals, can sit back and let the other fellows do the worrying. The two teams can come back next season with the majority of their players eligible for another championship jaunt in the Junior and Juvenile races. The Ontario Midget champions will lose several players, and the Bantam champions will also have to show some new faces.

Belleville exchange refers to Ray Rose of the Canadian Generals as a "raw" pitcher. The Quinte town heading writer must have picked it out of the Oshawa papers following the Central Ontario League finals and used it during a lapse. But in the local heaver's case, it should be "Rah! Rah!"

Peterborough teams playing in Hamilton received a fine welcome from Secretary Ward, and visiting teams to Peterborough were well looked after by Secretary Roper.

When the Maple Leafs played in Hamilton they met "Reddy" Maguire, physical director at the Mountain City "Y." The gentleman is no other than the former star forward of the Belleville O.H.A. team in the days of Winchester, Whitcroft and other clever hockey players since lost to the game. There were fourteen men on th ice those days, and no stops for blankets and fresh supplies of ozone.

ECONOMICAL INSULATION.

Instead of spaghetti for insulation, especially around a receiver, the use of a roll of tubular tape, such as can be obtained at the five and ten-cent stores, which women use for drawing strings, if dipped into paraffine and left to dry, is suitable, and much cheaper.

Rixey Picks the Giants

Star Twirler of the Reds Says National Leaguers Are Best in Pinches and Will Win in Six Games.

BY EPPA RIXEY
Pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds

To start with, I pick the Giants to beat the Yankees in the 1923 world series and thus win their third straight world championship from their home town American League rivals.

I do not think the Giants again will win the series in straight games as they did last year because the Yankees have a bettr pitching staff, or rather are getting better pitching than last year, and also have profited by their experience of 1922.

They also will enter the series fresher than the Giants who will have little time to recuperate from their hard pennant fight.

This series, year's I believe, will last at least six games.

On the face of things the Yankees have better pitching than the Giants.

But the Giant pitchers don't run to form, especially if their form appears weak.

John McGraw's pitchers have a way of rising to the emergency and delivering the goods in a pinch. So has his whole ball club. That's the main reason why I pick them to retain their championship.

Behind his pitching staff McGraw has a team that is great offensively and defensively. Individually his team is strong. Collectively it is stronger because the Giants have perfected their team work to the highest degree.

They also are strong in their substitutes as was proved when Bancroft and Groh were disabled. They can, if necessary, take the field with a regular or two missing and still present a championship team. This may be true of the Yankees, also, but I doubt it.

The Giants have shown me this season there is no type of pitching against which they are weak. They may be stopped for a day, but they will come back and make up for it the next.

The Giants have gone through two or three bad slumps this year. Several times the Reds were right at their heels, ready to overtake them, but we never got into the lead because the Giants always regained their stride just in time to save themselves. In a pinch McGraw's club can be depended upon to come through and, since the world series is the biggest pinch of all, I do not expect them to slump in these games with the Yankees.

Back of the entire Giant team is John McGraw, a man without a peer at directing a ball club or driving his players on to victory. His hand was plainly visible in the last two series with the Yankees and I think it will be evident again ths fall, spurring his menu on.

Individually Babe Ruth is, I believe, the greatest player who will appear in the series. Ruth has had a wonderful season in all departments of the game. He has learned the lesson of keeping his mind on his job. I look for him to do some wonderful playing and live up to the honor recently conferred upon him as the most valuable player in his league.

Ruth's improvement, I believe, will be a big factor in stretching the series out to at least six games. In our last two games with the Giants I was convinced they are going into the series with their heads up and will be alert to take advantage of every opportunity that comes their way.

Their heads are not swelled by the fact that they licked the Yankees in 1921 and again in 1922. They realize they probably will have a tougher job on their hands than they had in either of the past two years and are more determined than ever to play their best against the Yankees.

Frisch, Groh and Young, I believe, will rise to great heights in these games.

OTTAWA READY FOR THE ARGOS

Hope to Win Their First Home Game of the Season

OTTAWA, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The Ottawa rugby team romped through a strenuous workout yesterday afternoon in preparation for the interprovincial union game here with Argonauts on Saturday. Dave Harding with a sore neck, and Shaw, with a bad ankle, were the only absentees and the players were driven at a terrific pace for a full hour and a half.

The injuries to Shaw may keep him out of the big game with the Scullers but Harding is almost sure to be back in line for this engagement. McCormick showed a decided improvement in his kicking, while Eddie Crain working at quarter, had the squad going smoothly. Emerson played snap in Shaw's absence. It would appear that the locals will carry the battle to the oarsmen at all stages at Saturdays game. While attention has been given to the weak points of the defensive system noted in the game with M.A.A.A. great care has been taken all week to drill them in offensive tactics. Working against the seconds this afternoon, they showed some snappy new plays and if they can get these working against the double blue, should reap huge rewards.

Indications point to a record crowd. Interest locally is at fever heat.

MASONS AND U.F.O. WIN IN LAKEFIELD

Defeated the Firemen and Business Men at Softball.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 5.—The Masons and the U.F.O. were the victors of last night's softball double bill in the curling rink, the lodge men defeating the firemen by 32 to 15, and the United Farmers nosing out the Business men by 27 to 26.

It was quite cold in the rink, but the chill only served to drive the players to more strenuous stunts. There was a flock of home runs and several smart fielding stunts.

The line up in the first game was:

Masons—Northey, p; Connell, c; Moore, 1b; Dench, 2b; D. Charlton, 3b; Morrison and B. Wannamaker, ss; Sutton lf; Ridpath, rf.

Firemen—C. Ridpath, p; J. Ridpath, c; L. Sabatino, 1b; G. Sherin, 2b; Grylls, 3b; Junkin and Summers, ss; Robertshaw, rf; Green, lf. Umpires—Dr. Gibson and J. Hill.

Score by innings:

Firemen ..... 2114430 —15
Masons ..... 001470(20)—32

The Masons chased in twenty runs in their last innings, and turned a rout into an overwhelming victory. At one stage it seemed as if the Firemen would never "put them out." Connel's homer in this marathon session was a feature, as was the Ridpath battery working on their Dad when he came to bat for the Masons.

A Close Game.

The second game was packed with excitiment, the U.F.O. winning out in the last innings by one run. The team were:

U.F.O.—Grier, p; Knox, c; Fairbairn, 1b; Little, 2b; Graham, 3b; Abbott and Hamblin, ss; Junkin, rf; B. Wannamaker, lf.

Business Men—Everett, p; Lake, c; Wagar, 1b; Millar, 2b; Tanner, 3b; F. Wannamaker and Rev. White, ss; P. Condon, rf.

Score by innings:

Business Men ..... (12)061403—26
U. F. O. ..... 5(12)20341—27

Abbott's double play at second was a bright spot in this game. He was a comparative newcomer and proved a find. Lake, Wargar and Rev. Mr. White drove home runs to the end of the rink.

The next games are scheduled for Tuesday, October 9th.

RECORDS REVEAL BATTING HEROES

Their Feats in World's Series Have Been Outstanding Features.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.- (Associated Press)—Batting feats in world's series, although eclipsed in brilliance by the work of the pitchers, have been the outstanding features in many games of the annual classic.

Few players have been able to gather as many as four hits in one world's series game. The records show ten men to have accomplished his feat.

In 1903 Tom Leach of the Pirates gathered two singles and two triples off Young, of the Red Sox. Clarence Beaumont, Pirates, accounted for four singles of Dineen of the Red Sox, in another game of the same series.

Frank Isbell, of the Chicago White Sox, doubled four times in the October 13 game of 1906 of Reulbach, Pfeister and Overall of the Cubs. Another White Sox player Edgar Hahn, bumped Brown and Overall, of the Cubs, for four singles in another game of the same series.

In 1908 Ty Cobb, of the Tigers, banked the ball for three singles and a double of Pfeister and Reulbach of the Cubs.

Larry Doyle, New York Nationals, found Coombs and Plank, Athletics for two singles and two doubles, Oct. 25, 1911. The following day Dan Murphy, Athletics, batted out three singles and a double of Wiltse, Ames and Marquard, of the Giants.

Three New York Giants collected four hits in the 1921 series with the Yankees. Frank Frisch batted out four singles off Carl Mays' delivery October 5. In the October 7 game, with Shawkey, Collins, Quinn and Rogers pitching for the Yankees, George Burns connected for two singles, a double and a triple, while Frank Snyder, the Giant catcher, made four singles.

The batting star of last year's Giant-Yankee series was little Heinie Groh. In the first game Groh walked once and connected for two singles and one triple off Bush and Hoyt.

The first world's series player to clean the bases with a long hit was George Rohe, a substitute player for the White Sox in the 1906 series. Rohe's three base hits of Pfeister, a Cub southpaw, scored three runners. The second "clean-up" hero was Elmer Smith, of the Cleveland Indians, who did even better by hitting a home run with three men on in the October 10 game of 1920 with Brooklyn. Burleigh Grimes pitched for Brooklyn.

Ross Young, of the Giants, connected with one of Warren Collins' curves in the 1921 series for a triple when the bases were full. Earlier in the same inning with Jack Quinn pitching for the Yanks, Young drove out a double.

LATONIA SPECIAL MAY BE RICHEST CLASSIC

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—(Associated Press).—The undisputed champion thoroughbred of the American turf may be decided Saturday, October 6, with the second annual running of the $50,000 added Latonia Special Handicap, at the Latonia race course.

The race is for horses of all ages, and it promises to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest, in the history of the turf. The nominations for the great classic include the best horses in America.

Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Latonia Jockey Club, said the handicap closed with 75 nominations and that these include the following: Zev, Whiskaway, Goshawk, Dunlin, Martingale, Dr. Clark, My Own, The Clown, Sally's Alley, Margaret Winsor, Prince K., Bo McMillan, Vigil, My Play, Mad Hatter, Knobbie, Little Chief, Audacious, Minto II., Bunting, Enchantment, Flagstaff, Cherry Pie, Untidy, Wilderness, Rialto and In Memoriam.

The race, providing 15 or more start, will be worth more than $70,000 to the winner, making it the greatest handicap event in America and only second in money value to the International race scheduled in Belmont Park between Papyrus and the three-year-old named by the Belmont Jockey Club. Six thousand dollars will go to the horse finishing second, $3,000 to the third, and $1,000 to the fourth. In addition to first money the winner will receive the $5,000 gold cup donated by the Kentucky Jockey Club.

The Latonia Special Handicap was first inaugurated by Mr. Winn in the spring of 1922, when it was an event of a mile and a quarter strictly for three-year-olds, with $50,000 added. It was in this race that Morvich was uncrowned as king of the three-year-old division when he was beaten by Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskaway and Carl Vogeler's Thibadaux. Morvich, who won the Kentucky Derby that year, was badly beaten, as was Pillory, winner of the famous Pimlico Preakness.

Regardless of the monetary value, owners and trainers seemed to dodge the event because of the conditions until the Kentucky Jockey Club made changes to make it open to horses of all ages in the form of a handicap race over a distance of a mile and three-sixteenths to be run in the fall instead of the spring.

LADY GOLF CHAMPIONS.

Miss Collett Loses to Mrs. Vanderbeck—Miss Stirling Wins.

RYE, N.Y., October 5. — Miss Glenna Collett, United States national women's golf champion, was eliminated from the 1923 title play yesterday in the third round by Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, champion of Philadelphia, by 2 up and 1 to play.

Miss Edith Cummings, of Chicago, was held even to the seventh hole by Miss Edith Leitch, of England, but the English woman's game cracked at that point, and Miss Cummings won six of the next seven and the match.

Miss Alexa Stirling found her best game yesterday, and won easily from Mrs. Melvin Jones by 7 up and 6 to play.

Mrs. F. H. Goss defeated Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, 1 up.

DARKNESS HALTS TIE.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 5. — (Canadian Press)—Darkness halted the sixth game of the Dixie championship series between the New Orleans Southern Association, title holders, and the Fort Worth, Texas League pennant winers, here this afternoon in the ninth inning with the score tied, 2 and 2. The series count still stands: Fort Worth 3; New Orleans, 2.

GARDNER'S KICKING.

Dave Harding was looked upon as one of the best kicking half-backs in the Interprovincial union, but Gardner is evidently his master in that art. He outkicked the Ottawa backs Saturday and made large gains on almost every exchange. As Tigers displayed no distance kicking on Saturday, they had better keep an eye on Mr. Gardner on Saturday. Of his work against Ottawa, the Montreal Gazette says:

"To Jack Gardner must go largely the credit for the M.A.A.A. win. The rugby half-back was punting in rare form and easily outkicked Moss, McCormick, Tubman and Harding, who at various stages kicked for the visitors in an effort to overcome the big gains being made against them in booting. M.A.A.A. largely played a kicking game to save the line players, and Gardner's 50-yard punts soon wore down the outside wings, and towards the end of the game the kicking had to be turned over to Carroll, whose shorter punts gave the tiring wings a chance to get somewhere near the player catching the ball."

NO ARREST

He bumped into her car.

"I had my hand out," declared the girl, indignantly.

"Such a tiny hand," murmured the young man. "No wonder I didn't see it."

Then the traffic cop waved them both along.

M'TIGUE - STRIBLING FIGHT WAS A DRAW

And the Irishman Retains His World Light Heavyweight Championship.

COLUMBUS Ga., Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Mike McTigue of Ireland, retains his world light heavyweight championship by virtue of three decisions by Referee Harry Ertle. After ten mediocres round yesteday afternoon Ertle made motions with his hands and left the ring, returning a few moments later to declare Stribling, of Macon, the winner.

Thee hours later from the seclusion of a private house he issued a statement that the verdict was a draw and that he had not reversed his original decision even in the face of threats that "unless I awarded the decision to Stribling I would never leave the ring alive."

He asserted that when the fight was over spectators rushed the ring and demanded a verdict for Stribling and that Major Paul Jones, promoter, raised Stribling's hand as victor. McTigue also issued a statement that he had been forced into the ring at the point of pistols despite a broken thumb, and Jacobs his manager, declared that the spectators earlier in day had threatened to string them to a tree if the fight was not staged Jones stated that Ertle, Jacobs and McTigue had attempted to perpetrate a colossal fake, and that Irishman had been played "for a sucker" by his manager.

GOLF MINOR COLLEGE SPORT ON THE COAST

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY, Oct. 5.—(United Press).—Golf on the Pacific Coast is going to be given a college education.

The ancient and uncertain game has for some time been recognized as a minor sport at Stanford University, the University of Washington, and now the Circle C Society here has come out and sanctioned the game as a California sport of minor character. A "Circle C" will be given as the letter.

Many colleges and universities in the East and Central West have been playing golf as a regularly constituted college sport for many years, and intercollegiate tourneys have been functions of long standing. But this move by California is the first real impetus the game ever has had out here as an intramural and intercollegiate pastime.

According to R. W. Cortelyou, graduate manager of athletics at California, matches with Stanford and Washington will be sought this coming season, and it is considered possible that in a couple of years if not sooner, a Pacific Coast conference golf schedule can be evolved.

WATER FERN A FOE TO MOSQUITO PEST

Plant on View at Brooklyn Botanical Garden Deadly to Insects.

They have a nice-little water fern over at the Brooklyn Botanical Garden with leaves too small to be seen by the naked eye, but this dainty little plant has been used in Germany and Panama, according to Curator Arthur Harmount Graves, for the very practical work of preventing the propagation of mosquitos. Telling about the fern Mr. Grave says:

"Visitors who come to the garden to see the heaths and heather in bloom near the terminal pool of the brook last week were curious tabuo the dark red mat of plants which covers over the surface of the pool, so that in places the water is entirely hidden. If one examines this may closely, he finds that it is composed of thousands of tiny plants, all growing on the surface of the water, dark red on their edges, fading to a greenish shade at the centre, and so close together as to produce the effect of some finely woven fabric. These plants are the beautiful water fern, Azolla caroliniana, with leaves too small to be seen with the naked eye, but so constructed and arranged that they enclose little bubble of air and thus keep the plant afloat, its upper surface being quite dry. All these countless hosts of diminutive plants were born further up the brook, for although this fern can reproduce by spores like its cousins, it commonly resorts to a much easier method of self-multiplication—simply the separation of a small piece from the parent, which then grows to normal size and repeats the process. On windy days, when the water is agitated, these small offshoots break off very easily from their parents and float onward to set up new households of their own. As one passes up the brook he finds it edged the whole distance, as far as the willows with a crimson border of these water fern colonies, interspersed frequently with clusters of the graceful arrrowhead with its delicate white flowers and curious barb-shaped leaves.

"It is an interesting fact that because Azolla can multiply so rapidly, and cover so completely any quiet water surface, it has been utilized in Germany and Panama for preventing the propagation of mosquitos—a method which recommends itself to the esthete as far better than the vulgar coating of oil.

"Further up the brook, where it flows past the Zoological Garden and opposite the rock garden one finds an other water fern, an entirely different genus, Marsilia quadrifolia, also a rare plant. Amid the large, brightly shining rounded leaves of the water hyacinth, and surrounded by plants of arrowhead, pickerel weed, and more intimately by its own cousin, the Azolla, one can easily recognize the leaves of this plant, for they resemble a cross between a four-leaved clover and an oxalis lea, although, perhaps, from the manner of disposition of the leaf stalk, more like an oxalis leaff with four leaflets. This water fern is occasionally found in our lakes and ponds, and has apparently been brought in from Europe. It bears its spores below the water in little podlike structures of the shape of a very small bean."

HAS IDEAS ON HOW TO CURE THE DRUG HABIT

SYRACUSE, Oct. 5.—Philo Chambers of Syracuse University has definite ideas on how to cure drug addicts. He differs from most persons by putting his ideas into practice.

For the first time it is learned, through a thesis he wrote for the degree of Master of Arts, Chambers "picked up" an addict and tried to cure him by taking him to a college fraternity house.

Chambers is a 1922 graduate of Syracuse. He investigated the eastern city's dope colony personally, working with the Red Cross. There he grew to know a drug "fiend" who had made several unsuccessful attempts to break himself of the habit.

Actual curbing of the habit is but the first step in permanent cure, Chambers believed. There remained the problem of readjustment, which involved creating within the victim the desire for higher ideals, an awakening of his responsibilities in life.

"It was realized it would be impossible and impracticable to keep him under guard indefinitely," Chambers says. "Sooner or later he must associate with others, which would depend upon his environment and future desires.

"University surroundings carried a different atmosphere than he had ever before experienced. The fellows made him feel at home. Never once did they mention his past.

But Chambers goes on to explain that out of his entire observation he failed to find a permanent cure. The man whom he took to the frat house kept away from the drug for a year.

Then he left Syracuse, and in Buffalo soon was again "on the dope."

Feeding Facts

Silage is indispensable for cheap jmilk production. It is a succulent feed.

The hay should be a legume such as clover or alfalfa.

Silage and alfalfa or clover hay are the "best and cheapest" roughages.

Feed all the roughage a cow will clean up.

Choose grain mixture to balance class of roughage available.

Feed grain in accordance to milk yield of each cow.

For Holsteins or Ayrshires feed one pound grain for each four pounds milk.

For Guernsey or Jerseys feed one pound grain for each three pounds milk.

Give access to salt daily.

Feed and milk regularly.

Supply an abundance of pure, fresh water at all times.

BEST BUTTER ONLY.

Any butter used in connection with vegetables should be of the very finest quality, otherwise it is better to rely merely upon salt and pepper for seasoning.

"BUTCHER" WEYLER, OF CUBAN INFAMY, REFUSED FREE HAND IN MOROCCO

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, Oct. 5 (United Press).—'In 1918 they took me out of Cuba. Well, Spain lost Cuba, didn't she Now they refuse to give me a free hand in Morocco. You'll see, one of these days, what's going to happen in Morocco."

That is what General Weyler—'Butcher" Weyler they called him a generation ago when Gomez and Garcia were fighting for Cuba Libre," finally bringing in the United States to prove to the Old World that the New World had learned something in the last one hundred and fifty years or so—told the newspaper correspondents in Madrid when he returned from Melilla, after an examination of the situation of the Spanish troops.

French correspondents and one or two Americans who were in Cuba in the days preceding the blowing up of the Maine remembered General Weyler very well. For him the march of human events stopped in the fifteenth century, just after Christopher Columbus made a couple of journeys across the seas. Then was founded Spain's vast colonial empire, of which nothing remains for Spain. Wherefore she must find a new empire. Morocco is a good starting point. It is on England's road to the Orient. Tangier is just across the street from Gibraltar, which Spain regards as France regarded Alsace and Lorraine for fifty years. By control of the entrance to the Mediterranean, Spain might once again play the part of a world power.

Weyler is about 85 years of age. When he was very young he was sent to Cuba to repress a rebellion and when the revolt was finished officers who had served under him declared that he had found a new way to fight rebels. He had given orders that he wanted Cuban prisoners. So his troops brought none back to camp.

He introduced into Cuba the system known as 'concentration camps," later adopted by Kitchener in the Boer War, consisting in arresting every Cuban, man, woman and child hostile to the Spanish regime and keeping them imprisoned in barracks surrounded by barbed wire, with no means of communication with the outside world. Correspondents who criticized his methods, or were merely suspected of friendliness to the United States, were summarily deported. After his recall from Cuba, Weyler always sustained that it was his absence from the island that permitted Colonel Roosevelt and his roughriders to outgeneral and outfight the Spaniards.

Weyler Stopped Revolt

He was made captain general of Catalonia about ten years ago. Catalonia is Spain's Ireland. The inhabitants declare that they are not Spaniards. Their capital, Barcelona, is the most progressive and wealthiest city of the peninsula. The Catalonians cannot understand why the Madrid government refuses to give them autonomy. There have been many revolts. But during the term of office of General Weyler, as he said the other day, he never had to declare martial law. His reputation sufficed.

Therefore it is easy to understand why Weyler considers himself the saviour of Spain. He went to Morocco and saw the condition of the army. He thought he could remedy it if he had absolute power. King Alfonso, more liberal than most monarchs of Europe today, declined. But King Alfonso has a hard problem demanding solution. If he fails in Morocco, France will be directly concerned because of the proximity of the African colony of Algeria and the French zone in Morocco.

HOW DO YOU USE YOUR AUTOMOBILE?

In order to learn the varying services supplied by motor cars the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has directed an enquiry to thousands of motor car owners.

Judging by the growth of savings deposits and home building in States where there is the largest proportion of automobiles to population, investment in a motor car has been a profitable one. It will be interesting to get a picture of the various ways in which the motor car serves its owners.

The following are some of the uses already recorded:

(1) Driving to and from work.
  (a) Directly.
  (b) Via railroad station.
(2) Daily use in business.
(3) Occasional use in business.
(4) Evening driving.
(5) Picnics.
(6) Motor camping.
(7) Long distance touring.

GIRL PUPILS PRESENT A VERY DAINTY PLAY

Staged in St. Mary's Convent in Honor of Bishop O'Brien.

On Tuesday eveining of this week, an entertainment in honor of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who celebrated recently the tenth anniversary was held in St. Mary's Convent, of his elevation to the episcopate, when girl pupils of the convent presented in charming fashion a dainty little play, performing their several parts in a manner that reflected a great deal of credit on themselves and the painstaking tuition of their teachers.

The hall was prettily decorated with ferns, pink roses and asters, and was filled with the parents of those taking part. At the conclusion of the performance, the Bishop spoke in appreciative terms of the enjoyable entertainment in his honor Clergymen present included: Rt. Rev. Mgr. McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. J. McAuley of Enismore; Rev. P. Costello, Rev. Father Garvey Rev. Father Collins, Rev. P. Butler Rev. J. Finn.

In the little play presented, a young girl graduate arrives at the parting of the ways in life. The Spirits of the World endeavor to lure her from the path of duty and she fails to recognize their companions of Pain and Remorse and Regret. Just in time, she is arrested in her path by the call of the Heavenly Voices, heralded by Wisdom. She is exhorted in turn by the spirits of St. Joan of Arc, St. Catharine of Sienna and Dante's Beatrice, who urge upon her in turn the virtues of Courage and Faith and choice of the Queen of Heaven as her model in life. She is won to the right path and departs guided by Courage, Faith and Love.

The programme with thos, taking part in the play which concluded it, was as follows; Instrumental duet, by the Misses Nolan, Song, "The Daisies," by the Minums, instrumental solo, Miss Kathleen Burke, Chorus: "Ave Maris Stella." CURZON VIEWS DISCUSSED BY FRENCH GROUP

Officials Recall the Time When Baldwin and Curzon Were Very Far Apart.

A BAD IMPRESSION

PARIS, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Lord Curzon's speech before the Imperial Conference yesterday, in which the British Foreign Secretary said his Government's policy toward Germany would be one of a waiting initiative by France, created a very unfavorable impression in French official circles.

These quarters take special exception to the tone of the statement which they compare with a conciliatory manner in which Premier Baldwin has explained the British foreign policy. One high official said this morning that Lord Curzon's boast that he was in absolute accord with Mr. Baldwin must be so because the Marquis said it was so, but that there was certainly one respect in which the two were greatly apart, namely, their manner of presenting the policies.

HARVEST OVER SAY HUNDREDS RETURNED MEN

Toronto Flooded With Harvesters From West —Many Reported Stranded in Winnipeg Without Funds

BRITISH LABORER

TORONTO, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Despite the fact that an unusual exodus of men to the lumber camps of the north is taking place, the number leaving the city is more than equalled by returning harvesters from the West. Yesterday nearly 400 laborers left the Union Station on their way to spend the winter in logging camps, but a much greater number arrived aboard through trains from the West.

According to stories of the returning harvesters, Winnipeg has been crowded for the past few weeks with men seeking transportation to Eastern cities. Good fortune apparently has not attended all who went West, as many men are said to be "stranded" in Winnipeg without the means of purchasing return transportation. Some arrived recently aboard cattle trains. For their services aboard these trains the men claim that they received no remuneration apart from transportation.

In Toronto the situation has found reflection in an increasing number of "panhandlers," who are coming more into prominence on the downtown streets as the weather takes on a wintry character.

Placements through the local office of the Government Employment Service of Canada for the week ending September 29 were greater than for the same week of last year, Acting Superintendent Hudson announced last night. The number which secured work was 1,173, or 400 more than during the same week of 1922. The business of the office will help to dispose of the feeling current among wage earners of a fall and winter with a great deal of unemployment.

There is work for farm labor and in lumber camps at the present time, but it appears that the only outlet for the Britishers who went to the Western harvest this fall and is expected to return to Ontario, will be on the farm, Mr. Hudson said. He explained that lumber camps were unwilling to employ inexperienced lumber workers and that the majority of the Britishers were mechanics as far as the service could learn.

Mr. Hudson's advice to those returning from the West is that they had accepted work on farms for the winter months.

DEATH TRAP FOR PASSENGERS

Between 25 and 40 victims perished in this wreck when a weakened bridge collapsed over Cole Creek, near Casper, Wyo., hurling the Burlington train No. 30 into the swollen stream below.

This first picture shows a demolished chair car riding atop the ruins of a partially submerged baggage coach. The stream has completely swalloped the engine and tender which are out of sight heading the spillway of death which piled up over twisted steel and writhing bodies immediately after the break occurred. In the lower right hand foreground, pieces of rail jutting over the brink, mark the point of separation between the living and dead.

FIELDING SAVED 10 MILLIONS BY SELLING BONDS CANADA

Offer of Canadian Syndicate Was Considerably Better Than Best Suggested by Houses in United States---All Further Offerings Likely To Be Made At Home.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—"The Dominion of Canada Refunding Loan was sold in Canada by Finance Minister Fielding simply because he found he could get a better price at home than abroad." This statement was made here by one in close touch with the operations of the purchasing syndicate through whose efforts $200,000,000 were marketed within ten days.

By selling his bonds in Canada, the same authority added, the Minister of Finance saved approximately $10,000,000 over the best price he could have secured in the United States.

It is understood that Ottawa was frankly sceptical of the possibility of placing even $172,000,000 in the domestic market, and that right up to the last, Mr. Fielding was sounding out the New York market. Bond men in Canada, however, insisted that Canada was the right place to sell the loan and finally at a session with Hon. Mr. Fielding, Messrs. J. H. Gundy of Wood, Gundy and E. R. Wood, of Dominion Securities, obtained the offering by undertaking a definite obligation at a price considerably higher than the best New York offer.

As announced, the day before the Finance Minister's official statement the participants took a $100,000,000 block, one half absolutely and with a definite option on the remaining $50,000,000.

It is stated that Hon. Mr. Fielding was finally convinced that Canadians could do their own financing last August when his issue of Canadian National Railway Equipments were bought in Canada at a considerable higher figure than New York could offer.

Proved Contention.

Canadian bond houses had been after the refunding issue for almost two years. In 1921, they gave evidence of the capacity by buying a $19,000,000 block of Victory bonds, which had been accumulated by the Government the year before while stabilizing the Victory bond market. This $19,000,000 issue was sold quietly to a group headed by Wood, Gundy and Co., and were disposed of during a successful operation whereby the whole Victory bond market advanced during the sale. The equipment loan which was next taken was purchased by a syndicate headed by Dominion Securities, Wood, Gundy and A. E. Ames, which overbid a syndicate headed by National City Company. The Refunding Loan just sold was sold to a syndicate comprising both those which had tendered for the equipments.

The loan just completed marks the end of outside offering of Canadian bonds to any appreciable extent in the opinion of financial circles.

FRENCH COMMENT ON CONFERENCES

France Will Not Discuss The German Situation.

PARIS, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press.)—France will not discuss any general reparations programmes until the plan of collections formulated last January is working to her complete satisfaction in the occupied zone, an edtiorial by "Pertinax" said to-day.

The signed article by a writer usually considered a semi-official mouthpiece for Premier Poincare, and was considered voicing the unanimous French opinion in reply to Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Minister in his address before the Imperial Conference in London yesterday. Replying to Curzon's charge that the French policy toward Germany is leading Europe to ruin, Pertinax indicated France has not the slightest intention of adopting a more conciliatory attitude toward the German Reich, despite the chaotic internal situtaion which Curzon considered as preceding a complete break-up of the German nation.

G.W.V.A. FUNDS ARE EXHAUSTED

Fight in Interests of Soldiers Must Be Curtailed —Sec-Treasurer C. G. MacNeil Resigns.

OTTAWA, October 6 (Canadian Press). — The resignation of C. G. MacNeil as Dominion Secretary-Treasurer of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada has been made public here.

Coupled with the announcement is a statement that the Dominion Command has been forced to discontinue its legislative and adjustment work for ex-soldiers and dependents because of lack of funds.

"Our work terminates of compulsion," was the reason given by Mr. MacNeil for his action. "For nearly seven years, the G.W.V.A. has performed a useful public service in crystallising the needs of the war disabled and dependent and in a constitutional manner placing before Parliament sane and measured proposals in solving ex-soldier problem. Because of lack of finance, this work must be abandoned at a time when it has become more vitally essential than ever before."

Mr .MacNeil stated that recent rulings of the Pensions Board showed that, in spite of the reports of the Royal Commission and subsequent legislation based thereon, the official attitude had altered but slightly. "If previously acknowledged rights are to be maintained, then ex-service men must fight again. Without the machinery which gathered the evidence and proved their case last year, I hesitate to predict the course they may pursue."

"Since the G.W.V.A. was brought into existence in April, 1917, by disabled returned soldiers," Mr. MacNeil said, "the greater portion of its financial resources have been devoted to securing equitable legislation and individual adjustment of claims on behalf of the disabled and the dependent.

Work Reached Climax.

This work reached its climax with the appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate charges preferred by the G.W.V.A. against the Board of Pensions Commissioners.

After months of exhaustive investigation the Commission sustained the charges with the exception that there was no evidence that the Pensions Board had maliciously brought about the conditions revealed.

"The same Royal Commission, as a result of representation to Parliament by the G.W.V.A. also conducted a thorough investigation of the problems of the war disabled in Canada and of other matters of vital import to all ex-soldiers.

"Throughout both phases of the Commission's work, the Dominion Command of the Association utilised its entire personnel and financial resources in making certain that the problems were fully covered. The Commission's interim report to Parliament recommending an independent appeal procedure, the appointment of soldiers' advisers, and other measures, showed complete justification of the second investigation as well as the first.

"In spite of acknowledgment by Parliament, by means of corrective legislation, that the action of the G.W.V.A. was justified both in respect to the charges and in securing the general investigation of ex-soldiers' problems, the association today stands in the position of the successful appellant forced to shoulder the costs of the case.

"Because of the complete exhaustion of its ready resources in the work before the Royal Commission,

LLOYD GEORGE LEFT NEW YORK THIS MORNING

Cheering Throng Sees Former British Premier Start in the First Lap Of His Tour.

MAY EXTEND TRIP

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Perss).—A five-car special train bearing the party of David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, to Montreal, on the first lap of his tour of Canada and the United States, pulled out of the Grand Central Terminal at 8.44 a.m. to-day.

After being guided by police and detectives through cheering throngs of admirers in the big station, the dapper little Welshman, with his wife and daughter Megan, were established in the private car "Ottawa" in which, as guests of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, they will live throughout their travels on the tour.

Bright and Smiling.

Although he had been first up, after one of the most strenuous days in a strenuous career, Lloyd George was bright-eyed and smiling, and the most cheerful of his party. He talked little but smiled a lot, waving his black walnut stick and doffing his square-crowned derby in acknowledgment of plaudits which accompanied his entourage of limousines from the Waldorf Astoria to the station.

He rode with his wife and daughter in the official car of Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, who was at the hotel early to start the visitors off on their railroad journey.

The little statesman was up at 6.30 a.m., long before the other members of his party were abroad, and breakfasted on tea, toast and marmalade. He was the centre of a mild demonstration at the hotel, chairs and corridors adjoining "Peacock Alley" already having filled with guests eager for a sight of the famous islander.

Flood of Invitations.

The flood of invitations from western cities which Lloyd George yesterday and last night induced him to take, under advisement this afternoon, of proposals that he extend his Canadian tour westward from Winnipeg to Vancouver and Pacific Coast States, it was announced by Peter B. Kyne, United States author, who is managing the visitors' programme.

To no man has a more cordial welcome and more spontaneous display of friendship been extended by New York than that accorded Great Britain's former Premier.

Tribute After Tribute.

His stay was brief, but into less than 25 hours that he was in New York were crowded tribute after tribute and ovation after ovation. From the time he left the deck of the steamer Mauretania yesterday morning, until he passed into the train shed of the Grand Central Terminal to-day, he was greeted at every turn by shouting, admiring throngs.

After yesterday's strenuous programme the little white-haired man sank back in a chair in his suite at the Waldorf Astoria and told his friends he had enjoyed it all. His eyes twinkled as he recalled the antics of the comedians in a musical comedy he saw last night, and he was high in his praise of the way he had been entertained.

Ex-Premer was well pleased with the vehicle chosen for his transportation over continent. After rapid inspection of "Ottawa," he said. "Ah this is first rate. We haven't anything quite like it in my country. It's a palatial home for a tour."

"Tired," he repeated question, his eyes dancing merrily as he settled into luxurious cushions. "Getting tired is something I don't know anything about. I'm not a bit that way." As he entered the platform gate the American carrying brief case, dodged through police lines. "I am born Irishman," he shouted, and I want to tell you that I regard you as the world's greatest man." Ex-Premier's hat was in his hand. He bowed low murmured "I thank you," and he hurried on.

Canada occupies first place in mind of Right Hon. David Lloyd George, after a tumultuous reception here yesterday. There were counter demonstrations of discontent and hatred for Britain but they were swallowed up in the overpowering welcome, Lloyd George said last night tha this expressed purpose in leaving Britain was to thank Canada for the part she had taken in Great War.

LOOKS LIKE BREAKING UP OF REPUBLIC IN GERMANY

Surrender of the Industrialists Must Be Followed By Surrender of the Masses to Taxation and Payment of Indemnity.

By J. W. T. MASON.

NEW WORK, Oct. 6. — (United Press).—Germany's eight months of stubbornness in the Ruhr, culminating in unconditional surrender will have to be followed by other quicker surrenders if the new republic is to be saved from disintegration.

The Ruhr victory of France has taught the German industrialists they are no more invincible than were the militarists under Von Hindenburg. But the German people at large have not yet learned the lesson of the two dominating classes.

Germany can save herself only by ceasing to issue paper money and by throwing open for frank examination all evidence of her capacity to pay an adequate war indemnity. Both of these procedures, however, mean heavy increases in taxation which the German people must pay. To the present the Germans have refused to permit their government to impose adequate taxation. The flood of paper marks could have been ended at any time had the Germans agreed to tax themselves to pay their government's expenses instead of meeting payments by means of the printing press.

Masses Must Learn.

Similarly, the reparations question can be brought to a successful agreement whenever the Germans make up their minds they must pay the piper by taxing themselves to the full. The Ruhr capitulation of the industrialists will prove to be important only in so far as its lesson is learned by the masses of the German people. Von Hindenburg's surrender has never been accepted as a real defeat by Germany. The Germans have believed that only the fact of the world having been leagued against them caused the military overthrow of the Hohenzollerns. With the disintegration of the entente following the Versailles Peace Conference, the Germans considered they were competent to evade responsibility for reparations.

The Ruhr collapse, however, has taught the industrialists that their acceptance of the military torch from Hindenburg's hands was a disastrous procedure. The industrialists know they cannot gain a victory and escape the indemnity payments, even though the allies are divided. France has proven herself too powerful for that and too skilled in diplomacy.

Germany's Final Test.

Now will come the final test of Germany's ability to survive as an integral whole. If the German people show themselves incapable of taking to heart the two surrenders of Von Hindenburg and the industrialists, nothing can save the republic from splitting up into the original parts of the Bismarkian empire. The statesmen in Paris have won too much prestige throughout Europe by the successful termination of their Ruhr policy to permit the Germans to get away from the main point at issue—the payment of a full indemnity.

If popular resistance to payment continues, it is absolutely certain that France will bend all her energies to breaking Germany to pieces, and there appears to be no reason at present why she should not succeed. There is grave danger for Germany in the outlook.

The Von Hindenburgs and the Stinnes group of autocrats have no knowledge of anything between complete victory and unconditional surrender. They have lost both throws. If the German people insist on playing the old game by the old rules they, too, will hang out to the end. For them that will mean breaking up Germany if their surrender comes too late.

ANCIENT EGGS INTENDED FOR LLOYD GEORGE

Irish Republican Demonstrators Missed the Little Welshman in New York Bombardment---Bystanders Struck.

NEW YORK, October 6. — United Press. — Search is being made to-day for the Irish Republican demonstrators who ruined the evening clothes of a man and woman outside the Music Box Theatre last night by throwing rotten eggs intended for the Right Hon. David Lloyd George.

The Irish have been holding meetings for several nights at Columbus Circle, denouncing Lloyd George and flaunting banners bearing the words: "Lloyd George is responsible for the death of women and children in Ireland."

Last night the irreconcilables, mostly women, learned that Lloyd George was going to attend the performance of the Music Box Revue. They gathered outside the theatre, distributing handbills, headed "Two from the Same Stable," referring to Lloyd George and Papyrus, as undesirable visitors from Great Britain.

Aim was Bad.

When Lloyd George appeared after the close of the performance, the rotten egg throwing began but the street traffic was greatly congested and this interfered with the aim of the Irish. Those who suffered had no connection with the Lloyd George party. When the bombardment ceased the Irish rode off in motor trucks, burning red lights and blowing horns.

Inside the theatre Lloyd George was given a great ovation. The audience rose in respect and after cheering the ex-premier, called for a speech.

Lloyd George, in reply, begged to be excused, saying he was sure the audience did not wish him to compete with the player.

Between the acts many persons were presented to Lloyd George including Charlie Chaplin, who was invited into Lloyd George's box. They talked for several minutes.

Lloyd George told Charlie he remembered when Charlie played with the Frescarno troupe of pantomimists in the London music halls.

No Political Tour.

Before starting for Montreal an effort was made by the reporters to draw Lloyd George out on the subject of British politics, but he said he was not on a political tour. He did confess however that he expected a reunion of the British Liberals, adding, "Like all good things it will come in time."

He laughingly refused to predict when the Baldwin ministry might fall. He was questioned about prohibition and said that there was too much consumption of liquor in Great Britain, though only a small proportion of the people drank excessively. He said that he was not personally a teetotaller.

"Thar She Blows"

This harpoon held by Captain Gustav Petterson, in command of an Antarctic whaling expedition soon to embark from Seattle, is fired from a deck gun, and when it hits, more corset stays and blubber oil will start homeward.

SAYS LINCOLN WOULD HAVE SAVED EUROPE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press.) — Commenting on Lloyd George's "training for his visit in the new world," the St. Louis Star to-day says: "Lloyd George read a life of Lincoln on ship board. What would have been the effect if he had devoted himself to the life of Lincoln years ago. The spirit of Lincoln would have saved Europe from deep suffering the past few years. Lincoln was fundamentally a man of purpose. Lloyd George is primarily a man of methods. Lincoln was steadfast. Lloyd George is brilliant."

MARKET TODAY HAD EPIDEMIC OF SCHOLARS

Were Engaged in "Writing Up The Market" —Other Novelties on Farmers Market.

WHEN IS GREEN "RED"

Butter and eggs were firm on the farmers' market this morning. Butter opened at 48 cents a pound, and gradually lowered to 40 cents, with a few ladies asking 39 and 38 cents a pound. Eggs sold from 40 to 48 cents a dozen. There was plenty of both on view, and also quantities of fowl, selling anywhere from 20 to 30 cents a pound, with chickens asking a general price of 25 cents. They have a way of saying "a year young" on the market, if one asks for the age of a particular bird, and this means that the chicken in question hasn't yet attaind its twlve-month, but is somewhere near it.

Cream was selling at 30 cents a pint. A cream whipper and egg separator might be bought for the sum of 15 cents.

In the open section, there was much produce. Potatoes were plentiful, in good quality, asking from $2.00 to $1.75 a bag.

Avarjety called "White Elephant" was selling for $1.85 a bag.

Apples were conspicuous, mainly of the cooking brand. Greenings were $5.00 a barrel; a red cooking Hurlbut, 45 cents a peck; Tolman Sweets and St. Lawrence, the latter scarce, were 75 cents a peck; and other varieties of cooking apples were selling for 35 and 50 cents a peck. Snows were 40 and 50 cents a peck, and crabapples were not to be had anywhere.

One cart held quarters of lamb, at 25 cents a pound.

A vendor from Cobourg Hill Top Farm had a good crowd for his melons ,three sizable ones for a quarter, little specimens six for the same price.

GERMAN DISRUPTION MEANS DISAPPEARANCE AS DEBTOR

ALBERTA TRADE IMPROVES OVER SOUTHERN AREA

Farmers Hauling Grain—Notice Effect in Few Weeks.

COLLECTIONS BETTER.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—The weekly trade report of the Canadian Creditmens' Trust Association, Limited, states:

Halifax—Wholesale trade holding steady. Retail trade normal. Collections fair.

St. John—Wholesale trade fairly satisfactory and improvement expected, retail conditions while not as good as desired are fairly active. Fine weather prevailing and the crops are good. Collections fair.

Montreal— Wholesale conditions generally fair. Orders for drygoods and men's clothing show better average than last year, but still leave room for improvement in collections. Shoe trade looking for larger placing orders than last year; millinery and ladies' ready-to-wear fairly good. Fair demand for groceries in all staple lines. Hardware sales increasing over last year with collections a little better. Retail business fair. On the whole business is on the upgrade.

Toronto — Wholesale conditions remain much the same as last week with a slight tendency to improvement both in business offerings and collections. Retail business also showing slight improvement.

Winnipeg — Wholesale conditions generally are quiet with improvement expected as season advances. Retailers report slightly better business. Collections slow to fair.

Regina —Wholesale business good but collections slow. Retail trade slightly improved. Collections fair.

Calgary—Business over the entire southern portion of the province is making very noticeable and rapid improvement. There is not very much money in circulation as yet, however. Farmers are hauling in grain but it will be two or three weeks before the effect of this is really felt to any extent. Already there is an improvment in collections.

Vancouver — Wholesale grocery and hardware slight improvement. Logging quiet. Drygoods, boots and shoes immediate demands slow owing to fine Fall. Weather seasonable, trade fairly good. Hardware fairly good, grocery slow, others fair. Retail trade in all lines fair.

THE WEATHER.

This morning dahlias and other of the more tender plants, show the blighting effects of the frost last night. Some who turned the tap on their outside water service were surprised to find no water. The temperature was down to 25 degrees, or 6 degrees below the freezing point. While we should have about six weeks more fine weather with moderate temperature, it is perhaps not too early to get on the best terms possible with the coal and wood dealers, for while during the summer we may treat them with disdain, the time will soon be here when they will take a more prominent part in our daily life.—W.P.

Chapleau Crowd Greet Renfrew

CHAPLEAU, Ont., Oct. 5.— (Canadian Press.)— The special carrying Lord Renfrew and party eastward arrived at this point sharp on time, at six-thirty this evening.

Soon after the train came to rest, Lord Renfrew, looking bronzed and well, stepped off his private car, Killarney, to enjoy a brisk walk with a member of his entourage. He was immediately surrounded by, it seemed, every small boy and girl in town and they accompanied him on his walk At the conclusion of the brief interview allowed to change engines, Lord Renfrew boarded the train and as it slowly steamed out of the station, there was a burst of spontaneous cheering from those assembled, which was acknowledged by the salute

ONTARIO MAKES QUEBEC LIQUOR

Doctors' Prescriptions in This Province Draw Quebec Commissioner's Retort.

MONTREAL, October 6. — The Quebec Liquor Commission has issued the following statement:

The attention of the chairman of the Quebec Liquor Commission, Mr. George A. Simard, was drawn to a statement issued by Mr. W. S. Dingman, vice-chairman of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners, to the effect that most of the bootleggers' stuff seized in Ontario came from the stores of the Quebec Liquor Commission. Having read the statement Mr. Simard shrugged his shoulders and laughed.

"Oh, well," said he, "Mr. Dingman is a charming gentleman, and a well meaning one, I suppose, but he is without doubt another one of those Ontario gentleman who seem to be more perturbed by and to spend more time musing about what is going on in Quebec than about what is taking place in their own province. It is surprising that, being as I have every reason to believe them, regular readers of the Scriptures, they are not more impressed by the teachings therein, and keep on seeing the mote in their neighbor's eye, while consistently ignoring the beam that is in their own. They forget also that the Lord said "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone."

"Mr. Dingman endeavors to be sarcastic about our 'one bottle at a time' regulation. What about the prescription business which is thriving under the O.T.A., all the year round, but especially at Christmas time? I venture to believe that it affords much more appropriate material for him to exercise his wits on than the Quebec situation. It is quite possible that liquor sold in our stores, some of which by the way, had its source in dry Ontario, is bought by the natural customers of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners, and carried back to their province; but what can we do about it? If these people have more fatih in the goods sold under our guarantee and prefer our prices, that is not our fault. But there is more to be said. On account of the standard quality that we maintain in our goods, our labels and wrapping methods are frequently counterfeited by the bootleggers, both in Ontario and in the United States. This fact is well known and we are able to prove it. It is likely that most of the stuff seized by Ontario authorities and supposed to have been bought in our stores, was simply manufactured in Ontario and never left that province. The same may be said of the so-called liquor commision goods seized in the United States; it is for the most part homemade.

"Let me say in passing that Mr. Dingman is needlessly worried about the flow of liquor from Quebec into the American republic. This flow if it exists, is like a stream, compared with the torrents that pour from Ontario to the shores of our southern neighbors."

"Mr .Dingman, no doubt thinks it is very good tactics for Ontario to attack Quebec as a means of diverting public attention from her own sins. He cannot ignore the fact that the bootlegging industry is far more prosperous under the sway of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners than in the province of Quebec. His last statement is nothing but a smoke screen, and we can only take it as such."

LLOYD GEORGE SEES GOTHAM'S SKYLINE AS AN ANCIENT CASTLE

Stops His Car to Gaze at the Towering Woolworth Building—Hearty Reception in New York.

BRINGS GRATITUDE.

NEW YORK, October 6 (Canadian Press). — Hon. David Lloyd-George, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, veteran of seventeen years of strenuous activity in the labyrinth of Old World politics, came to the United States yesterday, and found in a wholeheartedly, enthusiastic welcome tendered him by New Yorv, a series of humanly potent thrills.

So delighted was the little Welshman who had guided the Ship of State through the tumultuous years, 1916 to 1922, that his demeanour was more often that of an interested schoolboy and of a deeply touched human being, than that of a blase statesman.

The former Premier first saw New York soil from the deck of the Mauretania early yesterday morning. His passage from the great ocean liner in the police boat Macom to the Battery and thence by motor, accompanied by a cavalcade of other cars to City Hall and through the streets of the metropolis, was almost a triumphal procession, marred only by two minor street disturbances precipitated by Irish Republican fanatics.

Message of Thanks.

To Canada and to the United States, Mr. Lloyd-George declared, he brought as Britain's wartime Premier, a message of heartfelt thanks for their services in the Great War.

He came, he said, with no political status, with no official credentials, but as a private subject of the Crown, to express to Canada his personal thanks for the volunteer aid she unstintingly had offered the British Empire in her time of need.

To the United States, he explained, he brought thanks for the army that had come when the horizon of the Allied Powers was blackened with despair.

To Study and Learn.

Mr. Lloyd-George explained, however, that his visit to the United States—his first—was one of self-instruction, that he wanted to say little and to study and learn much.

BUSHMEN WANTED OTTAWA VALLEY

Serious Shortage of Men Reported in the Lumber Industry.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—A serious shortage of woods labor which is said by lumbermen to be the worst in many years, exists in the Ottawa valley, where, it is estimated, between eight and ten thousand more men are required to fully man the camps of the lumbering and pulpwood companies. Only about one-third of the number of lumberjacks required to operate the camps have been engaged, and in some instances there have not been enough men to build the camps.

According to a local employment agency, the lumbering companies in the Ottawa valley and along the Soo line ordinarily employ about 25,000 men each winter, and considerably less than half of the men required have so far been secured.

The present scale of wages for bushmen is from $40 to $50 per month with board, a considerable increase over last fall, when the wages paid were $26 to $30.

FIRE BROKE OUT IN DELORA PLANT

Building Burned With Truck and Horse.

MARMORA, Oct. 5. — About 7 o'clock on Thursday night fire broke out in a large shed which lies between the main office and the general plant in Deloro. Fortunately the fire was kept to the one building, which was entirely destroyed. The main losses were a large truck and a horse which were in the building. As Mr. Herbert Wright was attempting to get the horse out both his hands were severely burned.

When the alarm was given most of Marmora citizens rushed out to give assistance.

On Friday morning at 11 a.m., the marriage of George Albert Wright and Elizabeth Wright, was solemnized by Rev. D. R. Clare, at the Methodist parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sanderson attended the Madoc fair on Wednesday. Others who also spent the day in Madoc were Mr. and Mrs. Connor, Miss Jennie Connors, Mrs. Dale and Dr. Thompson.

Mr. Casement of Madoc was in town on Thursday in a minor court case.

FOUR WARRING GERMAN TROUPS DECLARE TRUCE

Agreed No Ground For Disagreement and Return to Party System.

NO DICTATOR.

BERLIN, Oct. 5—A resuscitation of Chancellor Stresemann's defunct four-party coalition to-night put an end to the parliamentary crisis whose mysterious origin is only exceeded in novelty by its baffling solution, in that the four warring parties virtually agreed there had been no ground for disagreement three days ago and that a re-vamping of the coalition was the only way the only way out of the dilemma.

Conservation of party system, emoluments of public office and concern over political patronage are declared to have played an unusual part in the inter-party truce, which was preceded by a day of bartering and jockeying for position, as the coalition leaders apparently preferred to risk their immediate political future by giving the four-party bloc another tryout to taking a chance of being eliminated from the nation's affairs through the advent of the dictatorship with which they were threatened.

O.M.L. LEGAL DEPT. SERVES THOUSANDS

Not the Least of Many Services Rendered To Members of League is Legal.

The legal department of the Ontario Motor League has exercised an eternal vigilance in matters affecting motorists and as carried on in and out of court in safe-guarding the interest of members in particular and of motorists in general, to an extent appreciated by but very few of the many special services of the activity is not of a spectacular or sensational nature and consequently does not receive the prominent press attention, as, for instance, that recently attended the case of the bull that ditched and upturned the truck near Sarnia or the dismissal of a score or more of motorists against whom action had been taken in the Niagara Peninsula for an infraction of a local speed ordinance that, the League's counsel pointed out, contravened the Motor Vehicles Act, and so was ultra-vires.

Free legal advice is not the least of many services rendered to members by the League. If a member meets with an accident and is sued for damager or thinks of entering suit, he may consult the O.M.L. solicitors who will carefully study all the features of his case and give an opinion as to the member's legal rights and responsibilities and the proper course of procedure, without charge.

If a member thinks he has been summoned unjustly for breach of the Motor Vehicles Act he is entitled to consult the O.M.L. solicitors, and if the case is one involving an important principle affecting the interest of motorists in general, it will be conducted by the League without expense to the member. Many such cases have been taken up by the League with success in almost every instance.

The Legal Department has employed detectives to investigate such outrageous tricks as the placing of obstructions on the highways after dark and the wholesale spreading of glass and tacks on the road. Convictions have been secured in cases of this character which have served as a deterrent to this form of crime.

HIS GUN SLIPPED SHOT HIM IN ARM

Simple Accident to Lindsay Man Crossing Bridge.

LINDSAY, Oct. 6.—(Special to the Examiner).—William T. Kent, of Lindsay, a young man of about 20 years of age, who was working for J. F. O'Donnell, at the Robinson House, Orillia, accidentally shot himself in the arm on Friday morning.

Kent was out hunting ducks at the Narrows, and while on the C.P.R. bridge stepped on to the small platform to allow the train to pass. The butt of his gun slipped through one of the openings, the hammer striking the timber and discharging the buckshot into the muscle of his arm, about half way between the shoulder and elbow.

Some of the shot went through, but several remained in the arm, and were taken out by an operation at the hospital. His side was also torn by some of the shot as they were discharged in an upward direction.

SAYS DIRTY GRAIN RETARDS LOADING

Hon. Mr. Low Believes a Blockade Will Not Eventuate.

OTTAWA, October 6. Canadian Press. — That dirty grain is retarding the loading of boats at the head of the lakes, is the information contained in a message sent by Leslie Boyd, K.C., from Fort William to Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Commenting upon this new feature, which he says, has entered into the grain transportation situation in the last two days, Mr. Boyd claims that several boats loading at Fort William were compelled to move from one elevator to another in order to get a full load in reasonable time. He believes that the difficulty presented by dirty grain is not likely to be a transient condition but that it will be generally met with in handling this year's crop.

FALL SEEDING IN WEST.

BRANDON, Man., October 6. — Free from frost damage fall rye is making good progress in the Beresford district. The acreage sown, however, is slightly below last year, as the farmesr are planning to sow more oats and barley next spring. A number of the farmers are sowing fall wheat this season.

FOREIGN POLICY OF BRITAIN REVIEWED IN ADDRESS BY CURZON

Three-Hour Speech By the Foreign Secretary at the Imperial Conference of Premiers—Limited Publicity.

FRENCH MOVE NEXT.

LONDON, Oct. 6. — The whole field of Great Britain's foreign policy was reviewed for the benefit of the Imperial Conference of Premiers yesterday in a three-hour speech by the Foreign Secretary, Marquis Curzon. The Premiers sessions are held in secret, and only the sections of Lord Curzon's address dealing with the Ruhr difficulty and the Lausanne treaty with the Turks were allowed to reach the public.

Both these questions were reviewed at great length, the Foreign Secretary going into the details of the negotiations With regard to the Lausanne Treaty, Lord Curzon admitted that when he went to the conference he had only hoped to secure the freedom of the Turkish Straits for commercial vessels, whereas the treaty guaranteed freedom of passage for foreign warships, subject to a reasonable limitation in numbers, while the Black Sea was no longer a Russian preserve.

Status of Foreigners.

He admitted that he was not satisfied with the position of foreigners and trade in Turkey under the treaty, but he thought the Turks themselves would be the greatest sufferers from this, and that they would learn through experience that the new Turkish State was dependent upon foreign resources and assistance.

He justified the policy followed by the Allies at Lausanne of conceding certain points to the Turks rather than breaking up the conference and reverting to war.

The task confronting Turkey was a heavy one ,and she was likely to experience great disillusionment and disappointment, but "making what will be a great experiment," he added, "she starts with a complete absence of resentment on our part, and with a sincere expression of our good will."

Intervention Sincere.

Reviewing the negotiations following upon the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, Lord Curzon repudiated any suggestion of the slightest desire on the part of the British Government to let the Germans down easily. At the same time he confessed disappointment at "the result of our sincere but thankless intervention," in an effort to bring about a settlement.

He thought Germany's abandonment of passive resistance should have come three months ago, but he suspected it was true that no German Government could survive such a surrender, and whether Chancellor Stresemann would survive was still uncertain.

Doubtful Victory.

The speaker said he would not grudge France and Belgium their victory, "if it is a victory," but he doubted whether they were any nearer the fount of reparation. What was certain, he added, was that "we see the beginning of that internal disruption of Germany which we all along feared, but which we have consistently been told to regard as a bogey."

"And the disruption," he continued, "is not merely an ominous political symptom; it has a pretentious economic significance, for it means the ultimate disappearance of the debtor himself."

Remarking that, as far as he was able to gather, the German Government was sincere in its intentions and had taken the steps required of it, and that therefore in accordance with France's own admissions, the time for discussions had arrived. Lord Curzon declared that the present policy of the British Government would be to wait the next move from France.

France Prepared.

In dealing with Great Britain's policy, the Foreign Secretary admitted that the surrender of Germany could not be expected to be followed in a flash by enthusiastic French

A FOOLISH DEMONSTRATION.

While David Lloyd George is being hailed by representative Americans as a citizen of the world and is being accorded the greatest welcome at New York that any Britisher has ever received in the United States, there will be natural wonder at the mental make-up of the American sympathizers of the Irish republican movement who were foolish enough to start a hostile demonstration because of the coming of the British statesman.

At a time when the representative of the Irish Free State is sitting with the heads of the other British self-governing Dominions in a conference in which the problems of the Empire are being discussed, these misguided hotheads on this side of the Atlantic make a spectacle of themselves through their unthinking and senseless hostility.

They have no real grievance against Great Britain now, as many an Irishman has told them, but that makes no difference.

The people of the Irish Free State are settling down in peace to work out their destiny as one of the members of the Empire family, and the element which attempted to mar the reception to Lloyd George yesterday should "keep their hands off Ireland" now and give the new system a chance to function.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION.

The outstanding feature of the Home Bank fiasco is the evidence it affords of the absolute necessity of a more thorough bank inspection.

It is only too apparent that the monthly statements upon which the Government has relied for its information as to the condition of the various banks are not a sufficient safeguard.

It has been shown in this case that something more definite and more truthworthy will have to be provided if the authorities are to have anything like a complete and satisfactory record.

The logical solution is regular inspections by special representatives of the Government, independent examiners who will do their work thoroughly and have no other desire than to get at the exact truth.

Had there been such examiners in the service of the Government it is impossible to believe that any banking institution could have been allowed to indulge in the methods that have apparently been used by the Home Bank.

The next session of Parliament should not be allowed to pass without a most thorough discussion of this aspect of the situation, followed by action that will make a repetition of the present financial disaster an impossibility.

Nothing less than that will be accepted by the people of this country.

WILL THEY DIE OUT?

Attendance at most of the smaller fairs in the district has fallen off this year, and while in some cases bad weather conditions were responsible, even those which were greeted with sunshine and clear skies reported a decrease in interest insofar as the gate receipts could be taken as a test.

This showing, in the face of the steadily growing number of motor cars, enabling people to go long distances to attend events of this kind, contains an inference that he who runs may read.

It justifies the conclusion that sooner or later the small fairs will be abandoned, giving way to one large county fair at which the best stock and produce of the district will be exhibited and which the people of the countryside will attend as the red letter occasion of the year.

That is the logical development of the present situation, and while some colour will be lost by reason of the disappearance of the little fair, the expansion of the county fair will be correspondingly great, with beneficial results to the whole district.

In suggesting that the Peterborough Exhibition may in time be the only event of the kind in the county, there is no intention of disparaging the small fairs, which have been carried on year after year and have done good work.

But the signs of the times indicate that eventually they will pass away, leaving the field to the larger organizations.

BETTER PROTECTION NEEDED.

Fire Marshall Heaton in reporting his findings in regard to the fire disaster at the Wawa Hotel has intimated that he will make a number of recommendations to the Ontario Government for the better protection of summer resorts hotels.

This is a matter in which the whole Province is more or less directly interested, for Ontario is experiencing the results of a tourist boom and an even greater influx of visitors is expected next year.

It is desirable then that in advertising the scenery, fishing resources and other attractions of Ontario that it should be possible to promise visitors that they can count on safety as far as fires are concerned—something that in the light of the Wawa catastrophe and in view of similar conditions at other summer resorts cannot truly be claimed at the present time.

A second disaster of this nature cannot be permitted, and the Fire Marshall is expected to recommend and the Government to put into force regulations that will make the conditions at the various summer hotels much safer than there is reason to believe they are just now.

Too little attention has been paid to that point up to the present, but the fate of the Wawa Hotel has shown that greater protection is needed—and it should be forthcoming now that a terrible fire has demonstrated how ill-prepared some of these resorts are to meet an outbreak of fire.

A LAKE WATER PIRATE.

Where Canada alone interested in Chicago's wholesale diversion of water from the Great Lakes, in order to dilute that great city's sewage sufficiently to render it inocuous, the makings of a sharp quarrel between Canada and the United States would be much in evidence. But the lowering of the Great Lakes level not only affects Canada and Canadian rights, but it equally affects many American cities that are sorely likely to accept the present situation without protest. The origin of the trouble dates from 1889, when the Sanitary District of Chicago was constituted to remedy the disastrous conditions that then prevailed as the result of the sewage of the city and of the great stock yards being run into Lake Michigan, thus contaminating the water supply and causing a high typhoid death rate. But, instead of adopting proper scientific methods to treat the sewage, the commission decided to reverse the flow of the river that then entered the lake and thus send the sewage down through the Mississippi system. Notwithstanding the objections of the cities on that system that naturally did not relish the idea, the plan was adopted and carried out, permission being obtained from the United States Government to divert 4,167 cubic feet per second of Lake Michigan water for the purpose. Had the position so remained, probably nothing would have been heard from Canada or the United States Great Lakes ports on the subject. But as Chicago grew, the commission continually enlarged the capacity of its canals and plants and drew off more and more water until it now admits diverting more than double the quantity permitted in the original concession, in flat disregard of the fact that the United States Government denied the right to pass beyond that limit. Chicago is now endeavoring to obtain from the Government the right to use 10,000 cubic feet per second, the capacity of the canal exceeding that amount by 4,000 cubic feet. In view of past history, it cannot be doubted that Chicago will repeat the process of using still more and more water, confident that immunity from interference will continue.

According to Canadian engineers who have been investigating the situation as it now exists, the effect of the Chicago diversion canal has been to lower the water level of the Great Lakes to a point that is now seriously interfering with navigation. An article dealing with the question, appearing in the Toronto Star Weekly of last Saturday, states that the steady fall in the water has made wharves high and dry, rendered boat houses useless, channels unnavigable, and befouled good fishing waters with weeds. It refers, as a startling example of this, to Oliphant on the Lake Huron side of the Bruce Peninsula, near Wiarton, where a great stone wharf a quarter of a mile long is now high and dry, and motor cars can drive out to within thirty yards of its end. The boat houses are all high and dry and the motor launches this summer had to be moored half a mile from shore. These results are duplicated at many other Great Lake resorts. But so far as Ontario is concerned, the vital point is the threat this fall in the Great Lake levels has brought to the Provincial Hydro-power development, to future power developments on the St. Lawrence and the immediate damage to navigation, including the ports, canals and works of the Great Lakes system on which Canada has spent and is spending hundreds of millions of dollars. Chicago, moreover, is not using the immense diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second—equal to the flow of the American Falls at Niagara—for sewage purposes only. Chicago has harnessed it and it now lights 60,000 street lamps, illuminates parks and boulevards, and operates the sewage pumping and treatment plants. The Cleveland Plain Dealer pertinently asks: If Chicago be conceded the right to divert lake water in practically unlimited quantities, what other city along these border lakes and streams can be justly denied the privilege? Chicago has offered to build "remedial" engineering works somewhere in the channel of the lakes to maintain levels. But nothing of that nature can prevent a reduction of the water flow below these works and out through the St. Lawrence. It is estimated by experts that the amount of water now drained off by the Chicago canal would mean a loss of 500,000 horse-power in the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers. The only right solution of the problem is to insist on Chicago adopting modern methods of sewage disposal and strictly limiting her withdrawal of water to the amount originally authorized.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THIS TIME WE SIDE WITH THE GIRLS.

Some of the young men of Chatham have formed a sort of girl-hating club, and vow to forget the existence of women for 60 days. The claim is that the girls expect too much financing in the way of entertainment.

All of which is trash, or, as Major Hoople would say, "buffoonery," says the London Advertiser.

Chatham girls are probably much the same as any other kind, and would not thank a young man for spending more than he could stand in the way of entertainment.

The wholesome, bright young man is a welcome visitor any place. The plea that he has to carry a full purse with an open top in order to make himself strong is the veriest sort of nonsense.

The Chatham young men have had their joke, and the sooner they buy a bound of conversation lozenges and start their evening calls the happier they will be.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Stoney Lake is being advertised as an attractive October fishing ground. The result of this attempt to popularize an autumn outing at the lake will be watched with interest.

Indications are that the Home Bank affairs will be thoroughly sifted. Nothing less than a complete and exhaustive probe will satisfy the public.

In some quarters there seems to be a tendency to argue about whether the Federal Government or the Provincial Government deserves credit for the action taken in the Home Bank case. That does not make much difference so lon gas out of the case develops more efficient protection for bank shareholders and depositors.

Says the London Advertiser: "People have been scribbling away trying to figure how many people attended Lindsay Fair; some say 30,000. One sure way would be to meter the hot-dogs. Every small boy eats five on a fair day, and every house is supposed to have one small boy of the hot-dog age; he likewise represents a house of five, all of whom would be at the fair. So the number of hot-dogs divided by five gives number of boys. Multpilied by five it gives total number of people on the grounds.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, October 6. — This has been an off week at the cattle market, following the highly congested markets of last week. Total cattle receipts for the week were less than half those of the previous week. With the heavy carry-over from last week, added to the lighter receipts of fresh cattle, there were far more cattle in Monday's market than there was any demand for.

There was practically no demand for the export trade, though several loads of heavy cattle were taken by the export buyers, more as a speculation than for any immediate demand. A few more export cattle were taken during the week, the decidedly lower prices proving the attraction.

The falling off in export demand is attributed to the generally lower market in the Old Country, and also to the fact that the British markets are being supplied with unusually heavy increases in the numbers of cattle imported from Ireland and the Isle of Man. Cattle from these latter sources practically enjoy a very substantial preference over Canadian cattle, since their entry into Great Britain is unhampered by the restrictions and regulations which have in effect strangled the trade from Canada, notwithstanding that the embargo was supposed to have been lifted from Canadian cattle.

In the butcher section of the local market, trade for several days was almost entirely suspended. While the yards here were full of cattle, including some good useful killers, though admittedly also a large proportion of rough quality cattle, train loads of Western cattle, bought in the Winnipeg market, were almost daily being shipped direct into the big packing plants.

The result has been little or no demand for the Ontario native cattle, except at severely slashed prices, and at that, still leaving a large number of cattle unsold at the close of each market day.

The policy and tactics of the big packing interests in this regard, the seeming preference to buy these Western cattle direct from Winnipeg, while neglecting the local and incidentally to that extent, discouraging the Ontario cattle feeders, has been the subject of a good deal of comment among cattle men during the past week.

Although this week's trading was dull and lifeless generally, there were signs of a slightly more active interest towards the close of the week, and while there was far from a clean up, some good loads of cattle were picked up at the lower prices prevailing. Declines in the past couple of weeks range from 75c to $1.00 on both export and butcher cattle.

In the small meats section prices held steady during the week for good calves.

Lambs steady to a little firmer, following last week's sharp decline.

Hogs practically steady through the week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. — Although word that President Coolidge and the Cabinet were considered farm help measures had some tonic effect on the wheat market to-day, buying failed to develop sufficient volume to help values. The close was weak, 1-8 to 3-8c. net lower, with December $1.07 1-2 to $1.07 5-8 and May 1.11 3-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 3-4 and 7-8c, decline, to 3-4c. advance; oats 1-8c. to 1-4c. and 3-8c. down, and provisions 5c. to 25c. up.

Aided by an upturn in Liverpool wheat prices, values here were up a little in the early dealings and then in response to Cabient news from Washington scored a moderate general advance around mid-day. Demand however, seemed to be confined to traders who had previously been selling. As a result the market sagged when the wants of this class had been filled. In some quarters, the slackness of general buying was associated with supposed discarding of any plan for an immediate increase of import duties on wheat. Advocates of such a tariff change urged that measures to help farmers ninety days hence would come after most of the wheat crop had left the hands of growers.

Increasingly bearish news regarding Canadian wheat production and the crop movement in Canada attracted considerable attention. According to one authority the wheat crop of the Province of Alberta, will alone total between 175,000,000 and 200,000,000 bushels, instead of 145,000,000 as estimated by the Canadian Government. Canadian farm deliveries to-day were reported heavy and the movement to terminals as about up to railroad ability to furnish cars.

Corn and oats followed wheat, except that old corn continued scarce and arose to new high price records for the season.

Provisions were stronger in line with the hog market.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.— The market in the United States for refrigerators is reported to be showing a very weak undertone in anticipation of an adverse report of holdings on October 1. Bransby Williams

ACTOR, ENTERTAINER
POET, AUTHOR

One of the rare treats of the present theatrical season will be the appearance of Mr. Bransby Williams and his British Company in a British play, "David Copperfield." Mr. Williams is the greatest exponent of Dickensian characters on the English stage, where he has won his place by the sheer artistry of his impersonations. On the eve of leaving London for his Canadian tour, Mr. Williams sent the following letter to Mr. Frank D. Waterman:

Dear Mr. Waterman:

For fifteen years, I have carried and used various Waterman Pens. Apart from my heavy correspondence, I have written lectures, speeches and my book "An Actor's Story" also "Ten Books on Acting"—all my work has been done by my "Jolly Young Waterman." I have sketched in and autographed thousands of autograph books.

I have often wondered what difference it would have made if Charles Dickens had been able to use a Waterman. His ideas flowed; but, alas! the continual "dip, dip" of his pen into his famous blue ink must have hampered him. If only he could have written with "Waterman ease," he might have left the world even more wonderful treasures than we already possess. I keep special pens—one for small writing and copying my poems and plays; another for letter writing; another for ornamental work and music copying. My Watermen and I are Pals—we are a united society of "nibs." I am now carrying my Pals across the ocean to Canada to present "Our Mutual Friend" "David Copperfield" where I have "Great Expectations."

Yours, till the "last Drop."

WOMEN 'SLOPPY-MINDED'

But There's a Chance For Originality.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Every once in a while a man thinks of some new observation to spring upon a waiting world regarding the shortcomings of women.

Marc Connelly, the playwright, has decided we are sloppy-minded!

It all started with a discussion of his play "Dulcy." I called her something original, like a dumbbell or a bonehead, because her conversational existence was just one bromide after another.

He retaliated by saying she was typical of woman's "sloppy-mindedness."

"Lots of women are too lazy to think," he went on. "Their brains become sponges that absorb the opinions and expressions of others. In conversation these pet clothes automatically pop out and form the trellis upon which they drape their thoughts."

"Of course men never utter bromides," a put in her sarcastically. "I suppose their conversation just scintillates with originality."

Excuse for Men

"They utter trite expressions only during a mental breathing spell," he came back, sticking to his guns and defending his sex. "They do it when the brain is concentrated on a certain question or situation and they are marking time until the exact answer works itself out.

"Women on the other hand are more self-centered. They are not vitally interested in what is being said and they don't take the trouble to think up an original answer. It's so much easier to fill in the gap with 'Well, such is life,' or 'Two's company, three's a crowd.' or any of the old favorites.

"Is there any help for us?" I asked meekly.

There's Hope

"When one has become a chronic platitudinarian," he replied, "the first efforts to reform are somewhat painful. One's brain really creaks when he tries to think up original sets of words. But it is worth the effort, and it can be done.

"Women have just as good brains as men," he conceded in conclusion "but unless they get about and hustle for a living or get interested in clubs or something like that, their cerebral cylinders get rusty. And they get sloppy-minded. So it's the men who think up the same sayings, generally, but the women who keep them alive."

This may be so, but I fancy his saying that we are sloppy-minded will never become a platitude if he depends upon women to keep it going!

SAYS WORLD MARKETS AFFECT PRICE OF MILK

SYRACUSE, N.Y., October 5 (Associated Press). — An international commission with the power to fix the retail price of milk and to control in some degree its production was proposed to the World's Dairy Congress to-day by Dr. E. Laur, director of the Swiss Rural Union.

The price of raw milk is strongly influenced by the prices of butter, cheese, and condensed milk, Dr. Laur said. These are commodities of international commerce and consequently the price of milk is influenced by the world markets. While the commerce in milk products is internationally organised, milk producers are not and as a result the price of milk in many countries does not cover the cost of production, he declared.

Urging an organisation that would permit an active exchange of views on all that is of interest concerning the international marketing of milk, Dr. Laur called upon the congress to sponsor the foundation of a commission.

It is all right for Swiss cheese to be well supplied with holes but there can be a condition of too much hole and not enough cheese, said Professor R. Burri, director of the Swiss Dairy and Research Station, another speaker. He said that experiments with green fodder silage as feed for cows had failed because the cheese produced from their milk had had an excessive number of large holes, due to the peculiar fermentation caused by the silage feed.

ATTEND SCHOOL TO BENEFIT CHILDREN

Mothers Learn Effective Transition From Nursery to Schoolroom.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—If Tommy is 4 years old, now is the time to begin getting him ready for that longed-for and yet dreaded first day of school.

That doesn't mean that his trousers have to be patched nor his new pencil box and slate purchased.

It does mean however that his mother must begin preparing him to change from a nursery czar to a private school-room ranks.

Mothers who have children coming of school age in a few years or months should get busy at once building the bridge to span the chasm between block houses and primer lessons, says Mrs. Paul F. Cope, president of the Kansas City Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

To that end Mrs. Cope and and Parent-Teacher Council have opened a new department of education—a new department of education—classes for pre-school mothers.

The classes are conducted afternoons and nights in every school district in the city. They are taught by fathers and mothers already experienced in having children in school.

Things to Know

These are some of the things parents of prospective school children will learn:

That a child starting to school must be in as good physical condition as a race horse at the start of the derby—get away without a handicap.

That the habits of munching candy and eating between meals must be conquered in the nursery if the grades at school are to be satisfactory.

That the milk habit should be cultivated in advance of the school diet instruction.

That the first poetry in the primer will have added interest if, say, some of Robert Louis Stevenson's verses have been read around the grate fire at home.

That the place to fight jazz is on the living-room graphophone.

Training Essential

That a child cannot suddenly turn from an anarchist or a monarch of all he surveys into an orderly member of a school-room group unless the fundamentals of obedience and discipline have been installed into him by the parents.

The classes for the pre-school mothers, says Mrs. Cope, are to insure the children getting good starts in school and to bring about closer co-operation between parents and teachers.

The classes will include courses in health, nutrition, recreation, music, art, literature and psychology.

FOREIGN POLICY

co-operation, but the said that the contingency of Germany's abandonment of passivity must long have been foreseen and that supposedly France had the outline if not the details of her plans prepared.

Lord Curzon declared that the British reparation claim, "willing as we have been to reduce it in the interest of a settlement, renders it impossible that any such settlement could be reached without our co-operation." He added:

"We are ready to receive and discuss the French proposals in a friendly spirit."

Wait Upon French.

The Foreign Secretary's only reference to Premier Baldwin's Paris visit was when he said that the Governments' policy of waiting for the French to move had the approval of the Prime Minister, "who recently did so much by his visit to Paris to re-create a friendly atmosphere after the rather heated discharge of the rival guns."

Nothing in Lord Curzon's speech as delivered dealt with the prohibition question or the United States' proposals for liquor searches beyond the three mile limit. The only portions of the address made public were those reviewing the negotiations of the Lausanne Treaty and the German reparation situation.

GOVT. STILL SEEKS EMPLOYES BY THOUSAND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Despite the fact the number of federal employes has been reduced by nearly 400,00 since the close of the war, the Civil Service Commission sees no prospect of a considerable decrease in the number of opportunities for government employment.

To meet the normal turnover, which in a tremendous force like the government's is necessarily large, the commission held examinations in the year ended June 30, 1923, for more than six hundred different kinds of positions, in which more than 200,000 persons competed. Present indications are that the number for this year will be as great.

A study of examinations held during the past two years reveals an interesting range of positions all the way from charwoman and laborer, for which the primary requirement is good physical condition, to those which demand qualifications of a very high order, such as agricultural transportation economist at a salary of $4,000 to $5,500, and mechanical and electrical engineer at a salary of $5,000.

WILL IT CLEAN?

Before buying any mechanical device for saving household labor it is well to ask yourself if it may be cleaned easily. Some complicated food choppers and "seeders" are so hard to wash that one would rather do the actual operation by hand than clean the labor-saving device.

NOTED SPEAKER HERE TOMORROW

J. A. McCuaig Will Have a Message of Interest to All—Mass Meetings.

Announcement that J. Aspinall McCuaig, celebrated preacher and lecturer of New York, will speak in Peterborough on Sunday, will be of interest to many who have heard Mr. McCuaig in other cities of Ontario.

At 11 o'clock a.m., he will occupy the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, when he will speak on "God's Need of Man."

The interest of the day will centre in a mass meeting of men to be held at 4.15 p.m. in George Street Methodist Church.

At this meeting the lecturer who discuss one of the great social issues out-reaching from the war. His subject will be, "Mans Relationship to Woman." It is expected that this meeting will be representative of the male citizenship of Peterborough, irrespective of church or no church affiliation. This meeting will be under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., and Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., Deputy-Speaker, will preside.

At 7.00 o'clock, in George Street Methodist Church, he will speak on "How to Love."

"Tragedies of Marriage" will be the subject of the final lecture of the day, when at 8.30 p.m., at the close of all the regular church services of the day, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Mr. McCuaig will address a great union mass meeting.

Mr. McCuaig, who is an old friend of the Rev. Mr. Pogue of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, comes to Peterborough in pursuance of a nation-wide educational campaign for the strengthening of home and marriage standards which have been seriously menaced by war conditions.

As educational head of the National Christian League for the Promotion of Purity, university lecturer on eugenics, and teacher of right living, Mr. McCuaig enjoys an international reputation.

Of his ministry, Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn says: "Dr. McCuaig has the greatest message of the twentieth century." Of the work accomplished by him in the east, a recent magazine article says:

"A most remarkable man has sprung up in the land. He is heralded by many as a prophet and wherever he goes the people flock to him. He builds no tabernacles, but no building can hold the people when once his grip is on the community. Extravagant things have been said of this strange preacher, and many curious persons have been drawn to his ministry by the published statements of his marvellous influence, but the strangest of all is that those who are so drawn go forth to declare that "the half has not been told."

Following these Sunday addresses Mr. McCuaig will speak in Peterborough Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings. The afternoon lectures which will be held at 3 o'clock each afternoon, will be for women only and will deal with the general subject of "Home Standards." The night lectures, which will be for both men and women, will deal with "Marriage Standard."

All of the week afternoon meetings will be held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The night lectures will be given in St. Paul's Monday and Tuesday and in George Street Methodist Church Wednesday.

All of Mr. McCuaig's addresses are community lectures—non-sectarian and free to all.

OFFICIAL RECOGNITION SOUGHT BY THE SOVIETS

BELGRADE, Oct. 6.—(Associated Press).—Intensive efforts are being made by the Soviet Government at Moscow, both here and in Prague, to obtain recognition by Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia as an entering edge to world-wide recognition.

The first recognition by an European power was expected from the Stamboulisky regime, in Bulgaria. The Soviet agents in that country were in close relations with the late Stamboulisky Government. It is an open secret here that only Stamboulisky's fears of complications with Great Britain and France stood between him and the carrying out of his desire to exchange diplomatic representatives with Soviet Russia.

The fall of Stamboulisky made it necessary to change the field of endeavor to Belgrade and Prague.

The efforts of the Soviet advocates are finding a strong popular response, especially in Czechoslovakia, where the anti-German feeling still exists.

In Jugoslavia Soviet purposes have been accompanied by activities in the form of espionage. The latest incident is the one in which the Russian Colonel Loika figured prominently.

Loika arrived in Belgrade from Russia about two years ago, represented himself as a Czarist officer fleeing from Soviet persecution. His story, supported by documents, was credited by the war office; he received a colonel's commission and was attached to the aviation arm. Here he availed himself of every opportunity to collect military information.

But when the anti-Bolshevist Russian colony recently discovered his true character as a Soviet agent, orders were issued for the colonel's arrest. Before they could be carried out, however, he took to the air in one of the planes attached to his command, and when last seen was headed in the direction of Russia.

The incident has produced a painful impression here.

AT THE NECKTIE COUNTER.

"Black neckties, if you please."

Drummond, the salesman, stared across the counter at the speaker, as if his thoughts were in Egypt.

"What is it?" he said, at last.

"Black neckties. Silk."

Drummond threw a box down. The customer opened it. "These are red — and not silk," he said, quickly.

"Nobody wears black silk now," Drummond said, yawning and looking indifferently at the plain old man before him. Then he took up the box and threw it back into its place.

"Have you none of the kind I want?" asked the old man.

"No, that kind of goods went out years ago. We don't keep 'em," said the salesman, insolently.

"There are plenty of black silk ties," said Sanders, the man at the next counter, in an undertone.

"I know; but what's the good of bothering with an old back number like that? Methodist preacher, I'll bet five to one! But I was telling you about my cousins, the Harts. The three brothers all left the village and came up to town. One is now a railway boss, one a banker, and the third a sugar man—all of them millionaires."

"A lucky family! How was that?"

"They all had capital to start with. The man with capital wins out every time."

"Perhaps you have neckties—black silk?" the old man said to Sanders. He had been lingering near the counter.

"I think there are some, sir," said Sanders, taking down some boxes. He opened one after another, but there were no ties of the kind the old man wanted.

Drummond, with a half-amused stare at the persistent customer, turned away to gossip and giggle with a salesgirl. Sanders anxiously took down box after box.

"I'm afraid I am giving you a great deal of trouble," said the old man, kindly.

"That's what I'm here for," said the salesman, pleasantly. "I'm sure I shall find them."

The box was found at last and a necktie of the right width chosen, wrapped and handed to the troublesome customer with a smile.

The next morning, Sanders received a printed slip, notifying him of his promotion in the store. Drummond also received a slip, but it informed him that after the end of the next week his services would no longer be required by Colton & Co. Underneath the printed form were written the words: "Civility and efficiency are capital as well as money. You will fail, because you have neither."

"Who was the old bore?" demanded Drummond, in a fury.

"It was John Colton, the silent partner of the firm," said one of the men.—Youth's Companion.

INDIANS ARE THE WEALTHIEST RACE

The accusation that the United States has robbed the Indian of his home and land, and has made no adequate return for it, is not substantiated by the facts, for the assertion is made that tribally and individually the Indians of this country are the richest of all races. They own 7,000,000 acres of valuable lumber lands located in fifteen States which contain wood said to be valued at $100,000,000. The Indian forests in extent are equal to the combined area of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Arizona, New Mexico, Wisconsin, Idaho, California and Minnesota. This together with other property owned by the Indians brings their per capita wealth up to $2,400. In the past ten years the returns for timber lands to the Indians averaged $1,500,000 and the amount is increasing constantly.

BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Flames Also Wipe Out all Outbuildings And 80 Hens Near Dunsford.

DUNSFORD, Oct. 6. — Jack Maires, who runs a farm two miles from here, suffered a severe loss by fire last night.

Flames broke out in his barn at 7.15 and quickly spread to the adjoining buildings, which were all destroyed, together with 80 hens, a quantity of hay and all the season's grain. Fortunately, the horses, cattle and other livestock escaped without injury, owing to the timely action by Mr. Maires and neighbors. The dwelling was at no time in danger owing to the wind blowing in a contrary direction.

The origin of the fire is entirely unknown. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Mrs. Maires is prostrated from the shock.

ISSUES WRIT FOR $2,000 DAMAGES

Miss Callaghan of Campbellford Struck in Eye By Ball During Game.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6.—Miss Getrie Callahan, an employee of the Bell Telephone Company here, has, through her attorney, D. J. Lynch, issued a writ against the directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society, claiming $2,000 damages for personal injury.

Miss Callahan, accompanied by a young lady friend, on the 24th of May last, attended the games that were held under the auspices of the Agricultural Society on the Fair grounds. Part of the programme on that day was a game of baseball, between the Campbellford and Warkworth teams of the Northumberland League. While Miss Callahan was watching this game she was struck in the eye by a ball batted into the crowd and was seriously injured. She was obliged to go to Kingston hospital for treatment and it is now claimed that the sight of the injured eye was permanently impaired. It was some weeks before she was well enough to resume work.

Th directors have retained G. A. Payne and announce that they will fight the case. It is thought that the matter will come up for hearing before spring. The case is likely to attract wide attention as fixing the responsibility of Fair Boards and baseball teams for injuries sustained by those who have paid an admission fee to their grounds

RUM-RUNNER IS KILLED BY POLICE IN TORONTO

John Gogo of Port Dalhousie Shot to Death And Uncle Wounded When Officers Fired on Yacht.

TORONTO, October 6. Canadian Press. — John Gogo, aged 24, of Port Dalhousie, was shot and instantly killed early this morning, when the police attempted to seize a rum-running boat, which anchored in Toronto harbor.

James Gogo, an uncle of the dead man, was shot through the mouth, the bullet lodging in the right jaw.

Nine other men who were on board the boat, were locked up at Pape avenue police station

The wounded man was rushed to St. Michael's Hospital where the bullets were extracted. His condition is not serious.

The remains of the nephew were taken to the morgue.

Cargo of Whiskey.

The police seized the yacht and the cargo of whiskey.

When the police arrived at the dock they found the crew of the rum runner pulling out. The boat had just landed from Belleville a short time before, and it was intended that the cargo of liquor should be transferred to motor trucks.

Fired in Air First.

The police ordered the captain to come ashore but he refused. It was then that the police opened fire. They fired several bullets in the air, thinking that it would scare the captain into coming ashore, but he continued to head out towards the centre of the bay. When the police saw that he had no intention of obeying orders they fired at close range. The first shot took effect, and young Gogo, who was stepping into the cabin dropped dead. He was shot through the abdomen. His uncle, who was close on his heels, was also a target for the bullets, one of which imbedded in his right jaw. A few minutes later the captain docked the yacht, and the crew were placed under arrest. They put up a stubborn battle with the police before submitting to arrest.

The prisoners all give Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines addresses.

WARKWORTH FAIR WAS A SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Fair Directors Went To Bed Happy Last Night—Races Well Contested.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 6.—(By a Staff Reporter).—There was a well satisfied and happy board of directors here last night at the close of the annual fair of the Percy Agricultural Society. The actual amount of gate receipts are not yet known, but a valise full of money was placed for safe keeping in the Bank, overnight and the cash will be counted this morning. The directors, judging from the crowd are satisfied that the total will reach $1500, an amount in excess of the receipts of any former year. This is not the only record broken as there were over 3000 entries in the different departments, a new high water mark. The Fair has been extensively advertised, every director took is share of the labor of preparation they announced that the show would be bigger and better than ever and the public who responded so generously by their attendance were not disappointed.

The officers of the Fair to whom the credit is due for this success are: J. F. Freure president; G. Poole, vice-president; W. A. Kelly 2nd vice-president; J. A. Armstrong, secretary treasurer. The directors are: Dr. Allen H. L. Walker, H. Walters W. Ross, C. H. Curtis, H. Skinkle, F. White, R. Honey, H. Nelson, F. Moore, W. S. Nelson and George Hutchinson. The Board is well balanced consisting as it does of business men and farmers.

There are many reasons why the Warkworth Fair should be the success which it invariably is every year. In the first place the officials are tireless workers and are enterprising enough to take chances. They are generous and courteous in their treatment of all those who do business with them. The society owns the best set of fair buildings in the county. The horse barns, cattle, sheep and swine sheds and the main building, all are compiete and commodious while the race track is always so well maintained that the owners of the best horses in the district are always glad of a chance to use it.

The director of the Fair have every season to claim credit for their efforts in the past. The official records show that they receive the largest government grant of any fair board in Northumberland and Durham counties. This is easily explained be cause Warkworth's annual prize list is always bigger than that of any other Fair in the two counties. The township council of Percy has always been highest in the matter of an annual grant and the donation to Fairs made annually by the Council of the United Counties was increased this year. Of this increase the heaviest payment is made to Warkworth on account of the liberality of its prize list/ The Board may not have hesitated in the past to spend money but it is always fortunate in getting it back.

The Races.

"That is as good a race as you ever saw on this or any other track," said Starter G. H. Kingsley, of Cobourg ,at the conclusion of the free-for-all event, when Roy Mack skipped under the wire a bare neck ahead of Herman E., after a whipping finish. Starter Kingsley is a veteran racing official and the cheering throng seemed to agree with his verdict. Dr. Johnston, of Port Hope, owner of Roy Mack, was so elated over the outcome of the struggle, that he threw his hat into the air and bareheaded as he was, executed several figures of an Indian war dance— or something that looked like it—in front of the grand stand.

It took four heats to decide this race, Dr. Johnston' horse, driven by George Powell, winning the first two. Powell as a reinsman has few equals on the circuit. He is a driver by heredity, as his father before him was one of the best men who ever mounted a racing bike. But the cleverest drivers occasionally get trapped in a pocket from which there is no escape. This happened to Powell in the third heat, which he lost to Herman E., thus prolonging the race into a fourth trial.

Just as Herman E. swung on to the back stretch in the first heat, a wheel of his bike gave out and he was unable to finish, but the judges allowed him fourth place and he took second money after all. For once Polly Stout found herself in company that was too fast for her. Day Spring, one of the horses that did not lack backers in this event, after finishing third in the first and fourth in the second and third heats, lost two shoes and was drawn, It was Day Spring that gave Roy Mack such a hard race, and won, at Colborne.

The Classified Race.

The classified race was another fine exhibition of speed and it took five heats to decide it. Lillian Patch, after finishing last in the two first heats, went lame and was drawn. Lady Manor again showed her gameness by taking first money. After the first heat the race was hers, but she lost the third. Coming up on the outside in the finish she was kept back by the spectators crowding on to the track. W. S. Nelson, one of the directors, went into the judges' stand to protest and suggested that the race be called off unless the track was cleared. Starter Kingsley lectured those who were courting disaster and the entertainment went on, the mare from Keene taking the next two heats.

The Named Race.

Harry H. had it all his own way in this race, leading as he pleased in all three heats. All the horses finished in the same order as they did the first time they went around. The following is the summary:

Free-For-All.

Roy Mack, Dr. Johnston, Port Hope—1-1-2-1.
Herman E., E. A. Elmhirst, Indian River—4-3-1-2.
Polly Stout, R. Elmhirst, Lang—2-2-3-3.
Day Spring, A. Dafoe, Belleville—3-4-4-dr.
Best time—2.19¼.

Classified Race.

Lady Manor, R. Elmhirst, Keene—3-1-3-1-1.
Cy Winger, W. Elmhirst, Keene—2-2-1-2-2.
Bella Watts, D. Teal, Wooler—1-3-2-3-3.
Lilian Patch, A. Watson, Cobourg—4-4-dr.
Best time—2.19¼.

Named Race.

Harry H., Dr. Johnston, Port Hope—1-1-1.
Prince R., C. Fife, Keene—2-2-2.
Vimy Ridge, J. McIntosh, Cobourg—3-3-3.
Betty D., T. Cobbledick, Warkworth—4-4-4.
Best time—2.39¼.

The judges were: G. H. Kingsley, starter; J. P. Richards, Cobourg, O. F. Allison, Cobourg, and Gus White, Peterborough, judges; Roland Denne, Peterborough, and J. Nelson Stone, Campbellford, timekeepers.

Starter Kingsley earned the reputation of being one of the most competent and best natured officials who ever filled that trying position.

Fine Show of Horses.

There was a fine show of light and heavy horses. The Examiner's special prize of $5.00 for the best heavy draft team, was captured by David Taylor, of Centreton, who showed a magnificent pair of bays, with fine conformation and action.

W. J. Ross, of Meyersburg, had ten horses in the ring, eight of them on the halter and one agricultural team. He got 12 prizes in all, second for his team, seven firsts, two seconds, and two thirds for the others.

William Cowan, of Codrington, was there with his five grey Percherons, which have featured at so many Fairs this year, and won altogether seven prizes, regular and special.

The special prize offered by Rev. Father Ferguson of Warkworth for the best race of gentlemen's turn outs, once around the track, went to Irwin Greenley of Warkworth.

All judges do not size up alike the points of the horses exhibited. George Hendly of Campbellford, who got first at the fair there last week with his pair of blacks in the general purpose class, in which there were 13 entries, was placed third yesterday. Victor Irwin, third at Campbellford, was given the red ticket, and L. Stinson second at Campbellford, drew a blank.

Mr. Hendy drew a wagon load of Leicester sheep to the fair with his prize team and took home a bunch of tickets for them.

Sheep and Swine.

Every pen in the sheep and swine sheds was filled and the competition was keen. There was a fine display of poultry, the only class of exhibits that for lack of more permanent quarters, had to be housed in a tent.

In the Main Building.

The only class of exhibits below the average was the fruit and vegetables, these not being up to the Percy Township standard on account of the unfavorable season. There was an appetizing display of the home cooking which makes church socials in this district so popular, while every class in the arts department was well filled. Percy Township may excell in the breeding of horses and cattle, but the residents are by no means deficient in the finer things of life.

Cattle Shed Crowded.

The large cattle shed was filled to capacity, Ayrshires taking the lead in the number shown. The principal exhibitors in this class were R. Honey, of Dartford, and G. Kerr, of Stanwood. There were also some fine herds of Durhams, Holsteins and Herefords.

The Slow Race

The novel feature of the afternoon one that was thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd, was the slow race. Two boys entered outfits. Hayden Newman of Norham had a decrepit steed attached to a dray. A. Merrill a sober minded farm horse attached to a buggy. The boys changed rigs, the horse to finish last to be the winner. The drivers were not allowed to carry whips but were not restricted in the use of the butt ends of their reins.

It was a change from the speed events of the day but the contest was too one sided. There was no doubt that the Newman horse was the slowest. He could not be induced to break into a trot and anyone curious as to the time made by the winner once around the track, can form some idea of it by walking half a mile backwards over a strange road on a dark night.

Notes of the Day

Police Chief Duncalfe of Campbellford was on duty here and the only trouble he had was keeping the crowd off ths track.

The Indian Band from Alderville furnished music assisted by the Airle Marks' pipers. The Marks Company wound up the Fair with a performance in the Opera House, last evening.

C. H. Davidson of Campbellford had three Chevrolet and one Jewett car on exhibition and W. A. Diamond of the same town, showed four McLaughlins.

Warkworth is now illuminated by Hydro light so that the dream of A. C. Twiddy and other residents has been realized at last. When the current was first turned on the other day the transformer at Bradley's Corners burned out, but tempoary repairs have been made.

All the arrangements were complete. John Condon of the Leonard House had a large force of assistants on hand and fed the multitude generously and promptly morning and evening.

Thrift

does not mean privation and doing without the pleasures of life. In its true sense, thrift is simply common sense applied to spending.

How much of your money have you spent during the past year on things that added little or nothing to your comfort or pleasure?

Don't make the same mistakes in the future. Just put a little more by in a Bank of Toronto Savings Account for the rainy day.

Andrew Carnegie said: "The best way to accumulate money is to resolutely bank a fixed portion of your income, no matter how small, in a good, sound Bank."

The Bank of Toronto is a good, sound Bank.

CELEBRATED THEIR SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. F.J. O'Neill, Emily, Entertained Their Friends.

EMILY, Oct. 6.—A most pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. I. J. O'Neill, Emily, on Wednesday, October 3, when about one hundred and fifty guests assembled. The occasion was the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill's wedding.

A sumptuous dinner was served at five o'clock to their many old acquaintances, friends and neighbors. Guests were present from Lindsay, Ops, Ennismore, Peterboro and Chicago.

The speakers of the evening were Rev. P. J. Galvin, Rev. J. V. McAuley, Ennismore; Rev. P. J. McGuire, Peterboro; also Mr. I. J. O'Neill and Mr. Wm. Best, Ops. All paid beautiful tributes to both Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill, speaking eloquently of their sterling qualities, their charity and kindness to neighbors, and their willingness ever and always to help those in need. Rev. P. J. McGuire also referred to the youthful spirit Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill retain, although they are the proud parents of nine children.

Music was furnished by Miss Mary Twomey, Ennismore, and little Muriel Fox, Lindsay. Rev. Father McAuley entertained in his usual good style with a number of selected songs.

After 7.30 Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill entertained their many friends at progressive euchre, the prizes being won by Mrs. Wm. Best, Ops, and Mr. Dan Flynn, Downeyville.

The evening was spent by the young people in dancing.

LLOYD GEORGE

He will leave to-day for Montreal, where he will begin a tour through the larger cities of Canada, terminating at Winnipeg, where he will re-enter the United States in Minnesota, visiting afterward a number of middle Western and Eastern cities, and ending his tour in New York in early November.

New York's welcome to its distinguished visitor was but slightly marred by two disorders, quickly controlled by specially assigned squads of police. Between the Battery and City Hall in lower Broadway, in which scores of thousands of cheering admirers were massed, the police broke up a parade of middle-aged women, carrying placards denouncing Great Britain and characterising Lloyd-George as a "murderer" of Irish women and children.

Paraders Dispersed.

A melee ensued, in which banners were torn from the hands of the paraders and in which the police and rioters exchanged fisticuffs. The women were dispersed; one was arrested. Later, when the Lloyd-George party was proceeding uptown through Lafayette Street, another group of Irish Republican sympathisers were dispersed.

Throughout the day, besieged again and again by newspapermen, who asked his views on the current European affairs, Mr. Lloyd-George expressed his unwillingness to bring any message.

At a reception luncheon tendered him by a Press Association, which was attended by owners and representatives of many American and Canadian newspapers, he expressed the opinion that until the unity among nations, which prevailed during the Great War, is regained, "the condition of the world will be a very troubled one."

The veteran statesman admitted that the situation in Europe was desperate, but pointed out it would have been infinitely worse had the Allies been defeated. He refusd to admit that the Treaty of Versailles was at the bottom of the economic and political difficulties of the world, declaring that the "mischief" lay in the way the Treaty was being carried out.

Mr. Lloyd-George denied that he had political aspirations, declaring that after 17 years of service, he thought it was time to rest and try something else.

"We all have one problem in common, and that is peace," Mr. Lloyd-George said. "The real trouble is that where we are united in the war, we are not in the peace. If we were united, our problems would be difficult, but we would solve them in half the time, quarter the time. Until this unity is attained, the condition of the world will be a very troubled one."

"There Were Many Things Which I Could Not Eat"

Mrs. H. Robert Wells, English Harbour, Trinity Bay, Nfld., writes:

"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressed feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did me little good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and was surprised at the relief this combined treatment gave me in such a short time."

BEST EXHIBITS EVER SEEN IN THE DISTRICT AT MILLBROOK FAIR

Despite Bad, Chilly Weather, the Attendance Also Showed Up Well, Gate Receipts Totalled $992.15.

GOOD RING SPEEDING

Millbrook Central Exhibition drew bad weather for their annual event. Thursday was opening and arranging day, but yesterday was the principal session, and they had a chilly day, with intermittent light rainfall. However, the attendance was almost as good as last year, totalling nearly four thousand, with a net gate receipt of $992.15, and a free list of 500 school children. The exhibits and entries of all sorts, according to the directors, were the best seen in Millbrook for years. There was a notable showing of horses, light and heavy both, and the livestock throughout, with the exception, perhaps, of poultry, was away above the average in quantity and quality.

Among the exhibitors of horses, with the agricultural type and drivers pre-eminent, and a splendid array of speeders in the ring, were A. B. Mann of Bridgenorth, Shaw Brothers, George Ward, S. Blewett and J. O. Ball of Peterborough, H. Bryans, Robert McCamus, George Bonner and Wm. Armstrong of Cavan and John Smith of Manvers.

There was a long list of cattle entries, including nine heifer calves, with the Durham shorthorns in the foreground. Bowles Brothers of Springville and T. W. McCamus of Millbrook were heavy exhibitors of fat and dairy cattle, and Kennedy Brothers of Millbrook had a number of the pure black Polled-Angus on view.

Fine specimens of sheep occupied a long section of the livestock sheds that encircle the large grounds, with the Leicesters in the majority, and a few Shropshire Downs. G. H. Mark of Little Britain, Thomas Beatty and R. J. McKnight were heavy exhibitors, the latter, with Bowles Brothers of Springville, Thomas Baptie and T. W. McCamus of Millbrook, showing swine, the hogs making up in quality what they lacked in quantity, the showing here being rather light.

Poultry exhibits were also rather contracted. The Wyandottes in every shade, from pure white and laced silver to gold and black, predominated. There were a couple of turkeys, big bronze specimens, and a few ducks of the Peking brand. F. Tamblyn of Orono and George Buller of Peterborough were large exhibitors, the latter taking forty firsts in an entry list of about sixty-five. There were no special classes in the fowl.

In the large new main building, well lighted, with a warm sawdust floor, there was an outstanding exhibit of flowers, that overflowed from its usual stand to take up a big space in the centre of the building. There were table bouquets and floral designs in abundance, with a few gladioli and quantities of asters. Wild bouquets made a good appearance, there were some pretty foliages, a flaming section of lemon and orange African ball marigolds and a fine display of red and bronze zinnias. Low bowls of brilliant nasturtiums made another fiery spot of color. Among the local exhibitors were Mrs. R. Hounsell and G. W. Downer.

Mrs. Booth and Mrs. F. J. Jamieson of Peterborough also contributed to an extremely large exhibit of fancy-work. There were a number of novelties in yesterday's display of fine needlework that drew large crowds of women and brought forth many admiring comments. For size and attraction, the fancy-work showing could hardly be equalled anywhere, and it included many pieces that were beautiful examples of good taste and fine detail work. There were several sets of Mexican drawn-work, cobweb fine; ornamental cushion covers, one specimen of which deserves special mention. On a square of dark-hued linen was worked a girls head, the tinted linen squares surrounding it outlined in softly-colored silks in a conventional lotus design, the girl's earrings and head-band picked out with green and gold beads.

Tatting and crochet appeared in elaborate designs on various types of material; autumn leaves were painted on a black velvet cushion, and a particularly dainty tea cloth and serviettes were done in white linen, a blue linen appliqued tea cup on each surrounded with delicate sprays of pink silk daisies, edges finished with blue crochet.

There were embroidered and beaded blouses, one in pale apricot georgette with a design carried out in long crystal beads; there was a cushion cover emblazoned with a spread-tail peacock in blues and greens; a quilt or two, and a couple of hooked rugs; a beaded sautoire in black and white, and a wonderful handbag composed of solid beads in dull blues and reds; a camisole top done in fine Irish crochet; a carved tray and a novelty set that included an enamelled glass vase, with a Dresden-colored design in sealing-wax.

There was also a large display of painting, in oils, water-color and crayons, with several good examples of landscape and marine work and a striking girl's head.

Preserves and home-made cooking was another particularly good exhibit, arranged daintily under gauze that protected the wonderful icings and deep pies from exploring fingers. On a central table vegetables were arranged, in a manner that carried out the general decorative scheme of the entire interior. A massive Savoy cabbage, with a spread fully two feet across when its leaves were measured from tip to tip, occupied a place of honor; there were long turnips and huge cauliflowers, enormous golden pumpkins, potatoes, "named varieties," in every shade from blue to red; little scrumptious-looking pear tomatoes, sprigs of the salsify or vegetable oyster and large yellow cucumbers.

Butter was conspicuous in pats and crocks, the latter with criss-cross patterned tops; there was a separate section for apples and plums and grapes; the Singer people from Peterborough had an exhibit, and there was a cream separator on view. J. R. Brownlee, Peterborough's blind man, had a neat booth inside that he had erected himself, where he displayed many examples of his neat handicraft in baskets of all sorts. Mr. Brownlee, who takes with him wherever he goes an atmosphere of cheerfulness and efficiency that mitigates to some extent the consciousness of his affliction, gave several good prizes toward the Fair, contributing a four-dollar tray for first prize in the best and largest collection of potted plants, a three-dollar tray as first prize for best embroidered sheet and pillow-cover, and a three-dollar tray as first prize for the lady making the largest number of entries in seven special classes.

The cult of the kewpie doll apparently never grows less. Big and little people throng to the booths where these gaily-painted ladies stand in negligent attire of red or purple or yellow feathers, braving the elements with placid smiles and wonderfully-marcelled heads. The crowd was trying its luck for kewpies at a dozen or more stands. There was a weighing machine and some "kill the cat" booths, one stand where housewives clustered about a gaudy aluminum prize display, a gypsy palmist had a select clientele, and the "hot dog" man with his wares "fried in butter" was doing a brisk trade. The ice cream cone gentleman cried his wares in vain. Hot meals were served by the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian Church.

An enterprising dealer in steel shingles explained the nature of his wares, outvoiced by the creator and vendor of "Creola," that shouted antidote to the surgeon's knife. There were cars and buggies under the care of W. G. Rowland of Millbrook and A. Tinney of Cavan, and the Ford agency of Peterborough had a display of cars and a tractor. On the precarious grandstand, slowly aging, the brave bandsmen from Bethany played valiantly, while the crowd listened from the safer vantagepoint of the solid ground below.

The Grafton Company of Peterborough had their usual bright stand with flags flyig above, and a display of everything up to date in men's and boys' apparel.

There were three racing events yesterday—a 2.30 trot, a free-for-all and a named race. In the 2.30 race Doris Patch, owned by R. Langstaffe of Garden Hill, took first money, with Thora Patch, owned by S. McMillan of Campbellcroft, and Furioso, owned by Bert Tinney of Cobourg, coming second and third, respectively.

Two horses, owned by Mr. Tinney, came first and third in the free-for-all; Liberty Patch getting first money, Lady Way third. Bobs, owned by Ed. Jones of Peterborough, came second.

In the named race F. L. Robinson's Alta Dewey came first and Ed. Jones' Herman W. second, Queen Sable, owned by J. Noden of Orono, came third.

The only casualty reported during the races was the temporary parting of a wheel from Jones' sulky in the third heat of the named race. Judges were: J. McMillan of Cobourg and Joseph Hickson of Janetville. Starter; James Baggs of Lindsay.

A special "movie" presentation and a dance concluded the 1923 Fair last evening.

A feature of the Millbrook Fair for many years has been the active interest displayed on the Board of Directors by many of the original boosters. The list of honorary directors includes the name of George Berry, the only surviving member of the band of eight charter members who organized the Exhibition in 1862, and John Tate, active since 1890, is also included in this list. On the Board of Directors there are included the names of W. T. Donaldson, who came on in 1880; W. H. Lough, 1885; T. A. Kelly, 1895; J. L. Fair, now of Peterborough, 1900, and J. W. Hamilton, 1910.

Officers for this year are: L. W. Smith, President; H. A. Fallis, Vice-President; H. Tate, 2nd Vice-President, and J. N. McGill, Secretary-Treasurer.

FELL 2,000 FEET SUED FOR LIVING

Plane Lit in Back Yard and Smashed Garbage Can.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—Ed Ballough saved his life and smashed a garbage can when his plane lit upside down in a 2,000-foot drop through the atmosphere onto somebody else's back yard.

Now he's being sued for living, in a test case which will decide the aerial rights of stranded aviators who find it necessary to trespass the free ozone above land claimed by another.

Ballough's steering handle dropped out from under him as he was making one of the niftiest loops on record so far above terra firma that Robert Johnson's house and garbage can below him weren't even on the landscape.

Then all at once it happened and Ed found himself astride the obstreperous flying critters' rear end, making frantic efforts to guide it safely down.

When he unlocked himself from the daze which seized him following the first terrific crash and still feeling "kind of goofy," some one came up behind him and said: "See here, young fellow, who's going to pay for this garbage can and busted clothesprole?"

Thereupon the suit followed and is now before Judge W. J. Boerner, who must decide whether the air above a person's property belongs to him or not.

"But the law wouldn't have had a chance had I been killed," says Ballough. "I'm really being sued for living."

The plucky aviator is a test pilot for the Curtiss North-West Airplane Company.

TUBERCULOSIS TAKING AN INCREASING TOLL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (United Press).—Modern women are surrendering in increasing numbers to the deadly white plague, tuberculosis, because of their more active participation in life, according to the United States Public Health service.

Heretofore, women have been less liable to the disease than men because of their more sheltered and less intense mode of living. The entry of women into business and other careers, however, has virtually destroyed the disparity between the male and female consumption death rate.

About one-third of all deaths between 20 and 40 are due to tuberculosis, chiefly the pulmonory variety, health service records show. The reason for this is explained by Dr. F. C. Smith, assistant surgeon of the service.

"This period is the age of greatest stress, the time of extreme endeavor," he says. 'Between 20 and 40 ardent desires intense ambitions, passions, both good and evil, drive the human machine relentlessly.

"Pride, instinct and vanity, the desire to excel, to marry well, to be admired, all conspire to stimulate activity. The ambition to make money, obtain place and secure power leads to self-denial and to immoderate exertions.

"Whether a man's capital is brain or brawn, whether he has mental force or physical strength to invest, the mid-period or life finds him spending lavishly of the best he has. Whether he succeeds or fails, his expenditures are limited only by his physical resources.

"With women no less than with men is this a critical period and it will not be strange if, owing to more active participation in life's struggle, the difference in the mortality rate from tuberculosis, which is now in favor of the female, should shortly disappear."

TRADE CONGRESS CONVENTION POSTPONED

NEW YORK (United Press).—Announcement is made that the Southern Trade Congress Convention, which was to have been held in New York City early in October, has been postponed until May 24, 25 and 25, because of the serious illness of Mayor John F. Hylan, honorary chairman of the New York convention committee, and requests from Southern business men.

The Mysterious Letter

THAT PUT MORE APPETIZING FOODS ON 2,000,000 TABLES

ONE morning some years ago the postman brought us a puzzling letter. It came from a scientist in Warrington, England, who said, in effect: "I have a method in which you will be interested." That was all—he gave no real clue to his meaning. However, we replied: "If you are ever in the United States come to see us."

Some months later he did come and explained the idea whose development by us was to effect sweeping changes in cooking methods. We employed him and through several long years we perfected, by more than 1000 experiments, the method which gave to the world a new, remarkable cooking ingredient.

This ingredient was a rich, creamy shortening made from the pure sweet oils of growing plants. Here, for the first time, was a single shortening which not only filled every shortening need—every cake making, baking and frying purpose, but actually improved the cooking results.

New delicate flavors from food

Experienced cooks welcomed Crisco as a new aid to their skill because it instantly revealed new delights in food flavors. They discovered that with Crisco the fine, natural flavors of foods asserted themselves, undisguised, as formerly, by the flavor of the shortening.

For you, as for a multitude of other women, Crisco deep frying will retain all the delicate, natural flavors just as if these flavors were imprisoned in air tight cases. Crisco puts such a quick brown seal on fried foods that the flavors can't get out and neither can the Crisco soak in.

To your muffins, to your biscuits and other hot breads, Crisco will lend the same delicious flavors achieved by many of our most noted cooks—the rich, natural flavors of the ingredients.

Friends by the million and what they say

To keep sympathetically in touch with home cooking we often send out women who chat with housekeepers about culinary problems. Among the most thoughtful housekeepers these investigators find an almost universal preference for Crisco. Some of the following varied and interesting reasons for this preference may be new to you:

"Because it is a pure, wholesome, vegetable shortening, not an animal fat," say many women.

"Because it stays sweet and fresh indefinitely; need not be kept in the ice-box," say others.

"I prefer Crisco because, after straining, you can use it again and again. Why, you can fry onions, then fish and then potatoes in Crisco and the potatoes will not even hint of the onions or fish," is one comment often heard.

Made in Hamilton. Sold throughout Canada

Without a doubt you can achieve in your own home the same delicious cooking results that husbands and children are enjoying in 2,000,000 other homes. Ask your grocer for a tin of Crisco today; try it in the recipe given below, or use it in your own favorite recipes without any bothersome change of method.

Chocolate Layer Cake

The above menu for a buffet supper was sent to us by Mrs. L. R., a young hostess who entertains charmingly. Mrs. R's recipe for chocolate layer cake is given below:

Mrs. R's CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE

1 cup sugar	½ teaspoonful vanilla
½ cup Crisco	2 cups flour
2 eggs	2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoonful salt

Cream the Crisco, then add the sugar and cream again. Add the eggs, well beaten, then the milk slowly, stirring all the time. Add the vanilla.

Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder. Add to the mixture, stir until smooth and bake in two layers about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

FILLING for Chocolate Layer Cake

½ lb. Baker's Chocolate	1½ cups hot water
1 cup sugar	2 small rounded tablespoonfuls corn starch
1 piece of Crisco about the size of an egg	½ cup milk
	1 teaspoonful vanilla

Put the Chocolate in double boiler and cook until melted, then add the sugar, Crisco and water. Cook until thoroughly blended. Mix the corn starch and milk together and add to the hot mixture beating all the time. Cook until thick, add vanilla, then spread on cake, while both are warm. This filling will not soak into the cake or become hard or stiff.

For easy digestion, say doctors, a fat should have a melting point near body temperature of 98⅗ degrees. This pure vegetable shortening melts at 97 degrees—even below body temperature. Yes, it is very digestible.

Avoid Smoke and Unpleasant Odor

Fry with this fat and keep your home fresh and free from unpleasant odors that detract from the charm of hospitality. Tests made by the Domestic Science Department of a university showed that this fat could be heated to 446 degrees without smoking while the most commonly used animal fat smoked at 374 degrees.

Financiers Are Showing Sudden Confidence in Conditions In England

MARKETS IMPROVE

LONDON, Oct. 6. — (Canadian Press.) —Despite the black clouds hovering over the continent there is a new feeling of optimism in the city of London. The political situation outwardly remains as it has been for some weeks, nevertheless, financiers are showing sudden confidence in a satisfactory settlement of International difficulties.

What the ground is for this belief has not leaked out, but French, France and French bonds are covering and there is a more cheerful feeling on the stock exchange than for a long time.

ONTARIO COURTS SCENE OF BATTLE

Government Is Opposed to Any More Betting Tracks

TORONTO, Oct. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Action that may presage a legal battle in the courts over the report of the London Jockey Club to conduct race meetings at Niagara Falls was taken by the Provincial Government yesterday, when Attorney General Nickle, upon Cabinet Council's recommendation, wrote a letter to J. L. Vanstone, secretary of the London Club, notifying him that efforts to conduct betting operations at Niagara track would be followed by action on the part of the Provincial police. The Government is opposed for reasons that must be obvious," stated Attorney General yesterday, "to any more race tracks where betting operations are carried on being operated in the Province of Ontario."

STARVING TO DEATH ON LABRADOR COAST

QUEBEC, Oct. 6 — (Canadian Press).—"We are starving to death. Send us help in God's Holy Name," is tragic heartrending and pathetic appeal that has just been received from residents of Old Fort Bay, Labrador. Nearly 700 miles from this port on north shore. Letter, addressed to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries has been received at Department here and forwarded to Ottawa, duplicate copy having been sent to this office.

Shaft at Pawnee Rock Marks Pioneer's Route.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct 6.— (Associated Press).—In their campaign to place permanent markers along the routes of the pioneer wagon trains through Kansas, the women's organizations of Kansas selected as the site for the most elaborate monument of all, the historic Pawnee Rock. It was here, historians declare, that the most bloody battles with Indians occurred in the old days of the Santa Fe Trail, which passes within a quarter of a mile of the rocky eminence.

On the crest of the outcropping of reddish, volcanic rock which served as a natural look-out for the Pawnee Indians in their last stand against the whites' invasion, a granite shaft, 40 feet in height, has been erected. In bold lettering at the base are the words "Pawnee Rock" and just above is an immense buffalo head, engraved in relief on the shaft, and the inscription:

"In honor of the brave men and women who passing over the Old Santa Fe Trail endured the hardships of frontier life and blazed the path of civilization for prosperity."

It was through the efforts of women's organizations that a tract of about five acres was donated to the state as a park by Benjamin P. Unruh, in 1908. Year by year these organizations have improved the site with a granite gateway and wall, an observation tower, the mounting of two pieces of heavy field artillery and a flag pole, and finally the granite shaft.

Through the efforts of these organizations scores of granite markers have been placed along the original routes of the Santa Fe, the Oregon and other historic trails in this state.

AUTUMN.

Now, all the verdant glories, of
Summer's prime are o'er,
And o'er the land, with lavish hand,
fair Autumn spreads her store;
Rich stores of harvest plenty, right royally she yields
Gleanings of fruitful vineyards, and growth of fertile fields.

'Tis true, she leaves our grassy lawns of flowers and foliage bare,
Of still more precious gifts, she gives a great and goodly share.
For all our needs she freely gives,
ample, abundance, meet,
Of fleecy flocks and lowing herds,
milk honey corn and wheat.

Just a touch by Nature's artist, on the maples, and behold,
They are painted in gay colors, of crimson, russet, gold,
Seems a pensive silence brooding,
o'er the misty amber hills,
A deep, sweet, holy silence that the soul with reverence thrills.

Aye, at sight of Autumn's glories the rapt soul seems to grow
Nearer to its Maker's image, set in Eden long ago,
Dreamy, hazy days of Autumn, how your evanescent spell, Resurrects a thousand memories, in the bosom's core to swell.

The golden moon is climbing up the pathway of the sky,
Through star-decked fields of azure,
to its shining goal on high,
Thence smiling down beningly, on the soul entrancing sight
Of the world asleep, enfolded, in moonbeam's silvery light.

Soon will sink these charms of Autumn, on Nature's kindly breast,
Passing on, serenely, gladly, to chill
Winter's solemn rest;
So may life's night merge gently
into Canaan's cloudless day,
And thus our waning Autumn end in Heaven's sunny May.

HEAVINESS IN STOCK MARKET

Rails Show Some Pep Towards Close of Session.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(Canadian Press)—Heaviness in the main body of the Industrials at the week's close was counter balanced by pronounced strength in the rails and by buoyancy in a number of Industrial specialties C and O sharp advance on the prospect of an increase in the current four per cent. dividend to a six per cent. basis was the outstanding feature of the carrier group special issues which furnished the speculative piece de resistance in the Industrial Class cast iron pipe and iron products. Jones Brothers Tea marred the performance, however by a further break as one of the outlook that the present $4 dividend would have to be cut in half, the carriers continued to gather confidence from Chesepeake and Ohios impressive action until an old fashioned rail market was in progress at the close. Pronounced strength developed in old line issues as Reading New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, the Erie, and Wabash the Industrials were featured by a rise in Kresge, which jumped 14 1-2 to 238 1-2 reflecting the 27.57 per cent. increase in sales for the first 9 months, the Mercantile Review reported an immediate need for the replenishment stocks in many lines and declared that a large business was being done in various field at prices above last year, this testimony to the healthy condition existing in the domestic business situation outweighed the continued uncertainty abroad and stocks showed a good tone in the early dealings to-day. The Rails moved ahead under the leadership of Chesepeak, and Ohio, which went into a new high on the current rally in response to reports of a forthcoming dividend increase.

Fractional gains were also scored by N.Y.C. B. and O. Southern Railway and other active carriers, the Industrials were steady.

Price movements were affected by strong cross currents in the first hour, heaviness among the Industrial leaders contrasted with the strength in the Rails while the buoyancy in one Industrial specialty cast iron pipe was off set by the weakeness in another Jones Tea. This latter stock broke to a new low for the year at 2 61-2 on reports that the $4 annual dividend was endangered by the current rate of earnings.

Cast Iron Pipes rise into new high ground for 1923 at 39 3-4 was accompanied by rumors of a dividend being declared on this issue sometime next year. This assumption seems far-fetched at the present time inasmuch as the 7 per cent now cumulative preferred is paying only five per cent annually. Durant Motors Big Drop

Much uneasiness is felt by stockholders of Durant Motors over the recent drop of that company's stock to a new low price of $27 a share, says Investors Guide.

Many of the thousands of stockholders who purchased their stock on the so-called Durant Plan of payment as low as $24 and as high as $60 per share, and those who bought the stock outright on the New York Curb Exchange, where it reached a high price of $84 a share, are questioning the cause of the decline and are anxious to obtain some knowledge as to the intrinsic value of their stock.

Many rumors have been afloat in the financial district concerning the affairs of W. C. Durant, but these rumors are not to be taken seriously, as they emanate from sources which are naturally antagonistic. However, the Investors' Guide believes that stockholders should not be kept in the dark and that some explanation is due them for the terrific depression in the market value of their securities. Coupled with this, rumors of the slowing down of manufacturing activities at the Durant plants of late and the absence of any financial statement since the close of last year have engendered additional uneasiness on the part of Durant stockholders.

In an effort to determine whether anything affecting the Durant Companies adversely has occurred within the first nine months of this year, which would in any way furnish a fundamental reason for the extensive selling of Durant Motors stock and the consequent sharp decline in its price, the Investors' Guide has made an investigation of these companies' affairs, insofar as they are ascertainable.

Production Curtailed.

The production at the Durant plants operated by Durant Motors, has kept up fairly well until the current month when inventory taking was necessary and efforts were made to limit production in order to market all the unsold 1923 model cars in dealers' hands.

According to Durant Companies' own figures, their production up to August 31, reached a total of 202,189 motor vehicles. Of this amount over one half, or 116,584, were Star cars; 82,816, Durant cars; 1,254, Mason Road King Trucks; 1,137, Flint cars, and 398, Locomobile cars. This production record covers a period of 23 months and reveals an average monthly output of 8,790 motor vehicles, although the average monthly production for the first eight months of this year has been almost twice that amount.

The curtailment of Durant Company production for September is computed to exceed 50 per cent. of the previous monthly average of 15,000 vehicles, but this, as explained above, is due to giving dealers an opportunity to get rid of their old models and clear the decks for the 1924 models, the sales campaign for which is now about to open.

Success Is Due to W. C. Durant Personally.

Activities of Durant Motors have now assumed gigantic proportions and for their development the entire credit must be given to W. C. Durant. By January 1, it is expected that all of his plants will be operating to capacity and the production for 1924 should more than double that of the current year.

COULDN'T BELIEVE IT REALLY WAS AMERICA

CHARLOTTE BARD AND ONE OF HER PRIZE-WINNING CHICKENS.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Oct. 6.—Charlotte Bard had a Lilliputian fairyland opened to her here during the New York State Fair just ended.

All by herself she travelled from Otsego, N.Y., a small place down state, and for the first time saw:

An elevator.
A shower bath.
A movie show.
And an airplane.

"My goodness!" Charlotte, who's only 12, exclaimed when these twentieth century wonders caught her eye. "Is this really America? I've never seen such things before."

She intends to specialize in poultry raising and though not yet in her 'teens has started her own farm. Her exhibits here won many prizes.

SHOULD WOMEN KNOW?

Should women know that whole races now living have never seen a case of cancer, tuberculosis, goitre, heart, liver, or kidney disease and that science attributes their immunity to the foods they eat? Surely yes, since women know that these diseases are rampant among civilized races whose foods differ radically.

Races who know nothing of "denatured" white flour, polished rice, refined cereals, white sugar, etc., but who live upon nature's whole grains, milk, eggs, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits are free from the above diseases, but when they adopt our "denatured" foods, they soon die out with our dread diseases.

The greatest curse of civilized man is the refining of the "Protective Substances" out of his grain foods.

Roman Meal contains three whole grains. It is rich in the "Protective Substances" refined out of flour, other cereals, rice, sugar, etc. It keeps the blood non-acid, "cool," and invigorating, being the only alkaline cereal.

Blood should be kept naturally alkaline by using alkaline foods, but flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets are "Excess Acid" and largely consumed by civilized races. Might they not cause disease? Science says they do, because they are acid-formers and "Deficient" in "Protective growth and repair substances." Acid foods "heat the blood," alkaline foods "cool the blood." Roman Meal is alkaline enough to correct the acids of flour, other cereals, meats, and sweets. Use it as porridge, muffins, pancakes, johnny cake, etc., or mix with white flour in the proportion of 25% in all domestic baking. Roman Meal is sold by your grocer.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

MISTER GOBBLER'S LESSON

Very early in the morning Mister Gobbler opened his eyes.

The sun wasn't up—but it was coming, for long fingers of light were snatching away the night mists.

"Gobble, gobble, gobble" said Mister Gobbler, "this is going to be a grand day And I'm as hungry as a sword-swallower, whatever that is. But I saw it advertised on a fence near the road and the man looked awfully hungry. Gobble, gobble, gobble Get up, family Don't forget, the early bird gets the worm."

"Yes, but what does the early worm get?" piped up Lanky Legs, the little turkey boy, opening one eye and then shutting it again.

But like a shot he opened it again, and then the other, and he stared and stared and stared.

"What on earth are you looking at?" asked Mister Gobbler peevishly. "One would think you'd been brought up on a desert island instead of a respectable wood-pile beside the barnyard. What are you staring at?"

"I was thinking—" said Lanky Legs, blinking his eyes as hard as he could, but he didn't finish his sentence. "Mother Oh, mother," he called. "Wake up and look what's around Daddy's neck."

Missez Gobbler wakened with a start. She'd been dreaming something awful about an ax. She was glad to waken and find it was only a dream. "Wh—what is it? Why, are you awake so soon, Lanky. What's the matter? What were you calling me for?"

"Look at Daddy, Mother. Look and see what's around his neck."

Messez Gobbler looked. And she couldn't keep her face straight at what she saw. She sniggered, so she did. She sniggered out loud.

And that woke up all the other turkeys and after they had had one look, each one turned away his face and sniggered and sniggered.

Mister Gobbler swelled himself up so and got so red in the face, he looked as though he were going to burst.

"What's wrong with all of you?" he inquired haughtily. "What is it that is so amusing about me, I'd like to know."

"It's—it's—somebody has tied a bow of red ribbon around your neck," said missez Turkey.

"I never saw anything so funny"

"Take it off Take it off at once" gobbled Mister Gobbler. "Hurry, every one of you"

Each one took a turn tugging and pulling, but the bow was on to stay.

"I'm mortified to death" declared the poor fellow. "I won't go a place. I'll stay right at home until this horrid thing comes off."

And so he did. And all the turkeys stayed, for he was the leader, and where he went, they followed.

So Farmer Smith's buckwheat was saved, and Nancy and Nick and Mister Dodger had many a good laugh at Mister Gobbler's plight.

But it did him good and taught him a lesson.

ICE CREAM INDUSTRY FLOURISHES IN AMERICA

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(Associated Press).—While it is generally accepted that ice cream was first made in Italy, perhaps at about the time America was discovered, it was left to the United States to develop the industry on a great scale, Professor Martin Mortensen, head of the department of dairying in the Iowa State College, said today before the World's Dairy Congress.

It is thought that ice cream was introduced into France about 1550, and the earliest printed record of it in England was found in a housekeeping magazine published in 1786. But it was not until 1851 that the first wholesale ice cream business was started by Jacob Russell in Baltimore.

The ice cream business in the United States increased from 80,000,000 gallons in 1909 to 263,529,000 gallons in 1912. The ice cream cone, invented in 1904, was a great factor in making ice cream popular.

Prof. Mortensen attributed the great success of the industry to the sound business principles employed by the men who entered it. He said the rapid development of machinery, trade journals and instruction in colleges in the art of ice cream making had one much to increase the business.

FOX STORY OF ABSORBING INTEREST

Romance shakes hands with industry in the picturesque business of black fox ranching as carried out within a few miles of Peterboro near Chemong Lake. To those who have lived in the centre of it and followed its progress from the beginning the raising of foxes is perhaps a commercial proposition pure and simple, but to the student of wild life, the humanitarian and the conservationist the ranch provides a story of absorbing interest.

About 1870, legend says, one "Colonel Blackfox" saw the possibilities in breeding black foxes, but his ideas were not put to a practical test. A few years later, however, a man named Lamb dug a couple of black foxes from their den in Prince Edward Island, and these were transferred from owner to owner several times without successful breeding until they came into the hands of a man who placed the foxes in wire pens in the woods and succeeded in raising a litter of silver foxes.

T. L. Burrowman of Wyoming is called the father of the Ontario fur ranching business. He kept foxes in captivity 22 years but did not successfully raise the young to maturity until 15 years ago, because prior to that time he kept more than one pair in a single pen. That was the beginning of silver fox ranching as now carried out in this district under the most advanced ideas of farming.

What is the silver fox? Simply a red fox of another color. In the subtle economy of nature strange tricks are played. Nature has her fundamental laws, fixed and unchangeable, but she has also her variations, her freaks, her caprices. Heredity and environment are their major parts, but every now and then some phenomenon appears that mystifies the biologist, the Silver Fox for example. The true fox makes his home on the steppes of Northern Asia and amid the snow and ice of North America. His beautiful coat is dull, occasionally a combination of red and black appears and the wearer is known as a cross fox; and as an extreme variation appears the all black fox, or the black fox with silver markings known as the silver fox. Left to nature the valuable black fox would quickly be lost to the world through the wearer mating with the less rare red fox, the progeny naturally following the line of least resistance in reverting to the red tinge.

Because of its ubiquitous character and its fondness for living near human habitations the silver fox has been subjected to more domesticating experiments than any other valuable fur bearer. The problem before the breeders is that of reversing the dominant and recessive color tendencies which were natural in this species, and of domesticating the animal to the point of steady, certain production in captivity. This has, to a certain and large extent been done, and the industry is now on a firm basis.

When the early prices exchanged in the business are considered it is easy to understand how the staid farmers of Prince Edward Island became enamoured of a project which had in it at that time so much of speculation. The first pelt sold from an animal born and raised in captivity brought $1,800, and the first fox born and nurtured on a ranch was sold for $1,500. The first corporation formed for the purpose of fox ranching purchased breeders at from $4,000 to $6,000 a pair. So swiftly, indeed, did the business spread that when old stock of proved fecundity were sold as breeders in 1914 they brought from $25,000 to $35,000 a pair. One farm of 40 acres, consisting of land so poor that farming could not be attempted on it, grew in seven years over $300,000 worth of foxes. The money invested in this business in Canada is estimated at $2,000,000.

By 1913 the fox ranching business had so grown that an Association was formed to conserve the interests of the breeders and to protect purchasers. Through the efforts of this Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' Association it is impossible to secure registration for foxes unless they come up to a very high standard. No stock of unregistered or inferior grade may be kept in the same ranch with registered stock.

In addition to this protection the foxes are under very strict governmental supervision through the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, and are judged by their individual quality, their pedigree and the conditions under which they are ranched.

In order to conform to the requirements of these two bodies, the forty pairs of foxes recently installed on the Patte and Wolff ranch at Chemong were rigorously inspected prior to their shipment from Prince Edward Island. The inspectors were engaged elsewhere when called upon and the foxes were detained some weeks awaiting their attention.

On arrival by express in specially made crates of wire and wood the foxes were placed in forty of the pens comprising the layout of the ranch. The two and two of animals that entered the ark were not more carefully chosen and mated than are these beautiful foxes. Each pair is placed in an individual pen 20 feet by 30 feet, great care being taken in mating to prevent inbreeding. The foxes were selected by the manager of the ranch, and have some of the best known blood lines from foundation stock. They include several pairs of proven breeders, and also numbers of this year's pups valued at $1,000 a pair.

The fox is monogamous in nature, and if quartered in one pen in large numbers the young are killed. In captivity they are usually paired for life, and mate before a year old. Mating season is a particularly anxious period for the keepers, since the wild nature of the foxes renders them exceedingly sensitive to strange sights, noises and smells. From January 1 to June 30 all domestic animals are kept at a distance from even the outer fence, and strangers are strictly prohibited approach to the premises. Even the keeper must move cautiously and quietly about the pens while feeding, since the animals climb the fences when badly frightened and are liable to injury by falling.

Matings are selected on the records of the animals as shown by the official genealogical records going back four generations in the animals' ancestry, and most ranches periodically clear their stock to prevent inbreeding.

The ranch itself is a marvel to those who have never before come in contact with the industry. On an enclosure covering 3½ acres of densely wooded land have been erected 44 pens, each 20 feet by 30 feet, in the construction of which 22,000 running feet of wire from 1½ to 5 feet in width were used. The pens are divided by double wire walls, for it is a peculiarity of the race that two foxes may live harmoniously in one pen and just as soon as they are separated by a wire partition they become unfriendly and snap and bite at each other. The nine foot high wire is of 2½ inch mesh at the top and 2 inch at the bottom, and in order to be absolutely certain that the foxes will not burrow out the wire is buried 3 feet deep in the ground. This necessitated the digging of 3,200 running feet of trench. Over 650 cedar posts 13 feet long were used in the construction of pens and fences.

In the centre of each pen is a modern kennel. In the early days of fox farming some of the failures were attributed to insufficiently protected quarters for the young. Improvised log burrows were buried in the ground and were found inadequate since they did not provide sufficient warmth for the young foxes and were inaccessible for the purpose of cleansing and observation. Up-to-date kennels on the Chemong ranch consist of a compartment within a compartment. The large outer house allows a man to stand upright, and is well ventilated from the top. In one side is a small compartment divided in two, one part of which is intended for the young litter.

The large kennel is double sheeted, and this small compartment is also double sheeted with an air space and a packing of low thermal conductivity. Every precaution is taken to retain the warmth of the animals' bodies. Corners are mitred and every chink is carefully closed. All parts that the foxes rub against are painstakingly rounded and sandpapered to a smooth finish to prevent injury to the fur.

The kennel is entered by way of a chute, and in this construction of even this detail great care must be taken as the foxes rush through it quickly when playing and injury to the precious fur would follow a careless splinter or rough edge.

Absolute cleanliness is an essential, this alone ensuring the best growth of the animals which naturally range over a wide area.

So far as possible the wild nature of the ground is retained, trees and rocks being left in their places. This bush cover is especially valuable for nervous foxes to hide in and to provide shade for the fur. Foxes will also sleep contentedly all day under a bush, where it is more healthful than in a nest or burrow. The green-stained kennels in their woodland setting with the lithe, graceful black foxes pacing between, form a very attractive picture.

Surrounding all the pens is a guard fence, composed of wood to a height of nine feet and with an overhanging wire to prevent the foxes making their escape when drifted snow offers a stepping-off place. A wire mat prevents the animals digging their way out. Special pens, such as dog pens, used when it is necessary to segregate the vixens, and pelting runs with large areas where foxes run free while their pelts are preparing, are provided.

A large storehouse is a necessity in view of the varied diet needed for successful fox ranching. This store at Chemong is complete with ice house, meat refrigerator, cooker, and gasoline pump. The food of foxes in the wild state does not consist wholly of flesh as many suppose, for to a certain extent the fox is omnivorous, and will eat grass and berries. In some provinces oily salmon are especially advised to impart sheen to the pelts, while in Ontario rabbits and groundhogs are the tid bits provided. The best in the house is none too good for the valuable foxes, and the old rancher will feed his foxes everything he would eat himself, with such additions as grass, minnows, mice, crickets and berries. Foxes are dainty feeders, and do not, like dogs, devour their food greedily.

When a fox weighs 12 pounds its average daily diet consists of 6½ ounces fat meat; 1 1-3 ounces fox biscuits, and 1-3 pint of milk, carefully computed to contain 532 calories. Alternate diets include lean meat, smelts, herring, liver, yeast bread, suet, rice, vegetables, rolled oats, cod liver oil, apples and eggs.

At birth the average pup weighs 2 ounces, and at the end of four weeks it should weigh one and a half pounds. During this time the mother fox receives an additional diet consisting of egg and porridge. At two months the pup is separated from its mother and is then fed daily 3-8 pint of milk, 1 ounce cooked cereal, 1 ounce bread, 1 ounce ground meat and ½ egg. This diet is gradually increased. In order to supply the necessary eggs a fowl run will be a part of the ranch equipment.

Young foxes are blind for fourteen to eighteen days and do not leave the nest, but when about four weeks old they venture out into the pen, often in answer to the decoy call of the keeper. Foxes have one litter a year, consisting of from one to nine pups. Pelts become prime in November, but are heavier in December. Twenty months is said to be the proper age for killing for pelts.

Foxes, like other wild animals kept in captivity, are particularly susceptible to disease, and the value of the black foxes makes it necessary to guard their health in every possible way. A governmental study of the diseases of foxes resulted in the issue of a pamphlet treating the subject quite as fully as the diseases of dairy cattle are discussed in other handbooks devoted to the subject. This indicates the importance of the industry.

The economical aspect of Silver Fox ranching is important to Canada. Furbearing animals have decreased in numbers with the advancing lines of civilization, and some classes have already become almost extinct. The ranching of black foxes therefore is a means to offset the shrinkage, and is an asset to the country's wealth. Fox ranches too use a great deal of waste material from farms, and the demand for suitable locations has increased the value of the hitherto useless wooded lot. In 1920 the active revenue from fox ranches, including the sale of pelts and live animals, was $1,123,263. By 1922 this had increased to $1,500,000.

Intricate records, careful feeding and constant attendance are some of the things which are essential to successful silver fox ranching. For this reason only men with years of experience are employed in charge of a farm. The Chemong ranch, built by an expert brought specially from Prince Edward Island for the purpose, is now managed by a man who had long experience in the same Province, and the foundation stock was personally selected by John Patte who is thoroughly versed in the history and operation of fox raising. Pages upon pages of records are available showing the aristocratic ancestry of every fox.

The finest foxes in captivity at the present time are admittedly those descended from foxes captures in Prince Edward Island. The Prince Edward Island fox, because it has been cut off from the mainland, is a distinct sub species or geographical race.

Other fur-bearing animals have been bred in captivity, such as mink, marten, fisher, raccoon, Russian sable and beaver, but these have not yet proved profitable. Muskrat farming on an extensive scale will be carried on as an extension of the Chemong Black Fox Ranch. A few are now engaged in raising muskrats, but the business is still in its pioneer days. Those who operate muskrat farms are without the mass of literature available on fox farming. Among the publications on the breeding of the silver fox is a new Canadian magazine which made its first appearance in September. There are several United States magazines devoted solely to the business.

Silver fox ranching is now on a par with other businesses in Canada, attracting large numbers of business men, former trappers, and men from every station in life, and it gives every indication of continued progress, but it will always remain the most picturesque of businesses. There is something elemental in the reclaiming of animals from the wild and watching them develop and multiply, something that only touches those who come in actual contact with the animals and cannot be imagined by the man who looks on the industry as merely a good paying proposition.

That the fur farming business is on solid ground is shown by the character of those who comprise the Patte and Wolff Company. Four years ago Mr. John Patte started the business by buying one pair of foxes in Summerside, Prince Edward Island. He later interested Harry Wolff, President of the Harry E. Wolff Publishing Company of New York, and Mrs. C. W. Desbacker of Buffalo. Thomas Barrie, president of Barrie's Limited, owning and controlling several fur stores throughout the dominion, is vice-president of the Company, and G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, is a Director. Mr. Patte is secretary-treasurer and manager

RICH SPOILS IN DAVY JONES' HOME

(By LYLE C. WILSON)

LONDON, Oct. 6 (United Press).—Billions of dollars in gold and silver ingots and heaps of precious gems stud the sea bottoms of the world.

This stupendous treasure comprises a haphazard girdle for Old Mother Earth that the heaped jewels of the queens and courtesies of the world cannot match.

"Beyond the dreams of avarice" is a realm often referred to, but infrequently meant in a literal sense. In this case it fits.

No man could sanely covet the wealth which storm and war and man's own greed have scattered in the sea bottom locker of that mythical miser, Davy Jones.

The value of the hoard has been variously estimated as ten, fifty and one hundred billions of dollars. There is little question but that the figure is in the billions, although statisticians and marine salvaging experts can never agree on the exact multiple to be employed.

In 1912 the world was stunned to learn of the loss of the giant White Star liner, Titanic. When she went down on April 15 she carried with her 1,517 passengers and crew. This tremendous loss of life, before the war, and its giant death lists have made newspaper readers callous to death in mere figures, was a bitter shock.

The fact that the Titanic carried vast sums in bullion and minted gold was generally overlooked. The gold is still there on the slimy floor of the North Atlantic. Sea water does not harm the precious yellow metal. The outer surface tarnishes and there chemical action ceases. The treasure remains for a year or forever.

The Cunard steamer Lusitania and the White Star liner Laurentic, torpedoed during the war, swelled the sea floor hoard.

When the Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine off Old Head of Kinsale on Friday, May 7, 1915, with the loss of 1,198 lives, including 123 American citizens, the implied threat of imminent war prevented a realization of her tremendous cargo of gold and silver coin. Within her rusting hull there is the ransom of a dozen kings.

The Laurentic was carrying gold bars worth $30,000,000 consigned to American bankers as well as $5,000,000 in silver shillings, when a German submarine succeeded in sinking her off the Donegal coast in 1917.

These are but three treasure-laden vessels sunk within a period of five years. They alone contain millions of dollars.

Since man began to trust gold and precious gems to the carriage of ships the elements have taken a regular and tremendous toll of this sea-going wealth. Almost since the dawn of history this unwilling contribution of man to the elements has continued.

Wars, storms and man's own greed have added to the swag.

Whenever men go to war, sink ships and generally conduct themselves as degenerated descendants of the primeval monkey, the sea floor hoard is increased.

The sum total of wealth thus removed from circulation and jumbled below the waves is beyond computation.

Marine engineers believe they have solved the problem of recovering much of it.

SAY BANKERS' ASSN. MORALLY OBLIGATED

Should Assure the Home Bank Depositors of 100 Per Cent. on Dollar.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Among the variety of views presented at a meeting of delegates of depositors of the Home Bank in the Carls Rite Hotel yesterday, it was more or less unanimously contended that the Bankers' Association was morally obligated to see to it that the Home Bank depositors secured one hundred cents for every dollar deposited.

It was held that the action of the Canadian Bankers' Association in blocking all attempts to institute the system of Government inspection of banks was primarily responsible for the failure of the Home Bank. Had the affairs of that bank, even ten years ago, been subjected to even a most cursory examination, such conditions would have been revealed, that prompt action would have been instituted and the recent failure of the bank averted, it was declared.

Resolutions along this line were passed.

The delegates represented the depositors of all but one of the sixty branches of the bank.

Fielding Sympathetic.

Early last night Mr. Fielding discussed the Home Bank situation with a committee of 15 selected at the Carls Rite meeting yesterday evening to act on behalf of the depositors at 60 branches throughout the Dominion. Following a two-minute conference at the King Edward Hotel, the committee reported that they had met with a cordial reception and that the Finance Minister had promised "sympathetic consideration" of their proposals.

"SWATTING THE FLY" IN CHINA

The recent health drive and cleanup propaganda in China has resulted in enough concrete evidence of interest on the part of the population to encourage further efforts. Several of the schools organized health and "kill the fly" campaigns. It is becoming quite common to see fruit stands and food shops using food screens to keep off the flies, and it is noticeable that the city authorities are taking greater care in removing filth. The Dragon Boat Festival held in Hangchow was used as the occasion for demonstration of health and sanitation measures.

General Chuko Liang, a Chinese who died early in the third century, has been credited with the invention of the self-loading, repeating crossbow, but early records show that these same instruments of warfare are referred to in Chinese annals several centuries B. Their national weapon is still the crossbow, and they have influenced Chinese culture to a certain degree since oldest times.

WEAK GERMANY CAN'T PAY! STRONG GERMANY WON'T PAY

France Still Has Her Major Problem of Reparations to Solve — Must Protect Her Own Rights.

(By J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. (United Press) —Surrender by Germany in the Ruhr and the cessation of passive resistance by the Ruhr miners will not solve the grave problem making the Germans pay the war indemnity.

France will have to engage in still further antagonisms against Germany before normal relations in Europe are restored.

The Ruhr resistance has marked only one phase of France's problem. The major fact of the reparations crisis, from France's standpoint, is that a weak Germany can't pay and a strong Germany won't pay.

France has got to solve the difficulty of allowing Germany to become strong once more and at the same time being in a position to make a strong Germany pay. That means the reparations problem for France is now exclusively a problem of guarantees.

There is no possible room for doubt but that the Germans will refuse to pay the war indemnity at any time they feel themselves in a position to do so without peril to themselves. They might even take a perilous chance if it presented itself.

Want Germany Crushed

The French government realizes this fact fully. The French people insist that Germany pay her reparations assessment so that France will not have to be taxed for reconstruction. There is a group of French industrialists and imperialists who would be willing to forego the indemnity, if Germany could be crushed.

But that would mean making the French people pay, and would arouse their resentment, even though France were to expand territorially and a few French industrial magnates were to reap fortunes. Furthermore, it would probably be impossible to crush the 65 million Germans permanently.

The French government, therefore, is not in a position to carry out, except for a limited time, the policy of keeping Germany weak. There will eventually be a strong Germany, and a strong Germany will never pay a penny more of the indemnity than can be wrung from the Berlin government.

By forcing the German miners to work in the Ruhr, France will not find security for herself. The more the Germans work, the stronger Germany will be and the nearer will come the time when Berlin may call the indemnity terms a scrap of paper. France will lose the indemnity in the end unless guarantees of payment are adequate, and no guarantees will ever be adequate that are not backed purely and simply by physical force.

French Army Necessary

Occupation of German territory until terms of so abject a surrender while a itself be necessary. But there must be a French army always ready for occupation and Germany must continue to be kept unarmed and in no way prepared for military rebuttal. Some small occupational units France will have to keep within the German territory as a constant warning to the people.

The French government, too, will have to hold over the heads of the Germans the menace of another Ruhr conquest and the no less effective threat of breaking up Germany into individual independent states. Otherwise, the Germans will soon forget the Ruhr lesson and will be evading payments again.

No nation, in Germany's condition, could be trusted to abide by written terms of so abject a surrender while a chance remained to repudiate the financial clauses. If France doesn't protect her own interests, no other country will do it for her.

HELP FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 15 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This kept me from my work (I help my parents on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day. Or at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I tried it for I feel like a different person now that I don't have these troubles." — ODELIA HOLMBERG, Box 93, Viking, Alberta.

Letters like this establish the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

Mr. Mann addressed the meeting and outlined its object, and especially the choir work. Dr. Blagrave also addressed the members in a few well-chosen words.

Mr. Medd acted as chairman, and Mr. Roberts as secretary pro tem for the election of officers. The results were as follows:

Hon. President—Dr. Blagrave.
President—Mr. H. W. Morphet.
Secretary—Miss R. Quartermaine.
Treasurer—Miss E. Wood.
Librarian—Mr. Roberts.
Choir Mother—Mrs. W. G. Howden.
Social Convenors—Mrs. Amys and Mr. Gray.

PLAN MONUMENT.

JANESVILLE, Ill., Oct. 6.—(Associated Press).—After years of neglect the graves of Thomas and Nancy Lincoln, father and stepmother of Abraham Lincoln, are to be given attention.

These unkept mounds, in a nearby desolate graveyard, are marked only by unchiseled stones made rough by tourists who have chipped souvenirs from them.

The Illinois district of the Lions International has undertaken to raise funds among its members to erect a fitting monument at the graves.

New Method of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach or the causing of wrinkles, and without the help of exercising, dieting, or absurd greases and salves, is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a case, which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.

Movie Making

(By DON RYAN)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Broadway, main artery for residents and tourists alike, is a gauge of the life that flows through Los Angeles. These days it's like a vegetable garden.

For instance, every shade of cabbage appears in the women's dresses. Tomato is a favorite color. Lemon is an emissary from the citrus kingdom. Heliotrope and orchid speak a word for the flowers.

But vegetable tones rule. The dark, ruddy complexion of the ripened beet, the dissonant emphasis of carrots, greens attuned to the dusty-dry of vegetable stems long standing in the field.

The vegetables crowd the sidewalk, ready to be shunted into the picture shows, soda fountains, department stores. Only an occasional man, like a black beetle among the pods, stalks through the press.

It was out at the United Studios. They were shooting stills for Donald Crisp's new picture, "Ponjola." The picture is about South Africa. The lot was cluttered with Englishmen.

"What's it all about?" asked a newspaper man.

"Crisp was a Boer War captain," explained the assistant director. "But there isn't a man in that bunch of extras below the rank of major. Oh, yes! Those two young fellows on the end are lieutenants. But they're of noble blood."

"You mean those extras are of the English nobility?"

"Sure. Every last man—except that old guy with whiskers. He's Kommandt H. DeRoy. He fought on the other side in the Boer War. General of the Free State army."

"Who's the first in line?"

"That's Major Charles Talbot, R. G.A., Earl of Glendora. Next guy, Lieutenant Colonel Fenwick Oliver, Indian army. And so on, down the line. All ruined by the war. All working as extras. Glad to get the seven-fifty a day."

There are more artists and would-be artists in southern California than any other spot this side of the Quartier Latin.

For example, the Pasadena Community Players. This volunteer group have been giving Los Angeles and environs European plays which never would have been presented as boxoffice attractions.

Recently the group put a fitting climax to the summer's efforts by picking up August Strindberg's "Lucky Pehr."

It was a happy choice. Strindberg gives us life in allopathic doses. Life as it is, propped on vain ambitions, gnawed by worms of disillusion.

The very imperfections of the production seemed to fit the picture. They typified the fragmentary, imperfect thing life is—even at its best. And the occasional flashes of real beauty and earnestness typified the great moments life holds—even at its worst.

CLOWN

Pete Conkin, veteran clown, is said to be the last surviving performer of the original P. T. Barnum circus. He has been clowning for 70 years. Started when he was 13.

Recently Pete washed off his grease paint and powder, and took the first vacation he ever had. His idea of an entertaining vacation was to mingle with and watch the crowds—his audience. An old animal trainer once told us that monkeys have more fun watching circus crowds than the crowds have watching the monkeys.

PLOT IS SEEN IN DOUBLE MYSTERY

Missing Six Months Search By Tireless Friends of No Avail.

By GEORGE BRITT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Six months and more have dragged by since the almost simultaneous disappearances of the Rev. Father John Vraniak of Virden, Ill., and of Lewis E. Larson of Chicago.

The search by tireless friends of the two men has followed virtually every conceivable theory, from suicide to abduction and murder. The result so far has been merely a deepening of the mystery.

Double Mystery.

"We should centre our inquiry upon why Larson and Father Vraniak happened to disappear so nearly together," urges Judge Joseph Burke of the Municipal Court of Chicago, a friend of the missing priest's brother, and himself actively associated in the search.

Larson was last seen on March 7 in Chicago, and Father Vraniak on March 5 in St. Louis. Whenever an unidentified body has been found in either vicinity since then, the first questions have been, "Is it Larson?" "Is it Father Vraniak?"

No Reason Found.

Larson was 48, a prosperous real estate agent and former secretary of the Chicago Board of Education. He had drawn $200 from a bank just before he disappeared. He was overworked perhaps, but appeared well and happy. Offers of a reward for finding him, unceasing police effort and prayers offered by the suburban Methodist Church at Wilmette, of which he was a member, have been alike unavailing.

Father Vraniak, 28, drove his car to St. Louis on a mission for his parish at Virden. The car was found on the roadside a few days later, but he himself has never been seen.

Plot Is Seen.

Were the men, strangers to each other, carried away by a single band of kidnappers? Was the motive simple robbery or personal malice? Or was it a morbid desire for psychological experiment or a flaming class hatred? Those are among the questions asked by the searchers.

"Neither had enemies in his own community that we can discover," says Judge Burke. "Each was respected and widely known. No motive for voluntary disappearance has been found. It seems most probable that some unforeseen evil overtook each. With that established, the disappearances appear as more than simple simultaneous occurrences."

HOW TO BE LOVEABLE

CHICAGO, (United Press) — Lump sugar has been used to sweeten the disposition of a balky horse. Confections will have the same effect on a balky sweetheart, according to Mrs. Jean Prescott Adams, nationally known food expert.

In a lecture before the Homemakers' Guild here, Mrs. Adams said: "Candy, cake and other foods containing a large percentage of carbon make people loveable."

"Prunes for pep" and "iron for beauty" ar proven formulae, according to the dietician.

Mrs. Adams also contends that proper food will keep grandpa so young that monkey gland operations will be a dead issue.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

ORGANIC DISEASES

Organic diseases charts compiled in the last five years show deaths from some form of heart disease increasing very rapidly.

Intemperate habits in our mode of living and eating, as well as our seeming inability to adapt ourselves to our swiftly moving American civilization are the causes.

Marked inroads are being made also by the so-called blood diseases, or those that affect the blood vessels and the normal blood supply.

Blood disease is a recognized medical question of some significance, as is the study of its causes and effects.

Are there medicines which are blood purifiers?

So much "blood purifier" has been taken during the past 50 years that one naturally would expect a great decrease, instead of an increase, in blood disease.

Properly speaking, there are no blood purifiers. The taking of boneset, wintergreen and pine buds may be all right for punishment or better taste, but not for purification of your blood.

Compounds, tonics, bitters and extracts, when they contain about 30 or 40 per cent. of alcohol or some other alcoholic stimulant, make the blood trip a little faster all right, but they do not purify it.

Right living, good plain common food, less tea and coffee, more milk and pure water will purify your blood stream. Combine these with good fresh air in your living rooms and plenty of out-door deep breathing, plus the right kind of exercises, and you will not have to worry about your depleted blood supply or how you are going to purify it in the spring time or fall.

SYMPTOMS OF ANAEMIA

An Inherited Tendency to Anaemia May Be Overcome.

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually and stealthily that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected much more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of diseases caused by thin blood. With pure air and wholesome food these blood-making pills afford the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, postpaid, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SINGING LAMP NOW TO SAVE THE MINERS

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 6 (United Press).—The "singing lamp" is the latest invention to aid miners to detect fire damp, which they fear more than any other hazard of their calling. Canary birds and animals sensitive to slight atmospheric changes have been long used for this purpose, but now a safety lamp has been invented that combines the necessary light for the under-ground workers and also give ample warning of the approach of the dreaded fire damp.

Fire damp leads to explosions; breathing it is dangerous and its approach is so insidious that the damage may be done before it is discovered by the men if they are not warned.

Safety lamps have been in use for many years, the Davis lamp, invention of a British engineer, being popular, and now another British engineer has improved the safety lamp by adding a peculiar frame like a bunch of tuning forks which is so sensitive that even 2 per cent. of fire damp in the air will cause them to vibrate and sing. As the percentage of fire damp increases the lamp sings more loudly, affording ample warning.

The device has been tried in some of the deepest anthracite mines in this section and practical mining engineers of long experience say it is the best warning ever devised.

BIAS FILLED CORSETS

IMAGINARY

Regarding that penniless doctor who died in California under the delusion that he was worth five million dollars: As far as he was concerned, the delusion was just as good as having the actual money, and maybe better.

When Ford, the world's richest man, banks a million he doesn't get half the thrill of the small boy finding a few pennies. Joy and sorrow are states of mind—largely imaginary. Unhappy the man without illusions. Nature is kind in not letting us know too much.

"ALFALFA BILL'S" GREAT DREAM IS NEAR REALIZATION

Murray to Lead Group of Farmers Into "Promised Land" — The Interior of Bolivia the Goal.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6 .—Three hundred families have enlisted in a peace army which William H. (Alfalfa Bill") Murray, former congressman of Oklahoma, will lead into the interior of Bolivia, South America, next May.

Others are expected to join the list before that day. By going together it will be possible to make the hegira at small expense, the modern Oklahoma Moses points out.

To become a member of the colony, one must pass a thorough test in knowledge of farming and stock raising and must prove he has sufficient capital to pay his part in the undertaking.

Then the future colonist must sign an ironclad contract to erect a home and till the soil and raise so many head of cattle before he obtains title to his land in the proposed colony.

Obtains Grant

Murray, for five years has passed more than half of his time in South America seeking the place in which to establish his colony. Finally he obtained from the Bolivian government a concession through which his colonists will be free from taxation and will be given special privileges or taking to that country pure bred stock and the best of grain seeds.

The proposed colony includes 197,000 acres in two tracts. His lands begin within 10 miles of the border between Bolivia and Argentina and about 12 miles from the Bolivian town and wireless station of Yacuiba, just north of the twenty-second parallel of south latitude and east of 64 degrees west. The elevation is 2553 feet and the land consists for the most part of level plains. The temperature is moderate the year round, the promoter says.

Socialism and communism will have no part in the movement. They are barred.

Known as "Sage"

"I hope to make it a colony of God-fearing Americans, who will prosper by thrift and hard work," Murray explains. "City men will not be permitted to go. We must have only those who know farming and stock raising."

Murray, in addition to being known as "Alfalfa Bill" because of his years of advocacy of the cause of farmers and ranchmen, also is known in his home town of Tishomingo, Okla., as the "sage of Tishomingo."

Murray was president of the convention which drew up the constitution of Oklahoma and was speaker of the House of Representatives of that state's first legislature. He became a representative in Congress in 1913.

The names of the prospective colonists have not been announced by Murray, but he says two of them are former state officials of Oklahoma.

CIGARETTE COMMENDED.

Most Suitable Form of Smoke, Says Medical Authority.

Commendation of the cigarette as the most suitable smoke was given recently by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, formerly Health Commissioner for the City of New-York, and now a United States Senator.

Dr. Copeland is a non-smoker, and he dealt with the question from the purely scientific standpoint.

Dr. Copeland says that the cigarette is the most suitable smoke, as the tobacco taken in that form is more perfectly consumed, and as the combustion is better, the nicotine is practically destroyed. "There can be no doubt," he said, "that smokers find solace and comfort in the moderate use of tobacco."

Dr. Copeland's statement confirmed the pronouncement made some years ago by the Lancet. As the result of a ninvestigation conducted by that eminent medical journal, the Lancet announced that the cigarette is the purest form in which tobacco can be smoked.

WHAT TO EAT TO PUT IRON IN YOUR BLOOD AND MAKE YOU STRONG

PHYSICIAN TELS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC. WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH ORGANIC IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

"At their own doors—in the very gardens of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonics and strength-builder known to medical science," said Dr. Emile Sauer, well known New England physician, when consulted recently.

Dr. Sauer further said:—"If your daily diet contains an abundant amount of iron you are giving your body the red blood food it craves. But if your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and easily upset. In such cases, what you need is iron—organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble and the moment organic iron is supplied it is often wonderful how quickly your multitude of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the ashes of strong acids on iron filings, while organic iron is a true red blood food, like the iron in your blood itself and like the iron in spinach lentils and apples. In fact if you will eat a pint or two of spinach, half a pint of lentils and three or four baked apples each day you will probably not need to take any other form of organic iron; but most people prefer to eat a smaller quantity or iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what Nuxated Iron can do for you, get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles; then take Nuxated Iron for a month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel; see how the color has come back to your cheeks, how steady and strong your nerves have become. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

Perfecting a Lie

(By A. H. FREDERICK)

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 6.—The tongue may lie magnificently, but the finger tips always tell the truth.

There is the premise upon which the latest "lie detector" is being perfected here, an invention which may obliterate "legal escape" from crimes committed.

The experimenter is Dr. Albert Schneider, dean of the Berkeley School for Police Officers and instructor in criminology at the University of California summer session.

First experiments in eliciting truth from subjects have been highly successful, according to Dr. Schneider, and the very near future will witness its practical application in the unraveling of crimes.

The instrument, known as the mirror galvanometer, consists of a switchboard the galvanometer proper and two connecting wires. It functions by means of the electricity generated by the living cells of the body under emotional stress.

Finger Tips

The method of procedure is simple. The subject is comfortably seated in a chair, preferably screened from the apparatus as well as from the observer.

The tips of his fingers are than placed upon two non-polarizing electrodes on the switchboard. The electricity proceeds from the finger tips, over the wires to the galvanometer, causing a small mirror, delicately balanced there, to deflect.

The observer waits until the mirror comes to rest, then starts his test. This may be either by question and answer or by related words, or by exhibiting certain objects to the subject. The related word test is that now widely in use in mental tests wherein the examiner says a word and the subject responds with a related word as quickly as possible thus "horse," "carriage," "house," "lot," "auto," "ride," etc.

Each emotion, according to Dr. Schneider, will cause its own particular vibration, making the mirror to deflect in a manner dissimilar to the deflection caused by any other emotion. Thus, though in each case the words might be "I am not guilty" there would be a different electrical reaction upon the mirror in cases where one man was attempting to deny a crime of which guilty and where the other was innocent and indignant at being associated with the crime.

Has Been Tried

"All emotions register upon the galvanometer," declares the doctor. "With a little practice, it is not difficult to determine at once just which emotion is controlling the electrical current. Thus anger, excitement and joy cause marked increase in mirror deflection, while worry, fear and mental depression lessen the deflections to a marked degree."

The mirror galvanameter of the type being used by Dr. Schneider, the D'Arsonval type, has been used previously and successfully in diagnosing disease, and it has been discovered that the mirror deflection caused by pathological conditions varied extremely and was greatly modified by emotional states.

This penomena suggested to Dr. Schneider the possibility of applying it to well persons and to so construct it as to adapt it for measuring degree as well as kind of emotion.

While the doctor's first instrument in this experimental work is that already described, he is also working upon two others, all three based upon the same principle. The other two, the string galvanometer and the capillary electrometer, may be more sensitive to emotional stress than the mirror instrument, says the doctor, and thus become perfected as instruments for measuring subtle emotions too vague for his present machine to catch.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Deamond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Miss Caroline's well-meaning advice to the "Million Dollar Doll" leaves Terry bewildered and miserable.

Nazlo reviews what had gone before between him and Terry. The girl had run away from him one night, back in New York and her unscrupulous father Desmond, had told Eustace she had gone to stay with friends.

Putting two and two together Nazlo realizes that the supposed Million Dollar Doll is Terry Desmond. He determines to question Mrs. Harkness whom he sees coming ashore from the yacht.

From what Mrs. Harkness tells him, Nazlo gathers that Terry is still an innocent Convent maid.

CHAPTER LIX.

An Unpleasant Encounter

That night Nazlo saw again the two from the yacht, dining at the Hotel de Paris, the supposed Juliet Divine very beautiful, very young, very much stared at. Nazlo began to want Terry more than he had known he could want anything, and he wondered if he could further his own interests by appealing to the police. If he could swear that, to his own knowledge, the girl on board "Silverwood" was not Juliet Divine and that she was under age, he might somehow tear her from Sheridan.

But he could not prove his statements without a long delay, and even if he could, this wasn't America: the police might laugh at him for his pains. At last, the only thing he could think of which might help, was to write to Mrs. Miles Sheridan a very carefully thought out letter.

Nazlo had met Betty once, just after the end of the war, before the return of her husband from France. It was in California, where he had gone on business. She had run out to Los Angeles with a woman friend, older than herself, to rest from Red Cross work and to "see what the Movie people were like."

He remembered hearing it said that Mrs. Sheridan had really come because Prince di Salvano was at Hollywood acting in a special film for which, though his was a small part, a special price had been offered him.

Betty and the Shoe King had been introduced to each other at the home of a rich, rather fast man, half Greek, who had built a marvellous house (a copy of Pliny's at Laurentum) outside Los Angeles. Nazlo had sat next her at the table, but Salvano had taken her into dinner, and she—absorbed in the Italian—had thrown her other neighbor only a few words. Probably she had forgotten him, but she must know the name of Eustace Nazlo, the Shoe King. He could remind her of the dinner party at Los Angeles.

Late that night he wrote the letter, after tearing up several sheets, and went out with it himself to the post office, so that it could not fail to go by the first train to Paris.

After that, there was a slump in excitement, for he was compelled to "wait and see." All he could do was to watch from a distance; to transfer himself from the Hotel de Paris, Monte Carlo, to the Hotel Royal, Nice, when "Silverwood" weighed anchor in Monaco harbour, and dropped anchor at the port of Nice.

The yacht had spent five days at Manaco. She gave the same length of time to Nice, and one day less to Cannes, where Nazlo followed also without getting within speaking distance of Terry.

He might have forced an interview, but he knew that he would lose, not gain, by active interference and he felt that, in one way or other, his moment would come.

After a fortnight of dawdling along the Azure Coast, Sheridan thought that he had given the French Riviera enough free food for gossip. "Silverwood" steamed for the Italian Riviera, and Miss Juliet Divine was displayed (as if she had been a "show girl" again) at San Remo, at Genoa, and Santa Margerita. The next stage was Naples, and there in the bay the yacht lay for a week.

Sheridan had planned, in New York, to visit only places in which friends from home and abroad were likely to be sunning themselves, for no others were worth his while. But things had changed since then. He wanted to take his companion to Pompeii, Amalfi, and Ravello, because he felt that she would thrill to their beauty and history. He wished her to see them with him. And Terry forgot all that she had suffered of shame and humiliation when, with few staring eyes to watch, she went with her "Prince" into this wonderland beyond her dreams.

The two were on happier terms by this time. Though they never said anything personal or intimate, Sheridan treated the girl as a Prince should treat a Cinderella during the early stages of acquaintance; perhaps about the middle of the third dance at the ball

In other words, there was an informal, temporary pact of good comradeship between them, and Terry was often radiantly joyous for a few moments—when she could push all thought of the future from her mind.

It was a month after the day "Silverwood" left Monte Carlo, and nearly two months after she steamed away from Brooklyn, that the yacht slipped into harbour at Algiers: and Terry was looking forward to Algiers.

There would be more people there—(people who interested themselves in her, in that dreadful nerve-tearing way people had) than there had been at Naples, but Sheridan had told her wonderful stories of Algiers and its chief city, the ancient haunt of pirates; its secretive Kasbah, with the blank-faced, whitewashed houses, and streets so narrow that the sunshine trickled through shadow like a thread of gold laid on black velvet; the veiled women with eyes like stars; the oriental shops and bazaars, and the marvellous Arab villas whose gardens were like an Omar Khayam paradise.

As they came into harbour at sunrise, the distant buildings of the town, dazzling white, were pearls scattered on a green cushion. The yells of the Arab boatmen, and their costumes astonished Terry. She was afraid of boring Sheridan, or she would have cried out again and again in her excitement.

He had described the Hotel St. George, with its beautiful terrace, and proposed taking her there for a ten o'clock breakfast. They drove through the town in a taxi, up to Mustapha Superieure, and arrived at the Hotel. Sheridan was almost gay. "We'll have our coffee and rolls and honey on the terrace," he said. To his own surprise, he felt happy and carefree. But he did not stop to analyze his sensations.

"Oh, isn't it all wonderful?" the girl murmured, as they stood together on the terrace, looking over the blue bay of Mustapha. Marble pillars twined with flowers gleamed against the sky. Oranges showed like lighted lamps, and roses hung in festoons.

Miles did not answer. His wandering eyes had reached a group of three persons seated at a small, round table.

Sheridan recognized only one; but that one would make the town of Algiers intolerable: Prince di Salvano

INTERLOCKING SERVICE SOUGHT BY BRITAIN

LONDON, October 6 (Associated Press).—Air transport, land transport and sea transport are all to be linked together by Great Britain, says Sir Samuel Hoare, British Air Minister. Four years experience in the operation of commercial airways, he says, has led to the conviction that three things are necessary to insure the prompt transportation of passengers and mail through the air.

"One is the opening up of long, inter-connected trans-European air routes, in which the speed of the airplane can be fully employed.

"Another is a greater and closer co-operation between airways, railways and steamships; and the third is the concentration of national effort in a single corporation. I have every hope that British air enterprise will become focused in such an undertaking.

"Our new service of flying boats between Southampton and Cherbourg will, for instance, connect at Cherbourg with incoming liners, so that Atlantic passengers can travel by air from that port to Southampton.

"It is intended, also, in developments impending with European air-mails, that the time-tables of day-flying airplanes and night railway expresses shall both be part of a general scheme.

"Take, for example, a long trunk-route across Europe. The airplanes, after carrying mails during daylight hours, will alight before darkness at points where loads can be transferred to night mail-trains. It will be possible next morning to divert mails again from earth to air.

"It is by such means that airplane transport, and particularly air-mail transport, can be made a far greater convenience to the public than is the case today."

STORK INSURANCE

An organization of women of Calgary, Alta., has outlined a scheme of "stork" insurance which is designed for the benefit of expectant mothers. The scheme has met with popular approval and it is likely that it will be put into operation. It authorizes the city treasurer to open accounts for these persons and upon payment of small weekly sums they will have money to meet the necessary expenses of the event. The amount paid in is augmented by amounts from the city treasury.

Daisy Bows Out

by Jack Lait

NAPOLEON, who was regarded as about the duck's quack of his period, trekked back through Russia and liked it; therefore, when Dixie Daisy, honey-tongued bunk artiste and big-time pickpocket, complied with the expressed suggestion of Inspector Conahan, and decided travelling was just what she needed for a rundown constitution and a falldown situation, she was but following in the tracks of the mighty.

Dixie Daisy, 'tis true, was not accustomed to reverse gear shifts. Since her advent into metropolitan operations, she had been steadily moving forward, in truth stepping high, wide and pretty. Rarely did her prop Southern accent fail to lubricate her out of a tight corner with its smooth, dulcet kick. Her very victims hadn't found the heart to identify her when, in the few times she had been jammed into actual arrest, she had turned those melting brown Big Berthas on them and addressed them in that lulling, lollypop Geo'gia syrup-drip intonation.

It may be added that Daisy worked exclusively on men. Women she abjured as bad risks, hard eggs and poor losers. She was no purse-snatcher—she was a poke-lifter; she was no moll-buzzer—she was a leather-booster.

Inspector Conahan was not one of the old, rough, crude type of lowbrowed policemen who third-degreed shivering suspects and finished by whanging his hairy fist on his desk, leering forward into the ashen countenance of a framed only-support-of-his-mother and hissed, "I'll send you up the river for twenty years on this evidence, you rat!" No. He was an upright, clean-living, human, efficient "inside" police official, who had plenty of desk work to do and who operated about as most important executives do these days, with system, dispatch and efficiency.

So it was an unusual thing for him to walk across his room to where stood an immaculately groomed, interesting, attractive woman, and say:

"Now, you beat it out of this town—and stay out—or I'll run you so fast that you'll think telephone poles are fence pickets. What train are you taking?"

"But, mah deah Inspectuh——" began Daisy.

"I'm not your dear inspector. And I mean it. Which way are you travelling—and how soon?"

"But—what have Ah done, to be——"

"Never mind what. You're on your way. Now, which way—and what train? I'm going to have official escort to see that nobody detains you."

"Well, at baist it would take me ouahs and ouahs to pack, and——"

"You're packing now. I'll send a couple of handy boys along to help you. And don't stall, Daisy—you're in a hurry."

"Oh, vairy well. If you ah goin' to rush me, Ah gaiss the fahve u'clock foh Bohston maght be the baist."

"If that's the first, that's the best. Now, take the air and bless your lucky stars I don't give you the works."

"What wuhks?" asked Daisy, too innocently. "You haven't got a thing on me."

"No," said Inspector Conahan, "not a thing. Not a single thing. Say, I could tell this story in any court, and——"

"And the judge would laugh in yo' face."

"Yes, I guess so; and you know it. And you know that's all that lets you out. But it lets you good and out—and you stay out. Say, I could jam you without booking you and keep you locked up so fast and so deep that eighty lawyers wouldn't find you in ninety years. You're a suspicious character besides this trick that I know you pulled just as sure as you're standing there. You've never been convicted—but nobody could get in and out as often as you have, and be always right. It isn't in the cards. I think I could make a vagrancy ticket stick, at that."

"Vagrancy? Wha— Inspectuh! Ah've got thousands of dollars in mah chaikin' account, and——"

"I know all that. Save it for the next town you play. Now, Finnegan and Deutsch will accompany you to your domicile, help you load, see you get aboard, and ride out of town with you. You get the key to the city—the exit door, please—and an escort of honor past the limits of my authority. And what could be nobler than that, Daisy?"

"Oh, you go to——"

"No, I'm staying. But you go—to Boston. I've got no particular love for Boston, anyway. Good-by."

"Good luck. God bless you," drawled Daisy, sarcastically. "If yo' eveh in Bohston——"

"Yes. I'll duck you. So long."

"So long . . . Oh, bah the way, won't you please give mah love to the Senatoh if you-all should happen to meet again?"

"Sure. He'll appreciate it. Now blow."

And Dixie Daisy blew, with Finnegan at her right and Deutsch at her left. She called a taxi and was driven to her trim little furnished apartment, where they took off their coats and helped her fill two trunks and a bag or so. It was almost five when they accompanied her through the gates, down the platform into a Pullman. Finnegan took a seat on one side, facing forward; Deutsch on the other side, facing backward. Daisy, with dignity and poise, followed by a redcap bearing her hand luggage, swept up the aisle to the seat reserved for her by special request of Inspector Conahan, per telephone.

No one aboard would have taken her for anything but a prosperous, well-bred young woman on a journey home after a shopping junket in the big town, or the indulged daughter of an established family breezing off to visit an aunt. The detectives had entered one at each end of the car, and had offered no glance of recognition at her or one another. It was all very proper, very inconspicuous.

But it was, in truth, the getaway of Dixie Daisy, who had irritated the police for many a month by "working" hotel lobbies, opera gatherings, even church crowds about the doorways of the most fashionable houses of worship in wide daylight. One of the most daring and brazen of "dips," she had been nailed red-handed more than once, only to ingratiate herself with the injured witness or the susceptible judge or even the malleable copper who took her in, so that the little crook had always wiggled off the hook by some hook or crook.

Police threats had always echoed emptily against her ear for that kind of music. Daisy knew her rights. Besides, no one under normal circumstances seemed to find the heart to be severe with her. She was so flippantly airy—and there was, besides, always that corruptingly ingratiating, paregoric Southern cooing of hers which made thick-hided men pudding-hearted chumps.

But she had broken the barriers at last. She had trifled with Inspector Conahan, who was not given to mouthing bluffs. She had put him in a ridiculous position in the presence of a political somebody. And she realized that when Dan Conahan promised he would show her all the sights in the police gallery of extra-judicial repertoire, he meant it, and would go through with it, and could go a long distance with it.

So she was heading for future predatory pursuits among strangers, in a town where the average yield would not be as lucrative as it had been in the metropolis.

And all this disastrous consequence—for what? For a watch.

In the decades back of us, when pickpockets were a novelty and were denominated "light-fingered gentry" by flowery reporters who didn't know that light fingers have nothing to do with the art, watch-boosting was considered the acme of refined dipping. A gold watch in those benighted days counted for something.

But in these days of billions of marks (in Germany!), boatloads of roubles, a dollar for a ham sandwich and two for a shot of fusel oil, no self-respecting grafter would bother to take his hands out of his own pockets for what was so facetiously called a "ticker." That sort of junk is difficult and perilous to pawn or peddle. Watches have numbers, many have initials—they have identities, incriminating and unreasonable individualities.

Money—cash—coin—dough—ah! They have no more identity than they have homes. Who ever records the number of a bill, even a century? A thief can be cornered with every printed denomination in every pocket, and the witness can only suspect, think, fume and froth; but the witness cannot say this—this very one—was mine. And that spells the difference between a stretch and a discharge unless the clumsy chump has been actually caught with a hand tangled deep in the fishhooks of a strange "kick."

Why, then, had Dixie Daisy, fastidious aristocrat—yes, effete snob—of ultra-modern dough-divers, wafted from her pedestal and descended to soiling her manicured finger-tips with anything so gross and staining as a watch?

Well—because she was a female. Dip or duchess, a woman is a woman, and you can't civilize it out of her.

Therefore, Dixie Daisy, who knew all the rules of her calling and could have exhaustively lectured at Harvard or Vassar on all permutations, combinations, psychologies, pathologies, higher mathematics, economics, legal ramifications and manual manifestations of pocket-picking, had been swept away by an unconquerable itch to possess a certain platinum chronometer which she saw in the hand of a stoutish, baldish stranger in the foyer of a foremost theatre between the acts of an attractive premiere.

And why just this particular watch? Because, as it was turned over in the pudgy palm of the corpulent person, she perceived set in the back of the case a brilliant blue-white diamond. Daisy had no more professional use for a diamond than she had for a watch. Her itch in this instance was purely personal. She wanted that stone, not for the market, but for the centerpiece of a dinner-ring she had been designing in her mind. Daisy was quite able to buy a diamond, but she regarded that a sin and extravagance.

Here was just the size, shape and shade in what she wanted. It didn't belong in a watch, anyway—she knew it was unforgivable bad taste. And the boob didn't even have a chain on it. He carried it in the waistcoat pocket of his Tux, removing it whence by the practised technique of Dixie Daisy was about as intricate as dropping a nickel in a slot for chewing gum.

Daisy waited for the fattish party to return his diamond-studded curiosity to its unprotected estate in his brocaded sucker pocket, whereupon she half-turned and stepped artlessly on his foot. She hastened to apologize, he frowned for a flash, and then saw it was a mighty pretty girl, and smothered her beg-pardons with his own insistence that it was his fault—and long before that she had his watch palmed, and was smiling graciously upon him diffidently proceeding into the crowd.

But the system, while airtight, hadn't entirely clicked. It is pickpocket text-book knowledge that when the attention of a sap is concentrated on one thing, which is surefire when that thing comes up suddenly and has plausible semblance of accident—as was the case in the foot-stepping episode—the operator may pluck away at all his pockets while he is engrossed in the business of being furious, or agreeable, or whatever mood it actuates.

Ordinarily, Daisy could have sawed his leg off while he switched from that first impulse to bawl someone out for heeling his instep into the enthusiastic afterhunch to place an embarrassed girl (very peachy) quite at her ease.

And it worked just that way, in accord with the established rules.

But, half a second later, State Senator Hammer, owner of the watch, the Tuxedo, the bald head and the hurt foot, experienced from nowhere and for no good reason a feeling that something had been done to him. He humored his foot, and that didn't seem to assuage the tickling. He adjusted his tie, that didn't help much. Suddenly he dived his two fingers into his vest pocket.

It was gone! It!

It was no ordinary watch. Costly as it was, it meant far more than the cost. It was a gift from his constituents to mark their affection and esteem, duly and elaborately engraved within, mounted with the diamond without. State Senator Hammer would have sold his conscience a thousand times before he would have even considered selling that watch.

He was nobody's fool. He hadn't been raised among the saloons and the handbooks for nothing. He, too, knew something of the ways of thieves—almost every State Senator does, even before he assumes office. In his active mind he reeled back the occurrences of the last several minutes, since he had held the priceless thing in his hand. And the whole incident with the pretty girl, the footstep on the instep, the elaborate synthetic situation that so naturally followed, ran through his brain.

He started in the direction she had gone. Daisy was not running. She had strolled casually down the block, as is the custom these days before theatres in intermissions, planning to keep going until she was out of sight and safe, when she would hail a cab and forget to see the rest of the drama. But she hadn't proceeded more than fifty yards when State Senator Hammer, puffing after her, motioned to a uniformed policeman, whispered in his ear, pointed at Daisy's receding back.

Daisy was truly surprised and shocked when a hand was laid on her arm. She turned to see a "harness bull." In fiction stories the officer should have said, "Up to your old tricks again, Daisy, eh?" And she should have replied, "Where'd you get that stuff, Moriarity?" But not every policeman knows every crook, and vice versa. And this one's name wasn't even Moriarity.

Patrolman Hall explained to the lady that she would have to go with him to the station—the gentleman coming up behind had charged her with picking his pocket. Daisy knew better than to start a street scene. She asked whether it could be done in a taxi, please, and that was easy. In the machine went Daisy, Hall and State Senator Hammer. Hall asked nothing, said little; Hammer started to querulously cross-question Daisy. She giggled at him.

Inspector Conahan chanced to be in, though it was late. When word came that Hall had brought in Dixie Daisy (yes, the desk sergeant knew her and she knew him, showing fiction stories are sometime not so wild) he ordered the trio to the front office.

Hammer told his story. Hall told his.. Daisy told hers—it was very simple—she knew nothing about the whole absurd mess; she was walking up the street to get a soda in the corner drug store between the acts, when——

Inspector Conahan touched a button and ordered the matron. Daisy came up close to him, and, lifting her face to his, pleaded:

"Oh, Inspectuh—you aren't goin' fo' to have me searched?"

The Inspector waved her back. The matron came a-running.

"Frisk this jane," commanded the Inspector, "and do it right. She's the fox's nostrils."

Five minutes later the matron brought Daisy back.

"No watch on her," she reported.

"That makes it a little hard, Senator," said the Inspector. "Sure she didn't ditch it in the taxi, or——"

"Not a chance, sir," interposed Hall. "I never took my eye off any part of her for a wink between the pinch and deliverin' her here to you, sir."

Daisy smiled, relaxed, stood with a "Well, what now?" on her features.

"But, I tell you, Inspector," insisted State Senator Hammer, "I'm as sure she took it as I am that I had it. I was absent-minded for just one second, yes, when she stepped on my foot and she started—and I started—and, well, you know the work. Now it's absolutely clear. She stepped on my foot this way (and he impersonated Daisy as he stepped on the Inspector's foot) and I jumped like this, and she turned like this, and, though I didn't just feel it then, a minute later I recalled absolutely how she slipped her fingers down in my pocket like this and—and—. What the——"

State Senator Hammer's fingers came up out of Inspector Conahan's vest pocket, and in them was his diamond-studded watch!

Hammer looked at Conahan, strangely. Conahan looked at Hammer, sheepishly. Daisy looked at both, affably. Conahan looked at Daisy—fiercely.

"You did this," he snapped.

"Ah? Ah did what?"

"Slipped that watch in my pocket. I remember now, when you came up to me to ask not to be fanned. It's like Senator Hammer says—I didn't quite know it then, but now I——"

"Naow, what? Sho'ly you wouldn't tell such a stohry in a coht: The stolen watch in yo' pocket—a pohlice inspectuh—wha, it's too funny. The repohtehs would eat it up."

"H'm," said Inspector Conahan. "Well, good night, Senator. Glad you got your property back. Of course, you understand. And I'll be just as much obliged if you don't—well, you know——"

"Oh, not a peep. I'm tickled to recover it. Good night, Inspector. Thanks. Good night, Daisy—you're a wiz."

It was when State Senator Hammer had gone that Inspector Conahan started in by saying:

"Now, you beat it out of this town, or I'll run you so fast you'll think telephone poles are fence pickets."

SERIES OF SHOCKS ALL OVER PACIFIC.

Widespread Death and Ruin Began Last November in Chile.

The series of earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and gigantic waves spreading havoc around the world have moved in a cycle which was introduced the middle of last November with an earthquake in Chile. At that time, Antofogasta, Copiapo and La Serena, with a broad stretch of intervening territory, were seriously damaged and a long death roll resulted. The stricken zone had just begun to recover when a second shock, ten days later, caused new terror and further destruction. During this period tremors were experienced all along the western coast of North and South America and even as far east as the Mississippi, in the United States. True, these latter were little more than vibrations, but they showed the extent of the affected area.

From that time until the present it has been a dull day when the seismographs failed to note uneasiness somewhere in the Pacific. A little while after the South American disturbances a fishing craft called at the uninhabited islands of San Ambrosio and San Felix, off the Chilean coast. The fishermen found that both islands had shrunk perceptibly, to less than half their size, and showed other traces of rough handling by nature. This, incidentally, was another instance of the theory advanced by Dr. Reeds in connection with the shrinkage of land in Japan.

It was next reported that Easter Island, far down toward the Antrarctic Circle, a chip of land in the vast Pacific, had disappeared. For several weeks newspaper readers the world over were entertained with speculation as to the fate of this island, once the home of some early people who left behind them a group of gigantic stone images. It was a fascinating possibility that the island had disappeared, along with a penal colony established there by Chile. But this proved mere speculation, because a supply ship found the island intact, although considerable ruffled by earth shoc shocks.

Farther across the Pacific other disturbances were going on almost daily, many of them never recorded save as a dot on a seismograph. Just how extensive these disturbances have been is uncertain, because a number of the islands are uninhabited or so far off the trade routes that little is heard from them. But in February there was a series of shocks that left a wide trail of ruin behind. These extended all the way from the Society Islands, way down in the South Seas, up through the Hawaiian group and on to the north, touching the Aleution Islands. Roughly, this was a matter of some 5,000 miles. Ships all over the Pacific were tossed about at that time and there was much injury to sea walls, docks and such places. The destruction reached its height at Kahului, in the Hawaiian Island of Maui, where a great wave swept into the port, beached ships, wrecked the sea front and caused a number of deaths.

At this time Professor T. J. J. See of the Mare Island Observatory, not far from San Francisco, announced that a new submarine mountain range was rising from the floor of the Pacific. Evidently this has made steady progress in its evolution, because other shocks have continued all over the Pacific. They again reached the American mainland in April, when there were perceptible shocks in San Luis Potosi, Mexico, and considerable alarm in that region. About the same time white-hot stones were cast up by a volcano near Guayaquil, Ecuador. Other craters in the Andes and Hawaii have been threatening.

Professor See has definitely ascribed the earthquakes in Japan to the leakage of the sea at the bottom of the Tuscarora Deep into the lava underneath, thereby causing a commotion which reacted on the surface of the sea and the near-by Japanese islands. According to Professor See it would not be necessary for a crack to exist at the bottom of the deep, because the pressure of the water at that great depth would force moisture through whatever thickness of rock and earth might lie between the crust of the earth and the lava.

Italy Next to Suffer

Following the Pacific disturbances the next major development in the series of calamities was the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in Italy. This famous old volcano broke forth on June 9 with a violence which shook the countryside. The discharge consisted mostly of incandescent cinders and ashes and was accompanied by succeeding earth tremors. There was considerable alarm, but only moderate damage. Apprehension subsided after a few days. But on June 17 Mount Etna in Sicily began to pour out rocks and lava on the countryside and in a short time the eruption had reached an intensity which sent near-by inhabitants fleeing for their lives. This eruption has been the socure of thousands of photographs, moving picture films and aerial snapshots, shown in so many forms that most of the civilized world now has a very good idea of what an eruption is like.

Contrary to the usual conception the lava from Mount Etna was not a liquid stream, but a hot mass similar in a way to raw asphalt poured out in city streets. It was propelled at a steady rate by the crater and crept down the mountain sides, pushing off in many directions for miles, burning and consuming everything it touched. There was no danger in approaching close to the mass, so slowly did it move. But this movement was inexorable, as proved by falling houses in its path, pushed over, crumpled up and lost to view. The eruption was part of a seismic upset also evidenced by earth shocks, and the people living roundabout had an experience in many ways approaching that of the Japanese. A half dozen villages were wiped out, many thousands saw their homes and property disappear, and the loss ran well into the millions.

Just when it seemed that the disturbances might have worked their full havoc came word from Japan, flashed by a lone radio station which still endured, that the greatest blow of all had fallen there. This furnished another link in the chain which had been started with the first shocks of the previous November. In that period the seismic forces had been made manifest over an expanse running about two-thirds of the way around the earth, from Italy, as the outpost at one extreme, to Japan at the other. There were gaps in this expanse that did not feel the effects of the disturbances, and most of these disturbances were confined to a belt near the centre of the earth. The last one in Japan represented a jump of some 2,000 miles from the nearest point affected before that time in the Pacific.

A long list of earthquakes have befallen Japan. On June 15, 1896, 13,073 houses were destroyed and 27,122 persons killed. Five years before, there were 7,273 persons killed and 222,501 houses destroyed. Running back to the fifteenth century there is hardly a ten-year period without earthquakes or serious consequence, many of them entailing a heavy death roll.

The nearest disaster in point of scope and lives involved to that which has overwhelmed Japan took place on Nov. 1, 1755, when the City of Lisbon, capital of Portugal, was severely shaken and 60,000 people killed. There was no preliminary warning, just a deep rumbling and a concussion of the earth which threw down most of the houses in the city and caused fire to break out in many places. The old mediaeval city soon was seething in flames, and hardly had the final shock paissed when a great wave struck it, completing the damage. This was the heaviest toll ever taken by a seismic disturbance until the Japanese calamity.

AT THE GRAND.

GREAT ACTOR HERE TONIGHT.

Tonight at the Grand Opera House the noted British actor, Bransby Williams, appears with his London Company—the pick of English artists, in an adaptation of Charles Dickens' famous novel "David Copperfield."

Mr. Williams and his Company are making a tour of Canada as far West as Victoria and Vancouver, and this will be the only opportunity playgoers in this city will have of witnessing the versatile powers of this clever actor—a man who has made a lifelong study of Dickens characters, in the two dissimilar roles of Peggotty, the lovable Yarmouth fisherman, and Wilkins Micawber, two of Dickens' best drawn chaarcters and his favorites.

Bransby Williams and his Company have already presented "David Copperfield" in Montreal and Toronto, and Press and Public alike have been unanimous in their praise. Not to see this play tonight will be a lost opportunity ever to be regretted.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Fred Niblo production of "Strangers of the Night" coming to the Capitol, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is a screen version of Walter Hackett's stage play, "Captain Applejack," which ran for a year in New York with Wallace Eddinger in the title role and was played for a year in London by Charles Hawtry.

In the screen version, Matt Moore steps into the shoes of the stage star as the timid young Englishman who dreams he is a pirate and develops piratical manner in real life. Barbara La Marr, distinguished for her performances in "The Three Musketeers" and "The Prisoner of Zenda" is again cast as an adventuress, playing the charming Russian, Anna Valeska, the role that Mary Nash played on the stage.

Enid Bennett, the Maid Marion of "Robin Hood," now becomes the little English maid, Poppy Faire, who, in the dream part of the story, is transformed into a cabin boy on the pirate ship. This is the role in which Phoebe Foster won her stage reputation.

Robert McKim the villain of most of William S. Hart's pictures, is cast in the Hamilton Revelle role of Borolsky, the Russian spy, who becomes a leader of the pirate mutiny in the dream. Otto Hoffman has Ferdinand Gottschalk's role of Horace Pengard, and Emily Fitzroy succeeds Helen Lackaye as Mrs. Pengard. Old Aunt Agatha, played on the stage by Marie Wainwright, is played on the screen by Adele Farrington.

"Strangers of the Night" was adapted for the screen by Bess Meredyth from Walter Hackett's play. It is presented by Louis B. Mayer, directed by Fred Niblo, who produced "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Blood and Sand" and "The Famous Mrs. Fair," and distributed by Metro. The art director was Robert Ellis, and Alvin Wyckoff had charge of the photography.

AT THE REGENT.

Violet Hopson is the Star in "The Son of the Kissing Cup."

"Son of Kissing Cup" with the most beautiful screen star of the British Isles, Violet Hopson, is the feature attraction coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday for a week, direct from its London run. Stewart Rome takes the leading male role.

The story deals with the English turf. Every good horse has a history, and the line of Son of Kissing Cup lives in story and in song. Unbeaten as a two year old, he was entered for the classics and was the public fancy for the Derby.

Sir Keneth Stirling, his owner, had occasion to consult Sir Bennet Grote, the lung specialist, by reason of his family history in that both father and grandfather had died of consumption. This advice he sought prior to his seeking the hand of Gladys Shelridge.

With ghoulish interest Joe Clark follows the movements of Sir Kenneth and Lady Stirling, and sees the Greenham Stakes at Newbury won by son of Kissing Cup, with Blue Grannie many lengths behind. Brady smarting under defeat was yet confident that his turn would come with the Derby. Meantime it is discovered that the specialist's diagnosis is a matter of delusion and Sir Kenneth is pronounced a sound man by a great physician.

Included tin the supporting cast are some of England's best: Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Cameron Carr, Judd Green, Arthur Walcott, Bob Vallis, J. Fraser and Lewis Gilbert.

AT THE ROYAL.

"Merry-Go-Round" guaranteed by Royal management as Its Finest Offering to Date. Here N3xt Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Practically every human being who hasn't been at Coney Island, the famous eastern pleasure spot, has read about it time and again.

There is a certain fascination about the atmosphere of that carnival section. There are freaks of all types, human and animal, clowns, pretty girls and strong men. Behind their makeups and pretences, they are human, as more than one fictionist has discovered and written.

Vienna was once the most dazzling center of Europe. Besides it had a romantic glamor differing from the appeal that any other Continental capital held for the average tourist. Its Coney Island, called the Prater, was a great sight. Then the war came along and—well, those people are human, just as they would be on this side of the water. They suffered; gold stars, starvation and poverty.

Written into the form of a motion picture spectacle, this intriguing atmosphere will be seen on the screen when "Merry-Go-Round," Super-Jewel offering, comes to the Royal Theatre next Monday.

"Merry-Go-Round," which cost time, money and care to film, is the story of two lovers separated as widely by caste as two human beings could be. One is a poor girl of the Prater, an organ grinder. The other is a young count, aide to the Emperor and slave to every royal whim—but leading a life of pompous idleness.

The father and mother of the girl, a faithful hunchback sweetheart, a great beast of a man who rules a big concession—these and others of the picturesque population of the Prater appear in "Merry-Go-Round."

Mary Philbin, Universal's "discovery" of the year, plays the organ grinder's role. Norman Kerry, George Hackathorne, Dale Fuller, George Seigmann, Al Edmundson, Cesare Gravina, Edith Yorke, Lillian Sylvester, Maude George, Dorothy Wallace, Sidney Bracy, Spottiswoode Aitken, Maurice Talbot, Fenwick Oliver, Albert Conti, Anton Vaverka, Charle s L. King, Helen Broneau, Jane Sherman and others handle the dramatic roles.

Rupert Julian directed, with a staff of ex-citizens of Vienna.

"Masters of Men" Shown Twice Tonight, at 7 and 9.

Morgan Robertson's classic of the sea, "Masters of Men," will be shown twice tonight at the Royal, at 7 and 9 p.m. This production is well liked locally and as the seating capacity of the Royal is limited, the two performances gives everyone an opportunity of seeing it.

LORD RENFREW IN OTTAWA.

C. G. E. Defeat Brockville and Clean up Eastern Ontario

C. G. E. EARNS DECISIVE WIN OVER BROCKVILLE BY SCORE OF 15 TO 11

Champions Played Like Veterans, Coming Out On Top in a Duel Featured by Grievous Errors, Hard Hitting and Bad Pitching.

ROSS WAS SUPERB

KINGSTON, Oct. 6.—(Special)—The Peterboro C.G.E. team won the right to represent Eastern Ontario against Welland, winners of the Western series in the final round of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. playoffs by virtue of a decisive win over Brockville at Napanee on Friday afternoon by the score of 15 to 11. The 1922 Champions played like veterans and came out on top in a duel featured with grevious errors, hard hitting and good and bad pitching, and which was finally halted in semi-darkness in the eighth innings.

Five Runs For Start

Helped to no little extent by errors and poor judgment on the part of the Brockville fielders, the Electricians drove in five runs in the opening frame, the game being practically on ice for the remaining session Brockville tied up the score in third and the lead sea-sawed back and forth until the end of the 6th, after which the champions were never headed. (

The twirling of Rose for Peterboro, was superb, while his timely hitting and clever base-running was the real deciding factor in the victory.

Genuine rugby weather prevailed for the occasion and the cold, raw wind, that swept the field made conditions extremely unpleasant for player and spectators. The Brockville delegation included 250 rooters, the Peterboroites being supported by about 100 loyal fans. The crowd numbered around 800.

Peters Won the Toss

Peterboro won the toss and elected to take the field retiring Brockville without a run after the bases were loaded. Rose showed his calibre in the pinch retiring the last two batters by the strike out route. Barrie, the first man up for Peterboro reached first on McLean's error; McCarney walked; Dugan was called out when his batted ball struck him while hiking for first. Rose grounded to Reilly; Ross singled, Jackson reached first on McLean's error, Ross and McPherson crossing the plate; Hall singled; but was later caught stealing.

Brockville's Real Bid

In the sixth innings, three Peterboro men walked, a two bagger by Rose and a triple by Jackson helping along the good work and forcing the retirement of Howson from the mound. Singleton doing the relief work. After another error by McLean and a base on balls, the third out was finally made by the third Brockville twirlers. Brockville made a real bid for the honors in the fifth. Oakey walked but was caught going to second. Ranger to Barrie. Reilly reached first when Dugan muffled. Hunter ditto on Ranger's wild peg, and Taber was hit by a pitched ball, filling te bases. Simon struck out, but Lane the peppery Brockville catcher, came through with a terrific drive for a home run tallying four run and placing Brockville in the lead. Rose retired to short, for a rest Ranger was benched and Frost went to the mound, and the rally was nipped without further damage.

The winners clearly outplayed their rivals, the earned run, outside of all the misplaces being enough to win the struggle by a safe margin The Brockville twirlers were not given a great deal of support, however and the highly touted sluggers from "Down East" failed to come through when hits meant runs. Lesperance starred for the losers, while Rose played brilliantly throughout.

TRIS SPEAKER

One of the notable figures in baseball is the manager of the Cleveland American League team, brilliant at bat, in the field and on the bench.

And a prince of goodfellows and sportsmen is Speaker, who with other major league stars will be seen in action at Riverside Park on Saturday, October 13.

Baseball fans throughout Central Ontario will pack the local ball grounds for that event, which presents not only Tris Speaker, but also George Uhle, Leslie Nunamaker, Roger Peckinpaugh, probably Sam Rice, and other prominent players, including "Babe" Dye and Andy Kyle.

This game is a G.W.V.A. benefit, and brings to this city and district a group of the most famous baseball players of today.

On Thursday of this week Speaker broke the major league record when he cracked out his 57th two-base hit for this season, knocking down a figure that had stood for twenty-four years.

HAMILTON TIGERS PLAY M. A. A. A.

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct 6—Coach Marriott of the Tigers put the finishing touch on his team last evening when a signal practice was held. He says the team is in good condition and believes it will show Montreal a clean pair of heels to-day. The strength that Montreal showed last Saturday against Ottawa made the Tiger manager feel that the loosenes shown against Argos in Toronto would not be with the fast winger wheel aggregation and a week of hard practices has been the result. It is thought here that Montreal expects to win prinsipally through his superior back division but Hamilton's back fields has been strengthened by placing Evans in the rear guard. He is a good punter apd is speedy.

M'GRAW GROOMS FORMER BRAVES

Four Pitchers Who Will Carry the Hopes of the Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — Four pitching veterans, all former members of the Boston Braves—are being groomed carefully by Manager McGraw of the World's Champion Giants, to match speed and curves with the all-star Yankee array in the world's series that begins next Wednesday. Upon them McGraw pins much of his hope for a third successive world's championship.

The quartette are: Jack Scott, twirling hero of the Giant triumph last year; "Silent John" Watson, a 1923 addition to the staff; Hugh McQuillan, whose acquisition last season helped turn the pennant tide in favour of the Giants; and "Art" Nehf, a diminutive southpaw star.

PUTS BET ON YANKS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—One of the largest single wagers so far on the world's series was recorded to-day when a Wall Street firm announced it had placed $4,400 against $4,000 representing odds of 11 to 10, that the New York Yankees would capture the series from the New York Giants.

They caught a famous Oklahoma bandit in Missouri, possibly because he couldn't show them.

ALEXA STIRLING TRIES COMEBACK

"Old Golf Champ Re-entered the List This Year and Plays in the Final Round of Women's National (U. S.) Championship To-Day.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—With her game geared up to a par-shattering sharpness Alexa Stirling, three times champion woman player of America, is poised for a comeback.

She has her mashie niblick as well as her heart set on the honor held until this week by Glenna Collett, the Princess of Providence, who won the title for the first time last summer.

Three years back Miss Stirling, then playing from Atlanta, home of Bobby Jones, famous amateur, and Stewart Maiden, equally famous instructor, was hailed as America's most notable contribution to feminine golf. Many considered her the world's finest woman golfer, not even excepting the great Cecil Leitch, of England.

And then something happened. Perhaps it was Alexa's awakened interest in business. (You know she is one of the metropolis' most gifted business ladies now.) At any rate she lost her stroke, and new champions came up to take her place.

First it was Marion Hollins, long-driving New Yorker. Next came Miss Collett to sit among the game's elect.

A ruling champion over a space of three consecutive playing seasons, Alexa suddenly found herself an outsider in the big championships, a side-line spectator to the title winning accomplishments of others.

This year she apparently started out with a definite object in mind—the recovery of her prestige as America's greatest woman golfer.

She is still young enough to hold her own with the eager, onrushing crowd of youths, and what is more important, she can still match shots with any woman player in the game.

Miss Stirling happens to be America's finest iron player up to the green and you can name her superiors at putting on the fingers of Miss Gladys Venus, the daringly undressed lady of the museums. Which is to say she has none.

Walter Johnston Closed His 17th Season By Fanning Twelve.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 5.—Cleveland won the first of its final series with Chicago to-day, 6 to 1. Shaute held the White Sox to seven hits, while Cleveland wasted many of its 17 hits off Thurston, and Leverette. Because of cold weather only a handful of fans viewed the contest. Score:

THREE TOES OFF OTTAWA PLAYER

Senators Lose Strong Line Man By Accident.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6. — Canadian Press. — Gloom was cast over the Ottawa Rugby team's camp yesterday afternoon by the announcement that Jimmy Humphries, the star inside wing of the Senators, would be unable to take part in to-day's important game with the Argonauts.

Humphreys, who is employed by the J. R. Booth Co., suffered the loss of three toes and a portion of his foot in a painful accident yesterday afternoon.

With Humphreys out of the game a further shift will have to be made in the squad. Dave Harding, though troubled with a sore neck, will likely start out, but Shaw, who played centre in the opening game, is definitely out with an injured ankle. The remainder of the team is in good shape, however, and confident that they can defeat the Toronto oarsmen.

'Dope' Was Right

GLENNA COLLETT

This year's golf dope was all set against Glenna Collett.

No golf champion has repeated in an important tournament so far this year.

Walter Hagen was dethroned as British open champion.

E. W. Holderness was knocked off as British amateur champion.

Joyce Wethered was unable to survive as holdover champion of England's women players.

Gene Sarazen bowed to a superior foe and the inexorable law of the game, relinquishing his title as open champion of America after one year's rule.

Jess Sweetser got as far as the finals in defense of his title as amateur champion of America this year.

And finally, Glenna, the "Princess of Providence," was defeated Thursday in the last major golf title to be decided this year.

M'GILL RACCOON RIVALS "BOO-HOO"

Queen's Bear Meets Opposition in Game To-Day.

MONTREAL, October 6.—"Boo Hoo," the famous bear mascot of the Queen's University rugby team has a rival.

The grid iron stars from Kingston express considerable confidence in their ability to wipe the ground with the McGill team in their game here this afternoon, but "Boo Hoo" will not come down with that dignity he has affected on former occasions —for McGill has hired Patsy, the Texas raccoon, to intercede with Lady Luck on behalf of the local institution of learning.

Patsy will be remembered for her work in the S.P.C.A. campaign recently. Her owner to-day approached the McGill authorities with the suggestion that she should act as mascot for the local team to-day. The suggestion met with instant approval and the new mascot will occupy a seat with the "Rooters" when the curtain is raised on the intercollegiate season here at 2.15 p.m. to-day.

SWAN-UPPING, OLD TIME SPORT

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Bet you a million, as "Betcha-Million Gates" used to say, you never heard of "swan upping."

It's peculiarly English. It dates back centuries, preserves an ancient custom, and is still carried on because these people like to hold on to the quaint old things.

Back in the sixteenth century, in the days of Queen Elizabeth and William Shakespeare, the swan was declared a royal bird and was protected by special statutes. The Thames River was inhabited in its upper reaches by many swans. Some of these belonged to the king. The rest belonged to the Dyer's Company and the Vinter's Company.

In those days these great liveried companies of dyers and wine-growers were something like lodges or guilds. Nowadays these companies are no longer trade organizations. They are very exclusive and only prominent people are chosen to membership.

In the days of good Queen Bess the protected swans were marked so that everybody could tell which was which. So it was decided that the beaks of the birds belonging to the Dyers should have two nicks. Those belonging to the Crown should not be marked at all.

So to this day every summer a flotilla of rowboats bearing swan-masters and representing the various interests, set forth from London and spends about a week on the upper Thames.

At this season of the year all the old birds have their broods of cygnets. It is the job of the swan-masters to go up to Mr. and Mrs. Swan, catch the cygnets and mark them if they are not the property of the Crown.

It is some job because Papa Swan joined by Mama Swan, often takes a notion to get sore about people handling his kids. Then he is apt to flail out at the swan-masters with his powerful wings.

And Mama Swan is no bad second. Fact is, she is a sort of a female Dempsey of the bird kingdom. She has been known to uppercut the swan-masters so as to make him feel quite uncomfortable. Usually the swan-masters' assistants tackle the parents, while he goes for the cygnets.

If the old birds are unmarked the young ones are likewise left unmarked. They are the Crown birds. If the old birds have one mark on the beak the youngsters get the same. Likewise, if the old ones have two marks, the young ones get two. The job usually takes a week.

Then once more for a year the stately birds are left unmolested.

SIKI, PRIZE-FIGHTER, THROWN OFF TRAIN

Senegalese Pugilist Lands In Cells of Montreal Suburb.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—The dusky Siki left Montreal on the New York train Thursday night and Friday morning was back in this city after an exciting night in which the decision goes to Constable W. Kelly, of the Canadian National Railway police. A sojourn in the police cells at St. Lambert was but one feature of the Senegalese fighters attempted departure.

Siki and Jack Johnson who have been here giving a series of boxing exhibitions, arranged to leave last night for New York. Johnson departed via the New York Central, Therefore Siki chose the Rutland. As the train was pulling out of Bona venture station Siki, it is alleged, began to make himself objectionable to other passengers. The passengers protested to the conductor. The official stopped the train at Point St. Charles and telephoned the authorities that Siki was threatening to knock the heads off the entire personnel on board the train.

The train was ordered to proceed to St. Lambert where Constable Kelly boarded it. The policeman marched straight up to Siki and ordered him to leave the train. In response the fighter grew bellicose and in raging French announced the impending massacre of the said officer. Siki raised his fist. But Kelly is an accomplished officer. Before the dark gentleman could do anything further, Kelly had him by both wrists and before Siki knew where he was, he was jammed against the sides of the car. There was a series off quick twists jerks and bumps and Siki was out of the train.

He was escorted to the St. Lambert police station, and held there until matters were straightened out. Later in the evening he was permitted to go, there being no formal charge against him. He returned to Montreal and will probably make another attempt to get to New York His manager discreetly stuck on the train Thursday night.

IN FINAL WITH ALEXA STIRLING

Edith Cummings of Chicago Threatens Aspiration Former Champion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A courageous golfing girl of Chicago, Miss Edith Cummings pushed her way into the final round of the women's national golf championship to-day by overcoming an almost hopeless handicap and defeating Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, conqueror of Glenna Collett one up, in twenty holes. Dormie two, the Chicago girl, won the 17th with perfect golf squared the match at the eighteenth with an eight-foot putt downhill, and won at the 20th., when her opponent missed her tee shot.

In the final round to-morrow, a gruelling test at 36 holes, the Chicago girl will meet Alexa Stirling, three times a champion, who eliminated to-day Mrs. Elizabeth Goss, of Baltusrol, N. J., two up, after a close round in which Miss Goss always was pressing on her heels. Miss Stirling the experts believe, is the world's greatest women player over the 36-hole route, but Miss Cummings is at the height of a game that has been improving through the years.

Miss Cummings has played in four national tournaments since 1919. In that year she qualified and was eliminated by Mrs. W. A. Gavin of England in the first round. In 1920 she fell a victim to Alexa Stirling, in the second round. She did not qualify in the 1921 tournament, but last year she reached the semi-finals, only be eliminated two up by Glenna Collett who won the title in the final by defeating Mrs. Gavin.

So Miss Stirling evidently still has one of the most difficult obstacles of her career to hurdle to-morrow if she realizes her ambition to become a fourth time champion.

QUEBEC EXPERIENCED AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK

INTERMEDIATE SERIES IN THE EAST A LONG FIGHT

The Eastern Ontario section of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. race, the championship of which was captured by the C.G.E. team yesterday, was by long odds the toughest division in the Ontario series to win, as three quarters of the intermediate teams were bulked east of Toronto. It has been a long, long trial and both the Generals and Jake Solomon must be glad it is over.

The latter as the Eastern representative of the O.B.A.A. has been in charge of all the play offs and as most of the series went three games requiring in each case, a play-off fixture. Jake has had his hands full in securing satisfactory dates, grounds and umpires.

When the various league winners were decided the line-up east of Toronto was something like this:

Scarboro League—Aurora.
Tri County League—Orillio.
Durham — Ontario League — Oshawa.
Cobourg Town League—C.N.R.
East Durham League—Bethany.
Peterboro City League—C.G.E.
East Peterboro League— Cognawagas.
Trent Valley League—Tweed.
Bay of Quinte League—Picton.
Northumberland League—Trenton

Further east the group winners were A. Davis and Co., winners of the Kingston City League, Napanee, Sydenham, Brockville, Ottawa and Perth making a total of sixteen group winners.

In the play offs Orillia eliminated Aurora. Oshawa disposed of the Cobourg winners. Bethany walloped Cognawagas. Tweed beat Trenton. Picton won from Kingston. Sydenham dropped Napanee into the discard and Brockville got rid of Perth and Ottawa. The C.G.E. having a bye.

In the second round C.G.E. beat Orillia. Oshawa put Bethany out. Picton eliminated Sydenham and Brockville won from Tweed.

In the third round C. G. E. defeated Oshawa and Brockville won from Picton.

That left Brockville and C.G.E. in the final for the division and the Easterners after sixteen straight wins were beaten by last year's champs, who now go into the finals against Welland, the Western winners. The first game will likely take place here on Wednesday with the return in Welland a week from today.

The C.G.E. win yesterday means that Peterboro teams are cocks of the walk in Eastern Ontario in every series of the O.B.A.A. except the senior the local bantams, midgets, juveniles, juniors and intermediates all being triumphant. The Bantams got their title by default but in the other four series Peterboro teams fought their way into the finals. Two of the four the Lakeviews and Curlers have already won Ontario Championship and the C.G.E. have an excellent chance of adding another to the list.

RADIO FOR THE LONELY LUMBERJACK.

At a lumber camp in the State of Oregon there has been erected what is claimed to be the longest straight-line radio antenna, privately owned, in the world. The trees around the camp had been cut down and the nearest suitable one was 1,015 feet away, 300 feet high with the lowest limb 150 feet above the ground. With much difficulty and hazardous climbing a single copper wire was strung from the radio house to a point 200 feet up the tree. Many of the large camps of the Northwest are now installing wireless sets so that the isolated lumberjacks may be in touch with the outside world.

3 PENNANTS IN 6 YEARS, RECORD YANKEE CHIEF

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Miller J. Huggins, the midget manager of the New York Yankees, has been leading baseball clubs in pennant races for eleven years. Before that he had nine years of active service on the diamond as a major league player.

Never a heavy hitter, the little leader became noted for his knowledge of the game and his ability to apply it when brainy work was needed to win. So he became a star in spite of physical handicaps.

In 1901 Huggins first played professional ball with the St. Paul club. He entered the major leagues in 1904 with his home city team, the Cincinnati Reds and played second base rgularly for six years. He then was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals and became their manager in 1912, succeeding Roger Bresnaham. He remained in charge of the Cards until the close of the 1917 season and that winter was signed to manage the Yankees.

Twice during his stay in St. Louis Huggins surprised the fans with his teams. In 1913 the Cardinals finished last but in 1914 they came home in third place. In 1916 his team finished seventh, but he was in third place again in 1917. His New York teams never finished outside the first division. He was fourth in 1918, third in 1919 and 1920 and first in 1921, 1922 and 1923.

Huggins is noted for his many big trades, some of them including seven and eight players. Many smart deals have been directed by him as the Yankee Manager.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR LENGTH GRAIN TRAIN

REGINA, Sask., October 6, Canadian Press. — The world's record for grain trains is believed to have been shattered by the Canadian Pacific Railway yesterday. One mile in length, a monster train of 125 car loads of wheat was operated over the line between Stoughton and Arcola. The contents of the cars weighed 5566 tons which with tare of 2380 tons made total weight hauled by single engine of 7,946 tons.

The great string of cars contained approximately 185,000 bushels of wheat.

STINNES DUG COAL

BERLIN (By Mail to United Press).— Hugo Stinnes demanding the ten-hour workingday knows what it means from personal experience.

Unlike most of the German captains of industry, he is a self-made man.

Although his father was a wealthy industrialist, young Hugo wanted to begin at the beginning.

After finishing college he first became an apprentice in a Coblenz business firm.

He was eighteen (in 1888) when he left Coblenz and for ten months dug coal like any other miner far under the ground, which was at that time a ten-hour job.

After this experience he took successively a position as workman in smelteries and cokeries.

Only after going through such practical experience Hugo Stinnes went into a technical high school. In 1893 he considered his education finished.

With 50,000 marks, which he had inherited from his mother, he then proceeded to found his own firm, instead of going into his father's business.

Such were the beginnings of Hugo Stinnes, who is now Germany's—maybe Europe's—leading industrialist.

HUNTER ST. PAVING HAS BEEN COMPLETED

The paving work on Hunter street was completed yesterday by the contractor, Mr. John Carroll in plenty of time to avoid danger from frost. From the general appearance of the concrete pavement, Mr. Carroll has made a splendid job of his work and East City residents are enthusiastic about the increased comfort and convenience afforded them in the street paving, which now stretches in an unbroken line from Sheridan street to the east end of the Westclox building, and on Rogers street to a few feet in advance of the entrance to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The deceased was born in Peterborough seventy years ago and during her life time here had many friends. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and an only daughter, Mrs. Lawerance Meagher.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

On behalf of the Royal Black Preceptory we wish to express our sincerest appreciation to the entire staff of Nicholls Hospital, the doctors, the ministers, the Orange Order and the many friends who were so kind to Elsie Brown during her long illness and to all who sent floral tributes at the time of her death. She appreciated them all when she was living and we who are left will always remember the kindness and sympathy shown her.

CAMPBELL MORGAN
Question No. 2

"The soul that sinneth shall die." These words simply mean the man or person shall die. God told Adam that in the day thou eatest of the tree of knowledge, thau shall surely die. (Gen. 2:17.) The unbiased reader can easily see that it was Adam, a living soul (Gen. 2:7) that would surely die not one part of him die and the other part not die. To make the assertion, that when a man is dead he is more alive than before he died is unscriptural, and absurd. We might as well say that black is white.

Allendale Farm Finds Virtues in Bad Boys.

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Oct. 6.—(Associated Press).—Thirty years' experience as director of the Allendale Farm has convinced Edward L. Bradley of the virtue of "badness" in boys.

Upon the 260 acres of land and water of the farm, "badness" is accounted a natural part of the development of Captain Bradley's 100 boys. Years ago Mr. Bradley devoted himself to a new ideal in boy culture, and his faith, he says, in the inherent goodness of American youth has yielded increasingly great returns.

Foundation of the farm, according to Mr. Bradley, might be taken as a protest against the institutionalism which oftimes attempts to reform boys into unnatural little angels. The other extreme was at first the policy at the farm and it has changed but slightly. The boys here are of the normal kind, Mr. Bradley says, made from "snaps, snails courged to be themselves.

There are few warnings or "dont's" at Allendale. But there is an unwritten law which no one violates. The boys may lie, steal, throw stones "normally," and pay for it only as they might in the best of homes, but whoever dares smoke a cigarette treads dangerous ground, and perhaps numbers his days at Allendale.

"Nothing so limits the future of a boy as the cigarette," Captain Bradley believes. "That is the only thing we will not tolerate."

"Some boys require special attention," the director admitted. "Sometimes we fail to handle them. Then we hand them over to the boys themselves and they always bring them around. In all our years we have had to expel only two boys. We say to the boys: 'Here he is, if you can put up with him, if you want to give him a chance, if you will take the responsibility for his conduct, we'll keep him.'

"They take him and soon the objectionable qualities disappear. They take pride in being their brother's keeper."

A list of the nationalities of the boys on the farm includes nearly all the names in the league of nations. Among the hundreds who have gone out from the school, are many, the director says, who are drawing average salaries of $6,000 and $7,000 a year. "And they are fine family men," he adds.

A STUBBORN FIRE MARGARET AVENUE

House Was Badly Damaged---Defective Wiring Said To Be Cause.

Defective electrical wiring is believed to be the cause of a fire which completely gutted the attic of 295 Margaret avenue, this afternoon, resulting in $1,500 damages to the house and injuring the contents to the extent of $500. The fire broke out at 1.20.

On arrival of the fire department it was found that the entire attic was an inferno of flames and great difficulty was experienced in laying a line into the room. The fire was not discovered until the front window of the attic blew out, showering blackened glass on the lawn.

The firemen found that fuses in the attic had been blown apparently by an inside overload and further investigation discovered two wires, of the electric bell type, which had apparently crossed, causing fire to start near the roof.

Good use was made of the new tarpauling recently acquired by the Fire Department and but for their use much greater damage from water would have resulted to the furniture on the lower floors.

The house is owned by Carl Hayes and tenanted by R. H. Fortye. Articles destroyed included three expensive fur coats and hundreds of volumes of books. House and contents are covered by insurance.

Bee Colony Requires 40 Pounds of Stores

Success in wintering bees depends upon (1) the strength of the colony, (2) the quantity and quality of winter stores, and (3) the temperature and humidity of the air in the cellar. Every colony must possess an abundance of young bees. If some have failed to rear sufficient bees in the fall they should be united with each other until colonies of the requisite strength are obtained. It is useless to put away weak colonies in the fall and expect to take out worth while colonies in the spring.

Equally important is the quantity and quality of stores. To be on the safe side every colony should have 40 pounds of stores, either white honey or sugar syrup. On an average bees wintered on natural honey lost twice as heavily as those wintered on sugar syrup.

Given strong colonies with good stores, there is yet required to insure perfect wintering a good bee cellar. Usually a cellar under a house is used and if the temperature in it does not run below 35 degrees F. or above 45 degrees F., and it is neither too damp nor too dry, good results are obtained. Plenty of ventilation will relieve either an excess of moisture or an extreme of dryness. In addition, the part of the cellar reserved for bees must be always dark and most never be subject to jar and such disturbances.

October Specials in Best Grade Photos.

"Shop early" has been a repeated slogan for years, just before the Christmas holidays. "Order your pictures early" is the idea behind the effort which The Roy Studio is putting forth in this month to secure for its patrons the best possible service for the gift season.

"October Specials" are the pictures which Mr. Roy is advertising just now. When ordered this month, the rush of the Christmas season is avoided, and an innovation that will be welcomed by those who do not wish to order as many as a dozen of photographs at once will be the announcement that these "Specials" are quoted in half-dozens or quarter dozens, just as desired.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OBITUARY

HAZEL MARY LUNDGRIN.

The death occurred this morning of Hazel Mary Lundgrin, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lundgrin, 236 Woodbine avenue, aged two months and six days. The funeral will take place at ten o'clock on Monday morning from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery, Rev. W. H. Young officiating.

MRS. JOSEPH COBB.

Mrs. Mrs. Joseph Cob, a well-known citizen of Peterboro, for many years, passed away suddenly early on Friday morning, at the advanced age of 86 years. Mrs. Cobb had spent practically all her life in this city, having come here when but a young girl, and had been an interested witness of its growth and development. Her husband who predeceased her some years ago, was well known in the floral business here. While age and health would permit Mrs. Cob was particularly active in the work of the George St. Methodist church, and even when advancing years took their toll of physical strength she still followed its work with the keenest interest.

The end came very suddenly. The previous afternoon she received visitors and seemed to be fully as cheery and hearty as usual, even accompanying them to the door to wave good bye. Early Friday morning, however, she pased away in her sleep.

Burial took place this morning at 11 o'clock, the service being conducted by the Rev. W. H. Young.

RETURN TO NATIVE DRESS.

MANILA, Oct. 6. — (Associated Press).—Restoration of the colorful native "barong" as the attire of Filipino legislators, is proposed in a resolution submitted by Representative Fafael Villaneuva in the House of Representatives. Heretofore native lawmakers have sported the approved American dress, but many believe it would be more patriotic to return to the original fashion of the Philippines.

The "barong" is a shirt-like garment, with a narrow neck-band and takes the place of both shirt and coat. Worn outside the belt of the trousers, it gives Americans the impression that the wearer had dressed hastily and neglected to tuck his shirt into his trousers.

Representative Villaneuva's resolution, recommending a boycott of foreign apparel, affects women's dress as well, and bans all evening gowns made of imported materials.

WELSH SINGERS PLEASE AUDIENCE AT OTTAWA

The "Ottawa Journal" of October 4 states in part that "those present at the concert given last night by the Rhondda Welsh Male Chorus were delighted with a programme of choral and vocal music rendered in a manner which gave evidence of real musicianship on the part of the conductor and vocalists.

"The quality of the performance was uniformly good, and the audience, and particularly members of choral organizations in the city, no doubt noticed the great effect upon the finished rendering produced by that attention to detail which is so desirable but so difficult to attain. The unanimous attack, restrained tone, careful diction and shading shown in most of the numbers by the chorus afford an interesting example for choral singers of this city to emulate.

"The programme was selected from a large repertoire, most of the members of which are familiar to those interested in part singing and in standard ballads, such as 'Nirvana' and 'Asleep in the Deep,' but it was with the opening number, 'Harleck,' that one realized that the standard of expectation raised by the somewhat hackneyed appearance of the repertoire must be revised as far as the concert singing was concerned. The manner in which the number was sung was a revelation as to mellowness of tone, precision of attack and delicacy of shading. The agreeable impression created by the opening numbers was fully maintained as the programme developed and reached a climax with 'Italian Salad,' a clever descriptive number based on the Italian names and musical terms. Although of a humorous nature, the rendering of this number called for all the resources of the chorus and was splendidly sung. The chorus showed that it possessed members capable of rendering a humorous number in the persons of the gentlemen who sang 'Tenor and Baritone' and 'The Gendarmes' with much point.

"The programme was received with enthusiasm, and encores were generously accorded."

PARLEY TODAY EMPIRE HEADS IS MOMENTOUS

Unity of Dominions with Great Britain in Common Foreign Policy the Question.

CANADA'S CASE FIRST

LONDON, Oct. 8. (Special cable to the Canadian Press by George Hambleton, staff correspondent.) — The Imperial Conference opened a discussion to-day that will be momentous. The tangled history of the Ruhr, the breach in the entente, Lord Curzon's speech, and the bitter rejoinder from France, are before the Dominion Premiers, and this morning they began to state their views.

"Will the Dominion Premiers endorse Lord Curzon's conclusions that there is nothing to be done beyond waiting on events?" the Times asks. It follows the query with an expression of confidence that conference will decide to lead, not to follow.

The newspaper argues that Prime Minister Baldwin might have made a settlement, but by his arrangement for refunding of British debt to the United States he threw away the only weapon he had to persuade France to make a settlemetn in Europe, and the possibility of getting much better terms from the United States.

Common Foreign Policy.

A desire that the Dominions should be united with Great Britain in formulating a common foreign policy is finding wide expression here. A brief citation from the London Daily Telegraph will indicate this tendency:

"It is to-day," says the Telegraph. "An accepted fixed condition of our foreign policy, as it is of all self-governing states of the empire, and that in framing it the government of these states must actively participate. This is the object of the presence of the Dominion Prime Ministers in London to-day."

How far representatives of the Dominions concur, or where they differ on the question of general participation in Britain's foreign policy, will not be evident until the discussion closes.

Canada's case will be stated first. As representative of the senior Dominions, Premier King has first word among the premiers. He was accompanied this morning by Sir Lomer Gouin, the Canadian Minister of Justice, and Hon. George P. Graham, Canadian Minister of Railways and Canals.

COST $10,000 TO MAIL A CIRCULAR

Pre-War Cost of Sending a Letter to Peterboro.

Haarmann & Langhoff, of Essen, Germany, desiring to advertise their merchandise with The Examiner, posted a circular on 19th September, which cost them, for postage alone, 40,000 marks.

At the pre-war rate of exchange this would be approximately $10,000.

In 1914 this same circular would have been carried by the Post Office for 5 cents.

The envelope which arrived to-day measures only 5 inches by 4 inches, and probably would not accommodate the number of stamps necessary to its delivery, so a post-mark, "Deutsches Reich 40,000," is the only sign that the 1914 equivalent of $10,000 had been paid for its transmission.

LINDSAY MAN IS ON THE MISSING LIST

LINDSAY, Oct. 8. — Lindsay police are to-day searching for Charles Westerdale, who disappeared without trace yesterday evening.

Westerdale had been in the employ of Dr. White for several years and had supper at his employer's residence yesterday. He then disappeared leaving his money on the table.

The missing man is English, and he had no relatives in this country. He has been acting strangely of late.

His clothes were found near the pump house this morning, also a note bidding good-bye to friends. Later his body was taken from the river.

Cried Earthquake Stampede Followed Sixty Were Injured

LONDON, October 8 (Canadian Press).—Shouts of "Earthquake, earthquake," yesterday in narrow Solater Street, Bethnal Green, the noted centre in the East-end for the sale of animals for domestic pets, caused a wild stampede, in which 60 people were trampled, hundreds of caged animals destroyed, and quantities of miscellaneous property ruined or stolen.

It is said the whole affair was organised by a gang of thieves.

Traders say that an auction was in progress, when a band of toughs burst in from a side street, and rushing into the throng of marketers, yelled 'Earthquake, earthquake."

The crowd fled screaming, while the stalls were overthrown, many of the caged birds and animals being trampled to death.

In the stampede, 60 persons were injured.

TO STAND PAT SAYS POINCARE

Germany Must Pay in Full For Invasion of France and For Other Crimes.

PARIS Oct. 8. —(United Press). —In what was widely accepted as a reference to Lloyd George, Premier Poincare told a "former Premier' Sunday, that France is going to stand pat until paid.

"The former Premier of the Allies has undertaken weekly news paper articles in campaign against France" Poincare declared in speech at Pierre Fitte-Suraire." But there are many people in France who will not rest tranquil until Germany has effaced all trace of her passage through our territory and of her crimes.

Showing that he does not believe that cash payments will be forthcming from Germany immediately, Poincair referred to a new loan which will be floated for the devasted regions.' I am confident that all good citizens will subscribe to the loan, he said," It is necessary for a most pressing program."

"In a latter speech at Ligny-en-Baris, the French Premier referred to the Rhineland separatist movement, denouncing the German police for attacking the crowd of separatist demontsrators at Dusselldorf, which included women and children.

Defends The Army.

Defending the conduct of the French army of occupation toward the German national propaganda, he pointed out that the Germans killed at Duseldorf were slain by German police and not French soldiers.

Poincaire ironically discussed the German Cabinet crisis, declaring that the German even attributed the crisis to France.' They feel that we should have accepted vain words and contradictory measures instead of money. He said "we should have believed that Germany opposed passiv resistance when the persons engaged in passive resistance were being paid by Berlin in reality, it was when the inhabitants of the occupied area protested against passive resistance that Berlin yielded. Then she demanded concesions from France which it was impossible to consider.

Demand Guarantees

France will continue to demand sure guarantees of total reparations. France is willing to consider German proposals when it is certain that passive resistance has actually ceased and arrears of deliveries in kind are being paid. We had the Rhur industries as guarantee. Germany is trying to prevent their exploitation, but she cannot get it for herself and would be paralyzed.

LINDSAY Oct. 8. — While crossing the main street of the village of Linden, on Saturday night Mrs. A. Langdon was struck by an automobile, sustaining injuries which may prove fatal.

Both arms weer broken, and the injured woman sustained severe cuts and bruises. Having been in delicate health preceding the accident, it is feared that the results will be serious.

WOMEN NEED A REST ROOM IN THE CITY

Recommendation Made At Board of Health Meeting — City is Still Unsanitary With 1,200 Outdoor Closets.

HEALTH IS GOOD

One of Peterboro's most pressing needs, James Lynch said at this morning's meeting of the Board of Health is a rest room for women, and his statement was concurred in by the entire board. Various situations were discussed, but it was finally decided to leave the llocation of the proposed building to the City Council.

A resolution was framed by Mr. James Lynch and seconded by E. F. Mason recommending the project to the City Council. It was suggested that the cost be included in the Council's appropriation for 1924.

Members of the Board favoured the south east corner of the market square as a suitable site for the rest room.

Several reports were received of defective closets causing inconvenience to householders including complaints about 475 Murray street, owned by Charles Murty, 535 Roger Street, owned by Mrs. M. O'Connor and 532 Rogers Street. A blanket resolution was passed authorizing Dr. T. Young to take action towards compelling installation of sanitary conveniences in these houses.

Four applications were received for help in the installation of plumbing under the city's plan whereby the cost may be met in the tax payments. These were from H. Turner, 247 Princess Street, R. H. Baker, 175 Dublin Street H. J. Smith 209 Westcott Street and T. Lavery 427 George Street south. The usual recommendation was made and forwarded to the City Council, advising that the request be granted.

Unsanitary City.

Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral reported that 97 old outdoor closets have been done away with this year in favor of indoor sanitary installations as compared with 125 up to the end of November last year.

He is doubtful whether this years total will approximate the record made last year. There are still about 1200 unsanitary closets in the city Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton said.

Mr. Lynch remarked that Peterboro has a reputation for having unsatitary closets. "There should not be any houses in the city in that condition," he declared.

Anonymous Complaint

A complaint was received relative to the high cost of dental treatment but becauuse of its anonimity was discarded without action. The writer said that children come from school with lists of needed dental treatment which would cost $70 or $80. "How is a workingman earning 30 cent an hour for 50 hours a week to pay this enormous sum?" demanded the unknown writer.

The Provincial Board reported that the amount of chlorine used in the Peterborough water filtration plant is satisfactory. About 16 1-2 pounds daily is the amount used. It was recommended that the consumption be maintained at this figure.

LAST POST WAS SOUNDED OVER ROBT. BROWNE

Veteran Bandsman Accorded Military Honors And Hundreds Paid Respects at Cemetery — Served Overseas.

PIPERS' LAMENT

Another of Peterboro's veterans of the Great War was buried yesterday when military honors were accorded Robert Browne, bandsman.

Two band organizations were represented at full strength, the Peterborough Rasgers Band, with which the dead soldier was associated since 1886, and the Machine Gun Pipe Band. Comrades to the number of 100 joined in the funeral procession, mustered by Captain S. A. Whatley, and five hundred people gathered at the cemetery to pay tribute to the veteran.

On arrival at the graveside, the firing party under Sergt. Chate, presested arms while the casket was lowered into the ground, followed by a three round salute. The appealing quality in a soldier's funeral was added to yesterday by the playing of "Lord Lovat's Lament," by nine pipers and drummers, the firing party fixing bayonets and presenting arms. Last post was sounded at the graveside and the last plaintive note was caught up by a bugler a short distance away who sounded a message of cheer in the stirring "Reveille."

Missed by Comrades.

Robert Browne, through his long membership in the band organization in the city had made many friends, and was known as an excellent musician. He went overseas with the 93rd Battalion Band, but was invalided home and discharged as medically unfit. Unable to proceed to the front as he wished, the deceased did his part by working in a munition plant, where he was credited with being an energetic worker and a reliable man. He was a member of the G.W.V.A., and was highly regarded by Sid Whatley, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Association.

Among the officers who attended the funeral yesterday were Major N. H. Sutton, President of the G.W.V.A., Captain S. A. Whatley, in charge of the parade: Captain R. E. Layfield; Captain J. Davis; Capt. O. M. S. J. Abrahams; Lieut. W. G. Nicholls.

Major Sutton and Captain Whatly expressed their great appreciation of the presence of the Peterboro Rangers Band, under Lieut. W. Perrier, and the Machine Gun Pipe Band. They also thanked Mr. Stevenson and the Cemetery Board, for their permission to hold the funeral on Sunday, and Superintendent James of the Little Lake Cemetery, and those who helped in digging the grave, in order to make the Sunday funeral possible.

THE LATE T. Q. QUARTERMAINE.

Former Secretary of the Peterboro Board of Trade for 15 Years.

T. O. QUARTERMAINE HAS PASSED AWAY

One of Peterboro's Best Known Citizens—Came Here Forty Years Ago.

One of Peterborough's best known citizens passed away on Saturday evening, in the person of Thomas Qlintus Quartermaine, who died at Quintus Quartermaine, who died at his 73rd year.

The deceased who was with the Board of Trade from 1899 until 1913, was elected a life member in 1914. In 1898 he succeeded Hugh S. McDonald, secretary of the Board, and had the longest record of any secretary since organization, serving 15 years. He had the distinction of being the second man in the city to receive a life membership.

Mr. Quartermaine came to Canada 40 years ago. He was born in Oxford, England, and graduated from Oxford University. For twelve years he served as assistant in the Engineer's Office here and practiced as business accountant and auditor. He was a member of St. John's Anglican church for forty years.

There are left to mourn his loss his widow, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sherwood, Inglewood, one son, Guy Quartermaine of the Wm. Hamilton Co., Peterboro, and one daughter, Ruby, at home.

The funeral was held under Masonic auspices this afternoon from St. John's church, to the Little Lake cemetery, services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

The pall bearers were R. M. Stuart, Dr. Young, H. Rush, W. F. Johnston, C. Massey-Cook, W. J. Kent.

FIELD NIGHT IS BILLED FOR THE ROTARY CLUBS

District Organizations Will Send Delegations To Big Meeting Next Monday Night.

DR. McCUAIG'S TALK

At to-day luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club it was announced that there will be a field night next Monday night at which delegations will be present from the Lindsay, Oshawa, Cobourg and others clubs in the district. A speaker from New York will give an address, and each of the visiting clubs will put on a short programme. The dinner will be at 7.15 o'clock, and a large attendance of local Rotarians is expected.

Rotarian R. A. Browne gave some particulars in regard to the big concert under the auspices of the local Rotary Club in the Grand Opera House on October 29th. The visiting artists are Jules Falk, famous violinist, and Miss Vanette an Sweringer, soprano, and one of the finest musical evenings of the season is expected.

The speaker of the day was Dr. J. A. McCauig, noted eugenist, of New York, who gave a most virile address. His subject was the supreme business of life, and that he held to be the laying of foundations for the benefit of the generations to come. Dr. McCauig, in a few pointed sentences, showed how much the people of this age owe to their ancestors. They have to thank those who have gone before for practically every material benefit they enjoy to-day. The comforts and conveniences of the present period were due to the service and suffering of the people who had gone before. The speaker emphasized the importance of realizing that the supreme business of life was not aggrandizement, the making of money or things of that kind, but to hold one's shoulders so high that the generations to come could leap into higher things, into Heaven itself. No man died who lived for the benefit of those who were to come after him. Lincoln to-day influenced more lives than any statesman who walks the streets of Washington.

In conclusion, Dr. McCauig, in calling attention to the public addresses he is giving, and urging the attendance of Rotary members, said that he had come to Peterboro as an expert to give advice along the lines of tte technique of application. The general principles in regard to the relationship of the sexes were well-known, but there was a certain technique that must be understood, and it was on this point that the object of his mission centred. He stressed the conditions that existed after the war with the world pitiably short of its greatest asset, babies, and showed how serious had been war's blow in this regard. The conditions made it necessary that the subject should be thoroughly understood, and he therefore urged the Rotarians to hear his message.

President V. J. McElderry presided to-day, and there were a number of visitors, including Rev. Robert Pogue and Mr. G. H. Pennefather, of Peterboro.

Rotarian Reg. Turner called attention to an invitation received by the Young People's Band of the Salvation Army to play in Massey Hall, Toronto, and suggested that a donation be made towards the expenses of the trip, a fund for which had already started. He asked Rotarians to do their part in the movement.

Fire Blazed Whole Of Saturday Night Haliburton Village

LINDSAY, October 8.—(Special to The Examiner.)— Fire blazed all through Saturday night in the village of Haliburton, consuming four houses and damaging several others. There is no fire-fighting apparatus in the village, and a bucket brigade proved ineffective in the face of the big blaze.

Owing to the difficulty in communication with this north country, only meagre reports of the fire are available. It is learned to-day that H. Horsley lost his residence, valued at $2,500, and K. Harvey's residence was destroyed with a loss of $3,000. John Horsley suffered loss estimated at $500 and B. Fry lost $200. A blacksmith shop and a wood working shop were destroyed.

Although insufficient to quench the flames in these building, the efforts of the villagers in carrying pails of water saved the remainder of the village.

CRY REPUBLIC IN RHINELAND

Separatists Intend Establishment of Separate State at Early Date—Marks on Toboggan.

PARIS, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press.)— Separatists intend to attempt the establishment of a Rhineland Republic at an early date, says a Mayence despatch to Le Journal.

The Republic will be proclaimed simultaneously in all principal cities on the left bank of the Rhine and Ruhr, according to the correspondent. He adds that there is good reason to believe it will be successful, separatists having made their plans carefully and making elaborate precatuoins to avoid bloodshed.

Weakest in World.

BERLIN, Oct. 8.— The German mark to-day fell below the Russian ruble and became the weakest money in the world.

Marks neared a billion to the dollar as the banks opened to-day and quotation at that figure was expected before closing this afternoon. At the closing Saturday rubles were quoted at 830,000,000 to the dollar, while the mark passed 900,000,000. The Polish mark was third in the list, quoted at 470,000,000 to the dollar.

Resume Work in Ruhr.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—Negotiations between representatives of German industrial groups and Franco-Belgian authorities of occupation, looking to-ward complete resumption of work in the Ruhr and deliveries in kind on reparation account, are in a fair way to succeed, it was said at the Foreign Office to-day.

LLOYD GEORGE IS IN GOOD SPIRITS TODAY

Gets Enthusiastic Welcome in Montreal — Hoarseness is Better.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8. — Canadian Press Staff Correspondent. — After having breakfast this morning Lloyd George visited Mount Royal Arena, where he spoke this afternoon.

Lloyd George was in good spirits to-day, having recovered somewhat from the fatigue of his strenuous week-end. The hoarseness complaid ed of Sunday had subsided.

After leaving the arena Lloyd George was taken on a tour of the city. He visited the Montreal stock exchange, where he was given an enthusiastic welcome from the big crowd which assembled when the approach of the distinguished visitor was announced upon the ticker.

A gorgeous bouquet of flowers was presented to Dame Lloyd George.

DR. J. A. M'CUAIG LECTURES HERE ABOUT MARRIAGE

Refusing to Mix Truth With Metaphor The Gifted Orator Swayed Large Audiences.

HUMAN EUGENICS

"I am sometimes asked, why be so blunt? Why not mix truth with metaphor? Why not sift the light through myth and tradition and lore of antiquity? There is reason. It is because my ears are full of the cries of my own children. It is because my hands have touched and are dripping with new blood. The answer is the emergency—emergency that blots out everything, but God and need."

So asserted Dr. J. Aspinall McCuaig as with a simplicity that brought his meaning within the reach of the mind of a little child, he swayed his audiences with a torrent of irresistible logic as he swept from point to point in his remarkable addresses delivered in Peterborough yesterday.

With each service Dr. McCuaig's audiences grew in appreciation, thus establishing the expectation that before the end of the series is reached no house will hold his audiences.

To-night at 8 o'clock, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Dr. McCuaig will deliver the first of a series of his popular lectures on marriage. His subject will be "Nagging Wives and Overbearing Husbands." In graphic effectiveness and popular appeal this lecture is said to surpass anything upon the Chautauqua platform or moving picture screen.

To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the same church Dr. McCuaig will deliver the second of his popular lectures to women when he will speak on "The Care of the Boy."

Sunday Morning.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, telling the simple story of David as a shepherd lad slaying Goliath, the champion of the Philistines, Dr. McCuaig emphasised the point that God to-day is in need of men to champion His cause. "There are times when the feet of God are tied so that He cannot run, and His hands tied so that He cannot strike, because He lacks the man by whom He can run and by whom He can strike."

In pressing home his subject of "God's Need of Man," Dr. McCuaig said in part:

"You remember the story of David and Goliath. It is the story of how once upon a time, for forty days the armies of the living God were openly defied and reproached and belittled not because Jehavoh was not strong to deliver—but because He lacked the man by whom He could hurl back the Philistine.

"Strange as it may seem, God has need of human instrumentality. All history bears testimony to His dependence upon man in His dealings with men. He would bring a people out of Egypt — He must have a Moses. Out of the darkness He would call the Gentiles—He must have a Paul. The story of God's dealings with the generations has been the story of Abraham and Moses and Noah and Joshua and David and the prophets.

"God has need of men to-day. There are human elements upon which He is dependent. There is human agency without which He is limited."

Audience of Men.

PARLEY TODAY EMPIRE HEADS IS MOMENTOUS

Unity of Dominions with Great Britain in Common Foreign Policy the Question.

CANADA'S CASE FIRST

LONDON, Oct. 8. (Special cable to the Canadian Press by George Hambleton, staff correspondent.) — The Imperial Conference opened discussion to-day that will be momentous. The tangled history of the Ruhr, the breach in the entente, Lord Curzon's speech, and the bitter rejoinder from France, are before the Dominion Premiers, and this morning they began to state their views.

"Will the Dominion Premiers endorse Lord Curzon's conclusions that there is nothing to be done beyond waiting on events?" the Times asks. It follows the query with an expression of confidence that conference will decide to lead, not to follow.

The newspaper argues that Prime Minister Baldwin might have made a settlement, but by his arrangement for refunding of British debt to the United States he threw away the only weapon he had to persuade France to make a settlemetn in Europe, and the possibility of getting much better terms from the United States.

Common Foreign Policy.

A desire that the Dominions should be united with Great Britain in formulating a common foreign policy is finding wide expression here. A brief citation from the London Daily Telegraph will indicate this tendency:

"It is to-day," says the Telegraph. "An accepted fixed condition of our foreign policy, as it is of all self-governing states of the empire, and that in framing it the government of these states must actively participate. This is the object of the presence of the Dominion Prime Ministers in London to-day."

How far representatives of the Dominions concur, or where they differ on the question of general participation in Britain's foreign policy, will not be evident until the discussion closes.

Canada's case will be stated first. As representative of the senior Dominions, Premier King has first word among the premiers. He was accompanied this morning by Sir Lomer Gouin, the Canadian Minister of Justice, and Hon. George P. Graham, Canadian Minister of Railways and Canals.

COST $10,000 TO MAIL A CIRCULAR

Pre-War Cost of Sending a Letter to Peterboro.

Haarmann & Langhoff, of Essen, Germany, desiring to advertise their merchandise with The Examiner, posted a circular on 19th September, which cost them, for postage alone, 40,000 marks.

At the pre-war rate of exchange this would be approximately $10,000.

In 1914 this same circular would have been carried by the Post Office for 5 cents.

The envelope which arrived to-day measures only 5 inches by 4 inches, and probably would not accommodate the number of stamps necessary to its delivery, so a post-mark, "Deutsches Reich 40,000," is the only sign that the 1914 equivalent of $10,000 had been paid for its transmission.

LINDSAY MAN IS ON THE MISSING LIST

LINDSAY, Oct. 8. — Lindsay police are to-day searching for Charles Westerdale, who disappeared without trace yesterday evening.

Westerdale had been in the employ of Dr. White for several years and had supper at his employer's residence yesterday. He then disappeared leaving his money on the table.

The missing man is English, and he had no relatives in this country. He has been acting strangely of late.

His clothes were found near the pump house this morning, also a note bidding good-bye to friends. Later his body was taken from the river.

Perhaps our radio sounds like it does sound because the music passes through liquor airplanes.

Cried Earthquake Stampede Followed Sixty Were Injured

LONDON, October 8 (Canadian Press).—Shouts of "Earthquake, earthquake," yesterday in narrow Solater Street, Bethnal Green, the noted centre in the East-end for the sale of animals for domestic pets, caused a wild stampede, in which 60 people were trampled, hundreds of caged animals destroyed, and quantities of miscellaneous property ruined or stolen.

It is said the whole affair was organised by a gang of thieves.

Traders say that an auction was in progress, when a band of toughs burst in from a side street, and rushing into the throng of marketers, yelled 'Earthquake, earthquake."

The crowd fled screaming, while the stalls were overthrown, many of the caged birds and animals being trampled to death.

In the stampede, 60 persons were injured.

TO STAND PAT SAYS POINCARE

Germany Must Pay in Full For Invasion of France and For Other Crimes.

PARIS Oct. 8. —(United Press). —In what was widely accepted as a reference to Lloyd George, Premier Poincare told a "former Premier' Sunday, that France is going to stand pat until paid.

"The former Premier of the Allies has undertaken weekly news paper articles in campaign against France" Poincare declared in speech at Pierre Fitte-Suraire." But there are many people in France who will not rest tranquil until Germany has effaced all trace of her passage through our territory and of her crimes.

Showing that he does not believe that cash payments will be forthcming from Germany immediately, Poincare referred to a new loan which will be floated for the devastated regions.' I am confident that all good citizens will subscribe to the loan, he said." It is necessary for a most pressing program."

"In a latter speech at Ligny-en-Baris, the French Premier referred to the Rhineland separatist movement, denouncing the German police for attacking the crowd of separatist demontsrators at Dusselldorf, which included women and children.

Defends The Army.

Defending the conduct of the French army of occupation toward the German national propaganda, he pointed out that the Germans killed at Duseldorf were slain by German police and not French soldiers.

Poincaire ironically discussed the German Cabinet crisis, declaring that the German even attributed the crisis to France.' They feel that we should have accepted vain words and contradictory measures instead of money. He said "we should have believed that Germany opposed passive resistance when the persons engaged in passive resistance were being paid by Berlin in reality, it was when the inhabitants of the occupied area protested against passive resistance that Berlin yielded. Then she demanded concesions from France which it was impossible to consider.

Demand Guarantees

France will continue to demand sure guarantees of total reparations. France is willing to consider German proposals when it is certain that passive resistance has actually ceased and arrears of deliveries in kind are being paid. We had the Rhur industries as guarantee. Germany is trying to prevent their exploitation, but she cannot get it for herself and would be paralyzed.

Both arms weer broken, and the injured woman sustained severe cuts and bruises. Having been in delicate health preceding the accident, it is feared that the results will be serious.

WOMEN NEED A REST ROOM IN THE CITY

Recommendation Made At Board of Health Meeting — City is Still Unsanitary With 1,200 Outdoor Closets.

HEALTH IS GOOD

One of Peterboro's most pressing needs, James Lynch said at this morning's meeting of the Board of Health is a rest room for women, and his statement was concurred in by the entire board. Various situations were discussed, but it was finally decided to leave the llocation of the proposed building to the City Council.

One of Peterboro's Best Known Citizens—Came Here Forty Years Ago.

One of Peterborough's best known citizens passed away on Saturday evening, in the person of Thomas Qlintus Quartermaine, who died at Quintus Quartermaine, who died at his 73rd year.

The deceased who was with the Board of Trade from 1899 until 1913, was elected a life member in 1914. In 1898 he succeeded Hugh S. McDonald, secretary of the Board, and had the longest record of any secretary since organization, serving 15 years. He had the distinction of being the second man in the city to receive a life membership.

Mr. Quartermaine came to Canada 40 years ago. He was born in Oxford, England, and graduaged from Oxford University. For twelve years he served as assistant in the Engineer's Office here and practiced as business accountant and auditor. He was a member of St. John's Anglican church for forty years.

There are left to mourn his loss his widow, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sherwood, Inglewood, one son, Guy Quartermaine of the Wm. Hamilton Co., Peterboro, and one daughter, Ruby, at home.

The funeral was held under Masonic auspices this afternoon from St. John's church, to the Little Lake cemetery, services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

The pall bearers were R. M. Stuart, Dr. Young, H. Rush, W. F. Johnston, C. Massey-Cook, W. J. Kent.

FIELD NIGHT IS BILLED FOR THE ROTARY CLUBS

District Organizations Will Send Delegations To Big Meeting Next Monday Night.

DR. McCUAIG'S TALK

At to-day luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club it was announced that there will be a field night next Monday night at which delegations will be present from the Lindsay, Oshawa, Cobourg and others clubs in the district. A speaker from New York will give an address, and each of the visiting clubs will put on a short programme. The dinner will be at 7.15 o'clock, and a large attendance of local Rotarians is expected.

Rotarian R. A. Browne gave some particulars in regard to the big concert under the auspices of the local Rotary Club in the Grand Opera House on October 29th. The visiting artists are Jules Falk, famous violinist, and Miss Vanette an Sweringer, soprano, and one of the finest musical evenings of the season is expected.

The speaker of the day was Dr. J. A. McCauig, noted eugenist, of New York, who gave a most virile address. His subject was the supreme business of life, and that he held to be the laying of foundations for the benefit of the generations to come. Dr. McCauig, in a few pointed sentences, showed how much the people of this age owe to their ancestors. They have to thank those who have gone before for practically every material benefit they enjoy to-day. The comforts and conveniences of the present period were due to the service and suffering of the people who had gone before. The speaker emphasized the importance of realizing that the supreme business of life was not aggrandizement, the making of money or things of that kind, but to hold one's shoulders so high that the generations to come could leap into higher things, into Heaven itself. No man died who lived for the benefit of those who were to come after him. Lincoln to-day influenced more lives than any statesman who walks the streets of Washington.

In conclusion, Dr. McCauig, in calling attention to the public addresses he is giving, and urging the attendance of Rotary members, said that he had come to Peterboro as an expert to give advice along the lines of tte technique of application. The general principles in regard to the relationship of the sexes were well-known, but there was a certain technique that must be understood, and it was on this point that the object of his mission centred. He stressed the conditions that existed after the war with the world pitiably short of its greatest asset, babies, and showed how serious had been war's blow in this regard. The conditions made it necessary that the subject should be thoroughly understood, and he therefore urged the Rotarians to hear his message.

President V. J. McElderry presided to-day, and there were a number of visitors, including Rev. Robert Pogue and Mr. G. H. Pennefather, of Peterboro.

Rotarian Reg. Turner called attention to an invitation received by the Young People's Band of the Salvation Army to play in Massey Hall, Toronto and suggested that a donation be made towards the expenses of the trip, a fund for which had already started. He asked Rotarians to do their part in the movement.

Two Eskimos Must Go To The Gallows For Triple Slaying

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press.) — Tatanigana and Alikomjak, the two Eskimos convicted of the murder of Corporal Doak, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, of Otto Binder, a Hudson Bay Company's trader, and of Pugnama, a fellow Eskimo, will pay the death penalty at Herschell Island on December 7.

After considering their cases, the government has finally refused to commute their sentence to life imprisonment.

They are the first Eskimos to be executed in Canada.

Fire Blazed Whole Of Saturday Night Haliburton Village

LINDSAY, October 8.—(Special to The Examiner.)— Fire blazed all through Saturday night in the village of Haliburton, consuming four houses and damaging several others. There is no fire-fighting apparatus in the village, and a bucket brigade proved ineffective in the face of the big blaze.

Owing to the difficulty in communication with this north country, only meagre reports of the fire are available. It is learned to-day that H. Horsley lost his residence, valued at $2,500, and K. Harvey's residence was destroyed with a loss of $3,000. John Horsley suffered loss estimated at $500 and B. Fry lost $200. A blacksmith shop and a wood working shop were destroyed.

Although insufficient to quench the flames in these building, the efforts of the villagers in carrying pails of water saved the remainder of the village.

CRY REPUBLIC IN RHINELAND

Separatists Intend Establishment of Separate State at Early Date—Marks on Toboggan.

PARIS, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press.)— Separatists intend to attempt the establishment of a Rhineland Republic at an early date, says a Mayence despatch to Le Journal.

The Republic will be proclaimed simultaneously in all principal cities on the left bank of the Rhine and Ruhr, according to the correspondent. He adds that there is good reason to believe it will be successful, separatists having made their plans carefully and making elaborate precatnoins to avoid bloodshed.

Weakest in World.

BERLIN, Oct. 8.— The German mark to-day fell below the Russian ruble and became the weakest money in the world.

At the closing Saturday rubles were quoted at 830,000,000 to the dollar, while the mark passed 900,000,000. The Polish mark was third in the list, quoted at 470,000,000 to the dollar.

DR. J. A. M'CUAIG LECTURES HERE ABOUT MARRIAGE

Refusing to Mix Truth With Metaphor The Gifted Orator Swayed Large Audiences.

HUMAN EUGENICS

"I am sometimes asked, why be so blunt? Why not mix truth with metaphor? Why not sift the light through myth and tradition and lore of antiquity? There is reason. It is because my ears are full of the cries of my own children. It is because my hands have touched and are dripping with new blood. The answer is the emergency—emergency that blots out everything, but God and need."

So asserted Dr. J. Aspinall McCuaig as with a simplicity that brought his meaning within the reach of the mind of a little child, he swayed his audiences with a torrent of irresistible logic as he swept from point to point in his remarkable addresses delivered in Peterborough yesterday.

With each service Dr. McCuaig's audiences grew in appreciation, thus establishing the expectation that before the end of the series is reached no house will hold his audiences.

To-night at 8 o'clock, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Dr. McCuaig will deliver the first of a series of his popular lectures on marriage. His subject will be "Nagging Wives and Overbearing Husbands." In graphic effectiveness and popular appeal this lecture is said to surpass anything upon the Chautauqua platform or moving picture screen.

To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the same church Dr. McCuaig will deliver the second of his popular lectures to women when he will speak on "The Care of the Boy."

Sunday Morning.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, telling the simple story of David as a shepherd lad slaying Goliath, the champion of the Philistines, Dr. McCuaig emphasised the point that God to-day is in need of men to champion His cause. "There are times when the feet of God are tied so that He cannot run, and His hands tied so that He cannot strike, because He lacks the man by whom He can run and by whom He can strike."

In pressing home his subject of "God's Need of Man," Dr. McCuaig said in part:

"You remember the story of David and Goliath. It is the story of how once upon a time, for forty days the armies of the living God were openly defied and reproached and belittled not because Jehavoh was not strong to deliver—but because He lacked the man by whom He could hurl back the Phillistine.

"Strange as it may seem, God has need of human instrumentality. All history bears testimony to His dependence upon man in His dealings with men. He would bring a people out of Egypt — He must have a Moses. Out of the darkness He would call the Gentiles—He must have a Paul. The story of God's dealings with the generations has been the story of Abraham and Moses and Noah and Joshua and David and the prophets.

"God has need of men to-day. There are human elements upon which He is dependent. There is human agency without which He is limited."

Audience of Men.

STATE OF EUROPE IS REACTING UPON NEW WORLD FARMER

Depression Ahead Unless the Old World Recovers Stability and Foreign Buying Power—Demand Not Based on Export Volume, Says Experts.

Statements of those who have been pointing to the large volume of agricultural exports during the post-war period, with low prices prevailing, as evidence that little good would come to the American farmer with better economic conditions brought to Europe, were given a severe set-back by the economists and statisticians summoned by H. C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, last week, to consider this and other phases of the agricultural situation.

Brief bits of the summary of their report carried in early despatches do not half tell the story back of the complete finding of the committee, writes F. W. R., in the Baltimore Sun.

"It needs to be emphasized," the committee on foreign demand pointed out in its full report, "that demand is not measured solely by the volume of exports. Since 1920 Europe has purchased very large quantities of American wheat and meat, but this does not mean that the European demand for such commodities has been intense, regardless of price.

"The truth is that Europe would and could take large quantities of American wheat, only provided the price was low.

In studying demand we, therefore, are concerned both with European requirements for food and European ability to purchase the food required at prices satisfactory to American producers."

Unless the Ruhr situation is cleared up speedily and a definite turn for the better takes place in Europe, the committee stated, it appears highly probable that Europe will have less buying power in our markets during the next crop year than she had during the last. In fact, its entire report has a pessimistic complexion, with the American farmer to expect only little in the way of satisfactory financial returns until the whole situation is changed for the better.

Three factors, primary in character, will determine European demand this year for American foodstuffs, according to the committee: (1) The essential food requirements, which depend in part upon the crop conditions in Europe; (2) the competition of other food-producing areas, and (3) the purchasing power of Europe.

Agriculture Recovering

"The European nations are approaching gradually their pre-war level in agricultural production," said the economists, "especially importing nations, which are endeavoring to make themselves independent of outside food supplies.

"Twenty-one countries in 1909 to 1913 harvested an average of 67,000,000 58,000,000 in 1920, and then rose again to 60,000,000 in 1922. Eleven countries that harvested 48,000,000 acres in 1920 and 51,180,000 acres in 1922, have reported 52,180,000 acres for 1923. Moreover, crop conditions are much more favorable this year. Revival of production in Europe is much more manifest in agriculture than in manufacture."

Increased agricultural production in the United States and certain other countries curing the war and maintained since then, while there was a reduced production in European countries during the war, places this country on the lower side of the balance, now that production is on the increase among Europe's surplus-producing countries, the committee says.

For example, the total wheat area in the United States, Canada, India, Australia and Argentina, was 116,000,000 acres in 1913, as against 137,000,000 acres in 1923. Increased production in this region has more than off set the decline of production in Russia. With production in most European countries accelerated greatly this year the economists see little to be optimistic over in the near future as far as export demand is concerned.

According to the report, Europe's purchasing power will depend upon the volume of her exports, the amount of her earnings on investments abroad, on shipping and other services, and upon credits extended to her export and import account.

The United States continues to have a favorable balance with Europe; that is, we export more goods to Europe than we receive from her. Our unfavorable balance of trade in recent months has grown out of an excess of imports from countries other than Europe. The balance against Europe, however, has diminished moderately.

In view of the probability that the current recession in business in the United States will diminish imports from Europe somewhat, and in view of the acute Ruhr situation, the committee concluded it is not probable that the rest of the year will show any gain for Europe in goods shipped to the United States.

Not Promising Outlook

"When other means of making payments for American foodstuffs are considered the situation looks even less promising," the report says. "We received less gold net in the first five months of 1923 than in the first five months of 1922. The balance on shipping moved moderately in Europe's favor.

"Passports issued to tourists in the first six months of 1922 were 94,494, but only 80,787 were issued in the corresponding months of 1923. There is no evidence that immigrants' remittances have increased in 1923. Various other minor items show no gain for Europe. Moreover, the total of foreign loans placed in the American market in 1923 to date is very decidedly less than the total for the corresponding period of 1922, and this item is of such importance as to more than offset any gains Europe might have elsewhere."

An additional factor adverse to European buying power, as brought out in the conclusion of the report, is the necessity which the British Government is under of making large remittances to meet interest and amortize the principal of her debt to the United States—a factor which did not exist during the calendar year of 1922.

The report on the foreign situation was signed by four of the best economists in this country. H. G. Moulton, chairman of the committee, is head of the Institute of Economists, located in Washington. He has been considered a leader in economic thought. Other members of the committee are B. M. Anderson, Jr., of the Chase National Bank, New York; H. W. Morehouse, head of the research department of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Dr. G. F. Warren, of Cornell University.

TOLSTOI AND MUSIC

Many musicians resent Tolstoi's attitude to music as revealed in "The Kreutzer Sonata," one of the most famous of his novels; but Romaine Rolland, the French author and critic tells us that the attitude of Tolstoi in respect of music was the outcome of his fear of the art.

"He was far from disliking music," says Rolland in his book on Tolstoi. "Only the things one loves are feared as Tolstoi feared the power of music. Remember what a place the memories of music hold in childhood, and above all in family happiness, in which the whole cycle of love, from its springtide to its autumn, is unrolled to the phrases of the 'Sonata quasi una fantasia' of Beethoven. Although Tolstoi had studied music very indifferently, it used to move him to tears, and at certain periods of his life he passionately abandoned himself to its influence. In 1858 he founded a Musical Society, which in later years became the Moscow Conservatoire..... It was really fear he felt; inspired by the stress of those forces which shook him to the roots of his being. In the world of music he felt his moral will, his reason, and all reality of life dissolve.

SKILL

Vladimir De Pachmann, celebrated Russian virtuoso, sits fondling the keys of his beloved piano. A reporter asks him how many hours a day he practices. He answers: "How foolish! Some days I play for 19 hours, other days one hour."

So he keeps in trim by playing only when the mood strikes him. That's when all of us do the best work. What a pity life isn't arranged so we'd have to work only when we wanted to. Still, if it were, few of us would ever do a tap.

DIVORCE CASE STRS DETROIT FOUR HUNDRED

Wife of Heir to Scripps Millons Alleges Brutal Treatment — Wed in Windsor.

WINISOR, Ont, Oct. 6. — A simple ntation on the calendar of Wayne ircuit court Detroit, of a motion o advance the divorce case of Ruth Ma de Scripps vs. James Scripps as brought to light some of the detas of what is expected to be most srtling divorce case tried in Detroit years and which is expected to sr society of the Michigan metropois.

The mance which led to the marriage bgan in Windsor and Amherstbug in the Fall of 1921 and culminated in December of that year when petty Ruth Faude De Voy, then a few months under 21 years of age was married to James Scripps eldest son of William E. Scripps millionaire Detroit publisher. The remony took place in this discussion was performed by Rev. mentous. ker. This marriage, acthe Ruhr, th young Scripps, was not Lord Curzon's binding to suit the bride rejoinder from ple went through a secge service in Detroit at the Dominion ce of Bishop Michael morning they of the Roman Catholic di- views. ichigan. The bridegroom at th me was a high school stud-

Blighted Courtship

In the bill for divorce now on file young Scripps is charged by his wif with "extreme cruelty," but behind hat simple charge is a story of a blighted youthful courtship that, while it lasted was fast and furious.

"Hysteria" and "children of her imagination,' says young Mr. Scripps in his cross bill filed by the security Trust Company, of Detroit, as his guardian ad litem.

Following the marriage, the youngsters went to live for a short time at the home of the bridegroom's parents on Trumbell Avenue.

"We left on January 4," says Mrs. Scripps, in her bill of complaint, "for Roxbury, Conn., where the defendant was attending preparatory school. A short time later the defendant seemed highly delighted when he learned that I was to become a mother. But later his attitude changed and he began a course of such cruel and inhuman abuse that plaintiff was forced to leave."

According to the bill, Young Scripps began his unexpected treatment of his wife when they were driving back to Detroit, with Mr. Scripp's parents.

"This is to be our honeymoon," Scripps is alleged to have told her. And the apparently happy party made a tour of the New England States before returning to Detroit.

A Rough Ride

"On Sunday, June 18, 1922," continues the bill, "defendant invited plaintiff for a ride. It was a cold, rainy day and he took defendant over the roughest roads he could find and exposed her to greatest discomfort."

On another occasion it is charged he shook her violently by the shoulders and at a still later date he took her to the peak of a hill to admire the surrounding scenery and, when he reached the top he clutched her by the hand and raced her down in a manner she couldn't understand. His own parents remonstrated on another occasion according to the bill, when he forced his wife into a bath tub filled with hot water and held her there until she was "weak and exhausted."

The Scripps separated June 29 1922, after only six months' of married life.

Scripps was only a minor— 18 years of age— and she was a girl 3 years his senior, says the answer and cross bill in defence of the suit.

"Defendant was in Detroit on his vacation from school," says the answer. "He had been in society for some years and had a fairly large acquaintance in the younger set."

Plaintiff exhibited a fondness for the defendant and led him to believe that unless they were married without delay she would be subjected to a powerful and irrestible pressure to get her to agree to marry another person residing outside the state. Believing this he proposed immediate marriage and it met with her instant approval.

"From the time they went to live at the home of his parents until they separated, their relations were characterized by harmony and contentment.

"About June 28, however defendant (Mr. Scripps) had occasion to note the fact that plaintiff was possessed of an unenviable habit of not dealing frankly with defendant in certain unimportant social matters He pointed out specific examples which might have caused real embarrassment and humiliation to him and told her that she ought to try and break herself of this tendency.

"She thereon fell into a great rage and left the room. When he followed her he found she had gone and, except for one telephone conversation in which he asked her to return, they have never conversed since."

Answering her charges more explicity Mr. Scripps through the Security Trust Company, says in his answer:

"Defendant is completely dumbfounded by such accusations. No such incidents or experiences ever occurred. They exist only in her imagination."

Mr. Scripps at the time of the filing of the answer declared he had no knowledge, reliable information of the fact that a child was to be born but he declared that although he had "no means of his own, proper care would be provided for the infant" with the aid of relatives.

The child has since been born.

Mrs. Scripps asked only for separate maintenance in her original suit but in his cross bill Mr. Scripps asks for an absolute divorce.

The wealth of the Spripps family is estimated at many millions of dollars.

HOME BANK ARRESTS OPEN INVESTIGATION

Right Hon. W. S. Fielding Says Matter is Now in Hands of Lawyers and Courts.

TORONTO, October 8 (Canadian Press). — The Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, acting Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, left Toronto on Saturday night for Ottawa. Just before his departure, he gave a short statement concerning Home Bank affairs.

"With regard," said Mr. Fielding, "to the prosecution of the bank's officials, there is little to be added to the statements made at the first stage of the proceedings. Initial action against the president of the Home Bank was taken by the Finance Department, and H. J. Scott, K.C., of Toronto was instructed to represent the Dominion authorities. The administration of the criminal law in Ontario devolves on Attorney-General Hon. W. F. Nickle. The action taken by him includes the prosecution of the directors and the officials.

"There will be no conflict between the Dominion and Provincial authorities," continued Mr. Fielding with emphasis. "Mr. Scott, representing the Dominion Government, will cordially co-operate with Hon. Mr. Nickle. Trial of these cases should open up the whole business of the bank and bring about a thorough investigation of all transactions having any bearing on the bank's failure. The whole matter, therefore, is now in the hands of lawyers and of Courts.

SHOT PRIEST DEAD AT SIDE OF ALTAR

Horrified Worshippers Witness Tragedy When Woman Avenges Supposed Wrong.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8. Canadian Press. —Wrought up to the point of murder over a fancied wrong to her husband, a Greek Catholic priest in Ramey, Pa., a wrong which forced Lim to abandon his parish in Chicago, and go to Ramey, Mrs. Emily Strutsky, 44 years old, shot and killed Rev. Basil Steistuk, 36 years old, as she knelt before him at the altar of St. Nichol's Greek Catholic church, to make confession yesterday. Three hundred horrified worshippers witnessed the tragedy.

Mrs. Strutnsky walked down the aisle before the nine o'clock mass to the altar. She knetl before the priest at the side of the altar, in full view of the congregation as though to give confession. Instead, she drew a heavy calibred revolver from the folds of her dress, and fired five shots into the priest standing before her. She was placed under arrest.

She said that her husband had over 100,000 with which he built St. Nichol's Greek Cathedral. Then came rumors that Rev. Father Steistuk was warning his congrgation not to attend the new church. The woman alleged that Father Steistuk told his congregation that Strutncky had collected over $100,000 and then had appropriated part of it to his own use.

COAL PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED AT SESSION

ROCHESTER, N.Y., October 8 (United Press). — The coal problems of the nation will be considered in a conference here on 12th to 13th October. The meeting will be that of the executive board of the American Engineering Council of the Federated American Engineering Societies.

The chief interest of the meeting will be the discussion of coal storage as a solution of fuel troubles. Recently ex-Governor Sproul, of Pennsylvania, in an interview in England, advocated that the Federal Government devote $100,000,000 to providing storage facilities to prevent congestion and to ensure a steady instead of a seasonal flow of coal.

A report by the Federation's committee on coal shortage will be made as a result of investigation by 100 local committees all over the United States.

THRONGS IN MONTREAL ROYALLY ACCLAIMED THE LITTLE WELSHMAN

Cheers of Great Concourse of People Smothered the Welsh National Anthem

ARRIVED LATE.

MONTREAL, October 8. (Canadian Press. — Right Hon. David Lloyd George, most renowned of British war-time statesmen, was accorded a magnificent welcome here on Saturday night, when the special train which conveyed him from New York steamed into the Bonaventure station at 9:20.

Thousands of people thronged the terminal, its environs, and the streets leading to it, in the hope of catching a glimpse of the man whose name was so familiar the world over during the dark war years.

As he left the train with his wife and daughter and came in view of the great concourse which awaited him, cheers arose which seemed to shake the depot and which completely drowned the strains of the Welsh National Anthem, played by a band at the end of the platform.

Montreal's welcome to Britain's war time premier was of a superlative character seldom extended in Canada. In it was plainly discernible an echo of the rejoicing which greeted the victorious termination of the war in which Lloyd George played such a prominent part. There was not a discordant note in the ovation and it was considered representative of many races, creeds and shades of opinion.

When Lloyd George and his party stepped from the train they were met by Mayor Martin, Sir Arthur Currie, Lord Atholstan, Lord Shaughnessy, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, J. W. Ross, president of the Montreal Board of Trade, Hon. Walter Mitchell; Senators Casgrain, Foster and Webster; Brig.-Generals Dods, Armstrong and McCuaig; Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Sir Charles Gordon, Col. Meighen, Grant Hall, Pierre Bellanger, chief constable of the city, and many other men prominent in the social, business and public life of Montreal.

Ubiquitous Photographers.

The ex-Premier, Dame Margaret, his wife, and daughter, Megan, acceded to the request of the press photographers, to pose for a group picture immediately after stepping from the train. As soon as the flash of light announced that the photographs had been taken, a line was cleared by the police along the platform, and taking the arm of his daughter, Lloyd George advanced to the gates of the station, pressed on either side by cheering crowds.

Dr. Edwin R. Embree, general secretary of the Foundation, has inspected the hospitals of Sofia, and conferred with the Minister of Health and a number of local physicians.

THREE CONVICTS ARE FOUND DEAD

Attack by Prison Guards On Escaped Murderers Results in Six Deaths.

Western Kentucky State Penitentiary, Eddyville, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press). — Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith and Harry Ferland, three convicted murderers, were found dead when attackers entered the barricaded mess hall here late on Saturday.

The gunmen were found dead on the second story of the mess hall when the storming party of seven men entered the building after it had been flooded with high - proof ammonia.

Walters evidently had been killed by a bullet during the siege. Griffith and Ferland were dead from pistol bullet wounds through the heart, suggesting they had committed suicide to escape death from ammonia.

Guards Killed.

Death from wounds increased to three the number of prison guards slain by the desperadoes in their dash for freedom early on Wednesday. Failing to get clear of the prison grounds the desperate trio took cover in the mess hall, and since then have held at bay prison guards, members of Troop C of the National Guard machine gun company from Hopkinsville and citizen marksmen who volunteered their aid to the authorities.

Wind Spoils Gas Attack.

Sometime before noon, at a signal from Captain Allen Radford, commander of the troops, the machine gun fire began. Under its cover three soldiers advanced behind hastily constructed iron shields and attempted to fill the place with gas. Some of it was released on the lower floor, but it flared back, apparently due to a gust of wind, and almost overcame the leader, who was forced to fleet and abandon the attempt.

The machine, rifle and shotgun fire continued steadily for twenty minutes. At the expiration of that period firing ceased and an order was megaphoned to the convicts to surrender. There was no reply.

SOUTH AFRICA ENDS TROUBLES

National and Political Difficulties Have Been Ironed Out, Smuts Says.

LONDON, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Smuts of the South African Union laid the foundation stone Saturday for the South African pavilion on the British Empire Exhibition Grounds at Wembley and delivered a speech which was noteworthy as being his first public address since arriving in England to attend the Imperial Conference.

Premier Smuts said he had great hopes for the future of South Africa, which had been through an era of great trouble, national and political, such as New Zealand or Canada had not experienced. That was now finished and South Africa to-day was a country about whose future none had the least doubt. The future was safe, and all that was now necessary was to move forward to make up the time lost. South Africa was only now in the process of reaching some of the richest parts of the country. Settlement began around Cape Town and in the process of time moved eastward and northward and was now coming into touch with parts of Africa of far greater resources than those previously occupied and probably capable of the greatest development.

The Union Premier emphasized that the potentialities of South African cotton were even greater than wool. He said that South Africa, having ended her troubles, was now determined to turn her attention to internal development and new markets were necessary for her products. Lack of European markets had caused a congestion in England, where South Africa wanted a place in the sun. He believed a comparison of South African products with those of other Dominions would show South Africa to be one of the best and most promising parts of the Empire.

Premier Smuts described the Empire exhibition to be held next year as part of a great campaign of self-development which was occurring in the Empire. The Empire was a great estate which its people were called upon to develop and hand down to future generations. He hoped the exhibition would mark one of the great forward steps in the industrial and commercial development of the Empire.

CURTAIL PROGRAM OF LLOYD GEORGE

Has Hoarseness of Throat And Such Curtailment Absolutely Necessary.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Curtailment in the program previously arranged for David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, in his tour of Canadian cities, was announced last night because of hoarseness of throat which has developed. The American program as tentatively arranged still stands.

Arrangements will result in delay of several hours in his arrival at Ottawa and elimination entirely of Hamilton from itinerary.

Throat trouble appeared yesterday after strenuous speaking, Mr. Lloyd George did in New York and on trip from there to Montreal.

Under the new schedule Mr. Lloyd George will leave this city at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon and arrive in Ottawa at 6 o'clock in evening where he will be guest of Cabinet ministers at dinner at 7 o'clock. He will leave this city for Toronto at 11.20 that evening.

Leaving Toronto Thursday at about 11.30 a.m. Mr. Lloyd George will go direct without stop to Niagara Falls, Ont., for private visit of about three hours and then depart on his special train for Winnipeg without stop.

LLOYD GEORGE TURNS SOD OF NEW BAPTIST CHURCH IN MONTREAL

Received By Welsh and French - Canadians of Quebec's Metropolis — Guest of Lord Atholstan

SEES NO MATERIALISM

MONTREAL, October 8 (Associated Press). — Europe is in the midst of a grim struggle between hope and despair, and in that struggle is becoming material, David Lloyd-George, wartime Premier of Great Britain, declared in an address here yesterday.

Speaking briefly at open-air services, during which he turned the first sod for the new Westmount Baptist Church, he declared that he was glad Montreal and Canada were not the victims of "the plague of materialism which is threatening to engulf the world."

"I am glad," he added, "that you here do not live by bread alone."

Attendance at the ceremony was the one break in a Sunday spent quietly with friends resting a period of several days' intense activity.

Accompanied by Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd-George, the former Premier attended morning services at the First Baptist Church, and then went to the home of Lansing Lewis, president of the Welsh Society of St. David for a reception. He was the guest at luncheon of Senator J. P. B. Casgrain, where he met prominent French-Canadians, and last evening was the dinner guest of Lord Atholstan, proprietor of the Montreal Star.

BODY RECOVERED BY AID OF CLAIRVOYANT

WIARTON, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Operations supervised by a clairvoyant here resulted on Saturday in the recovery of the body of Robert Parker, of Lion's Head, who, with Captain Corson, also of Lion's Head, was drowned in Georgian Bay.

Nine loaves of bread stuffed with lime were set adrift near the spot where the men were supposed to be drowned, and when one of the loaves stopped quivering grappling irons were brought into use. The body of Parker was brought to the surface, and later the irons seized the body of Corson, but became detached.

Owing to darkness, operations were temporarily suspended.

Your Own Pearls

Are the finest—pearly teeth

Millions find them by combating film

No pearls which hang about the neck compare with pretty teeth. Don't leave them coated by a dingy film.

Look about you. Note how countless teeth now glisten. Mark what they add to beauty and to charm. Then make this test and learn how people get them.

The cloud is film

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why so many teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus film is the greatest enemy of tooth beauty and tooth health.

Dental science, after long research, found ways to combat that film. One disintegrates the film, the other removes it without harmful scouring.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

To the careful, dainty people of some 50 nations this method has brought a new dental era.

Some sad mistakes

Research also proved that soapy tooth pastes had brought undesired results. They reduced the alkalinity of the saliva, reduced its starch digestant. Pepsodent brings just opposite effects. It multiplies the alkalinity, multiplies the starch digestant. And they are Nature's agents for fighting acid and starch deposits.

Watch for 10 days

Watch for ten days the Pepsodent effects. They will amaze and delight you. They will convince you that all in your family should get them every day.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

It will be a revelation to you. Cut out coupon now.

MR. QUARTERMAINE'S DEATH.

One by one the old residents of Peterborough are passing on, leaving gaps in the community life.

The death on Saturday of Mr. Thomas Q. Quartermaine removes a figure that had for many years been a familiar one in this city.

Particularly will Mr. Quartermaine be remembered for his services in connection with the Peterborough Board of Trade, of which organization he was for many years the efficient and enthusiastic Secretary.

During the days before the board had developed into its present status as the Chamber of Commerce and when the membership was small and the public generally had but scant interest in its activities, it was Mr. Quartermaine's zeal and enthusiasm that more than anything else served to keep the organization going and ready to act as the foundation for the Chamber of Commerce, which has now succeeded it.

The spade-work accomplished by him during those lean years played no small part in the development of the undertaking.

In other activities Mr. Quartermaine had been a useful citizen of Peterborough, and his death will be regretted by a very large circle of friends and acquaintances.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

The complaint of the townships along the Otonabee at the dilatory manner in which the city of Peterborough has been dealing with the question of sewage disposal is not to be wondered at, for the nuisance is one of many years' duration.

Frankly in this matter, the civic attitude has been markedly inconsistent.

Every effort is made to keep Peterborough clean; citizens are urged and even compelled to have their premises connected with the sewer.

And then having made sure that the maximum quantity of sewage is provided for, Peterborough calmly deposits it all in the river to pollute one of the most beautiful streams in Ontario.

Our citizens go and camp along the river, even bathe in it at the risk of infection from the sewage of their own city.

The pollution of the Otonabee should be stopped, and this question of a sewage disposal plant, which has been a municipal football for a couple of decades, should be dealt with in a business-like manner.

There is no use in trying to stave off the inevitable—the plant will have to be built.

MORE PLAYING FIELDS.

Civic admiration of the splendid record achieved by the city's baseball teams this season should be translated into practical form by some consideration of the question of better accommodation for athletics generally in this city.

Riverside Park is at present the chief athletic ground, and it is manifestly impossible that all the baseball teams can be taken care of there in regard to practices and games, while there are other sports that also require consideration.

More playing fields for the younger participants in baseball and other summer pastimes are urgently needed, and in other cities are being provided.

Hamilton, for example, has several splendid civic athletic fields for the use of the public, supervised, provided with grandstands and kept in excellent shape.

Here it would not be necessary to embark upon such an ambitious programme.

Grandstands could be dispensed with, for it would be possible to arrange final games for Riverside Park.

But the available fields should be put in shape for use.

The boys of Peterborough have shown that they deserve consideration in this respect. They have put their home city on the map from a sporting standpoint, and even better results could be secured if the facilities were provided.

HIS HEAD SHOULD COME OFF.

If the Inspector of the Department of Inland Revenue who deliberately incited a Toronto tradesman to commit a breach of the Inland Revenue Act, has not been summarily dismissed from his position, the Minister in charge should lose no time in seeing that his head falls into the basket.

Oliver, the inspector in question, went to his victim and, concealing his position from him, induced him to manufacture a still for use in the production of illicit liquor. Then when the work was done Oliver had the tradesman charged with having a still in his possession. A conviction, of course, followed, but there was a sequel to the case, for the inspector found himself charged under the section which declares that a man who incites another to a crime is himself guilty of the same offence, and he, too, was convicted.

He escaped on suspended sentence, but before being allowed to go was given a castigation in most severe language by Magistrate Brunton, who did not mince his words in showing his contempt for the inspector.

It was brought out in evidence that the informant who brings about a conviction under the Inland Revenue Act is given half of the fine up to $200 that follows such a conviction.

If this bonus system leads to many cases of people being tempted to break the law by officials with an eye on a share of the fine, some other method will have to be found.

The people of this country are not keen to have that kind of law enforcement, and they will be glad to hear that inspectors of the Oliver type have been taken off the pay-roll.

PROHIBITION AND CRIME.

Some figures were published a day or two ago from the Detroit News showing a rather startling increase of crime in that city owing to bootlegging and kindred evils, and showing also that no doubt in consequence of this increase of crime, prohibition had been losing ground in Detroit, says the Ottawa Journal. A majority against prohibition of only 9,000 in a civic plebiscite changed in two or three years to a majority against prohibition of 32,000.

News despatches yesterday carried a similar story regarding Chicago. Facts of the same kind come from other cities in the United States.

Such facts do not indicate that prohibition is a good thing; neither do they indicate that prohibition is a bad thing. They indicate simply that prohibition is not a good thing unless there is a force of public opinion behind it. It is not enough that the community should be more or less evenly divided and that prohibition can be carried by a small majority. Drinking whiskey or beer or wine is not a sin. It is not criminal. It is a reasonable human freedom, when not carried to excess. If one-half of the community wish to prevent the other half of the community from doing something which is not in itself wrong, nor, except when carried to extremes, unjust to anybody, there is assuredly going to be trouble, and those of us who wish to discipline others or to compel them to do or to keep from doing something which we don't like, need to be sure that there is a sufficiently large majority of us thinking that way to be likely to make the other fellows feel that they ought to observe the regulations.

That is the whole story of the evil and crime which have increased in many large cities of this continent in consequence of the imposition of prohibition. The moral for all of us, but particularly for prohibitionists, is that it is better not to attempt to establish law of that kind unless with a sure knowledge that a large force of public opinion is behind it.

Ontario is one territory in which prohibition is effective, is respectable, and has done more good than evil. This is simply because a large majority of the people of Ontario have shown by plebiscite after plebiscite that they are strongly in favor of prohibition.

THE PEOPLE'S POCKETBOOK.

Significance attaches to the fact that for the first six months of the current year the revenue from sales and certain other excise taxes totalled $62,000,000, as compared with $46,000,000 for the corresponding period of last year. It means that the Federal Government is getting deeper into the pocketbooks of the people. For the full fiscal year 1922 the levy in that way brought $73,656,489 into the Dominion treasury; but this year there is every probability of securing more than $120,000,000.

That is a very direct form of taxation, yet it is far from being the only form of direct taxation to which resort has taken place during recent years. In 1922 the banks contributed $1,293,697, trust and loan companies $283,994, insurance companies $749,959, while business profits made up $22,815,667 and the income tax $78,684,355. Joined to the sales tax and other minor taxes, to which reference has just been made, the total was $177,484,161, which happens to be over $6,000,000 more than was the volume of ordinary taxation five years ago. By "ordinary taxation" is meant customs duties and excise.

Ordinary taxation has also grown. For the full year 1922 the total amount collected by the Customs Department was $105,686,645. For the six months just ended the revenue from that source aggregated $69,000,000; so that there is every prospect of a gain for the current year of something over $30,000,000.

It has been announced, however, that the income tax is falling off, which should not occasion surprise. It is impracticable to levy heavily on popular resources and promote popular prosperity at the same time. Taxes are commencing to pinch. Precisely in the degree that the savings of the people are minimized by the tax collector there is less left to assess. That was inevitable from the start. It might also be assumed that there will be a decline in the volume of taxes from business profits, and for the same reason.

The various forms of direct taxation which have been given effect since 1914 are officially designed as "war tax revenues." That classification, however, has in it some degree of misrepresentation. The war in all its aspects involved an expenditure of $1,688,948,036, which created fixed charges for interest of not more than $92,000,000. To that must be added $35,000,000 for war pensions, $17,000,000 for the purposes of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and $2,000,000 for the Soldiers' Settlement Board, making a total of $146,000,000. It will be seen that last year the total collections, by means of direct taxation, on account of "war tax revenue," were more than $30,000,000 in excess of the actual outgo under that head.

The war has, of course, imposed a heavy and unavoidable liability on Government, and that liability can only be met for the time being by the imposition of extra taxes; but we must all clearly see that a considerably larger amount than is necessary for that purpose is being taken annually from the pocketbooks of the people. A larger ordinary taxation than has heretofore come into the Dominion treasury appears to be inadequate for the balancing of income with outgo, and even the surplus of $30,000,000 on account of war imposts seems to have left a deficit. That this, few things are just now challenging public attention which wear a graver aspect.

If Government is to avoid hurtful discouragement on the part of a people who are not disposed to murmur without cause, it must concentrate its best sagacity on reducing the burden of taxation. We have very clearly reached the point where that burden threatens to check enterprise, by cutting seriously into the savings of the people. It is these savings which provide capital for productive purposes, all Marxian theories to the contrary notwithstanding, and to the exact extent that money would remain in the pockets of the people through the reduction of taxation there would be capital available for commercial and industrial development. There can be no doubt of that. It might be argued that this interruption of general expansion would be a negative loss; but that is certainly not the right way to view it. It is already a real loss now, and has tremendous cumulative properties, looking to the future.

The Federal Government is not the only prodigal. The Ontario Government has very clearly gone beyond the bounds of prudence in the matter of expenditure and debt. A capital liability of $66,000,000 four years ago has now become $230,000,000, with a corresponding need for a larger revenue. Other Provinces and the municipalities have exhibited similar recklessness; so that the taxpayer, fighting against conditions created by post-war deflation, is being squeezed from all sides. The pressure upon him cannot be increased, unless we are at the same time prepared to see a serious check put on the general prosperity of the country. It would be sheer folly to ignore the situation as it really is in that regard.—Ottawa Journal.

REVISE SCHOOL HISTORIES

HEIDELBERG, Oct. 6.—Germany is to have a modern history based upon developments from the time of the French revolution to the outbreak of the world war.

Criticisms from democratic sources that the present day instruction in history was still subject to the old ideas of militarism brought about the decision of the government to pubilsh a book more properly suited to teachers and instructors and school classes in the new republic of to-day. A prize for the accepted work has been offered by the minister of the interior, and Germany's best known professors of history have been appointed as judges.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, October 8 (Canadian Press). — According to the preliminary report of the cold storage stock in the United States as published on Saturday, the movement during September this year was about 1,100,000 cases as compared with a movement a year ago of 1,500,000 cases. This condition is reflected in the reports received from Chicago which give evidence of a weak and unsettled condition of the market. The situation with regard to the disposal of storage stocks in Canada is more favourable than in the United States. Further export sales are reported and there is every indication of stocks being pretty well cleared for export account in both Montreal and Toronto.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 8 (Canadian Press). — Big buying that was associated with possible increase of the import duty on wheat brought about a sharp upturn in wheat prices on Saturday, and lifted the value of the other grain as well. Wheat closed strong, 1 3-4c to 2 3-8c net higher, with December $1.09 3-4 to $1.09 7-8, and May $1.13 1-8 to $1.13 1-8 to 1-4.

Corn finished 1 1-8c to 1 1-4c to 3 3-4c; oats at 1-2c to 7-8c gain; and provisions varying from 2c decline to 25c advance.

With news at hand that the Tariff Commission, acting by direction of President Coolidge had on Saturday begun a study of proposals that the tariff on wheat be made 45c a bushel instead of 30c, the present rate, wheat quickly went upward in price, notwithstanding a hesitant start. The volume of buying which at first had been almost negligible broadened out soon to a remarkable degree, with some of the largest houses on Exchange conspicuously in the lead as the chief purchaser.

Bears pointed out that nothing might come of the Tariff Commission scrutiny, but immediate courage for any aggressive struggle against the upward swing of values appeared to be entirely lacking.

According to one opinion that was given widespread circulation, the Government's administrative support was behind a movement to afford agricultural relief, and anybody who sold wheat short in the face of such support was bereft of sense. Under such circumstances the wheat market closed at virtually the top figures of the day.

Bids for No. 2 yellow corn, spot delivery rose to $1.04 1-2 a bushel, a new high price record for the season. Scarcity of supplies affected also the October delivery, which commanded 99 cents as compared with 95 1-4c on Saturday.

New crop months were bought freely owing to wheat strength.

Packers were buyers of provisions.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press)—The trade in cash grain on the local market Saturday was quiet but the tone was firm. Prices are steady in the flour market. A fair trade was passing in millfeed with no change in the baled hay market. There are no new developments in eggs. Total receipts from May first to date have been 54,097 cases in excess of the same period in 1922. Trade in butter is easy. Total receipts from May first to date have been 134,780 packages less than in the same period last year. There is little doing in cheese. Total receipts from May 1st to date have been 80,293 boxes in excess of the same period of 1923.

MONTHLY MEET OF WOMEN'S SOCIETIES

Presbyterian and Methodist Organizations of Omemee Transact Business.

OMEMEE, Oct. 8.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the church, with an attendance of about fifteen ladies. The President, Mrs. S. J. Mackey, occupied the chair, and after the usual opening exercises, a short prayer was offered by Mrs. O. G. Williamson.

The minutes of the September meeting were read and approved, after which a full report of the monies received was given by the Treasurer.

All the ladies were well pleased with the successful bake sale held at the home of Mrs. Mackey on Saturday afternoon, the proceeds having amounted to $11.55, and a discussion followed as to the advisability of another in the near future, but no decision was reached.

As this is the month for the annual thank offering, it was the wish of the ladies that Mrs. Rollins of Peterborough be invited to address the ladies at a meeting, the date and time to be set convenient to the speaker.

A chanter from the Study Book was read by Mrs. Kelly, and a most interesting leaflet on mission work was read by Mrs. H. Lamb.

The hostesses were Mrs. T. A. McConnell and Mrs. E. H. Mitchell, who served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Changed Date.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held in the Sunday School room on Thursday afternoon, with an attendance of about thirty-five ladies. Mrs. E. W. Rowland presided in her usual efficient manner.

Following the devotional exercises the minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Earle, revealing much unfinished business. The bazaar which had been set for the first Wednesday in December was changed to the second Wednesday, owing to the Anglican bazaar coming on the date first set.

A committee was appointed to value and ship a bale of clothing and quilts now in readiness in answer to the appeal from the Oshawa mission.

The billeting of delegates for the district missionary convention was dealt with; also a committee was formed to supervise the serving of tea at the church on the day of the convention. Two boxes of canned fruit are now ready for shipment to the Fred. Victor Mission in Toronto.

Following the business session Miss Eva Race, missionary pianist, rendered a beautiful piano selection. Then followed the Watch Tower, which gives much information on the work being done elsewhere. Mrs. Morcombe and Miss L. Parsons rendered a very pretty duet, entitled, "Jesus Is Near." Mrs. T. A. MacPherson read the devotional leaflet.

Then came an item of interest to all when Mrs. Mulligan, ex-President of the society, was called forward in the absence of her sister, Miss McCrea, and the following address read by Mrs. (Dr.) Earle, while Mrs. Bushnell presented a pretty wicker fern pedestal containing a Boston sword fern:

"Miss McCrea, Lindsay.

"Dear Miss McCrea,—Your long and faithful connection with the various organizations of this your home church, has been partially broken in your removal to Lindsay, which we as a society deeply regret, but we still have your name on our roll as a life member and will ever cherish the memory of your sainted mother, whom we are proud to claim as a charter member of the Omemee branch.

"We trust that we may often have the pleasure of meeting you in our missionary meetings here and the assurance of a hearty welcome will ever await you and our ex-President, Mrs. Mulligan.

"This being our first opportunity since your removal from Omemee to greet you in our monthly meeting, we, as a society, ask you to accept this small token of love and esteem, which we trust will carry with it many happy memories of our association here.

"Signed on behalf of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid—Mrs. A. Scott and Mrs. Wm. Earle."

Mrs. Mulligan, on behalf of her sister, Miss McCrea, thanked the ladies for the pretty gift, which, she said, would be highly prized and very dear to her sister. She also thanked them for the kindly reference to her late mother, and assured the society members that although not always present at their meetings still the activities of the Omemee branch would always be of interest to her and her sister, who are life members of our society.

The meeting was brought to an impressive close by the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the repeating of the Mizpah in concert. A social half hour followed, which was enjoyed by all the hostesses being Mrs. Shields, Mrs. Matthew Wilson and Mrs. Charles Ivory.

USE RADIO IN MINES.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., October 8 (United Press). — Radio has entered the mines and well-known mining engineers now believe that by its use in mine operation and rescue work the hazards of that calling will be further reduced.

The Department of the Interior is making extensive preparations at the Government experimental coal mine at Bruceton, Pa., to continue the various experiments recently undertaken to determine the exact value of radio communication in mine operation and rescue work.

Experiments thus far proved that transmitting can be carried on short wave lengths through fifty feet of coal strata and it is believed that with a longer wave length than has yet been used the signals can be transmitted to even greater depths.

The first experiments were made with a 20-watt transmitting set on 200 and 800 meter wave lengths More elaborate apparatus is now being installed and Government engineers expect to obtain extremely encouraging results.

"Wonder what an idle Telephone thinks about?"

"I HEAR Betty complaining because she can't get to Town to pick up some tempting bargain she sees advertised.

"She doesn't seem to realize it's getting to be all the style to order things by Long Distance. She'd be surprised if she'd try me.

"Many's the Betty I could help. I know several good Departmental and Specialty Stores that have a special Telephone Service for out-of-town people.

"In their advertising the descriptions of goods are written so that out-of-town customers can order them satisfactorily by telephone, and they have a force of real order takers on the job, to take telephone orders.

"Some of them tell me they sell more of an advertised bargain by Telephone and Long Distance than they do over the counter."

THE INVESTMENT OF BRITISH CAPITAL IN CANADA

By Mr. James Cuthbertson, M.A., appointed to the Commercial Research Fellowship awarded to the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce by the British Empire Exhibition Authorities.

The Canadian is extremely frank in the manner of his telling you that what he most esteems, of the things this country has to offer, is British capital. The sinking of British money in Canadian resources and enterprises is that form of Old Country activity that is always highly appreciated, if not always highly rewarded in Canada. High Dominion officials, Provincial Prime Ministers, Trade Commissioners, loan and mortgage companies, finance houses, and individual promoters are all strenuously engaged on the same quest—viz., what the Canadian calls "Selling Canada."

It is true their eyes have been turned to the United States rather than to this country in recent years, for various reasons, but the mission is the same; and they have not looked South in vain. A domestic industry has been growing up during the last 25 years—and at no time with greater rapidity than during the last decade that owes more to United States enterprise than to British, a fact deplored in quarters favourable to the British connection. Men have followed money, and the fact of the intimate relation between migration, investment, and trade has been demonstrated, for the records show that during the ten years, 1912-22, the 10 per cent. of Canada's import trade that this country has lost the United States of America has gained. To counteract this United States influence (the influence on trade of financial control and interlocking directorates with their reaction in the political field), it is urged that British money should go increasingly into Canadian financial and industrial organizations, although, on the other hand, it is the considered opinion of some people, whose opinion is worth regarding, that the opportunity for this country to take a leading part in this matter of the development of Canadian industry has already definitely been lost. The exploitation of natural resources is regarded as furnishing better opportunities, if the business of exploitation is done about the right way.

So far as Canada herself is concerned, it is the general opinion there that there is no money in Canada for new ventures. The record of the Dominion during the war, its subscriptions to war loans, etc., does not altogether support this contention, but in any case capital is scarce and, consequently, dear. The Canadian saves, when he does save, with reluctance. He prefers to spend—a motor car and a house telephone are not luxuries, but necessities, in Canada—and for the larger and perhaps more hazardous forms of business enterprise he prefers to borrow, without reluctance, other people's money. Among every class of the community, agricultural and industrial, in the individual and the corporate body alike, there is a very general belief in the almost mysterious virtues of borrowed money, and at the root of many of the complaints against the banks, heard almost everywhere in the West, there is undoubtedly present a trace of the "soft" or "easy" money fallacy, not unknown in our own country.

Undoubtedly, however, there is a genuine and solid basis for the demand for capital in the Dominion. That demand has its real justification in the fact that Canada is a young country, and as such calls insistently for the development of her immense and proved natural resources. But it is to be feared that in the past the average Canadian, and Canadian public body, thinking in terms of such resources, have tended to discount too heavily the fact of potentiality, and to display in matters of finance and business enterprise something of the optimism and prodigality of youth. Many towns—e.g., Victoria—and not a few provinces—e.g., Manitoba—are in very difficult financial straits for the very same reasons that have strewn the country from east to west, with the ruins, in many instances, of British capital. One gets the impression sometimes that to some Canadian minds the most difficult part of an undertaking has been successfully accomplished when the money for it has been raised, and that they are inclined to place more value on those qualities of a person that enable him to engage confidence and extract capital than in those other and quite different qualities that ensure his operating successfully with that capital once it has been obtained. But in this matter the Canadian—and he is not by any means alone—suffers from the defects of his qualities, those qualities bred by all new countries, and without which progress would have been slower, if not, as in the case of Canada, any less certain. No one who knows the country will gainsay the fact that in the Dominion there is a great and profitable field for investment, and that no capital is more welcome, and no enterprise more willingly assisted, than that which has its origin in this country.

With the outbreak of the war British investment in Canada received a check, and it may be said that the same causes that lost to us a considerable part of Canada's import trade have operated to restrict the investment of British money in that country. There were the restrictions of the war period, when all our capital resources were wanted at home; then the post-war boom distracted attention, and the subsequent slump destroyed ability, while the heavy discount at which our money has stood in relation to the Canadian dollar since 1919 has offered an additional and effective bar to enterprise, particularly in the debenture and mortgage line. The United States, free to a large extent from the embarrassments of the war period, with her money after the war at a considerable premium, has invested heavily in Canada, and a reliable authority estimates the amount for recent years at something over 200,000,000 dols. per annum. In the case of stocks, bonds, and other securities of Incorporated and Joint Stock Companies engaged in the manufacturing industries of Canada, in 1918, 56 per cent. were owned by individual holders in Canada, 34 per cent. by the United States, 9 per cent. by Great Britain, and 1 per cent. by other countries. Today it is estimated that the United States' figure has risen to over 50 per cent., the British figure sunk to 7 per cent., and the Canadian to about 42 per cent.

The Investment Field

Looking at the whole investment field in Canada, it may usefully be divided into three more or less distinct parts. In the first place, capital is wanted for the effective exploitation of Canada's immense natural resources. There are the standing timber of East and West, the lumber and pulp resources of Quebec, Ontario, and British Columbia, the asbestos of Quebec, the mineral wealth of Northern Ontario (a region which promises to become another Transvaal), and of Northern British Columbia. Canada has immense and rich deposits of gold, silver, copper, nickel, iron, and other minerals and non-metallic mineral wealth. Her coal resources are situated in the extreme East and West, but recently the Alberta reserves in the eastern side of the Rocky Mountains have been opened up successfully by American interests. Canada's water powers are prodigious, and await further development, which, however, must go step by step with the development of the neighborhood where situated. Her soil is rich and bountiful, and produces all kinds of crops, while live stock may easily be reared and maintained. These are only a few items of her wealth in soil, forest, and mine, and which, in every instance, competent authorities declare capable of considerable further investment and profitable development.

In the second place, capital is wanted for the development of Canadian industries, for although undoubtedly still a country of primary production, Canada has during the last 40 years increased the proportion of her manufactures from 5 per cent. to 35 per cent. of total production of her exports last year, 42 per cent. were of manufactured goods and 6 per cent. semi-manufactured. But, apart from manufacturing industry, in the development of which the United States, as already mentioned, has taken a leading part, there are openings for capital in new constructional schemes, canals, docks, telephone, and other public utility undertakings. The case of branch factories has been actively canvassed in this country during the last three years by the Canadian authorities themselves. It is pointed out what the United States have done in this direction. The United States has developed the branch factory in Canada until today there are over 700 in active operation as compared with about 60 British. But there is this to be said about branch factories, that the United States enjoys all the benefits that accrue from contiguity, while British firms are handicapped by the difficulty of control from a distance, of getting management that is at once skilled technically and acquainted with local conditions and of intensified competition from the United States competitors as soon as the British manufacturer appears in the field.

The truth is that British efforts to establish branch factories in Canada have not been particularly successful, and the unfortunate experiences of such large home concerns as Baldwins, Ltd., Armstrong Whitworth, and Vickers are full of warning. Doubtless the want of success may be explained in these instances by the unpropitious moment when their plants were established, and by the unforseen developments since then, but they none the less point the moral that such ventures require the closest and most minute investigation on the spot, where all the conditions and governing costs are correctly estimated, and taken into account before anything is done.

In the third place, capital is in demand for municipal and provincial Government loans, debentures, and mortgages on land and buildings and other property. A considerable amount of Scottish capital went in this direction, particularly in the West and British Columbia, before the war. There is also a large amount of French capital thus invested. The rate of interest in British Columbia runs about 8 per cent. on good security on which is advanced up to 50 per cent. of present value. In the Prairie Provinces more than this is sometimes exacted, but the drought and other protective legislation of the Prairie Provinces does not make them at present a favourable field for the investment of capital resources in securities of this kind. There is evidence that the reactions of such a policy in frightening away capital are making themselves felt, and that the Governments concerned are considering the revision of such punitive and short-sighted legislation.

While undoubtedly in all three sections of the Canadian investment field there are useful and profitable openings for British capital, it cannot be too earnestly advocated nor too often repeated that the most careful investigation is absolutely necessary if previous unfortunate experiences are not to be repeated. It has been demonstrated again and again that promiscuous and haphazard investment in propositions brought to this country for sale here by energetic vendors of Canadian land, timber, or mines have seldom been successful, and what is wanted is a study of our mistakes of the past so as to evolve a method or methods whereby these mistakes can be avoided in the future. Our mistakes in the past have been at least three; first, a failure to select the proper risk; second, a failure to investigate the merits of a proposition on the spot, personally or through reliable and competent local agents; and, lastly, a want of a sufficient interest in good management.

The Need of a Proper Method

There has been no proper method evolved for the initiation, investigation, and control of this long-distance investment, particularly in natural resources like timber and mines. Two methods may be suggested that appear sound and practicable. In the first place, seldom if ever have British interests carried out systematic search for opportunities in the manner of the Guggenheim organization (New York) in the case of mining. It was they who picked up the Stewart Premier Mine in Northern British Columbia a few years ago for an old song, and which last year paid over 2,000,000 dollars in dividends in less than twelve months. One method, therefore, is the sending out of practical, high paid, and experienced men, representing British financial interests, to investigate and look for opportunities on the spot. In the second place, seldom has the difficulty been overcome of getting responsible people in Canada who know from their own wide and practical experience what is best worth investing in, in their own line, into touch with responsible moneyed interests at home (although an attempt has recently been made from the Canadian side in the case of standing timber in British Columbia), and of keeping them in touch until a favourable opportunity for embarking on a proposition has definiteiy arrived. The second method, then, is a linking up of local knowledge on the one side and finance on the other. But the local knowledge must be that of the best and most honorable and experienced men on the spot who, in many cases, can put up and influence local money. It is a poor neighbourhood that cannot back its own alleged resources, and when that is the case there should be offered some satisfactory explanation of it. This remark does not, of course, apply to those more purely pioneer operations or those involving vast sums, like a pulp and paper proposition. It is a sound idea that, if there is anything good about. the neighbourhood knows something about it.

The nature of the Canadian investment field appears to demand the evolution of both these methods, and not until they are in active operation in the interests of British investors on this side is British money likely to be invested successfully and rewarded adequately.

Several Canadian Provincial Governments, recognising the benefits arising from the incursion of capital into their respective Provinces, have recently come forward with protective legislation and offers of assistance and advice. In British Columbia, before any invitation is made to the public to subscribe to a new flotation, the proposition must be submitted to a Government body, and all assertions made must be substantiated before that authority as far as possible. In Alberta the Government have undertaken, on request, to make a confidential report to parties interested in any proposition originating in and concerning than province, (a) as to the bona fides of the people submitting the proposition, (b) as to the reasonable value of the proposition, (c) as to market and trade possibilities, and (d) to supply any technical information that may be desired in the interest both of the proposition and of the British investor. Doubtless other Provincial Governments would give the same assistance if requested, and such services might without doubt be of considerable service to the investing public in this country.

CHEAPEST CITY IN EUROPE.

BRUSSELS (By Mail to United Press). — Brussels to-day has replaced Berlin as the cheapest city in Europe—and the travelling bargain seeker overwhelms the storekeepers and overfills the big hotels of the city.

While Germany last summer was heralded everywhere as the buyer's Utopia, the recent high price wave has put the German capital at the head of the costly places to live, while the fall in the Belgian franc has left Brussels as the place where good goods may be bought cheapy.

Tourists have learned of this and have rushed here to buy up, while the "buying up" is good. Many profiteers and financial parasites have rushed from the now high-priced Berlin to the low-priced Brussels—and Brussels doesn't particularly like it.

Business, naturally, is good, especially in hotels.

GOOD MARKET FOR COOKS.

VIENNA, October 8 (Associated Press). — "Dont come to America, girls, expecting to land at once comfortable jobs as stenographers or some other kind of 'high brow' office work," is the advice to Vienna young women given through the newspapers by a Viennese now in New York.

"What Americans desire mostly so far as employees are concerned," says the writer of the letter, "are young women wilnng to work in the kitchen or as maids, and who don't want to go out too much at night. I write perfect English, but speak it with a slight accent, and therefore could not find a position as a stenographer. But there have been plenty of offers of a job as a cook. I cannot cook, and I have no job."

To audiences in homes throughout the land, "His Master's Voice" Victrola brings all the entertainment of the world's greatest, most famous artists. Think of it in terms of a great animate theatre—a conservatory of music, through whose welcoming doors your fancy may pass at will.

Based on the same principles which give the human voice or the very finest violin their powers of reproduction—it IS the human voice, it IS the voice of the violin.

Only the living presence of the artist is missing but even this is overcome, for its performance pictures their personalities in a subtle lifelike something — peculiar alone to this marvelous instrument. Combined with "His Master's Voice" Victor Records—it is the singer and his song.

It were just as unthinkable that any instrument could take its place as that someone ELSE could be a Caruso, someone else could substitute for a Galli-Curci, a McCormack or an Elman.

No voice can take the place of "His Master's Voice". Pay it the homage it deserves. Prevent substitution by demanding that the instrument you buy bears our famous trade mark "His Master's Voice" (under the lid). Years of pleasure will repay you for this caution.

Why "HIS MASTER'S VOICE" VICTROLA dominates!

Victrola tone-arms are drawn—not brazed or cast—consequently the sound-waves in passing through them find a perfectly smooth, even passage, the same as they do in a cornet, trumpet, saxophone or other brass instrument. The tone-arms on all types of Victrolas are constructed in exactly the same expensive and effective manner. This is indicative of the superb construction throughout of "His Master's Voice" Victrolas.

WHEN KING BEN FLED HE WORE FULL WHISKERS AND LONG HAIR. HERE IS THE EXAMINER ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF HOW PURNELL WOULD LOOK WHEN FULLY AND PARTIALLY SHAVEN. LEFT: WITH MUSTACHE ONLY. CENTRE: AS HE FLED. RIGHT: ALL OFF.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Oct. 8.—Hair vests and immortality!

These were the joint attractions held forth by King Benjamin Purnell, overlord of the Israelite House of David here, to attract a variegated following of some 1,000 persons from every corner of the earth.

They came as children of faith, turned over all their possessions, worked for nothing on a communal basis that the cult's offers might grow and prepared for the great ingathering of the 144,000 elect who alone of all the living were to be spared from the death King Ben prophesied was imminent with the approaching end of time and the world.

For some 20-odd years Benjamin and his 14 tribes prospered beyond even the wildest dreams of the "Seventh Angel," as he styled himself.

Worked for Nothing.

The colony grew wealthy through the zealous work and the products of their disciples whose hands were all the friends of work done free for the greater glory of Ben and his mystery house of Shiloh, wherein dwelt a seraglio of virgins "promoted from the ranks" to be "cleansed and made holy."

Those among the colony who died were presumed to have lacked the "proper degree of faith." And sickness was frowned upon as a manifestation of sin.

Doctors never stopped at Benton Harbor. Nor were razor ads to any avail. For Ben's Israelites grew pigtails, and to cut the hair was immediately an occasion, in their belief, for the Devil to open his Limbo gates for the ride below, to which place Ben had solemly predicted all shaven "Gentiles," as the outside world was known, were eventually to be consigned.

Members of the colony were strictly vegetarian. In Benton Harbor they operated a famous park where an appetizing meal of roots and herbs could be purchased, as well as a ride on a miniature railway which snorted through a managerie.

Ben Was Boss.

Over all this physical property, which had grown from almost nothing, as well as over the hearts and minds of his subjects, whom he is alleged by court allegation to have thrust into forced marriages, King Ben was master and absolute dictator.

He ran the cult's ball team, directed time for the colony band, and held so many other offices in Israel that no complete checkup of his manifold duties has ever been made.

Purnell and Queen Mary came to Benton Harbor on May 26, 1903. Concerning the activities of his wife and self prior to that time little is known.

Noon of the day mentioned saw Benton Harbor slumbering in the sunshine. Then out of the then village quietude a great fanfare of trumpets was heard and a queer procession headed by Ben himself wound down the main street. This was the beginning.

Finis to this person was recently written in a decree handed down by Federal Judge John E. Sater of Columbus, O., who awarded John W. Hansel and the latter's family, all former ousted members of the House of David. $15,000 in their $80,000 suit against King Ben, for injuries and services dating back to 1912, in which year they were induced to join.

In his scathing official opinion the court denounced King Ben and his practices, in no uncertain terms dealing with alleged immoral treatment of girl and women members and held the cult to be a gigantic fraud cloaked by religion.

Immediately thereafter additional suits were begun by other members who had suffered similar fates as the Hansels, and a warrant was issued by Michigan state courts for King Ben's arrest.

This has never been served for the reason that Ben, taking royal perogative, in the dead of night, it is related, fled his paradisical seraglio, by underground tunnel prepared long before for such emergency, and in a high-powered motor ran the blockade of police set to catch him.

Rumors of his whereabouts have been numerous, but all tips to date have proven false. A recent report has it that he is dead, which news caused much suffering among remaining adherents, who rested their hopes of lasting life in the flesh on King Ben's unfailing example of living himself.

Born in Kentucky.

Benjamin is 63, but looks much younger than that. He is said to have been born in Maysville, Ky., in 1861, of poor Carmelite parents, who taught him the study of the Bible from early age.

The religious belief which brought him much gain has its foundation in the philosophy of an Englishwoman, a Mrs. Southgate, by name, and is based on the seventh and fourteenth chapters of the Book of Revelations.

Mrs. Southgate is said to have held that she was the "first angel or divine messenger," and succeeding apostles of her idea have handed down a numerical succession to the time of King Ben, who called himself the seventh winged visitor who had come to prepare for the ingathering and the end of the world.

BABY PEGGY IN MOVIES

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8. — Baby Peggy Montgomery, tiny movie prodigy, by contract with Sol Lesser, screen magnate, has been guaranteed income probably exceeding $1,000,000 during the next three years.

Her earning capacity at five is thus rated higher than any other baby in history, not even excepting Jackie Coogan, who was just getting started at the same age.

What qualities establish her on that financial pinnacle? How can a cherub who scarcely knows her ABCs command such a fortune annually?

In the first place she is a seasoned little trouper. Half her brief lifetime has been spent in pictures. Her mental development is almost three times her years. These facts coupled with an elfish winsomeness, a demonstrated entertainment value and the magic reward for talent in the films, make her the super Cinderella of all time.

She is a feminine little sprig, grave, deliberate, dainty, with amazing poise and with a rich emotional nature under perfect control of a mind which even at two and one-half years was rated at the ro-year level by University of Southern California psychologists.

It was this abnormal ability to govern her moods, at the slightest suggestion of parents or picture directors, that got her into movies as a mere toddler. Most children enter pictures because of their ability to shed tears gracefully, at command, disproving so far as film audiences and their lavish pay is concerned the statement that if you weep you weep alone.

Baby Peggy could not only weep fetchingly, but she could instantly transform to smiles and capers. That is to say, she could take direction perfectly, with astonishing facility in pantomime.

Thus in the past three years, in forty pictures for Century and two for Universal, she laid the foundation for what Sol Lesser hopes will be more than several million dollars worth of tears and laughs in the coming three.

Baby Peggy is the second daughter of John and Marion Montgomery. Her father was a forest ranger. Engaged as a stunt man by a picture company, he took the child to the lot with him. She attracted the attention of officials, and contrary to Montgomery's wishes, his wife registered the baby. Two days later she received her first call and has worked ever since.

Louise, 7-year-old sister, is her only playmate. Peggy, oddly, has little social inclination, being almost as reserved off stage as she is demonstrative before the camera. The two play constantly at acting. Peggy will have nothing to do with dolls or the ordinary diversions of little girls.

Genealogically there is no hint of artistic impulse, ancestors on both sides having been commercial. And Louise, quite as talented as her famous sister, has been kept from movies because lack of emotional control played havoc with her sensitive nature.

Peggy weighed less at five months than she did at birth and was not expected to live. Her parents carted her off to the mountains, where the father patroled forests, and she quickly gained normal health. Because of her precocious understanding of her work as make-believe, there has been no strain on childish nerves. Psychologists, while proclaiming her distinctly of the genius type, say she is remarkably balanced in development. She works from three to four hours a day in pictures, and intervals between films are considered very boresome.

Her affectionate term for her daddy is "Old Top," and his for her is "Shrimp." In her family association there is no trace of that pert, saucy quality which so many of her pictures have displayed. That is sheer acting to order—acting of a kind which, her intimates believe, hasn't yet scratched the surface of her capabilities.

ANNIVERSARY OF BAPTIST CHURCH AT CAMPBELLFORD

Rev. T. S. White of Lakefield Preached Inspiring Sermon — Musical Programme a Feature of Occasion.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8.—The anniversary services of the Baptist church were held here Sunday, the preacher for the day being Rev. T. L. White of Lakefield. There was a good attendance of members and visitors, both morning and evening, and special music was furnished by the choir under the leadership of R. C. Weston. Miss Jessie Weston is organist.

At the evening service the features of the musical programme were anthems by the choir, a duet by Mrs. George F. Seguire and R. C. Weston, and a quartette by Messrs Weston, George Mason, Rev. I. L. White and Rev. H. S. Bennett, pastor of the church.

Mr. White delivered two interesting sermons, his text for the evening discourse being taken from Deut. 33:29, "Happy art thou, oh Israel, who is like unto thee, oh people, saved by the Lord," the speaker showing that the only true happiness is found in salvation as offered by Christ through his sacrifice.

Story of the Congregation.

There are now 78 members of this society, the roll showing a substantial increase during the past year when the total receipts amounted to $310. This is one of the oldest church societies in the town, its history dating back to the early sixties. The faith first took root out in the township of Seymour, the first service on record having been held in a little woodworking shop at Menie. John Hall, one of the veteran members, was a boy in those days, but he recalls the early struggles of the members and how, for lack of a proper edifice, they met at various homes in the district. Among the founders were James Mathers, Andrew Haig and the Dunn and Fry families, all of whom have long since passed away.

It was in 1876 that the Baptists decided to make Campbellford the centre of their activities, and in that year they opened a mission room in the Irwin block on Front Street. Eight years later the mission band was organized as a congregation by Rev. William Peer, the first regular pastor. Mr. Peer was succeeded in the pastorate by Rev. Hugh Shaw, who is now living retired near Menie.

For a number of years the services were conducted by students, a number of whom spent their summer vacations here. The congregation now has a substantial and well furnished place of worship, with a large basement for the sessions of the Sunday School, for social gatherings and for the meetings of the various societies. This brick building was erected in 1874 by the Methodist Episcopals, who sold it to the Baptists when the various branches of the Methodist denominations were united some years later.

The present pastor is Rev. H. S. Bennett, B.A., who will complete his third year in November next, and under whose administration the congregation has made steady progress. Mr. Bennett is in the prime of life, an interesting and earnest exponent of the faith and active in all his pastoral duties. He came to Campbellford from Victoria in Simcoe County.

A few months ago the congregation purchased a handsome parsonage on Sebastopol Street.

The anniversary celebration will conclude this evening with a congregational social, to which all are invited.

Rev. H. S. Bennett will preach the anniversary service next Sunday in Sidney Church, near Stirling. The services here will be taken by Rev. Hugh Shaw, of Menie, a former pastor.

uous programme of several weeks before him, Mr. Lloyd-George made it clear yesterday that he intended to conserve his strength and his voice. Although in apparent full vigour and with face tanned by the sun and the wind, he admitted that his speaking last week in New York City, and from his special train in its run yesterday through New York State and Vermont, had tried his voice, and that the greatest care would be necessary to maintain it in proper shape for the weeks ahead.

At all stops made on Saturday by his special train between New York and Montreal, he was greeted by great crowds, while a great burst of cheering and applause greeted him upon his arrival in this city on Saturday night.

Followed by Crowds.

Wherever he went yesterday he was surrounded by eager hundreds who had waited patiently to obtain a glimpse of him. Traveling in an open automobile from the Mount Royal Hotel to the First Baptist Church yesterday morning he passed between a continuous line of people to whose cheers he responded by doffing his silk hat and bowing.

At the close of the church service, at which Rev. Dr. M. F. McCutcheon preached the sermon, he was formally welcomed to Canada by speakers in behaf of the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec, and responded with a few words of appreciation in which he expressed his pleasure at being present.

Mr. Lloyd-George will deiver his first forma pubic address of his Canadian tour at a mass meeting this afternoon in the Mount Royal Arena and to-night will depart by special train for Ottawa, from where he wil go to Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Hamilton, Ont., and Winnipeg, before again entering the United States, with the first stops scheduled for Minneapolis and St. Paul.

OIL

The oil business, at least temporarily, is in the same lifeboat with wheat farming. Production of crude oil in our country has been exceeding by 300,000 barrels a day, the amount used. The cause of this huge over-production is the flood of oil from wells in California.

As yet, there is no talk of relief legislation for oil producers.

FATHER ATHAL MURRAY LEAVES FOR THE WEST

TORONTO, October 8 (Canadian Press). — Father Athol Murray, at present assistant priest of St. John's Catholic Church, has been appointed Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Regina, and left last night for the West.

Since he completed his studies at Antigonish, St. Michael's, and Laval, Father Murray has served as assistant priest in the parishes of Orillia, Penetanguishene, and St. John's Toronto.

When at Penetanguishene, Father Murray was largely responsible for the great success attending the pageantry and celebration which marked the tercentenary of the arrival of Champlain and the Jesuit missionary martyrs in Ontario.

DISCOVERED STILL IN CRAMAHE TOWNSHIP

Complete Outfit Seized By Inspector and Excise Officer.

HASTINGS, October 8. — On Tuesday afternoon Inspector Goderich and Excise Officer H. L. Chapin ran across a big still in a shack in the swamp west of Dawson's Mill, in Cramahe Township.

There was about 180 gallons of mash just about ready to be run through the worm, which was large and up-to-date.

No finished liquid was found in the house, which was comfortably furnished with two beds, a lounge, etc., and a shotgun being at the head of the beds.

A Ford car with an Ontario number was standing in front of the house, but no individuals were to be found.

They may have scented the approach of the officers and made a quick getaway.

The shack containing the still was cleverly hidden by rows of evergreens and bushes arranged to appear as if it was in a wild state, and it was only by chance that the officers forced their way through.

OFF DAY FOR CHEESE.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 8.—There were 221 boxes of cheese boarded at the meeting of the board on Saturday. Brae offering 68, Kimberley 30, New Model 19, Trent Valley 40, West Seymour 34, and Woodlands 30.

It seemed like an off day in the cheese business, as there were no bids, and consequently no sales, the Board adjourning until next Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

JEWELERY STORE ROBBED OF GEMS

Charlie Chaplin of Movie Fame First To Make Public Robbery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Three armed men early today held up the night manager and several other employees of the fashionable Ritz Carleton Hotel and robbed the jewellery store off the lobby of $5,000 worth of gems.

Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, who entered the hotel lobby fifteen minutes after the bandits fled, was the first outsider to learn of it. Not until five hours later after the hotel employees had tried to trail the robbers and failed, was the hold-up reported to the police.

Boldly entering the hotel from the main concourse on 46th Street, the three bandits, well dressed and armed, called for the night manager and ordered his hands up. The porter, bell man and elevator operator were herded into the cage of the lift and kept prisoners there by two of the invaders, while a third smashed the show-case of the adjoining gem shop and scooped out handfuls of valuable stones

THE RICH SPOILS IN BED OF THE OCEAN

By LYLE C. WILSON

LONDON, Oct. 6 (United Press) —Cheap gold and a world-wide return to barter, or the appearance of a new medium exchange, are possible results of a full recovery of the treasure scattered over the bed of the ocean by wrecks of gold and silver laden ships.

Economists declare that a glut of cheap gold would not increase the wealth of individuals or nations.

To dump billions of dollars worth of precious metal on the market would merely cheapen the value of the metal. Gold and silver would no longer be precious. Both would be easily obtainable.

Silver, quoted at 60 cents an ounce in the United States, is already of much greater value when it bears a government stamp than without it. The mere process of mining increases the worth of the metal.

To a distinctly lesser extent this is true of gold.

If gold should depreciate as silver has done, it is possible, economists say, that governments would seek a new medium of exchange, perhaps another metal or a paper circulating medium properly guaranteed by real property assets.

That would go hard with nations such as the United States, with tremendous stocks of the possibly depreciating metal on hand.

England, with regular gold payments to be made to the United States over a period of sixty-two years, would gain enormously from such a gold depreciation and the appearance of a new medium of exchange.

Economists fear that destabilization of the recognized standard of world value would prove too much for the already tattered fabric of civiliation.

It is possible, they say that governments already embarrassed with debts, after-war jealousies and unsettled politics might be unable to effect so vital a change in money.

In that case, a student of world economics declared to the United Press, the peoples of the world would unwittingly solve, or possibly encumber, the problem by reverting to a system of barter.

Such an event would destroy the tediously built credit system of the world. Interest, unearned increment, speculation and most of the pet antipathies of socialists would disappear or be so curtailed in function as to be of no moment.

A sudden recovery of a vast treasure hoard, such as the bed of the oceans is reported to contain, would possibly disarrange the entire economic structure of the world.

Science and invention lead the way to a recovery of the fabulous under-sea treasure.

Economics and politics warn against the consequent disruption of things as they are by this possible influx of wealth.

Whether the more progressive thinking can deliver their share of the test is not certain. Nor is it assured that if they did effect a discovery of sunken wealth that the forebodings of economists and politicians would be sustained in fact.

Meantime a means to salve Davy Jones' hoard is being sought with good chances of success.

How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him.—1 Kings 18:21.

THE LONESOME WOMAN

"No Chance to Exercise My Tongue," Is Her Complaint

Was This Farmer's Wife Correct?—Is There Any Respite From Monotony in the Life of Rural Women?—What Is the Panacea for Farm Loneliness?—Handling Cream for Butter.

I called at a farm home one day in search of water for an overheated motor. Rapping gently on the kitchen door, I was met by a good lady of the house.

"May I have a pail of water?" I asked.

"You may," she said, handing me a pail and pointing to the pump. I noticed that her index finger and her chin seemed to work in unison when she indicated the direction of the pump.

"Shrewd old girl," I thought, as the water flowed into the pail. "I will try and draw her out. I wonder how she puts in the time. What is she thinking about anyway?"

A Farm Woman's View of the Quiet Life

After filling the radiator with the clear, cold water, I returned to the door with the borrowed pail. No need of rapping this time. She met me with a kindly smile.

"You have a nice farm here," I said. "You must have a nice quiet life in the country where everything about you is just plain wholesome nature."

"Quiet life!" she said with some emphasis. "Just plain nature?" "Yes, just too much so, so much so that we want to get away from it all, and be natural."

Somewhat surprised at her expressions, especially the "be natural," I had always thought that if there was any place where a person could be natural it was on the farm.

The Monotony of Farm Living

I asked, "Why do you want to get away?"

She replied, "We have no life here. My husband and I get up at five o'clock every morning. He at once goes to the barns to feed the stock, while I get the breakfast and attend the poultry. We hurry through breakfast, and then he rushes away to the barn or fields, returning at noon for one half hour in which to eat his dinner. After dinner he is away again until supper time, when he returns tired from work in the fields, pretty well worn by the long monotonous day of heavy labor. As for me, why, I attend the house work. Yes, I attend the house work in silence all day long, and that is what gets my goat. I do not hear the sound of another voice from one day's end to another. No woman to talk to, no neighbor handy by where I could call for a chat. No chance to exercise my tongue.

Farm Women Fed Up With Silence

"We farm women get fed up with so much silence. It is somewhat different with the men, they are working with animals and do not feel the loneliness as we women do. Once a week is not often enough for women to get together. Being kept apart so long is it any wonder that our tongues wag at both ends when an opportunity to talk does come."

Is There a Panacea for Rural Loneliness?

After hearing that little sermonette, I unconsciously started for the car that I had left standing on the roadway. Coming to my senses after a time, I began to think, just what there was in what the lady of the farm house had to say, and repeated to myself her words, "No chance to exercise my tongue, so much silence."

Perhaps, after all, the farm is too lonely a place for the average woman of to-day, and with the trend of modern living it will be a more lonesome place in the future unless something happens to change ideas and ideals.

Can anyone suggest a solution of the problem?—L. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Handle Cream for Butter Carefully

Cream may be a little sour, but, if it is clean and free from foreign odors and tastes, it will make fancy butter in the hands of an expert buttermaker. Cream approaching rancidity and carrying with it particles of dirt, whiffs of undesirable odors, and a taste of the barnyard or cellar never loses its identity. The butter it enters into is that which drags on the marke and sells at a low price. To argue that because certain neighbors are careless with their cream provides a reason why no one needs to be careful is illogical. Produce and handle your cream in a careful, cleanly manner, deliver it frequently and then demand a price in keeping with the quality.

STOCK MARKETS FAIRLY STRONG

The General List Reacted Shortly After Opening.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(Special).—A fairly active turnover at the opening of the Stock Exchange changed but fractionally the prices from the closing levels of last week, with the advances and declines about evenly distributed. The rails were again active, as were some specialties, which were featured late last week, such as Cast Iron Pipe Common, at a new 1923 high of 40¼. Domestic news development over the week-end were of slight importance, while foreign developments included another speech by Premier Poincare of France on the determination of the French for the strict enforcement of the reparations programme.

After showing relative firmness for the best part of the first half hour the general list reacted around 10.30 when considerable offerings appeared.

Such favorites as Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading, the Pan-Americans, Studebaker and others ran off a point or more.

Offerings in C. and O. were in substantial volume and it dipped from the opening level of 69¾ to 68, a block of 140 shares appearing at the latter price.

Reading encountered some selling, which resulted in a drop of 1¼ to 78 1-8.

Opening prices included: Cosden 27; N.Y. Central 12, up 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 59 1-2, up 3-8; St. Paul 16 1-8; American Woollen 73 1-8, off 1-8; Petroleum 58, up 3-8; Anaconda 39, up 1-8; Sinclair 18¾; Pennsylvania 42 3-8; Studebaker 97, off 1-8; Can. 92 3-8, up ¼; Southern Railway 36 3-8, off 1-8; Reading 79, up 1-2; Baldwin 118 1-2, up 3-8; Southern Pacific 87¼, off ¼; U.S. Steel 88 1-8.

CARS COLLIDED INJURING WOMAN

Accident on the Chemong Road Resulted in Mrs. Brooks Sustaining a Broken Collar Bone.

Mrs. Brooks, of Peterboro, sustained a broken collar bone and several cuts to her limbs and head when two cars collided on the Chemong Road yesterday evening.

The car in which Mrs. Brooks was riding, driven by Walter Baker, of Bowmanville, was proceeding from east to west near Phelan's Corners, when it collided with an automobile owned by M. J. Hickey, of this city, and driven by James McMartin, which was proceeding from north to south.

Baker's car suffered damages to the front left and had the base of the motor split, while Hickey's car had the front axle and frame twisted, the windshield and top broken and the right mudguards damaged.

When the cars crashed Baker was on his way to Lakefield, while the other car was returning to the city from Burleigh Falls. The latter machine turned over, Mrs. Brooks being thrown a considerable distance. The Bowmanville car lost a wheel and went into the ditch but did not capsize.

CANADIAN DOLLAR WORTH 99 CENTS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(Canadian Press).—Canadian dollar was worth ninety-nine cents in New York today for the first time since January 28. In the local exchange market Canadian money was quoted at one per cent discount, marking a decline of one per cent on one week.

Canadian banking men here attributed the firm tone of the Canadian exchange principally to the arrangement of financing for the big fall movement of Canadian wheat.

QUARTERLY MEETING WELL BABIES CLINIC

Management Gives Vote of Thanks to Ladies Who Helped at Babies' Show.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Management of the Well Babies' Clinic was held recently at the Clinic Rooms in the G.W.V.A. Hall, the president, Mrs. James Kendry, in the chair. There was a fair attendance of members and considerable discussion took place regarding future plans for the Clinic.

Hearty votes of thanks were passed in recognition of the services of the various ladies who helped materially to make the recent baby show at the Fall Fair a success, also to the gentlemen who donated special prizes for the event. Special mention was made of the services of Mesdames J. Mills, F. C. Neal, I. Black, R. J. Devey, W. Galbraith, the Misses Agnes Carmichael, Greta Giles and Zoe Doyle, the nurses in attendance during the show; Mrs. S. F. Touchburn, the Misses Devell and Dagidson, and of Mrs. A. Stevenson's work in choosing such excellent prizes.

A special vote of thanks was moved to Dr. Phyllis Young for taking charge of the Clinic during Dr. Birnie's absence, and to Miss Greta Giles, who ably filled the position of Clinic secretary during the absence of Mrs. Galbraith in California.

Reports were presented by Dr. J. Birnie and by the Clinic nurse, Mrs. G. McCartney, the former reporting on the conduct of the recent baby show, and recording a total of 841 babies examined at the Clinic during the quarter.

Mrs. McCartney reported as follows: Visits connected with registration of babies, 147; return calls, 47; sick visits, 112; telephone calls, 42—a total of 348 visits and calls made in connection with Clinic business during the quarter. Mrs. McCartney also reported less sickness during the early summer months of the quarter among infants than in the corresponding period of last year, with an increase, however, of summer complaint in the month of September. During the three months three infantile deaths were recorded, with six very sick children on the present list. Whooping-cought has made its appearance in some quarters. There are few cases needing help at the present time, and sanitary conditions throughout the city have improved considerably.

The class regret very much the resignation of their teacher, Rev. S. Crookshank.

The class is arranging for a rummage sale, the date to be announced later.

WHEN POLICE OFFICER MAY SHOOT OFFENDER

TORONTO, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press.)—"A police officer is justified in firing at an escaping offender only when the offence is a criminal one, for which the fugitive could be arrested without a warrant," stated Crown Attorney Eric Armour to-day when interviewed regarding the shooting of John Gogo, who, the police alleged, was engaged in rum-running when fatally shot by a member of the force on Saturday morning.

ITALY WILL INSIST ON ATTENDING CONFERENCE

ROME, Oct. 8.—(United Press.)—Italy will insist on the right to participate in the Tangiers conference between England, France and Spain, according to the 'Messagero,' despite the fact that no invitation was issued to Italy. Premier Mussolini has made representations to London, Madrid and Paris.

It is feared that some opposition to Italy's attendance may come from France.

SHAKESPERE

It seems reasonably proved, over in England, that Shakespeare's name shoul' be spelled Shakspere. This starts a quarrel among the authorities, many brilliant minds wasting their time on the futile discussion. After all, what difference does it make, how the name is spelled? Shakspere would have been amused at the controversy.

Great minds seem to have a tendency to get sidetracked on petty matters. There never was a man whose time was too "valuable" to keep him from pausing to watch a drunk being loaded into the patrol wagon.

DR. J. A. M'CUAIG

yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association in George Street Methodist Church, to hear the lecturer in his address on "Man's Relationship to Woman."

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker, in introducing the lecturer, spoke of the outstanding importance of the social message and the stupendous need of such a message in both Canada and the United States. In illustration of this, he read a letter received recently by Mr. McCuaig from John R. King, the Prosecuting Attorney of Franklin County, Ohio, in which the city of Columbus is located. In this letter Prosecuting Attorney King says:

"I attended with great interest and profit to myself, the lectures you gave in Columbus on National Need. They were indeed a clarion call to the homes of America. The citizens of this community should be grateful for the message you brought.

"It has been my fortune to have served as Police Prosecutor of this great city for three years, and am now serving my second term as Prosecuting Attorney of the County. As Police Prosecutor during that time, I came in contact with approximately 9,000 derelicts, men and women, who have violated the laws of our commonwealth and the ordinances of our city made for the protection of society. As County Prosecutor, we have handled over 500 felony cases, that is, infractions of the law which carry incarceration in the penitentiary. Included in that number were the famous bank robbery cases, 15 men sent to the penitentiary for terms of imprisonment ranging from ten to forty-five years. We have disposed of 38 first degree murder cases, and of that number eight have been electrocuted. In all cases which have come to our attention for disposition, we have attempted to make a study of the cause of crime.

"Without attempting to analyse the situation, let me say that if the entire citizenship could hear your message, and follow its philosophy, the criminal situation would be solved."

"The greatest problem of society," Dr. McCuaig declared, "is wrapped up in the relationship of the sexes."

In application of the argument of his lecture, which dealt largely with the enslavement of woman through the dominating passions of men, Dr. McCuaig said. "The greatest tragedy in Peterborough to-day is that your boys of twelve and fourteen are growing up into manhood without a confidant to whom they can go in regard to the one great developing force in life.

"There is no confidence between father and son in this matter. You can talk to your boys of their play and of their studies, but of the great issue that more than any other will make or mar the life you love better than your own, your lips are sealed, your tongues are tied, your hearts are dumb, while your boys drift on to the rocks, to disease and disaster and death.

"I hear you cry, Wh shall I do? What shall I do to save my boy? I am here to give you the answer. I bid you wait on this ministry. I bid you treasure every word as pure gold . I bid you use what I give as truly and bravely as you would leap through fire for the life you love. You cannot redeem the man of to-day, but you can save and make the man of to-morrow.'

In George Street Church.

At 7 o'clock, in George Street Methodist Church, Mr. McCuaig addressed a keenly interested congregation on "How to Love."

The climax of the day's services came at 8.30 p.m., when in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Dr. McCuaig addressed a great audience on "Tragedies of Marriage."

In the course of his lecture, which dealt with the matter of "Selection for Mateship," Dr. McCuaig said in part:

"Eugenics in any department of life has for its aim the improvement of the standard of the stock of that department, and in all departments in which practical advance in eugenics has been made, such as with flowers and fruits, horses and cattle, selection for mateship has been found to be a matter of fundamental importance.

"So when we come to the study of how to improve the human race, it is natural that we make deduction from our experience with trees and animals and emphasise the importance of a selection of the man for the woman and of the woman for the man.

"In the making of these deductions, most students and writers on the suyject of human eugenics have been carried away by materialistic and rationalistic conceptions, overlooking the fact that man is not as the horse that has no understanding.

"No law-made halter can lead either man or woman to this issue The genus of youth rebels against such attempt. It is apparent, however, that some effective principle of selection must be evolved if any advance is to be made in the improvement of the human family.

"The first problem involved in practical human eugenics," declared the lecturer, "is how to develop the true selective inclination in the individual, that the selection of a mate may be made wisely by each individual.

"This can be effected," he declared, "only through educational influences from childhood."

"The development of control, ideal and purpose were strongly emphasised. "In these the true love of the life will find channels, deep and strong and safe."

LITTLE CHANGE IN THE CONDITION OF H. J. DALY

TORONTO, Oct 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Little change in the condition of Herbert J. Daly, President of the defunct Home Bank, who is lying seriously ill at his home, Island Grove, Lake Simcoe, was reported this morning. Although resting more easily, he continues to have bad attacks at intervals.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct 8.—The annual meeting of the Cobourg Methodist district was held in the Plainville church, Rev. F. W. White, chairman, presiding. After Rev. J. W. Baird had presented his report for the district or social Service and Evangelism, the meeting was addressed by Rev. Mr. Campbell of Ottawa, who spoke on that work. He advocated a return to the family altar and noon-day prayer. Mr. Campbell said that a study of the numerical strength of the Methodist Church in Canada and of the statistics of the year book, showed that too large a percentage do not attend church. The church has before it a great unfinished task and every member is responsible for bringing in the kingdom. Mr. Campbell referred to the present temperance situation which is critical. He advocated watchfulness and earnest work on the part of the Church lest in Ontario there be a recurrence of what has taken place in Manitoba. He asked that the first Sunday in November be given over to the preaching of at least one practical temperance sermon.

Rev. R. A. Whattem, president of Bay of Quinte conference, spoke along the lines of evangelism and social service. He urged the rank and file to take up this work. There was a time when every church member was an evangelist.

The Missionary Appropriation

The missionary objective for the present church year is $17,520, divided as follows: Cobourg, $1,670; Port Hope, $1,900; Canton, $400; Welcome, $600; Cambourne, $1,100; Baltimore, $800; Grafton, $500; Roseneath, $450; Alderville, $100; This report was presented by Rev. J. N. Lovelace, Centreton.

Message From Japan

Rev. W. R. McWilliams, returned missionary from Japan, also addressed the meeting. Mr. McWilliams, who represents the young people's societies of the Brighton district, is home on his first furlough, with his wife and two children. Mrs. McWilliams, before her marriage, was Miss Bessie Winter, a daughter of Mr. Wilber Winter, Grafton, Haldimand township. Mr. McWilliams said the Japanese were imitators. They send their students to Germany, England, America, to study our ideas. They learn our militarism, our science and other things but few learn about our Christ. What is the use of preaching Christ to the Japanese when so many in our own land where these people come to learn of us, do not know Him yet, asked Mr. McWilliams. He said that out of the 370 middle schools in Japan 303 study English. Japan is commercialized and materialized and very few men will say, "I will follow Christ and give my life to Him." One of the facts in our faith is our study of personality. Buddhism in Japan teaches to get rid of personality in nationalism. It is the opposite to Christianity. After spending seven years in Japan, Mr. McWilliams said he had come to the conclusion that one of the greatest needs in Japan is Christian leadership.

At the close of the afternoon service the Young People's League provided supper and a pleasant social gathering was held. The ladies of the church also entertained the delegates at dinner.

There was a well attended evening session, which was addressed by Revs. Campbell, Whattem and McWilliams.

Accident While Filling Silo

Mr. Fred Snell met with an unfortunate accident while assisting in filling a silo at Mr. W. H. Giddy's farm in Hope township, on Saturday, when a horse that he was driving ran away, and he was thrown out. A small bone in the back of his hand was broken causing a painful injury.

British Harvesters May Stay

It is stated that many of the British harvesters who came out to assist in harvesting the Western grain crop may stay in Canada and that some of them are available for Ontario farms.

Gordon McIvor's Funeral

Gordon McIvor, twelve years of age, died from the results of an accident, when he was accidentally run over by an automobile. He only lived a few hours after the fatal accident. The car is stated to have been driven by a young man named Fordella, a son of a Cobourg fruit dealer. Very much sympathy is felt with his parents and the other members of their family in this sore affliction. The funeral took place yesterday and was very largely attended by friends and sympathizing citizens.

The services were conducted by Rev. R. F. Stillman, pastor of the Methodist church, who spoke words of comfort to the sadly bereaved family and of inspiration and hope. There were many beautiful floral tributes attesting to the sympathy of citizens. The pall bearers were six companions of deceased from the Boy's Orange Lodge in Cobourg. Another son of Mr. and Mrs. McIvor met with a very serious accident last winter when he fell from a train between Cobourg and Port Hope. Besides his parents, Gordon is survived by seven brothers and sisters. A married sister lives in Pittsburg and at home there are, Bert, Dorothy, Eldren, Edward, Fred and Henry, and all have sympathy from citizens throughout the district.

Inquest To Be Held

On Monday, after the death of Gordon McIvor, Coroner Dr. Ferris empanelled a jury which viewed the remains and adjourned to meet again next week. Dr. F W. Drewry is chairman.

The Late Miss Hunter

Miss Hannah Hunter, formerly of Cobourg, passed away at the Western Hospital, Toronto, at the weekend and the remains were taken by C. P. R. train to Belleville for interment in the family plot in Belleville cemetery. Rev. H. B. Kenny conducted the services at the grave.

Miss Hunter resided in Cobourg for some years before going to Toronto. A year ago last May she purchased a house on Dufferin St., Toronto, to which she removed, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Hopper, who faithfully cared for her during her long illness, for Miss Hunter's health was precarious before she left town. Some months ago Miss Hunter was seized with a stroke, and was taken for treatment to the Western hospital, where she lay for many weeks in a practically helpless condition, tenderly cared for and solaced as far as possible by the frequent presence of her sisters and other relatives. She is survived by two sisters Mrs. Hopper of Toronto, and Mrs. Henry, wife of T. M. Henry, M.A., Almonte High School, but who is at present fulfilling the duties of principal of Arnprior High School. Mr. Henry retired from active teaching duty at midsummer, but was later prevailed upon to take the work at Arnprior temporarily, if not permenantly.

Two brothers of the late Miss Hunter, John of Belleville, the other of Kingston, predeceased her less than two years ago.

Sheard — McLean

A wedding of interest here, as the groom was stationed in Cobourg for a time with a Cobourg Heavy Battery unit, and is otherwise well known here, took place in St. Mark's Anglican church, Toronto, on Thursday of last week, when Lorna, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gordon McLean, was married to Terence, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sheard. Rev. Mr. White officiated and Mr. Paul Sheard was best man. The bride wore a smart Parisian suit of brown suede with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Sheard left to spend a few weeks in Muskoka.

Medals For Quinte Boys

The summer season with its aquatic sports and other out-door events is always a season of danger, and also now and again affords opportunity for brave action. Recognition of the latter usually come in due time although sometimes it is apparently tardy. In July, 1922, a bunch of boys were swimming in the Moira River, when Leonard McGuire got beyond his depth, and was in danger of being drowned, had not Russell Babcock, without hesitation, plunged in and saved him. Mr. Charles Hanna, of Belleville, has received a medal from the Royal Canadian Humane Association for presentation to him, and another for Wilfrid Rutten, who in June of the same year effected another rescue. Upon the latter occasion some boys were playing in an old sluice way near a factory on the Moira River in the Belleville district. A boy named Frank Copeland was swept off his feet by a rush of water and was in grave danger when young Rutten, who was employed in a nearby foundry, saw the situation from an upper window. Without hesitation he bravely leaped from the window and saved the boy. His heroism is now to be publicly recognized by the presentation of a medal.

Brave acts like these on the part of our boys and young men, shows that there is a spirit among the youth of Canada that is not unworthy of the record of bravery and sacrifice of their pioneer ancestors.

How Williams & Travers established a Business of their own

MR. WILLIAMS and Mr. Travers decided to start a retail clothing business. Williams had $4,000 cash to put in the business, and Travers $1,000, together with seven years' experience in selling clothing.

They found they had enough money to buy store equipment, but when it came to establishing credit, they ran against a snag that seemed impossible to overcome.

One day a North American Life man told them about a business insurance policy. "If each of you will insure his life making the firm the beneficiary, you will find it far easier to establish credit."

That was five years ago. Today this firm is well established—in fact, it is one of the most successful retail clothing stores in Western Canada. "We might never have got started had it not been for that business insurance policy," he told our representative.

This case indicates but one of the many benefits of Business Insurance. Send for our booklet, "You're a Business Man," which explains all of them.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Miss Caroline's well-meaning advice to the "Million Dollar Doll" leaves Terry bewildered and miserable.

Nazlo reviews what had gone before between him and Terry. The girl had run away from him one night, back in New York and her unscrupulous father Desmond, had told Eustace she had gone to stay with friends.

Putting two and two together Nazlo realizes that the supposed Million Dollar Doll is Terry Desmond. He determines to question Mrs. Harkness whom he sees coming ashore from the yacht.

From what Mrs. Harkness tells him, Nazlo gathers that Terry is still an innocent Convent maid.

At Algiers, Miles sees Paul di Salvano with a group of strangers.

CHAPTER LX.

An Experiment

The group consisted of a grizzled, square-chinned, elderly man, who would have looked American at the North Pole; a plumply pretty girl with a peach-like skin, floating violet eyes, and bobbed brown hair; while the third member of the trio was a young man, very dark, very handsome, very slim, and very smart: the perfect type of what New York has named "lounge lizard."

This was Paul di Salvano, whom Miles had supposed to be on the other side of the world, waiting for Betty to begin divorce proceedings.

Miles hated Salvano. The Italian had not broken the heart of Betty Sheridan's husband, because his heart was not in Betty's keeping. But the man had broken Miles Sheridan's life, such ideals of respect and affection as Betty had left him after seven years of marriage.

When Miles had come upon the pair together, there had been a moment when he saw red, and would have killed Salvano, or fought to kill. But it had seemed to him as if the figure of Mrs. Parmalee rose between them, and her voice said, "Remember your promise!"

He could not touch Salvano then. To kill him would mean a scandal which couldn't be hushed up. He, Miles, would not be convicted of murder. He would be acquitted by the unwritten law. But Betty would be ruined, and her ruin would be the breaking of his promise.

He had taken the way which seemed best to save her, and give her what she wanted. Just lately the sea winds had cooled the passing thought of Paul di Salvano, "Paolo," as he heard Betty call her lover.

But now, in an instant, all the hatred poured back in a flood, as if a sluice had opened.

"Damn the hound!" he said to himself. "Betty must have sent him to spy on me."

His impulse was to turn and walk off the terrace with Juliet Divine, but quickly he changed his mind. He wouldn't be driven away by that cur!

Choosing a table, he made Terry sit facing the bay of Mustapha, and he took a chair opposite. This gave their profiles to the group of three, distant from them one-third the length of the terrace. They need not look towards the party, yet would not seem to avoid it by deliberately turning their backs.

"I've been thinking," Miles began, when coffee had arrived, "if you wouldn' mind a change of plan, I'd like to take you for a short desert trip before we do much sight-seeing in Algiers; just a short spin; only a night or two away—or more if we like; then back.

"There's a beautiful little oasis called Bousaada, only seven or eight hours from Algiers with a decent motor, but wilder and far less spoiled by tourists than Biskra. Lots of people don't know that it exists. But I've been there with—I've been there to see the dancing of the Oui-Nails. You've heard of them, of course—you who dance so charmingly on the stage."

Terry shook her head. "No, I never heard of the Ouled Naile," she replied.

Sheridan had ceased discrediting every statement of hers which struck him as strange. He even believed most things she said, without remembering to laugh at his own credulity.

"Well, Bousaada is the original home of the Ouled Nails tribe, that brings up its girls to be dancers," he explained. "They're interesting, and often they're beautiful. More than half the journey to Bousaada by car is rather splendid. There's no railway, as there is to Biskra. Would you like to go?" Or would it vex you to leave your sight-seeing and shopping in Algiers till later?"

"I've no shopping," the girl answered. (Again Miles remembered Harky's words: "I don't believe she's got a cent!") "I shall like the sight-seeing here just as well after Bousaada. And I love to go away to peaceful places where—where—" she bit her lip.

"Where—what?" he insisted.

"Oh, nothing much. It's silly, I suppose. But I get nervous having so many grand sort of people who know you, stare at me. That's all."

"You know as many 'grand sort' of people as I do," Sheridan smiled, almost apologetically. He might have substituted "men" for "people". Many women stared at Juliet Divine, but only men bowed.

Terry didn't dispute his amendment. "I should like to go to Bousaada," she said.

In the African sunshine (faintly hazed today, as if the light shone through a pale sapphire) the girl looked, Sheridan thought, young as the morning and sweeter than he had seen her yet.

A sense of his own selfishness towards her oppressed him. Each day he exploited her, giving her little or no return, since—thus far—she had refused to take the pay agreed upon. The girl's "blood was on her own head" of course, but there was one small thing he might do—an experiment he might try, to gauge her feelings.

As the thought came into his head he spoke.

"You don't dislike Mrs. Harkness, do you?"

"No, indeed!" Terry answered. "I've grown fond of her. I was afraid of her at first, but not now. And I think she—almost—likes me too."

"She sings your praised whenever she gets the chance," said Miles. "She is—er—a sort of unofficial chaperon for you on board "Silverwood," and if you happen to remember, you've never been away from the yacht with me alone, except for a day's excursion. I've always brought you back to Harky every night."

"I do remember very well," Terry said, wondering what was to come.

QUIZ CORNER

ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM

Q.—Where is the Royal Ontario Museum?

A.—The Royal Ontario Museum of Toronto, is one of the greatest on the continent, supported by the Ontario Government, and the University of Toronto. It contains admirably arranged and classified collections dealing with archaeology, geology, mineralogy, palaeontology and zoology. The first of these is rich in examples of early Grecian and Egyptian art. The Chinese collection is exceptionally important, the special feature being the large number of fine specimens of early Chinese ceramics and sculpture. The Tiang period is wonderfully represented, including very important tomb groups of horses, men and gods; and the collection of Sung and Ming pieces is important and representative. In the Museum of Palaeontology are excellent specimens of dinosaurs found in the banks of the Red River in Alberta.

WOMEN'S HOSTELS.

Q.—What and where are women's hostels in Canada.

A.—There are several women's hostels is Canada, in Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver established in 1919 for women immigrants and operated under the superintendence of the Women's divisios of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

A THOUGHT.

We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed.—2 Cor. 4:8, 9.

No affliction, nor temptation, no guilt nor power of sin, no wounded spirit nor terrified conscience, should induce us to despair of help and comfort from God.—T. Scott.

TINY STATUES ACCURATE FASHION PLATES OF ANCIENT GREECE

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Beoti town of Tanagra was a place of some importance in ancient times, but it had long vanished from the map when in the early seventies of the last century, the world began to hear of "Tanagra Figurines." The figurines are hollow, usually open at the base, and were cast in several pieces from molds. More than nine-tenths of these figurines represent women—not in the conventional manner of the Egyptian monuments, but in a photographic likeness. They show us everyday Greek womanhood of the third and fourth centuries before Christ. They reveal much about the intimate lives of Greek women, their tasks and amusements, and especially the details of their dress. We see them at work in their homes or deep in the mysteries of the toilet, says a writer in The Mentor for October.

CHORAL MUSIC NEEDS ENCOURAGEMENT

Choral music in Canada requires a staunch backing from the people who can afford to offer their means as a furtherance of this kind of music. There are many many choruses varying from good to very bad, but there are so few that are really remarkable that they may be easily counted.

As it is now, in some larger places the choruses are partly paid, due to the inability to secure the right sort of singers. The results of such a chorus rehearsing several times a week would be amazing. The average amateur society has but one rehearsal a week, with usually a large percentage of absentees, and makes but little artistic progress from year to year. Thus these societies are unable to produce the greatest choral works, which often lie unnoticed for many years.

On the whole, choral music is badly in need of strenuous improvement.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PULPWOOD EMBARGO FACTS

Sir,—

I can quite realise that my "bombardment" of the newspapers with letters, advocating an embargo on unmanufactured wood may be irritating to those who may have some selfish interest at stake, although it is meeting with the unqualified approval of those whose only interest is the public welfare.

Some opponents of the embargo have endeavoured to create prejudice by personal attacks on me and my motives in so earnestly advocating an embargo. They lose sight of the fact that it is not a personal question at all but one of national concern, and if my arguments are sound and logical it matters not to the public what my business interests are now or may have been in the past. However, for the discomfiture of those few who would try to draw the proverbial red herring across the trail, I will make a few plain statements of fact, all of which can very easily be proven, with regard to this seeming anomaly of a man who, retired from active business, is willing to devote his time and means to a matter of public interest solely from an altruistic motive.

In the first place, I am merely a plain ordinary man whose chief qualification is a capacity for hard work and an ardent love for my country. My situation is that having acquired a sufficiency of this world's goods, I divided one-half of my property among the members of my family several years ago, and the remaining half I have now dedicated to the work of forest conservation. For the information of those who have insinuated that there are other interests behind my movement, I may say that I am conducting a purely personal campaign which was conceived in my own brain and financed out of my own pocket, and that with the single exception of a casual meeting with one man, I have never even met nor do I know by sight, any of the pulp or paper manufacturers in the Dominion of Canada.

Some of the hirelings of the American opponents of the embargo have suggested that lands which I or my family own in the United States would be benefited by an embargo and that my pulp mill in Nova Scotia would also derive benefit. For their confusion I will state that I do not own an acre of land or any interest in any land in the United States, direct or indirect, and that the entire holdings of all my relatives combined in land in that country not already stripped of pulpwood amounts to less than thirty-five thousand acres. Since the pulp mill in Maine, in which they are interested does not either own or control an acre of land other than through the above small holdings, it will readily be seen that they will be in exactly the same boat as all other pulp and paper manufacturers in the U. S. when the embargo is applied. With regard to my ownership in the 400,000 acres which I control in Nova Scotia, since this is all fee land from which the wood is now exportable to the United States, these opponents to the embargo will not have the temerity to say that there can be any selfish interest at stake in this connection.

Insofar as a wood supply for my Nova Scotia mill is concerned, as this mill only consumes a matter of some 14,000 cords annually, it would leave me a large surplus of wood for export if I so desired. This mill is at present buying all its supply from the farmers, thereby saving from export at least that quantity of wood, although I have urged the farmers time and again, not only in Nova Scotia but in all Canada, to conserve their trees just as long as possible in order that they may reap the full benefit of the higher prices that are coming in the immediate future owing to the exhaustion of the wood supply. The fact must also be borne in mind that there are some eight other pulp mills in Nova Scotia which are largely dependent on farmers' wood for their existence. It is perfectly safe to say that at the rate land and wood are being bought up in Nova Scotia by Americcan interests, within three years time the wood-using industries of that Province which have not a sufficient supply on their own lands will be out of business.

So much for the personal element.

Now as to the suggestion that since a "royal commission" has been appointed to "investigate" the pulpwood situation everybody should fold his hands and sit quietly by to await the outcome of the deliberations of that august body—deliberations which, the chairman himself has explained, will occupy months if not years to conclude.

"If" there was anything for a royal commission to discover that was not already only too well discovered; "if" a commission had been appointed competent too deal with the matter; and "if" the forest situation was not so alarming, it would be quite in order to await the findings by that body, as suggested, notwithstanding the truism of Disraeli, particularly applicable in this case, that "royal commissions are appointed to discover things already known to the people." Any reader of the newspapers of ordinary intelligence is fully appraised as to our forest losses from insect pests, fires, wind storms and our enormously increasing exports, aside from the necessities of our own rapidly increasing wood-using industries. Attempts have been made to minimize the fire losses by reference to the amount of wood subject to salvage, but it is a fact that only a very small portion of fire-killed timber can be salvaged owing to the astounding swarms of borers that are now infesting our burned-over areas. I have just received a letter from a large timberland owner who had quite a large area destroyed by fire the present season, in which he says: "I have had the land carefully examined and find that the pine is already badly bored, and that it will only be throwing good money after bad to try to cut and save it." And what is true in his case is true in most.

We must not take the suggestion of t the Premier of Quebec that the placing of an embargo is ultra vires of the Federal Government too seriously, as Mr. Taschereau in the past has been perhaps the strongest advocate in the whole Dominion of Canada for home manufacture for not only our pulpwood but all other raw materials, even going so far as to say that Quebec's raw materials should be manufactured in Quebec, because insofar as our pulpwood is concerned, with the enormous losses we have recently suffered through insects and fires, the necessity for conservation is far greater today than when this wise policy was first propounded by Mr. Taschereau. Consequently, as I said before, we must not take any recantation on the part of the Premier too seriously. An explanation, sooner or later, will doubtless be forthcoming.

I am glad to know that my suggestion as to an embargo, even at first blush, seems a reasonable means of conserving our pulpwood resources to a critical St. John newspaper.) This journal states that only 12% of the pulpwood used in the making of paper in the United States is cut from Canadian land, but as a matter of fact out of a total consumption of pulpwood by United States mills of some 5,500,000 cords, Canada will probably export to that country the coming year nearer forty percent., with a possibility of its reaching fifty per cent. Many American paper mills have shut down woods operations in their own country and are bleeding Canada white, a fact which makes the dalliance of the Canadian Government in dealing with the issue little short of criminal.

The argument also advanced by this journal that it would be as reasonable to place an embargo on wheat as on pulpwood is, to say the least, facetious. Wheat is a crop of which there is a world surplus, while of wood there is a world shortage. Wheat can bear in one season, while trees take from fifty to one hundred and fifty years to produce. The same newspaper asks why try to force the growth of the paper industry in Canada when, by natural processes, it is bound to grow any way. Well, I ask in all seriousness, whether the "natural process" would not be to allow insects and fire to destroy and our increasing exports to diminish our wood supply to such an extent that it would not only be impossible for it to grow but under this "natural process" the industry will instead only too soon have to curtail.

The main reason for the disinclination on the part of the American paper manufacturer to move his mill to the Canadian side is patriotic. He prefers to manufacture our raw material in his own country, thereby giving employment to American labour as well as increasing American dividends and reducing American taxes at Canada's expense, and in this worthy cause he is being ably assisted by our Canadian Government.

The newspaper further offers the gratuitous suggestion that "Mr. Barnjum would be well advised if he were to confine his praiseworthy efforts to prevent the immense waste of Canadian forests by fire." My reply to this suggestion is that when I see the Liberal Government at Ottawa take the only action that will produce a large measure of immediate conservation of our forest resources without the expenditure of one dollar of the people's money, namely, by the simple process of passing the Order-in-Council prohibiting the export of unmanufactured wood, I shall then be ready to devote every moment of my time and every dollar at my command to an endeavour to prevent our appalling forest fire losses, expending time and money in protecting a wood supply merely so that it may be exported for the benefit of another country.

Sir: As a frequenter of the Library I do think it is time the committee got the end-of-the-week papers before Monday. All Saturday p.m., when mechanics have a half-holiday loses its most interesting time when they go to the library, and then on Sunday they are just as far behind. We have been waiting for this improvement for a long time, and since the papers come to town we ought to hav them at the library, and not be so very far behind.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

'Come! Come!' said Mister Dodger' 'Don't quarrel any more, you two.

FRIENDLY ENEMIES

"Baa!" said Snipper Sheep.
"Maa' said Billy Goat
"Baa!'
"Maa"
"Baa!"
"Maa"

"They're at it again," said Mister Dodger, looking over the fence into a field where Snipper Sheep and Billy Goat were quarreling.

'Hey there!' called Mister Dodger "What's the matter?"

"He called me a moon-face' bleated Snipper Sheep.

"He called me a garbage can!' declared Billy Goat.

"Well, he eats just anything at all!' accused Snipper. "He ate a towel and a shirt sleeve off the clothes-line today.'

"I have to eat something," declared Billy Goat, disgustedly. "He pulls up all the grass by the roots when he eats and he's got the field ruined, Maa!"

"Baa' replied Snipper.

'Come! Come' said Mister Dodger. "Dont quarrel any more you two. Here comes Farmer Brown with a man. If he catches you quarreling. he'll sell you both."

"Sell!" exclaimed the two fighters "Who's going to be sold?'

"Nobody, I hope, answered Mister Dodger wagging his head solemnly. "But we'll see. Come, Nancy! Come Nick It's time we were disappearing. We'll dodge behind these bushes'

Farmer Brown and his friend arrived a minute later and walked right up to Snipper Sheep. Farmer Brown held him by his horns while the stranger felt him all over.

"I'll give you fifteen dollars for him,' said he. "He's good and fat and he has lots of wool on him."

"All right,' said Farmer Brown. "I'll take it.'

But suddenly something happened. Billy Goat had heard every word. And without warning he lowered his horns and made a rush at the stranger.

When Mister Man dizzily picked himself up a minute late, he made a bee-line for the fence.

"Keep your sheep. I don't want him he called angrily. "I wouldn't give you a lead nickel for him."

Farmer Brown patted Billy's fat back. "Good boy." he chukled.

"You've taught me a lesson I didn't want to sell Snipper at all."

Mister Dodger nudged Nancy. What did I tell you," he whispere "It's often the way with friends. They fight like sixty, but they stick up for each other every time."

"Baa," bleated Sniper gratefully, looking at Billy with affectionate eyes.

"Maa" replied Billy. Don't mention it old boy. Nothing at all."

OPEN AT VENTURE AS BIBLE SYSTEM

Founded in Superstition Say Records—Magic Declares Dr. Morgan—"Faith" Professes Old Lady.

In Dr. Campbell Morgan's sermon on the study of the Bible, he denounced those who open the Book at random and put their fingers down on a text expecting to get help. "The Bible is not a book of magic," he said.

Further inquiry in the city and investigation of records on the subject shows that a common practice with those who "seek for a sign" is to open the Bible at random and find their answer in the passage upon which their thumb rests as they part the leaves.

In pagan times this divination was accomplished by placing the finger at random on a passage of Homer, Virgil or some other great author. Virgil was a particular favorite, and the practice of consulting him continued down to modern times, though the Bible is the Book now generally used.

During the Middle Ages Virgil became so enveloped in a mist of tradition and superstition that he was alluded to by the uneducated as "Virgil the Wizard"; and the popular estimation of the chief value of the "Æneid" was as an oracle.

As late as the time of Charles I. the Bible had not entirely supplanted the "Æneid" for purposes of divination, as is evidenced by the well-known story of how that monarch learned his fate by the "Sortes Virgilianæ," as it was called.

Imbedded in Superstition.

This practice of divination by books is said to have originated in the "respect and veneration of certain books arising from their wisdom and reputation"; and it is easy to understand the psychology which induced people of the Middle Ages to consult "Virgil the Wizard" and leads men of a superstitious trend of mind to-day to turn the Bible into an oracle.

The beginning of the idea dates back to the first introduction of letters, when, to the common mind, there was something supernatural in the power of a few marks made in a certain way to convey from one person to another not merely ideas but whole speeches, word for word.

The feeling is displayed to-day by remote tribes of savages when they see for the first time the use of the printed or written word in communication, as attested by many missionary stories.

Interviewed regarding this practice of consulting the Bible in the hap-hazard manner described by Dr. Morgan, a city clergyman said the method is still common among the older members of his church. Those who follow the system do not regard the sacred Book as an oracle, but they feel that anywhere within its covers is a helpful message for them. One old lady declared that she could depend on the Spirit of God to guide her to the very assurance she needed.

Not superstition, this clergyman said, but a great faith in God and in His Word, is evidenced by those who to-day open the Bible at a venture.

NEW BUCKHORN ROAD VERY SATISFACTORY

On Saturday afternoon the Harvey Township Council met at Hall's Bridge to pass accounts for the construction of the new roadway the Buckhorn crossway. Mr. J. L. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal, made an inspection of the work and pronounced it satisfactory to his Department.

The Council, with Reeve Parker in the chair, passed a vote of thanks unanimously to Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., for his efforts in obtaining a vote of $4,000 to make this much needed repair. This road which enters Buckhorn village was formerly flooded each spring, but it is now raised three feet and a half and has a very substantial railing on each side 583 feet long, and the roadway is 29 feet wide.

Mr. Gordon told the Council that while the Government assumed no responsibility for the maintaining of this highway, the flooding took place through the raising of the waters at Buckhorn, and it was for that reason that the Government voted $4,000 to the Harvey Council for the re-building of the road.

"Conversation Circulation"

IN the days when Conversation Circulation" statements were the basis on which the advertiser bought space, the advertising solicitor who put up his story in the most pleasing manner generally got the business.

In case the advertiser questioned the figures he might possibly go to the newspaper office and look over the circulation records with his own auditors. But neither he nor his auditors knew the intricacies of newspaper circulation records or the possibilities for juggling figures.

Circulation differences and arguments caused bitter battles between many newspapers. Ingenious schemes were used by unscrupulous publishers to put up the appearance of a larger circulation than they had. The prevalence of these practices brought out the necessity for a reputable agency to audit and report on circulation matters.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations was started eight years ago by a nucleus of the leading advertisers, agents, newspaper, magazine, farm papers, and trade paper publishers. Today it has a membership of 1800. The purpose of the bureau is to make fair and impartial audits of circulation records and it is now accepted as the Standard Authority among space buyers throughout the United States and Canada.

Every Publisher-Member of the Bureau is required to make semi-annual statements setting forth the actual net paid circulation. Once a year the Bureau sends an auditor to the office of each publisher to check and if necessary correct his circulations statements.

Study the A.B.C. reports of the publications you are considering and it wil not be necessary to argue about competitive circulation.

YOU CAN TAKE THE RISK OUT OF ADVERT

Jocelyn's Jailbird

by Jack Lait

"WHY don't you put that Hanleigh girl on society stuff?" asked Pete Mullen, editor of the women's page on the "Eagle," of Larry Hackett, the city editor.

"Because," said Hackett, "she doesn't know the business. If I ever stuck her in the society end, where she does know a little about what it's all about, she'd quit learning; she'd soon think she was jerry to all there is to it. This way, on local assignments, where she's one of the finest examples of the genus dumb-bell I ever handled, maybe she realizes she's a chump, and maybe that'll keep her in the spirit to learn something."

"That's rather broad theorizing, Larry," answered Mullen, "but in this era of intensive specialization I should think the way of least resistance would be to place everybody immediately where he or she has the best natural or acquired or temperamental or accidental start."

"Damn the way of the least resistance," barked Hackett. "Resistance is just as important an element of progress as conquering resistance is. I'll make all the natural, acquired, temperamental and accidental vicissitudes in this shop. When they come in here raw, they're raw all over; when they learn anything here, they learn it here and nowhere else. But don't worry . . . I'll make a reporter out of that highborn baby if I have to break her heart and a couple of her legs. There's something shining through her neophyte stupidity that fascinates me. If I can ever corral it and harness it, it will furnish the motive power to run some kind of a great plant. I've handled enough blundering cubs to recognize any potentialities, no matter how remote—they're so rare. Leave the Hanleigh girl to me, kid."

"Very well," submitted the "kid," who was sixty-three, "but I tell you she has a newspaper sense and it might be stifled by keeping her chasing two-inch items in rear tenements, night courts, firehouses and other environments entirely foreign to her."

"No environment should be foreign to a newspaper worker. And if she has newspaper sense, it'll be of value when all environments look alike to her—personally—and stand out in sharp, dramatic, colorful contrast to her only as impersonal material. She's getting an education at the expense of the paper; an education in humanity. What she learned in seminaries, drawing rooms, seaside retreats and behind the palms is only one phase; she is no better equipped to understand society—or even 'society'—now, than that dago copy boy over there is equipped to understand it, though he knows as much about low life as she does about high. And low life, my dear Pete, occupies by far a more important position in the daily newspapers than does high life. Think it over, old bean."

"You give me a pain," said Pete. "The women's page is what really makes the paper, and you know it. The women, after all——"

If Pete Mullen had gone where Larry Hackett told him to, he might have had an excellent chance to study the outstanding preponderance of low life. But he didn't—he just made a face at the city editor and went back to his desk. Hackett glanced over his assignment schedule, put his forefinger on one of the lines and bawled, "Miss Hanleigh!"

Jocelyn, who had been sitting in a corner with two other new reporters, disagreeing with them on just what was the matter with the paper, picked up her purse, her handkerchief, her pencil, her gloves, her umbrella and her wrap, and crossed to Hackett's desk with an expression of hopeful expectancy modified by an advance protest against the mission she expected; that is, she had no definite one in mind, but for three weeks the tenderly reared daughter of the late J. Bernard Hanleigh, aristocrat and stately social classic in the community, had been drawing dog fights, delinquent immigrants, clothes-line squabbles, missing working girls, drunken wife beaters and other stray pearls of mean price from that lottery sheet on which Hackett each day marked that day's destiny for each of his "leg workers"—that is the technical label of the editorial room for reporters who scurry about gathering up the sweepings of the day's doings in the confused swirl of a big city's follies, fortunes, adventures, sins and struggles.

She had not once been thrown into a breach where she could influence public thought, point out either great dramas or crying conditions, electrify a world with a thrill or paralyze it with a punch. Stories of magnitude were "breaking," but Hackett, somehow, did not seem to trust her to handle them—her who had studied applied psychology, handbook economics as well as the higher thought, ethics, the arts, literature and English composition.

"Miss Hanleigh," said Hackett over his shoulder, while talking to some one over a telephone, scribbling himself a memorandum and reading the dummy schedule for next Sunday's country edition, "there's a bird in the Fifth Precinct station named 'Silk' Tanner, charged with buncoing a Mrs. Vance Eddington out of a large sum on a church charity racket. Mrs. Eddington is——"

"I know her very well," ventured Jocelyn. "She and my mother are old friends. She would tell me anything, I'm sure."

"Thanks. I don't want her to tell you anything. She's told all she knows already—made her squawk to the district attorney, who gave out her statement in full. She is a woman of wealth and hands out to a lot of causes. This Tanner, she says, hornswoggled her out of thousands on representations that he wanted to found a church for reformed crooks—he's done time, himself. Let's see what he has to say . . . and we want early copy to-night, please. All right."

Well—this was a little more promising than anything she had bungled before, and she made her way to the police station with accelerated pulses. She had already picked up enough of the professional technique to know just how to identify herself and get through the deadlines against outsiders who want to converse with prisoners (they're harder to get to than bank presidents, as a rule), and the turnkey brought her to a cell. In the far corner within sat a man on a stool, his back turned.

"Hey, 'Silk'—reporter," called the jailer.

Tanner turned with a snarling sneer, but when he saw the charming girl instead of the busy and important young male newsgatherer of customary type, he straightened, rose and came to the grating.

"I am with the 'Eagle,' Mr. Tanner," opened Jocelyn. "In reference to that Eddington affair——"

"Oh, that? Well, you just say for me that the old chromo is cookoo."

"I—may I ask you to repeat that?"

"I mean—she's looney."

"But—I know her very well. She is a very estimable, public-spirited and splendid woman."

"Yeh? Well, if you know more about it than what I do, why come an' annoy me? Say—there's a whole lot about her you don't know, take that sifted through these bars. If she's splendid, I'm Christopher Columbus."

"Why, Mr. Tanner—you astound me."

"Oh, do I? Well, how'd you like to know that the old blister went a little sappy over me when she firs' met me in the pen—I was doin' a stretch because I was framed up by some crooked dicks, see? She took an int'rest in me that wasn't so whoopin' public-spirited. She slipped me a very quiet but very raw invite to be sure an' call on her when I got out. In fact, it was her what sprung me two months ahead o' my parole date—used some influence with the gove'nor. She sent me candy an' a lot o' truck in the meantime.

"It was her first got that bright idea about a church for ex-cons. It was the brightest thing she could think of to keep me comin' around to the house, see? The old jane is man crazy. But I got a wife an' a kid, and I'm a decent citizen, I am. So I stood for it as far as I could, an' then I piped up an' give the poor sap a flock of air. That was when she made the holler an' put in this rap against me."

"There's a whole lot about her you don't know—take that sifted through these bars."

Jocelyn Hanleigh stood, not knowing whether to turn red or white. The applied psychology didn't seem to apply here.

She had known Mrs. Vance Eddington all her life. The Eddingtons were of the best. The widow of the illustrious Dr. Eddington, philanthropist, publicist, occupied an elevation that mere gobs of money got a stiff neck looking hopelessly up at.

And here was a man behind rusty police bars, who had been behind even more significant ones, who was palpably of extremely unsavory origin, proclaiming that Mrs. Vance Eddington had become enamored of him, had hastened his release, had lured him into her house on an eleemosynary subterfuge, and had so broadly made advances toward him that this underworld jailbird had fled from her; and that Mrs. Eddington, the woman scorned in this misfit liaison, had vented the chagrin of his escape on him by wielding a cowardly cudgel from the eminence of her standing to slug this unfortunate whose prison record put him at a complete disadvantage.

It shocked her, not only because it surprised her, but because it was such a tremendous drama; the lovesick old widow of position and millions; the love at first sight for a handsome crook whom she saw while doing welfare work; the powerful and mysterious official machinery of a great State moving in response to the vibrations of this mellow gentlewoman's Indian summer infatuation for this stranger whom that State had felonized because he was its enemy, even as he was the enemy of that society which she epitomized; her whispered proposal, his furtive visit, her machinations to make their meetings seem legitimate—even noble; the temptation of her riches and her protection; then the revulsion and the abnegation on the honor of a thief—why? Because of the wife and the kid!

It was an unwritten story. In all the realms of standard fiction she could not find a parallel for its many ramifications.

But—should she be a renegade to that walk of life whence she had, herself, sprung? Should she expose not only the smug Mrs. Eddington, but by inference the entire smug class? How the rabble would eat it up! What the socialist sheets would screech about this! How the very rats in their prison cages would shake with raucous laughter at the lily-whites and the silk-stockings! What a joke it would make of that famously impenetrable barrier between the first families and the worst families!

Oh, it would kick up perdition enough—and she, a Hanleigh, would be the one to apply the boot against her own.

But—was it discretionary with her? Was she not in a position of a surgeon or a soldier or a judge whose sad professional duty it fell to that some must suffer, that there must be pain, but that there shall be justice and safety and decency? Was not the shielding of the guilty a concealed assault upon the innocent? And was not one who so shielded the guilty, a moral accessory to the guilt?

After all, it was not she, Jocelyn Hanleigh, who had brought about this calamity upon Mrs. Eddington and upon all whom Mrs. Eddington might reflect upon. It was Mrs. Eddington who had done it. She, Jocelyn, was no more within her rights in considering Mrs. Edington than would be the court stenographer who would transcribe Tanner's testimony in court, verbatim, or the officer who served the warrant; the officer would have served it on Mrs. Eddington had there been one. She, Jocelyn, would have turned in "Silk" Tanner's confession had he confessed that he was entirely guilty. How, then, could she suppress the charges of Mrs. Eddington's guilt when he claimed that he was entirely innocent?

Wasn't this just the opportunity for which she had been aching? She had craved a great chance to do a great good—to enlighten the world on some vital circumstance—one that would not alone narrate what had happened to an isolated individual, but would reflect a situation applicable to a whole class? And here was one directly affecting all classes.

Why, it was a revelation that would reverberate in every stratum of modern life; echo in the chambers of justice and hum in the halls of legislation. It affected not only the primary problem of wealth and poverty, but it cast a shadow on charity—yes, even religion. Not only was it an intensely stirring plot, but it throbbed with themes that banged with ringing knuckles against the iron doors of essential institutions.

Yes, Jocelyn Hanleigh's big journalistic accomplishment was in Jocelyn Hanleigh's little hands.

And she would not discard it. The girl had character, and character gives that courage which is not expressed in bravado, but which knows no retreating from a stand when a vital principle is at issue.

Jocelyn ran all this, to her final resolution, through her mind in a few moments. She turned to "Silk" Tanner and said, with steady voice:

"Mr. Tanner, that is a tremendous story. It will cause no end of an uproar, but I shall publish it. My friendship for Mrs. Eddington will not influence me. It will probably release you immediately, get you considerable public attention, and probably open a new life for you. I am sorry that it so unfavorably involves so good a friend, but I am glad you made it public, because such facts are far more important than the mere individuals who are the puppets in their presentation to the world."

"Thanks, lady," said Turner. "You're right—that old battle-axe ought o' be showed up. The way she made a play for me was pretty rough stuff. She propositioned me to take a trip to Eurup with her—palmin' me off as her servant, see? She bought me fancy clo's. But—well, this shirt is good enough for me. I may o' made some mistakes in my life, but there's nasty names for what that old enamel-faced hyena tried to make out o' me, an' it got my goat, see? Oh, she'll get them high-hat lawyers, an' I s'pose she'll jam me through an' land me back in the Big House for a long slam. You know what them pinhead judges hand to a bird with a record. But I'll take the fall—yes, I'll take it like a man, an' not peddle my soul like a heel. Tell that to the world, lady!"

"You will not be railroaded, Mr. Tanner," said Jocelyn, with some emotion. "The 'Eagle' is more powerful than even Mrs. Eddington, and the 'Eagle' is afraid of no one, and the 'Eagle' will be behind you, I am certain, when I lay what I have learned and what I have in mind before my editor. Good-day, Mr. Tanner, and good-luck."

"Thanks, lady," said Tanner, fervently, "it'd be a better world if we had a few more hearts an' brains like yourn."

His last words did not displease Jocelyn. She was not more egotistical than most of us—only as human as the rest of us.

She hurried to the "Eagle" building, rang furiously at the elevator, and all but ran to Hackett's desk.

The city editor was talking in two telephones now. (Oh, it can be done; a receiver at each ear, listening through both and answering each alternately. It can be done, though only a city editor can do it.)

Jocelyn was not as ambidexterous with her feet as Hackett was with his ears. She stood, first on one and then on the other. The story was simmering and beginning to burst out.

Hackett hung up one 'phone. He turned and saw her and nodded. Presently he hung up the other.

"Mr. Hackett," began Jocelyn, "this Tanner-Eddington story——"

"Yes. By the way, I sent up for the clippings in the reference room—they're in that envelope. You'll see that this Tanner always alibis himself by claiming that his women victims are in love with him—he's a handsome loafer, I'm told. He used that gag in Boston against a prominent woman and got away with it, and he's worked it so often since that juries don't believe him any more. He's a professional swindler of women past middle age who fall for his smooth hokum along lines of welfare work, usually under the cloak of some church and reform bull. He's done time in Joliet, Sing Sing, Stillwater and San Quentin—he keeps moving where he thinks his methods aren't generally known. He's also been arrested a dozen times for wife-beating and wife abandonment, and twice for running away with other thieves' wives—a bad egg all around, I guess. . . . What did he say?"

Jocelyn's Adam's apple was far past her tonsils. Her handkerchief was in her mouth—trying to readjust it, probably. With an effort that took all the fibre she had, she managed to articulate: "He—he r-refused to see me; said he had nothing to say for p-publication."

"H'm," said Hackett, "small loss, I guess. Well, we gave him his chance. Let's see—there was a shooting down in the ghetto while you were out. Go to this address and see what pictures you can land, and . . ."

LOW SCORING SOCCER GAMES

Cardiff in Strong Position — Liverpool Have Lost Four.

LOW SCORNG ....

LONDON, October 8 (Canadian Press Cable). — Saturday's football saw a return to low scoring and an apparent loss of goal-scoring ability on the part of many of the best sides in the league divisions, which was in decided contrast to last week's play.

The day was somewhat remarkable in that twelve visiting sides overcame the difficult proposition of winning away from home. Only eighteen out of the forty-four league matches were won on home grounds.

It is early yet in the season to draw a deduction concerning the likely destination of the various honours, but the progress made by Cardiff City and Notts County is so good as to suggest that it will be some time before either is likely to be displaced. Against Chelsea on Saturday Cardiff City had no great difficulty in preserving their unbeaten certificate, and although Notts County, who were playing at home, had to be content with a draw with Tottenham Hotspurs, it left them with a very useful advantage over all other sides except Cardiff City.

The fluctuation of fortune has been most marked in the cases of Liverpool and Burnley. The former side, who were the league champions for the past two years, have nothing to shout about at present. Already they have been defeated four times this season, and the points to their credit only equal the games they have played.

But Liverpool's experience is nothing to Burnley's, who are in a sorry plight. Aston Villa is playing in a manner which promises well for the future, but the West Bromwich Albion, who started the season so well, are not living up to expectations.

Among Saturday's noteworthy achievements, outstanding was the extraordinary feat of Andrew Wilson of Middlesborough, the Scottish international centre forward, in scoring all five goals for his side against Notts Forest. This performance has no exact parallel in league records.

In the Oldham-Manchester duel, the Oldham player, Wynne, had the unusual experience of scoring four goals, namely two for his own side and two against.

After Checker Championships

NEW YORK, October 8 (Canadian Press). — Seeking the checker championship of the world, Benedictus Springer, of Marseilles, arrived on the Chicago yesterday.

He will leave at once for Montreal, where he will match wits with Willy Beauregard, of Holyoke, Mass., the United States champion.

Springer, a Hollander, has defeated all European champions.

FINAL GAMES ON WEDNESDAY

Welland Will Meet C.G.E. at Riverside Park.

Peterboro will see another baseball final at Riverside Park on Wednesday afternoon when the Welland team, Western title holders will clash with the C.G.E. in the first of home and home games to settle the Intermediate Ontario championship. There has been little opportunity to get a line on the Welland crew but they have won their schedule in commanding fashion and have a good pitcher in George Gardner who has had a brilliant record this season. The C.G.E. team are in good shape and not only hope to beat the visitors here Wednesday but to wind up the series by winning the return game on Saturday and thus capture the intermediate title for the second year in succession. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp and it is the last O.B.A.A. fixture of the year and the championship is at stake should attract a big crowd of fans. The local team have fought their way through to the finals in good style and deserve hearty support in their final effort to bring another championship to Peterboro. It should be a really lively contest.

THE WOOLLENS DEFEATED VETS IN PECK FINAL

Won Their First Soccer Trophy By Two Goals to One—Cup Presented.

TIE AT HALF-TIME.

A good crowd of spectators witnessed the Woollens defeat the Vets in the Peck Cup soccer final, two goals to one, on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park. This is the first trophy the Woollens have ever won since their entry into football. They drew with the Vets in the first game—three goals each—after a two hours' battle. The Vets had only ten men during the second half and they put up a good game under the difficulties.

Cup Presented.

On behalf of the Trades and Labour Council Mr. Frank Wallworth, president, complimented the winners and presented the Peck Trophy to Capt. Cridland of the Woollens. Woollens' captain replied in suitable terms.

THE GAME.

The early stages of the game opened at a fast pace, with each side trying to gain the superiority, but the defence men were holding the forwards outside of the dangerous zone. Tommy Monks travelled down the wing, drew out the defence, but his supporting forwards were not in position to accept the opening and leaving Chambers (Woollens) to clear.

Vets Opened the Scoring.

Monkman forced his way into Vets' area, where Blowers checked him nicely and, placing the ball to left wing, Dyer hit the cross-bar with his parting shot. The return fell in front of Hillman, which resulted in a scrimmage that gave the Vets the opening goal through inside left. At this reverse, the Woollens took the play seriously and made it very interesting in Vets' territory.

Woollens Equalized.

They were rewarded seven minutes later through Roberts on the left wing. He passed across to Monkman who worked his way into goal that ultimately ended in Roberts converting through a sea of legs, giving Griffine no chance. Exchanges were very even until three minutes before half time, J. Chambers, Vets' full back, injured his leg, which necessitaed his retiring from the game. Immediately afterwards, Roberts had an open goal before him, but he shot against Wade, who cleared quickly. Read returned to Mitchell. The outside right went through the defence to test Wade. Woollens were pressing as the whistle sounded. Half time—One goal each.

HALF TIME.

The next forty-five minutes was opened up with the Vets having only ten men —Chambers not returning. Wade went forward to centre and Griffin retired to his original position —the goal. This change made a great improvement, because Wade was continuously harassing the Woollens' full backs. A concentrated attack between Vets' half-backs and forwards made it exciting in Woollens' territory. Burrows sent a ground ball forward to Wade, who turned quickly to get a shot which was blocked by Cridland. Then Dyer lifted over his head into the goal again. Hillman ran out of his position to clear in nick of time as he collided with Bramhall, Jack Chambers dropping back into goal while Monks crossed at the first opportunity. Wade was well set to score, but Cridland cleared with a left foot drive up the field.

Woollens' Winning Goal.

Blowers returned to Woollens' end where Jack Chambers (Woollens) placed a perfect kick to Shaw, who was standing in front of two Vets' backs and quick as a flash, the inside left travelled in on Charlie Griffine. When he was ten yards out, Shaw shot hard, for Vets goalie to save his citadel, and in so doing injured his wrist as Joe Gaskill jumped upon him to touch the ball out of his hands for the winning goal. The Vets tried hard to get the equalizer, and in this respect Dyer and Sharman made Read and Cridland put up their best, which compelled the latter to kick out to save the situation. From the throw-in, Read punted up to Mitchell, who sent a timely pass across the goal mouth. Jimmie Shaw was right there, but his head was a minute too late—Crowe clearing. Burrows intercepted a pass of Monkman, then passed out to Sharman. The outside left beat two opponents while making straight for Hillman's goal. Chambers (Woollens) lifted up in the air. Wade headed the ball as Hillman grabbed it off his head to clear a dangerous play. Sharman was winded when he collided with a Woollens' player.

Wade's Brilliant Tactics.

At this period, the centre forward tried every move known in soccer field to make progress against two excellent full-backs, but it was a good player playing against two good players. He trapped, blocked, tricked and dogged in every form to evade Chambers (Woollens) who always gained the advantage in any tackle. Twice in succession Wade beat Cridland at a critical moment which was relieved through Chambers kicking to touch line. The throw-in gave Read a chance to demonstrate his ability as a defensive player and is considered as one of the best half-backs in the city. He had a hard afternoon's work in holding Sharman-Dyer wing. But on one occasion Dyer bewildered Read when Vets' shot landed inside upright and cross-bar, Hillman grabbing the ball cleverly.. During the last 15 minutes there was not much between the two teams, except the raid on Griffine's goal that gave him a fright as he fisted two peculiar drop balls in goal, which some claimed as through. Play was in mid-field as the final arrived. Woollens 2, Vets 1.

Goal scorers—Woollens: Roberts and Gaskill. Vets: Dyer.

Woollens — Hillman, goal; Cridland and Chambers, backs; Read, Monkman and Bramhall, half-backs; Mitchell, Lauchlin, Gaskill, Shaw and Roberts, forwards.

The Yankee's Million Dollar Staff! It Looks Like 30 Cents To Us—McGraw

NEW YORK, October 8. — The Yankees will beat the Giants in the world series games because of the super excellence of their "million dollar pitching staff." That is what the experts are saying. John J. McGraw scoffs at the statement. "Million dollar pitching staff?" he repeats derisively. "We'll make those birds look like 30 cents."

Nevertheless the Yankees have a formidable staff, and if they are to win their pitchers will undoubtedly play a decisive part in the victory.

COLLEGIATE RUGBY SQUAD DROPPED EXHIBITION GAME

Played T. C. A. in Port Hope Under "Little Big Four Rules"—Lost 12 to 5.

HERE WEDNESDAY.

The P.C.I. rugby team lost to the Trinity College School fourteen in Port Hope by 12 to 5 Saturday. The game was an exhibition fixture for practice purposes. T.C.S. are in The Little Big Four League in which the rules are different from those of the O.R.F.U. One of the chief differences is that they play fourteen men two extra being used on the line. Another is the old method of heeling out the ball to the quarter back.

The game was good. Both teams being of about equal weight, a scrappy game resulted. There was some good tackling, running plays and line plunging "Aulie" Bookout tore through the T.C.S. line time after time for yards and went over on an extend for P.C.I. touchdown. The P.C.I. halves worked well on the offensive but were weak of the defensive letting many kicks get away from them. One of these fumbled kicks in the second period gave the T.C.S. their first touch down. A long kick also gave them a rouge in the same period.

The running of Herbie Hyland the T.C.S. captain and half back was a feature. He slipped over in the fourth period for a well deserved touch down and neatly converted it himself.

P.C.I. scored their only touch when on a half line extend Bookhout on the end galloped through a host of tackles and over the line.

Both line held well thus giving the plays on both sides a chance to get underway.

The T.C.S. boys treated the visiting P.C.I. boys royally nothing was left undone for the visitors. ?

This Wednesday the T.C.S. team playe the P.C.I. a return game, likely to be played at the Oval around four o'clock. This game should provid plenty of excitement and good rugby.

The line ups were:

T.C.S.

Middle Wings—Slater and Lyon.
Outside wings—A. L. Smith and Schofield.

GRAHAM KEEPS GALT IN RACE

Held Royals of Toronto to Five Hits and Tied Up O.B.A.A. Senior Finals.

TORONTO, October 6. — Royal Canadians, winners of the Riverdale Senior League, who were sent into the Ontario play-off by the O.B.A.A., fell before the Galt Terriors here this afternoon, losing 3 to 2 in one of the best-played games of the season. "Friendly" Graham, Galt's diminutive right-hand heaver, who opposed the "Bicyclists'" ace, "Bill" Ramsay, twirled one of the best games he has ever turned in, whiffing five and issuing two walks; while Ramsay was nicked for eight safeties, including three doubles, and fanned six.

Hartman, Royals and Evans, Galt, were the leading hitters of the day, both hitting safely twice. The feature fielding performance was a sensational catch by Watts, Galt, in the ninth inning, taking Armstrong's hard hit close to the ropes after a hard run.

The third game will be played in Guelph next Saturday afternoon. Galt broke into the run column in the third. Oliver was an infield out. Graham got a life on Terry's error, and stole second. Hines popped to Ramsay, Wilkinson doubled over the right field fence scoring Groves. Wilkinson stole third and counted on Hoffman's infild hit, and they added another in the fourth on Grove's infield hit, a sacrifice, passed ball and Watt's dribble.

Royals entered the run column in the sixth after one was out. Terry doubled and scored on Hines' error on Hartman's roller. Hanna hit to Graham who caught Hartman going to third. Hanna stole second, and counted on Armstrong's hit to the right.

In the ninth Royals had a chance to tie the score. Reburn opened with a single. Armstrong hit a long one to left that Watts pulled down after a hard run. Ramsay and VanWinkle were easy outs.

ALEXA STIRLING FAILS TO REPEAT

Women's Golf Title Goes West With Chicago Girl.

RYE, N.Y., Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press)—The United States National Women's Golf Championship, so long the property of the East and South, went west yesterday when Miss Edith Cummings, plucky Chicagoan, triumphed over Miss Alexa Stirling, of New York, a native Georgian, who had the title three times. The western girl won by a margin of three up and two to play after a tense and brilliant struggle in the 36-hole final round match at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club.

It was through a fine display of grit, along with brilliant golf that carried the Chicago girl, a member of the Onwentsia Country Club, to victory over Miss Stirling. In the morning round, when play was alternately ragged and perfect, it seemed that the greater experience of the three time champion would play its part. Aftr losing the first hole of the day, Miss Stirling settled down and soon took the lead. She was one up, then two up, then one up, again, on almost every other.

TWO STAR TEAMS IN BENEFIT GAME

Northumberland League Fans Prepare to Stage Event For Worthy Object

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 8.—The last has not been heard of baseball in the Northumberland League for this season. Recently an all-star team, the names of the players having already been published, was picked out by a vote of the managers of eight of the nine teams. By seven of these Weston of Campbellford was selected for first baseman. Blakely was selected as utility outfielder and Brady was second choice for pitcher, Archie Zufelt of Warkworth being first.

Now comes Kory Zufelt, the clever and hard working first baseman of the latter club, with an offer to select a second team to play the all-star one game. All the concession he asks is that he be permitted to have Mulhall, shortstop of the Warkworth nine, who has been chosen as utility infielder for the all-stars, to play third base for the second chance team. For pitcher he would select either Leach of Roseneath or Brady of Campbellford, and he believes his men could make it interesting for the all-stars. Other players with whom this matter has been discussed have fallen in with the idea.

It was planned to have these two teams play a game, preferrably at Warkworth, as that is a central point, easily reached by the players who would naturally be widely scattered, for the benefit of Miss Callahan, who was injured in the eye by a batted ball at a game in Campbellford on the 24th of May. As Miss Callahan has just issued a writ for damages against the Fair Board, this changes the aspect of the case, but there are other worthy objects to which the proceeds of such a contest could be donated.

QUEEN'S DEFEAT RED AND WHITE

The Canadian Rugby Champions Outplayed McGill at the Molson Stadium in Opening Game.

SCORE WAS 24-3.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press)—Queen's University rugby players made an auspicious start in their defence of the intercollegiate championship when they overwhelmed McGill in the opening game of the season played at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon, scoring a 24 to 3 victory. Superior back field play and the greater experience of the titleholders brought them the honors over the less experienced lot of fighting players that carried the Red and White colors.

The combination of that stellar pair of back field players Harry Batstone and "Pep" Leadley proved irresistible and it was largely due to the clever heady playing of these great halves that there was the wide margin for the tri-color. Their play, both offensively and defensively, was outstanding on the Queen's side and they received steady support from the entire squad.

While beaten, McGill went down fighting and, though the score would seem to belie it, the Red and White had a fair amount of the play. In the opening quarter they kept Queen's on the defensive for a good part of the time, but through lack of experience, were unable to make use of their advantage, throwing away chances of counting by questionable judgment in the selection of offensive methods. In the second quarter, McGill frequently had possession of the ball in promising territory, but the steady tri-color nailed play after play and held their line safe.

Queen's maintained a kicking game and deluged Gordie Hughes the recruit from R.M.C., who played centre half for McGill, with trick punts. This lad, playing his first senior game, was worked incessantly by the Queen's punters. He handled the ball well, but failed as a carrier, with the result that he never ran back a punt for any appreciable distance. The persistent aerial game fimally disorganized the McGill defensive and in the last part of the first half and the start of the third quarter the Red and White cracked under the strain and Queen's let loose with a series of the famed end runs that brought them dominion honors last season, and these coupled with splendid drop kicking by Leadley and Batstone mounted the score for the champions.

McGill gathered together the loose ends of the team in the final quarter and staged a rally against the fast tiring Queen's players, holding them scoreless in the final quarter. The local collegians showed the best condition in this last session and while Queen's players were being frequently laid out the scrappy McGill representatives were on their feet to the last whistle.

KANSAS CITY WINS ITS FIRST PENNANT

The American Association Wound Up After a Sizzling Race.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Kansas City won the American Association pennant for the season of 1923 by taking both games of a doubleheader from Toledo, the scores being 3 to 1, and 12 to 8. Not in years has there been such a close race in the Association and to capture the pennant, Kansas City had only to win one game today, even though St. Paul took both games from Louisville.

It was the first time Kansas City has won a pennant, although it was awarded one in 1918, when the Government put the "work or fight" order into effect and the American Association closed its season in July with the Blues out in front.

TIED GIANTS ON SEASON'S GAMES

Brooklyn Broke Even With Neighbors in Their Series.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 7.—Brooklyn closed its season to-day by defeating New York, 6 to 1, thereby evening up the series of 22 games with the National League champions. The Dodgers finished with the same percentage as last year. "Dutch" Henry, who started with the Dodgers last spring by shutting out the Giants, almost repeated to-day, holding them runless until the last inning. The Giants tried out several of their second string players, Solomon making a good impression. The Dodgers bunched six hits for six runs in two innings off Huntzinger, Fournier leading the attack with a double and a triple. Score:

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 7.—Pittsburgh won the last game of the season here to-day, 7 to 5, through hard hitting and ragged fielding by Fowler in the third and fifth innings. Morrison was batted freely late in the game, but held the lead and registered his twenty-fifth victory of the season. The smallest Sunday crowd seen at Redland Field in many years witnessed the contest. Score:

SEE SPEAKER AT TOP OF FORM

Saturday's Game Attracting Attention All Over the District.

The ball fans of the city and district are going to have the opportunity not only of seeing Tris Speaker in action but of seeing him in action when going at his best. Speaker has been doing some wonderful hitting, making a new record for two base hits and holding third place in the American League race, being surpassed only by Babe Ruth and Harry Heilman and he has made more hits than either of that pair. He is among the five leading run-getters of the American League and his fielding has been as sensational this year as ever it was. Speaker is one of the greatest ball players of all time and a trip to Riverside Park on Saturday when he leads his All Stars into action against the Toronto Wellingtons will be amply repaid by the chance to see the celebrated Cleveland Manager do his stuff.

In addition to Speaker there will be Roger Peckinpaugh, shortstopper extraordinary from the Washington team, George Uhle the Cleveland ace, Nunnamaker famous catcher and other stars including Babe Dye of the Buffalo International and Jack Beattie, manager of the London M.O. League team.

The Wellingtons will trot out a crack team of seasoned ball players who should provide plenty of opposition for Speaker and Company.

The game is in aid of the Marmora and Delora G.W.V.A. and is easily the baseball sensation of the year. Fans from all over Eastern Ontario will congregate in Peterboro for the occasion and it promises to be a gala day.

CURTAIN UP ON RUGBY SEASON

Excelsiors Blanked the Belmont-Crescent Combination Saturday.

The local rugby season was ushered in at Riverside Park on Saturday when the Excelsiors triumphed over the Belmont-Crescent combination by 18 points to 0. Although both teams were palpably shy of work and condition some good material was uncovered and there were flashes of snappy football.

Excelsiors had little trouble in annexing a win. They had more speed afoot, more experience and a smattering of team work to help them while the Belmont-Crescent crew placed their main reliance in line plunging. Only once was the ball behind the Excelsior goal line and Sheehy saved brilliantly on that occasion. The winners always had the upper hand in spite of stubborn resistance on the part of the amalgamated team.

For the Excelsiors the work of Turner at quarter, Sheehy, Mulholland and the two Griffins stood out while C. Stuart and Batten were the pick of the losing outfit.

Excelsiors got away to an early start, working the ball down the field by successful line plunges and end runs only to lose possession on an offside. They recovered the ball again and Hatrick dropped a pretty goal from the field. A little later Turner shot round Belmont-Crescents' left wing for a thirty yard dash for a touch down.

In the second period the winners continued to press and A. Griffin bucked over for a try making the half time figure 13 to 0.

There was no score in the third period but in the last session Sheehy got away for a long dash and scored Excelsiors third touch down, leaving the final score 18 to 0. Major Gifford refereed and the teams were as follows:

Excelsiors — Flying wing, E. Sheehy; halves, Mullholland, Rishor, Hatrick; quarter, Turner; snap, Cowan; inside wings, G. Griffin, A. Griffin; middle wings, Sloan, Brown, Clancy; outside wings, McPherson, Ward, McClellan, Holland, Ashmore.

Belmont-Crescents—Flying wing, Rutherford; halves, C. Stuart, Anderson, Welsh; quarter, Batten; snap, Mason; inside wings—L. Stuart, Turnbull; middle wings, Evans, Carson; outside wings, Girvin, Brimmell, Curry.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL SEASON IS OPENED

Practically Every N. S. Team Broke Into Action Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. — Early predictions of a season of college football upsets were partially borne out Saturday. Noteworthy among the unlooked for happenings of last week were the 3 to 0 defeat of Pennsylvania by Maryland; the scoreless tie involving Percy Haughton's Columbia eleven and Amherst, and the difficulties experienced by Princeton, Dartmouth, Navy, Army, Penn, State, Notre Dame, and Centre in overcoming supposedly unimportant opponents.

With these exceptions, however, the better known elevens performed well up to expectations. The anticipated close score resulted in the Pittsburg-Lafayette annual, which Pittsburgh won, 7 to 0, while teams such as Harvard, Yale, Cornell, West Virginia, Syracuse, Brown, Lehigh, Holy Cross and Rutgers, ran up the predicted large totals of points.

Practically every team in the western conference broke into action on Saturday with games which were regarded as the final practice contests to put the elevens on edge for the start of the conference season next Saturday. All the "Big Ten" opponents outside the conference Saturday

SENATORS LOSE TO ARGONAUTS

Ottawa Unable to Get Going Against Toronto Oarsmen.

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.— (Canadian Press)—Toronto Argonauts relegated the Ottawa Rugby Team to the cellar position of the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union when they defeated them at Lansdowne Park field Saturday afternoon by a score of 11 to 1. The oarsmen deserved their victory, holding the lead throughout and playing clever, consistent football, at all stages.

A tremendous crowd witnessed the contest which was played in ideal rugby weather, and a slight wind from the east assisted each team in two periods. The game was a disappointment from spectator's standpoint, being devoid of incidents that brought the crowd to its feet. Both teams relied on the ability of their line plungers to get their yards and end runs were few and far between.

It was in the kicking department, however, where the visitors had a wide edge. Hughes and Munro outkicked the Ottawa backs, Tubman being decidedly off color, while McCormick, though using good judgment, failed to get the distance into his drives. Argonauts' outside wings backed their half line men up in spectacular fashion and their tackling was clean and sure.

Ottawa wing men did not work with the same precision as the visitors and repeatedly missed the ball, carried on runs through the field.

McCormick, Emerson and Brian Timmis were the best for the losers. The latter broke the wing line for a thirty-five yard gain in the third period which was the longest run of the day. J. Timmis was also prominent on the offensive while Connell, Harding and Orain played effective games. Hughes and Munro were the outstanding stars for Argonauts, with Thom and Fear showing excellent form on the outside wings. Dinsmore played a clever game at qquarter and negotiated Argonaut touch in the third period. Ottawa seemed to have the ability but could not get going, while on the other hand Argos worked like a well oiled machine. Their play throughout was impressive and the tremendous loss sustained by Connacher's departure is apparently well offset by the kicking ability of Munro and Hughes.

Both teams played steadily and while a few fumbles occurred on the line they did not result in much damage being done either way. The catching of both back lines was of high order, Tubman's slip from which Argos indirectly secured a point in the final period being the only disastrous fumble.

HEAVY HITTERS WILL DECIDE IT ROUSH EXPECTS

And Not All the Wallopers Are On the Side of the Yanks.

PICKS THE GIANTS.

By EDD J. ROUSH,
Centrefielder, the Cincinnati Reds.

ROUSH.

THE 1923 world series will be won, I believe, by the best team in the best league, the Giants.

Events of the last few years have convinced me the National League is a stronger organization in team strength, at least, than the American League.

This year's Giant team is a good one, capable of playing championship ball when it needs to.

You frequently hear the Giants are short of pitching strength. For a while this season those of us on the Cincinnati team believed we were going to beat them to the pennant because of John McGraw's pitching staff being shaky.

But that Giant pitching staff is not a weak one. McGraw has several hurlers who can and do pitch great ball when their team needs first-class twirling.

McGraw has no pitcher I would call a star. He just has several fellows who can hold out if they have to. John Scott, John Watson and Rosy Ryan are of this type. McGraw has enough pitchers to use two or three to a game if necessary and he has followed this system with success throughout the pennant race this year when his hurlers were unable to go the route.

I consider McGraw the best pitcher on his club, even though he never pitches a ball. He knows when to change his pitchers and changes them.

Miller Huggins has several hitters who send the ball a mile when they "get hold of one" as we say on the diamond. For this reason and the fact that both ball parks are comparatively easy spots in which to hit home runs, McGraw's pitchers will have to pitch more carefully than they have done in a big part of the National League campaign, but McGraw is a genius at directing his pitchers and I think his hurlers will come through in the series just as capably as they did in 1921 and 1922.

The big point about the Giants, to my way of thinking, is their ability to come through in a pinch.

Several times we thought we "had" them, but as soon as we got real close they started winning and would win as often as we did until we would hit a slump, making it unnecessary for them to win steadily.

This series looks like a tough one to me. I don't think the Giants can win four straight games or four out of five, but I do believe they can master the Yankees in six games.

When two teams possessing as many long hitters as the Yankees and Giants play a short series in two parks where home runs are as easy to make as in the Polo Grounds and Yankee Stadium the breaks of the game are likely to have a whole lot to do with the final outcome. But the Giants, I believe, possess the strength, both offensively and defensively, to overcome the breaks that may fail to the Yankees and win four games before the Yankees have captured three.

MEN'S SINGLES

The long awaited finals in the mens' open singles for the championship of Peterborough was played last Saturday afternoon before a small but enthusiastic gallery and resulted in a win for George Scott over F. C. Webber, last year's champion, in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

Conditions were far from ideal for good tennis, but as the players warmed up the pace increased and the spectators were treated to some first-class play. There were few long rallies as both players were out to sink every point as rapidly as they could, but play was hard and clean.

Scott won the match on his all round steadiness and the accuracy with which he placed his fast serve and forehand drive to the corners. He also played a strong game defensively and was seldom beaten or passed. Webber played his usual strong game and was very effective at the net where he forced Scott to net more frequently than usual. He was, however, unable to cope with the fast ones to the corners and Scott had him outguessed most of the time.

Both games started carefully and play went with and against service to 4 all. Then Scott broke through for the 9th game and was leading on the 10th when Webber, by smart play ,evened up. But the Peterborough Club crack had the punch and closed out the set at 7-5.

In the second set both players increased the severity of their strokes and with the score 2 all, Scott broke badly on the 5th game, making four nets off service in succession. He steadied on his service, however ,and from then on was always master of the situation, running out the set in four straight games and leading in the third at 4-2 when Webber conceded the set in order to let the mens' doubles proceed.

Dr. Scott and Gale Win.

Dr. Scott and Gale played sterling tennis to win from Webber and Dr. McPherson in the semi-final of the men's doubles at 8-10, 6-4, 9-7. As the score indicates it was a hard fought, colorful match with some bad but lots of good tennis on both sides. In the end Gale's superior steadiness counted and he and his partner tucked away the deciding set after it seemed lost. Dr. Scott and Gale will meet Bowness and Jackson, who easily disposed of Scott and Cranfield, in the finals of the men's doubles.

The summary is as follows:

Men's Singles.

Webber beat Cranfield 6-4, 6-0.
Webber beat McKee, 6-1, 6-0.
Gale beat Jackson, 6-2, 6-3.
Scott beat Gale, 6-2, 6-4.
Scott beat Webber 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

Men's Doubles.

Webber and McPherson beat Smith and Elmslie 2-6, 6-1, 6-2.
Dr. Scott and Gale beat Webber and McPherson 8-10, 6-4, 9-7.
Bowness and Jackson beat Scott and Cranfield 7-5, 6-1.

Mixed Doubles.

McPherson and Miss Young beat Scott and Miss Fife 7-5, 6-2.
Langley and Mrs. Langley beat Cranfield and Mrs. Cranfield 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

The finals in the men's doubles and the mixed will be played by arrangement at the earliest possible date.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"DAVID COPPERFIELD."

The visit of Mr. Bransby Williams, well-known English actor, to the Grand on Saturday in a play adopted from Charles Dickens' masterpiece, "David Copperfield," was a triumph for the star and his company. Large audiences greeted Mr. Williams and he was given an ovation at the end of each act, and was finally forced to address the audience after the final curtain.

There have been several stage versions of "David Copperfield," and while the novel is departed from in several particulars in the play used by Mr. Williams, it was nevertheless a most effective rendition. The work of the star of course predominated. Mr. Williams was seen in two roles that were as different as day is to night, portraying the part of the old fisherman, Daniel Peggotty, and that of the loveable fraud Mr. Micawber, always waiting for something to turn up. The manner in which Mr. Williams sank all trace of his own individuality in these two widely contrasted roles was a masterpiece of stage artistry. His Peggotty was a notable performance, and his Micawber, while it differed perhaps from the conception some of the lovers of Dickens had of this character, was a most entertaining piece of work. Nothing funners than his comedy work in the dinner scene in David Copperfield's room has been seen at the Grand in a long time.

The supporting company was adequate. The Uriah Heap of Fred. Forrest stood out, and Madeleine Temple did particularly good work as Mrs. Gummidge. Leslie Barrie was manly and convincing in the title role, Percy Baverstock contributed a fine performance as Ham and the part of the slavey, only a "bis," was a personal triumph for Betty Booth. Mr. Williams' son, Eric Williams, makes his debut as "Steerforth," and carries himself excellently in the part.

Mr. Williams gave us an excellent performance, made remarkable by his own artistry and the promise of a return visit to Peterboro in another play on his way back from the coast, which he made in his speech was warmly applauded by the audience.

The famous actor expressed his regret to Rotarians in the audience that he, as the "British Ambassador of Rotary," had not been able to meet them at the weekly luncheon.

Speaking of his tour, he said that his company had had a wonderful reception. In adopting the slogan, a British play by a British company, he had considered that no vehicle would be more suitable than "David Copperfield," the work of one of the greatest humanitarian writers who ever put pen to paper.

"David Copperfield" will long be remembered by those who were fortunate to see Mr. Williams' stage version.

AT THE REGENT.

PAPYRUS IN RACE AT EPSOM DOWN

Famous Horse in Thrilling Race at Regent Theatre.

Direct from its London, England, engagement, with Violet Hopson, the handsomest female artist of the silver sheet in the British Isles, comes the "Son of Kissing Cup," to the Regent theatre on Monday for one week.

Here is a story with that swift moving life of the turf that will keep you on the edge of your seat from the flash of the last fade out! One of the strongest and fastest reasons for this is the fact that England's famous race horse, Papyrus, challenger of the world's best, "Zeo," and with the finest jockey in England, if not in the whole world, O'Donoghue, on his back, wins the climactic race of accepting £25,000 that Son of Kissing Cup should not win the Derby. This is proven false.

Clarke and his partner now plan to get Sir Kenneth one way or another, until one day they receive a cryptic telegram worded, "Got 'im." All becomes black for the hero. The race is about to begain and Son of Kissing Cup is not—but, hold, he arrives at the last moment and wins the race, running true to the traditions of his line, to the dreadful discomfiture of Joe Clarke, the baffled rage of Norman Brady, and joyous relief of Sir Kenneth and Lady Stirling.

"Son of Kissing Cup" is a picture that will long live in the memory of everyone who enjoys a good race well and truly run.

AT THE ROYAL.

Never in the history of the motion picture industry has a production been accorded such unstinted praise at the hands of critics from coast to coast as was "Merry-Go-Round," the Super-Jewel, which is booked for the Royal Theatre here to-night. Especially interesting was the approval of the principals and featured members of the cast and of the directorship. It proved a revelation alike to the industry and to the theatre-goers. Some of the unusual points in connection with this picture are:

The discovery of a new star — Mary Philbin, who only a few short years ago was a Chicago High School girl. Some one entered her in a beauty contest run by the Hearst newspapers, and when it was over she was found to be second choice. Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, saw her photograph and arranged a screen test, which she passed satisfactorily. The dainty little miss was then started on a severe course of training in small parts, gradually increasing in importance until finally she was deemed ready for starring honors.

She began work in the "Merry-Go-Round" with the best wishes and confidence of the entire studios, but even her most sanguine admirers were unprepared for the exceptional portrayal she gives in the pathetic role of a little organ grinder on the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna.

In selecting the artists the casting director spent many weeks in going over lists of available players in orders to get types that were true to life. For the principal male role, that of an Austrian army officer, the part of the nobility, Norman Kerry was selected. He brings to the part of the vain and foppish soldier all of the consummate ability that has made his portrayals of other parts stand forth as masterpieces of acting. Cesare Gravina, George Seigmann, George Hackathorne, Dale Fuller, Anton Vaverka, Maude George, Dorothy Wallace are among other well-known players in featured roles.

Nine months were required for the building of the sets, rehearsals and actual shooting, and more than one thousand extras were engaged during the greater part of that period. In order that each detail of the picture would be absolutely true to life as it was lived in Vienna during the festive days just preceding the world war, Director Rupert Julian sent a staff of specialists to that city to take photographs and obtain data on the city shown in the film. The most noteworthy set in the picture, and one of the greatest pieces of engineering work ever done in connection with the production of the picture, was the reproduction at Universal City of the Prater. So marvellous was the likeness that many of the visitors at the film capitol had, who had visited the original, stated that they easily could imagine that they were in Vienna once more.

Another unusual happening was the importation of the gold-trimmed carriage and harness formerly used by Kng Charles of Austria, and also of the army officers' uniforms. In order to obtain these it was necessary for Universal to file a bond with the Austrian Government and also take out life insurance policy from Lloyd's at London.

MERRY GO ROUND

"Merry Go Round" almost eludes description, it is so big, so enormous; it is awe-inspiring. Never before has a picture been produced on anything like the lavish scale of this one. The magnificence, the truly artistic construction of the massive sets command instant admiration.

But in addition to all this, "Merry Go Round" is the picturization of the greatest love story ever written, a story of rare flower-like beauty, exotic and poignant. It's a story of love, life, laughter and tears in the court of the emperor, the most gorgeous, lavish, riotous existence ever established. Amid settings of regal splendor and luxury, see the merry go round of life behind the scenes of the Austrian court. ADVANCE GUARDS ALL-STARS HERE

Nunnamaker Says That Southpaw Jim Edwards Will Pitch Here Next Saturday.

Les Nunnamaker, former Cleveland catcher, and this year manager of the Chatanooga, Tenn., team, arrived in Peterborough to-day with Messrs. Halford and Miller, of Cleveland, to spend a holiday at Rice Lake. They left this afternoon at 3 o'clock for Idyl Wyld.

Nunnamaker returns to Toronto on Wednesday and will meet Tris Speaker, the two taking part with other stars in a ball game at Scarborough Beach on Wednesday. They will motor through to Rice Lake on Wednesday night and on Saturday will be seen in action at Riverside Park against the Toronto Wellingtons.

Nunnamaker declares that Jim Edwards, the sensational Cleveland left-hander, who will pitch for Speaker's team in the game at Peterborough, is a star twirler.

PARTLY SUSPEND ADOLESCENT ACT

Clause Calling for Attendance of Children From 16 to 18 Officially Suspended Until 1925.

Information has been received by the secretary of the Peterborough Board of Education, G. H. Thompson, to the effect that so far as the Provincial Department of Education is concerned, the 16 to 18 clause of the Adolescent Act has been suspended until 1925.

This is the first information which has been received regarding this clause of the Act, although, as far as Peterborough is concerned, it has never been in force at all.

When, two years ago, the 14 to 16 year clause was introduced, a great deal of difficulty ensued, owing to overcrowding of schools all over the Province, and there was considerable criticism in connection with the possible enforcement, a year later, of the 16 to 18 clause.

When the time came to put the clause into operation, however, it was intimated that it would not be enforced for the time being. The Act was still virtually in force, but this clause was held in suspension.

The 14 to 16 clause has been diligently enforced in the local schools, E. B. Fowler, chairman of the Board of Education, said to-day.

The latest announcement from the Department, made in pamphlet form, sets at rest all doubt that may have existed as to what was intended with regard to the clause compelling children from 16 to 18 to attend school.

This clause will not be put into effect, according to the announcement, until the year 1925, but there is no change in the regulations regarding children between the ages of 14 and 16.

There is a possibility, it is intimated, that the 16 to 18 clause may be entirely eliminated from the Act.

IN MEMORIAM.

EASTWOOD.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away one year ago to-day:

This day brings back to memory
A loved one called to rest,
And those who think of him to-day
Are those who loved him best.

But some day we will meet him—
Some day, we know not when—
We will clasp his hand in a better land,
Never to part again.

GERMANS WILL RESUME TASKS IN RHINELAND

Complete Resumption of Work is Looked For at An Early Date.

WILL PAY ARREARS

PARIS, Oct 9.—(United Press).—Complete resumption of work by German railroad men in the Rhineland and the Ruhr is imminent. The United News learns authoratively that negotiations have now reached the point where complete termination of passive resistance probably will be effected. The negotiations have been carried at Mayence, where a high German official acting for the German Minister of communications conferred secretly with M. Breaud, director of the Franco-Belgian railroad organization, the German official, desired that terms include the return of expelled workers but Breaud declared that neither Prussian railroad men or expelled workers would be permitted to man the lines, Rheinish Railroad will be acceptable however.

The official returned to Berlin to tender his report to the German Government and it is believed here that Germany will accept the conditions.

Representatives of the Phoenix and Rheinische Stahlwerk coal mines which supply ten per cent of the Ruhr output have notified the inter allied control commission that they are willing to resume deliveries immediately. They announce that they would pay the arrears in the coal tax since January.

MANY OPPORTUNITIES FOR EMPLOYMENT OUT OF CITY

Calls Reaching Here Daily for Bushmen and Farm Laborers, But Latter Class of Work Not Appealing To Average Unemployed.

Men, who went west for the harvest are now returning to the city and are looking for work, the Peterborough Branch of the Government Employmen, Bureau announced to-day. There has been a slump in the employment business lately, but this is not considered serious. Periodically, the bureau finds it difficult to place men.

Not many applications are on hand for men for local work, but numerous opportunities are offered for work out of city. Calls are arriving daily for bush men and farmers, and while many of the out-of-work men have accepted jobs in the bush, not many will take farm labor.

No apprehension exists yet regarding the unemployment menace which usually appears in winter and Peterborough is in a much better condition to face the dull days than is Toronto, according to reports from the Queen City.

WHICH SYSTEM OF SEWAGE DISPOSAL

Council Will Send Deputation to Interview Minister On Vexed Question.

On suggestion by His Worship the Mayor, Council is again going to open up the question of which system of sewage disposal the city installs—an activated sludge or the Imhoff method—and to this end Ontario's Minister of Health is to be interviewed. In this regard, the Provincial Board of Health has ordered that the activated sludge system be adopted by Peterboro, while City Engineer Parsons, supported by some engineering experts, contends that the activated sludge method of sewage disposal is yet in an experimental stage, and Mr. Parsons strongly favors the Imhoff principle as the more suitable for Peterboro. The City Engineer enjoys Council's confidence in his judgment, and Council resents being forced by the Provincial Board of Health to adopt a course contrary to what they consider to be in the city's best interests.

Therefore, on motion last night by Ald. Stocker and Meyers, a deputation will wait upon the Minister of Health for Ontario and urge that this municipality be permitted to install an Imhoff system of sewage disposal, despite the Provincial Board of Health's ruling to the contrary.

Mayor Taylor said that W. H. Bradburn, Provincial member-elect for this riding, had signified his willingness to accompany the deputation to Toronto and introduce them to the Minister.

A motion by Ald. Stocker and Meyers that the Mayor name the personnel of the deputation carried. Ald. Crowe thinks other engineers besides Mr. Parsons should accompany this deputation.

In the meantime work on the outfall sewer to feed whichever disposal plant is installed will be proceeded with.

FOUND A PURSE

A purse containing a small sum of money in English currency was picked up this morning on the station platform of the C. N. R. and was handed in to the station agent.

Whale's Tooth

Mrs. Margaret Gallaway of Fayetteville, Ark., has a whale's tooth on which is carved figure of a shepherd and a dozen sheep. It was found in a cave in Ballard county, Ky., and the artist, who used a penknife evidently, is, of course, unknown.

Lady! Lady!

Husbands will probably weep when they see this picture showing Virginia Browne Faire, movie star, wraped in her new style dyed caracul wrap. The collar and trimmings are of badger with combination side panels and sleeves. Neat but not gaudy say we. Bet it could put a dent in the old check book. What say?

ISSUES A WARNING RE ALBERTA COAL

View with Caution Rumors of $10.50 to $11.50 F. O. B. Rates.

TORONTO, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Information has reached the Government that coal dealers outside of Toronto are being circularized with offers of Alberta coal f.o.b. at points in Ontario for November delivery at $10.50 to $11.50 a ton, and that others are offerings to lay down Alberta coal and taking deposits of one dollar a ton.

"The public should know that there is only ten thousand tons moving at the seven dollar freight rate, that this ten thousand tons has been ordered forward and consigned to dealers who have already filed orders and arranged for purchase. Guaranteeing freight thereon to the Government and offers to lay down Alberta coal f.o.b. at points in Ontario at $10.50 to $11.50 a ton should be viewed with caution, as the freight rate on coal other than this ten thousand tons will be about $12.50 a ton, according to the Canadian National Railway announcement, to which must be added the cost of coal at the mine as well," stated Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, to-day.

Fighters Didn't Try And Purse Goes To Home For Cripples

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 9.—Elizabeth, N.J., will have a new home for crippled children because Jimmie Jones, welter weight champion of the world in the State of New York and Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world except in New York "didn't try" in their bout last night.

More than 22,000 fans were present, according to official figures and $25,000 was taken in for advance sales alone.

Soon after the fight started a cry of "stalling" was taken up by the crowd and in the ninth round the bout was stopped.

MUM IS ORDER AT GATHERING OF DELEGATES

Imperial Conference Will Be a Closed Book So Far as the Public Are Concerned.

KEEPING LID ON

LONDON, Oct. 9. — (Special to Canadian Press by George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent.)—What did the Premiers of the Dominions say at yesterday's "strictly confidential" session of the Imperial Conference? On this there is much questioning to-day.

While it is admitted that the delegates could speak more freely knowing that their remarks would not be reported even by way of dry Colonial Office communique, regret is expressed that the curtain should have been drawn on the day the Dominion Premiers stated their views.

In heavy black type on the front page of Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express this morning declares that "delegates are muzzled, British people are kept in the dark," and adds this remarkable statement:

"People of the Dominions expect their Prime Ministers to do their work in the open. If, for instance, Mackenzie King were to propose to the conference that should be changed from a Dominion to a Commonwealth, the people of Canada want to know why he makes such a suggestion."

The Daily Mail more mildly observes: "Decision to enforce secrecy which was not made until last evening, was the outcome of extremely plain speaking by Dominion Prime Ministers and other Imperial representatives on matters of vital foreign policy."

According to a report it was Lord Curzon who yesterday raised the point that the whole of the five hours' debate should be regarded as strictly confidential, otherwise further individualities might arise.

The Economic Conference to-day, advancing its own programme, opened with a discussion on the question of the Imperial Conference, which was not expected until later in the week.

Premier Bruce of Australia urged preference as a means of developing markets within the Empire.

The subject of overseas settlement was referred to a special committee to work out the details. The committee has not yet been appointed, but it is said that F. C. Blair, secretary of the Department of Immigration and Colonisation at Ottawa, will be the Canadian representative on it.

FIRE TAKES TOLL NINE DWELLINGS

Volunteer Firemen's Efficiency Prevent More Serious Conflagration.

BEAUCEVILLE, Que., October 9 (Canadian Press). — Early this morning nine houses were completely destroyed by fire, and the damages are estimated at over $75,000.

A more serious conflagration was only prevented through the efficient work of the volunteer firemen, who worked during the whole night.

The fire was got under control at five o'clock his morning.

The blaze was discovered in the house occupied by Mrs. T. Poulin at 1 a.m.

The flames spread very rapidly, and the occupants had difficulty in making their escape.

The origin of the fire has not yet been established.

RESTING TO-DAY.

OTTAWA, October 9 (Canadian Press). — It was announced from Government House this afternoon that Baron Renfrew is spending the day resting. He will board his special train late to-night, and pull out for Montreal early to-morrow morning.

GEORGE READY TO TAKE REINS IF CALLED ON

Britain's Former War-Premier Hints at Possibility of Fall of the British Ministry.

A STING FOR FRANCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 9. (By Lawrence Martin, United Press Staff Correspondent, with Lloyd George.)—Lloyd George is keeping his oar in the international waters despite the fact that he no longer is steering the British ship of state through them.

Having in mind the possibility that Stresemann of Germany may fall in a week or two, and that his fall might conceivably be followed by the fall of the British Minister among other things, Lloyd George reminds his countrymen that he is ready to hand if need arises.

This is the construction some of his political friends put on the statement he issued here relating to the Hughes' economic efforts to plan for settling the reparations question.

Workable Plan.

It was his first utterance on the International situation beyond general statements. In effect Lloyd George urged all his friends and supporters of the Hughes' plan for an economic commission to determine Germany's capacity to pay, to begin urging it as the only sound and workable plan.

France has stood in the way of the plan from the beginning. There was a sting for France and a warning in Lloyd George's brief statement, in which he pointed out that delay since the Hughes' suggestion was first made would lessen the feasibility of its operation now.

His statement was issued when he was shown a despatch from Washington which indicated that President Coolidge agreed with a statement Lloyd George made in New York on his arrival to the effect that the Hughes' plan was the most promising, though it was now very late to try it.

"I regard this as extremely important," said Lloyd George's statement here. "In my opinion this plan is not too late for consideration, and it it absolutely the best hope for settlement of reparations. Of course since the plan was first broached the ability of Germany to pay is much less. The greater the delay the closer the situation approaches chaos. I hope that serious consideration of Mr. Hughes' plan will be taken up, even at this late date, and I repeat that it is the best hope for a successful settlement."

FLOOD IN FLORIDA THREATENS A TOWN

MOORE HAVEN, Florida, Oct. 9.— (Canadian Press.) — Dyke in front of city of Moore Haven broke this morning, due to the heavy pressure of a north-east wind. The break is reported under control, but the water is rapidly rising. Flood waters have entered several stores and merchants are removing their stocks.

Christmas Coming! And Children Get View Of Toy Land

Christmas is coming, and is not very far off, judging by one store in the city where toys are already on display. Boats, dolls, mechanical animals, and mechanical toys of all kinds are on display. All the old favorites are there, with a few new varieties, and an electric train kept up its round-about course all forenoon to the delight of many small children. Rushing under bridges, now fast and now slow, as the caprice of the store proprietor dictated, the toy attracted so many children that in protecting the window from grimy hands and possible breakage, it was necessary to shut off the power.

Christmas is now only ten weeks distant.

LOCAL FLAPPERS ARE STILL HAVING THEIR HAIR SHORN

Believe That Clipping Will Make Locks Easier to Dress and More Comfortable, But Does Not Always Work That Way.

Flappers are still doing it, say local barbers. Fred Sutcliffe says he has a girl almost every week who wants her locks shorn to the bottom level of her ears, and John Smith has become accustomed to the presence in his waiting chairs of young ladies awaiting treatment at his hands.

They approach the fatal chair seriously, these barbers declare, believing that the clipping will make their hair easier to dress and more comfortable.

It does not always work out that way.

One young lady who had her hair bobbed two weeks ago, has already spent over $5 on curling. "They can't curl it properly themselves," one barber said, "and this means business for the hair-dressers."

Then, too, the girl who can't shave her neck because her father or brother locks up his razor, or who is not inclined to do the work herself, must visit the barber periodically to have a neck trim or shave. Peterborough girls eschew the raozr in favor of the close clippers, the barbers say, but the girl with dark hair has a problem in this all too quickly growing back hair.

There is much artistry about bobbing hair as in facial make-up, city barbers claim. A blond would no more think of using powder manufactured for a brunette than she would of using eyebrow pencil for her lip. Yet a tall slim girl who approaches the barber for a "bob" will ask for a trim "just like Elsie's"—Elsie being short and stout. Color of hair, complexion, shape of face, length of neck and general proportions must all be considered when "bobbing" is successfully attempted.

Far from being out of date, there is a steady stream of young ladies visiting the hair-cutting establishments in the city to have their hair bobbed and those who do so are not at all apprehensive. "It's just like everything else when it has been the mode for a time," a barber said, "they have become accustomed to it."

OIL WAREHOUSE TO BE ERECTED IN EAST CITY

Costs of Installation of Sewers to be Chargeable in Installments—High Power Line Route Approved.

BOARD OF WORKS

That $29,628 of the Board of Works appropriation for the year of $36,100 has been spent, leaving a balance of $5,471 to tide over the remaining three months, was stated by Alderman Nagel Phelan at last night's meeting of the Board. The average monthly expenditure carried out until the end of the year would result in an overdraft of $5,000, he said, expressing the opinion that expenditures should be kept down in order to avoid this overdraft.

Among the principal business disposed of last night was the granting to McCall Bros. of the right to erect an oil station on Lot 29, Plan 9a. Alderman McIntyre moved and Alderman Phelan seconded the motion that this firm be permitted to erect an oil warehouse and three tanks on Hazlitt Street, East City, near the old Dawson property. This situation is isolated, and the members of the Board of Works were satisfied that it is the most suitable site in the city. The motion was subsequently referred to the City Council and adopted.

Sewer Installations.

No provision was made in the by-law governing the installation of sewer connections on the repayment plan for the extension from the trunk sewer to the street line. The standard deposit for this service is $25, and it is claimed that some who apply for the connection are unable to pay this deposit. A case was cited by City Engineer Parsons where the plumbing in the house was completed but he did not know how to give the street connection without prepayment of this deposit.

It was reported that City Solicitor J. Wearing gave his opinion that the $25 is not part of the cost of the sewer and is not chargeable to it. Alderman Phelan proposed that when sanitary conveniences are installed on recommendation of the Board of Health, the cost be paid in installments and the Board of Works do the necessary work on the street, the expenditure so made by the Board to be charged to the sanitary work as part of the expense to be paid for in installments and credited to the Board of Works. Alderman Crowe seconded the motion, which was passed.

Alderman Crowe pointed out that certain stores on George Street are without sanitary conveniences, and another member of the Board cited a case where four or five families in the heart of the city use the same closet. It is not right, Alderman Crowe said, to compel people living on the outskirts of the city to install sewer connections simply because a neighbor complains of the outdoor toilet when such bad conditions exist in the city.

There was no reply to Alderman McIntyre's question as to whether the Board of Health makes investigations into the ability of applicants to pay for sewer connections. The by-law, as read by City Clerk Armstrong, states that when the Board of Health recommends the installation of sanitary conveniences, the City Council may adopt the recom-

MINERS THREATEN TO GO ON STRIKE

Several Thousand Men Walk Out on Account Bad Conditions.

WILKESBARRE, Pa. Oct. 9.—(United Press).—With 19,000 employed by the Hudson Coal Co., on strike, again walk out of all mines of the Glen Alden Coal Co., Collieries, loomed up to-day.

While the men at the Dodge Colliery of the Glen Alden were voting to return to work after a strike lasting several days.

One thousand five hundred men at the Bliss Colliery near Nanitcok walked, out alleging bad mining conditions and illegal shafts for fan runners.

The general grievance committee of the Glen Alden Miners said to-day that every colliery had a list of grievances and that unless the company adjusted them by Friday, evefy man will be called out.

Scores Of Families Driven From Homes By River In Flood

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct 9—(Canadian Press.) Oklahoma City's flood hazard has increased hourly to-day as another rise in North Canadian River swept down to augment the swollen stream which for three days has overspread the lowlands.

Scores of families have been driven from their homes by the water which stands ten to fifteen feet deep in some places, and railroad service has been seriously hampered.

BILL FOR HELP LOCAL FIREMEN IN MONAGHAN

Council Takes the Stand That Townships Must Pay For Use of City's Utilities.

BUSINESS OF COUNCIL

The City Council decided last night to bill the Township of North Monaghan for service rendered in that township by the fire brigade on Septemebr 30, when they were called out twice to fight a fire in the same house.

This action resulted from Ald. Crowe's questoning to whom the bill for this service should be sent. He understood that some time ago, Council decided to charge for all such service outside the municipality at the rate of $100 for the first hour and $15 each subsequent hour. He also believed that legislation provided that all rural municipalities should arrange for payment to sister towns or cities for the enjoyment of their public utilities. Ald. Crowe added in effect that neighboring townships are anxious that the city shall meet its obligations to them; then this municipality should see that they in turn pay for the use of our utilities. Incidentally he understood the alarm for the fire in question had not been sent in by the reeve of North Monaghan, but unofficially.

Ald. Stocker replied that the alarm had been turned in from Buyers' store. The firemen did good work, he said at an expenditure of considerable chemical. Omemee, he pointed out, cheerfully paid $100 for the use of this city's fire brigade.

On motion by Ald. Phelan and Meyers, the city treasurer, will be instructed to bill North Monaghan for this service as per schedule above outlined.

Sanitary Measure

Recommendation from the local Board of Health that Sanitary conveniences be installed in several resident's homes went to the property Committee. These property owners not being able to pay cash for each installation, the plan is that the city pays for the work, the beneficiaries to discharge their debt by five equal yearly instalments with 6 per cent interest, the whole being chargeable against the property.

Protection of Lights

In regard to adopting some plan in protection of the lights on the C.P.R. footbridge Ald Crowe reported that the lamps had been enclosed in cages, but to no avail, as the cages as well as bulbs at times, disappear. He suggested fixing the lamps higher up say eight or ten feet where they could not be reached by pedestrians.

Ald. Morrison replied that would not be practicable, the only thing to do is to replace the lamps when they disappear (which they do with more or less frequency), and Council left the matter at that for the present

A Dark Corner

Ald. Crowe, to Ald. Stocker replied that the Utilities Commission could not see their way clear to furnish an electric light at the corner of McDonnell street and the boundary; there being no pole and wire line near by; the job would be too expensive a one to undertake for just one light. However, this question was left in Ald. Crowe's hands for further effort to have illuminated this corner on the street car line near its Jackson Park terminal.

Remove Gas Tank.

G. A. Dunsford applied for permission to remove his gasoline tank from 176 Brock street to his future residence on Aylmer street.

On motion of Ald. Stocker and Crowe this was granted subject to the Engineer's aproval.

Accepts Invitation.

The council will accept the invitation of the Trent Valley Waterway development association to be represented on annual meeting in Orillia on Tuesday, Oct. 16. And on motion of Ald. Stocker and Meyers, Ald. Holloway, although not present, will be the council's representative.

OIL WAREHOUSE

mendation, and this, the Board decided, leaves the City Council free to use the members' judgment in all cases submitted. The opinion of the Board, voiced by Alderman Phelan, is that assistance should be granted only to those unable to pay cash for the installation.

Snow Plow Tenders.

Despite protestations that winter is not yet here, Alderman McIntyre and Mayor Taylor put through their motion that the City Engineer be authorized to advertise for tenders for snow plowing for the coming season.

On a question from Alderman McIntyre, City Engineer Parsons reported the paving completed. A final measurement has not yet been made, but the Alderman expressed the opinion that the contractor did good work.

An application from D. W. Dumble for the opening of a roadway through his property was received with a denial in the Mayor's motion that no action be taken, seconded by Alderman McIntyre.

Gordon and O'Brien stated in a communication which was received that the Imperial Oil Company is applying to the County Court for permission to close a street running through property owned by them. The street runs to a dead end in their property, and is not built on.

Power Lines.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission applied for formal permission to erect a 44,000-volt line from Auburn power station to the city's new distributing station at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer Streets. The course the line will take is along Anson to Hilliard, Dumble Avenue, Barnardo, Wolsely, Aylmer, Aberdeen, Bethune and Sherbrooke to the sub-station. Application was also made to trim trees where necessary in the erection of the line.

This was granted, the work to be done under the supervision of the City Engineer. Mayor Taylor and Alderman Fife were the parties to the motion.

Alderman Crowe said he had been spoken to about the danger attached to this line, but Engineers Parsons assured him that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission claim the high tension line is safer than a lighting system line. When the high voltage line is interrupted all power is automatically cut off, whereas a lighting line might fall and lie for a long time as a live wire, dagerous to passers-by.

There were present Mayor W. H. Taylor, Chairman Walter Stocker, Aldermen Joseph Crowe, Nagel Phelan, R. Morrison, Malcolm McIntyre, J. O. Fife and J. W. Meyers.

HUNTERS ASSURED SUCCESS.

It means much to prospective hunters, whether travelling in a party or alone, to be put in direct touch with the best location for their particular choice of game and with outfitters and guides at the going-in point, with whom satisfactory arrangements can be made beforehand. A hunting trip cannot be other than successful under these conditions. The Canadian Pacific Railway offers this service to anyone who contemplates a hunting trip anywhere, either in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, or in the Rockies for mountain game. Any of its Agents will gladly secure this information, or an inquiry addressed to W. Fulton, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, will be given immediate and careful attention. A folder, "Open Season for Hunting in Canada, 1923," will be also forwarded.

PRESENT CERTIFCATES TO ENTRANCE PUPILS

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held an enjoyable open meeting last evening. Mr. Fowler in the chair. The occasion was the presentation of certificates to the Entrance pupils by Dr. Holloway, who also gave a little talk on care of the teeth and urged the parents to have the children brush their teeth before going to bed, if at no other time. This is most important.

Vocal solos, 'The False Prophet' and 'Passing By' by Mrs. F. Turner; 'Mary of Argyle' and 'Farewell' by Mr. M. H. Park and violin solos, Haydn's "Hymn to the Emperor" and 'Herd Girl's Dream' by Mr. F. Whitehouse, were much enjoyed.

The banner was won by senior fourth room, there being fourteen parents present.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. F. Holmes and her assistants.

Several new members were added to the roll.

EMPIRE'S FIRST WAR FOR HUMAN LIBERTY—LLOYD GEORGE

BRITAIN'S PREMIER OF VICTORY PAYS ARDENT THANKS TO CANADIANS

Far-Famed Eloquence of David Lloyd George Thrilled Capacity Crowd of 10,000 in Montreal Arena.

WAS MADE CITIZEN.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.— (By the Associated Press.)— Gratitude for the part played so resolutely and unhesitatingly by the Dominion of Canada in the world war was voiced here today by Lloyd George, who for most of the period of that struggle was the prime minister of Great Britain, in the first formal address of his tour of the United States and Canada.

Speaking to an audience which crowded to the doors the Mount Royal Arena, with its seating capacity of 10,000, the man who occupied so outstanding a place during the great war, declared with ringing eloquence that Canada in that struggle was "tried practically for the first time on a great scale in that burning, scorching crucible, and she came out pure gold."

"Canada had to enter into an examination of her qualities," he said, "in a competition and a conflict with the most virile races in the world, the strongest, the most tested, the most dominant races, and it was a searching test for a new nation. She passed through all these fiery trials. And do not forget, she emerged with a certificate of nationhood, signed by all those great nations, friend and foe alike.

"The Treaty of Versailles may have its defects. It is now in its testing. It may succeed, or conceivably, it may fail, but for Canada it has one great enduring value—it is a certificate of nationhood, signed by practically all the great nations of the earth, after four and a half years of trial. It is therefore a charter for Canada."

Toured the City.

The Arena meeting was the only formal function attended by Mr. Lloyd George to-day. During the afternoon he was taken on an automobile trip through the city, visiting the waterfront, the Stock Exchange, the city hall, the Canadian Pacific Railroad shops, the Library and other points of interest. At the city hall he was made a citizen of Montreal and given a gold key to the city. In the evening he attended a dinner given in his honor by Lord Shaughnessy, chairman of the Board of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Although fatigued yesterday after a strenuous programme in the United States, the distinguished visitor appeared in excellent health and spirits to-day, and even a slight hoarseness did not prevent his speaking at the mass meeting for nearly an hour, at times with fiery eloquence. Applause and cheers swept the hall repeatedly as he proceeded in his statement of thanks to the Dominion for its loyalty to the Empire in the dark days.

Introduced by Currie.

Mr. Lloyd George was introduced by General Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, and Comander-in-chief of the Canadian forces in France during the world war, as one "whose name is a household word, one of our own kindred, who symbolizes for us the sound democracy of which our Empire and our Dominion so proudly boasts."

"Canada and Canadians, however," Sir Arthur declared, "expect not and deserve not gratitude for a duty well performed. We are proud to stand with him in allegiance to one flag and one empire."

Replying to this assertion, Mr. Lloyd George said that "nevertheless you will permit one coming from the Old Country and the Old Countrymen to say that there is a sentiment of deep appreciation and gratitude to Canada for the way in which she came to our aid at the most critical moment in our history."

Mr. Lloyd George plans to spend the rest of his visit in this city very quietly at his hotel, leaving for Ottawa by special train to-morrow afternoon.

Home Brewer Is Fined $500

The seizure was made by license Inspector Thornbury and the Provincial police. Archer had three barrels of steaming brew at the plant when the officers arrived, and his outfit was one of the most complete yet seized. The plant, according to reports had been doing quite a business, while the quality of the brew manufactured was said to be away above the average.

THE FALL WHEAT IS LOOKING WELL

Weather Has Been Favorable for Fall Work on The Farm.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Fall wheat is looking very well although the greater part of it was sown during the first three weeks of September, says the report of the Ontario department of agriculture to-day Satisfactory progress has been made with silo filling. Corn is somewhat smaller in length and bulk, but is nicely eared.

The weather has been favorable for potato gathering and threshing and much of this work has been done. Owing to the favorable weather a great deal of fall plowing has been done, but the ground is getting hard and dry again and a good rain would be welcomed by the farmers of the province.

STOCK AND BOND

There is a great boom in the mining industry. I have had many years experience in practical mining, both in Cobalt and Porcupine, and have a wide connection there. I am therefore in a position to get early and reliable information in both camps. I have made a profit for every one of my clients up to date, and shall be pleased to advise any one interested. There will be a strong market this summer and now is the time to get in.

Text Of Lloyd George's Speech Of Gratitude To The People Of Canada

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). —The text of Lloyd George's speech follows:

Sir Arthur Currie and, I think I may now call you fellow-citizens of Montreal since my inscription on the roll this morning, I should despair of reaching the ears of one-tenth of this vast room were it not for certain scientific appliances which I am assured are scattered around this room. I have tried them already twice in the Old Country, not with conspicuous success, and I am here watching to what extent you can do it better than we can in the Old Land.

This is my second visit to your beautiful city. My first visit left a very deep impression of the beauty of the site and of the attractiveness of the city and of the promise which they all contained of a great future for your land.

That was 24 years ago and many things happen in a quarter of a century. In fact, this quarter of a century has crowded into it some of the most startling, some of the most fashioning and some of the most moulding events in human history. One thing I notice that during that period you have grown in strength and prosperity and I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart.

Yours is a country of vast treasure and resource and you are only at the threshold of its greatness. You produce some of the best wheat in the world; you raise fine cattle, but the world knows today that above everything you produce a gallant race of men.

The Decision of 1914.

Nine years ago Canada was faced, like many another nation in the world with one of those decisions that determine its history, determine its fate, determine its status in the world, determine the course which it pursues in the dim and unending years of the future. And your decision was a great one, was a courageous one, was resolute and, above all, it was unhesitating. War is a terrible business at best. It is a rending business. It is a shattering business. It is a ruining business. It devastates; it desolates and the triumph of statesmanship is to put an end to war.

All the same, there is no crucible which tests the quality of a people like war. It tests courage, determination, steadfastness, loyalty, readiness to sacrifice all the great moral qualities that distinguish men from the beasts of the field as well as intelligence, and Canada was tried, practically for the first time, on a great scale in that burning, scorching crucible, and she came out pure and refined gold.

Canada had to enter into an examination of her qualities in a competition and a conflict with the most virile races in the world, the strongest, the most tested, the most dominant races, and it was a searching test for a new nation. She passed through all these fiery trials, and, do not forget, she emerged with a certificate of nationhood signed by all those great nations, friend and foe alike.

The Treaty of Versailles may have its defects. It is now in the testing. It may succeed, or conceivably, it may fail, but for Canada it has one great enduring value, it is a certificate of nationhood, signed by practically all the great nations of the earth, after four and one-half years of trial.

Grateful to Canada.

It is therefore a charter for Canada. Sir Arthur Currie, in his very eloquent speech and I am glad to see that he is as formidable on the platform as he is on the battlefield, has told you, and I notice the sentiment elicited a hearty response, that Canada fought for no gratitude but from a sense of duty. Nevertheless, you will permit one coming from the Old Country, where we passed very anxious moments, where we were within the sound of the guns in the southern counties, and the Old Countrymen, to say that there is a sentiment of deep appreciation and gratitude to Canada for the way in which she came to our aid at the most critical moment in our history.

There is nothing I can tell you about your own efforts that you do not know. You know it—we know it—but I am not at all sure that you know how much it meant to us, and that I can tell you. You sent across the seas 400,000 men, and such men. Three times the size of the British expeditionary force we sent to France. That is not the measure of your service. It is the promptness with which you came to our aid. I remember a day or two before the declaration of war the old French Ambassador, Monsieur Paul Cambon, one of the most honored names in the history of the Entente between Great Britain and France, one whose wise vision, whose great sagacity and attractive personality did more to create that good feeling than almost any individual except, conceivably, King Edward VII. I remember his coming to the British Ministry, of which I was a member, with tears in his eyes after the Germans had declared war against France, and saying, "Send us one squadron of cavalry, only one squadron of cavalry."

"Oh, but," we said, "the Germans have millions of men. Their's is a gigantic army. What is the use of us sending our little army? What use would a squadron be?"

"You don't understand," he said, "if you send a squadron of cavalry with a British flag it will put the heart into a million of Frenchmen to fight."

Ready When Needed.

That is what you did. When we were in doubt—when we were in hesitation—when there was apprehension, a voice came from Canada and said, "Canadians will be behind you." When you saw the storm clouds beginning to roll across the German ocean towards the British shore we had a message from Canada to say that the great Dominion would stand behind the Motherland, and I remember, as a member of that Cabinet, he declared with emphasis, what that message of encouragement and support meant in those dark hours.

That was the moral support you gave. But you gave more than that. There were four battles at least, and you will forgive me talking, because I was inside of the story and watching the whole thing, and these things are written in letters of flame in my memory, everyone of them. They all represent hours, days of anxiety, chiselled into one's heart.

When the Line Broke.

I remember the day when the Germans broke the line and left the Channel ports unprotected — that happened twice—what did that mean? It meant disaster. I do not say it meant defeat. I do not say the war would be lost, although the issue would have been very much more doubtful.

London could have been bombarded. That would have meant nothing. It would have only exasperated, only provoked, only roused the British spirit. (Loud applause).

English courage is not made of lath and plaster. And all the artillery of Germany could not have shattered the courage of even the humblest little Cockney in East London if it came to that. (Applause).

That was not the danger. It was the cutting of the communications. It was crippling our campaign. We had to pour in men, munitions, food, supplies, and if the Germans had got the Channel ports, Dunkirk gone, Calais gone, Boulogne gone, we should have had to squeeze in through just one or two inlets into France.

Stopped By "Contemptibles."

It would have made a vital difference in the conduct of the campaign. And we fought two great battles to keep the German army away from those ports. They brought their greatest divisions to attack. The first attack was resisted, defeated by the veterans of the Old Army.

You know it. The contemptible little army. (Prolonged applause). They were highly trained men—trained for years—as fine an army for its size as ever left England's shore, and they succeeded.

Defeated By Canadians.

The second attack was defeated by an army of untried men who had not fought battles; an army of men who were private citizens a few months before that; who thought of nothing else; who thought not in the least that, at that time, that they would be shouldering rifles. With a little training they were hurried to the front, facing veterans of what Marshal Foch described to me as the finest army the world had ever seen—the German army; the best trained, the best equipped, the best organized. They broke the line. They were defeated by an army of untried men who came from Canada. (Applause).

We all need to dwell one or two minutes on that point. I want to show to you that Britain is grateful. It was your duty, it is your duty to rally to your flag. It is our duty to be grateful to you for doing it so promptly and so helpfully. Just think of it.

General Currie was there and nobly did he play his part, and he will forgive me for talking about something which I only heard of in despatches and from what I have been told by men who were there, and I am talking about it in the presence of a man who was there in the struggle. Clouds of strangling poison let loose, the veterans of the Allied army breaking before it? No discredit to them. It was an horrible experience. It was new and they broke and there was a gap open wide straight through to the English Channel where you could have seen the cliffs of Dover.

Valor and Bluff.

Then came the untried army. Never been in action; called upon at a moment's notice to face an emergency which would have tried veterans. It is not merely the courage—it is the resource which it displayed. There was only one thing to do. If they had stuck to their trenches that would not have been enough. They flung themselves upon the victorious Germans, attacked them, drove them out of position and gave the impression that there were ten men there for every one they really had. It was the finest bluff Sir Arthur Currie ever put up. It was the bravest one. They put their lives into it, and the Germans, who could have marched without any interference if they had only screened their left, said, "What is this. They are terrible fellows. We cannot advance with men like this on our flanks, so we must deal with them."

And it took them so long to deal with them that reinforcements came up, the line was reconstituted, the gate was closed and they never saw the English Channel. (Applause).

Decisive Battles.

Now that is one of the reasons

FEED SUPPLIES ABUNDANT FOR STOCK IN WEST

Rains Improve Pastures and Cattle Will Face the Winter in Good Condition

POTATOES FAIR.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—Taking into consideration the rain and subsequent warm weather of the past week sprouting of grain in stock might reasonable have been expected but according to weekly crop report, of the Canadian Pacific Railway the damage from this source is almost negligible and threshing has been resumed and is making sufficient progress. Harvesting of root crops is now general. Potatoes are a fair crop. Pastures have been greatly improved by recent rain and livestock will go into winter quarters in good condition and with abundant feed supplies.

In Manitoba 90 per cent. of all grain is threshed. The balance will be accomplished by the end of the week. Recent out-turns continue to reveal a yield in line with previous reports, poor in southern areas and about average in the rest of the province.

Another ten days will see threshing completed in Saskatchewan if present good weather continues. Yields are maintaining a satisfactory average with oats particularly good. A flax yield of 17 1-2 bushels average in Stoughton district is reported.

Threshing in Alberta is proceeding under favorable weather conditions with approximately fifty per cent. finished. Some remarkable yields are reported from this province, and averaging well in grade, being mostly number 1 Northern. Some reports of large yields are: at Castor 57 bushels of wheat; at Vulcan, 60 bushels to the acre.

Sixty per cent. of threshing is, finished on the Edmonton-Duvegan and British Columbia Railway with continued reports of highly satisfactory yields and grades in all cases high.

In parts of the Okanagan Valley the apple crop has fallen below estimated due largely to the prevalence of pests, both insect and fungi in districts where farmers could not afford spraying in the Spring and Summer. All varities of Fall apples are picked and Winter varieties are being placed in the packing houses as rapidly as possible.

LINDSAY HAPPY OVER ESCAPE FROM WHITE ELEPHANT INDUSTRY

Thompson Knitting Company of Bowmanville In Assignment With Loss of Thousands to Stockholders.

DICKERED ONCE.

LINDSAY, October 9 (Special to The Examiner). — Lindsay citizens are congratulating themselves on the escape from another industrial white elephant in the collapse of the Thompson Knitting Company, of Bowmanville.

The Durham County town has been staggered by the assignment of the concern, in which so many of its citizens had been financially interested.

This company was anxious to move from Bowmanville to Lindsay, and there were some leading citizens in this town just as anxious to land it. The manager visited here on several occasions, and the Lindsay Arsenal plant was looked upon as an ideal site.

Several meetings of the Board of Trade were held to which many citizens were invited to hear the proposition.

A committee was sent to Bowmanville to look over the plant, and on their return reported that the industry was a veritable gold mine, and would mean a big thing for the town.

The company wished the citizens to become interested to the extent of $50,000, and when this was made public there was a decided slump in their enthusiasm.

The plant never came, and Bowmanville was the loser by many thousands of dollars.

ONTARIO'S SUMMER HOTELS.

Fire Prevention Week seems a very appropriate time for asking some questions about Ontario's summer hotels in view of the Fire Marshal's report on the Wawa disaster.

Marshal Heaton has found the Wawa Hotel was very inadequately provided with appliances for fire fighting or with facilities for the escape of the occupants.

In other words, the place was a fire-trap.

How many other summer hotels are exactly in the same condition, or perhaps worse?

How many of them are merely wooden shells without fire-escapes or fire fighting machinery, built so that the flames would gallop through them?

What chance would guests or employees have if a fire broke out in the middle of the night?

These are questions that should be looked into, for it must be realized that there is just as much danger of a fire occurring in any other hotel as there was in the ill-fated Wawa.

There are careless smokers everywhere, there are sparks from chimneys everywhere, and there are other fire hazards that cause danger to be always present.

A FABLE FOR BUILDERS.

Last summer a good citizen of a certain town, not over a hundred miles from almost everywhere, built a wooden house for a woman and her children. He built the chimney of brick because he had to do so. The chimney was able to stand alone, so he did not have to prop it with wood. But the floors of the house would not stay up without props. The good citizen saved a dollar by using the chimney as a support for the floors. He nestled the ends of the floor joist nicely into the brick of the chimney. He then covered up the job and got his money.

The rains fell and the winds blew in the most Biblical manner and winter came after its usual fashion. The chimney settled a little and there was a tiny crack.

One morning the woman woke up with fire all about her. She tried to get to her children. If she got to them, no one ever knew it. The good citizen who built the house was not arrested for manslaughter. He is still building other houses of the same kind for other women and children.

He makes his living by it.

A REST-ROOM FOR WOMEN.

The recommendation passed by the Board of Health at the suggestion of Mr. James Lynch that a rest-room be established at the market for women, and that the City Council include the cost in the appropriations for next year, is a contribution towards the comfort of visitors and citizens that might have been made long since.

In approving the suggestion the Board of Health has shown a proper appreciation of its duty towards the community, and its recommendation should be regarded as a mandate to the Council to go ahead with this very much needed improvement.

While accommodation has for some years been provided for men, it is a reproach on our vaunted progress that up to the present there has been no attempt to furnish accommodation for our women visitors.

Like many other things of the same nature, it has probably been through carelessness or oversight that the City Council has not long since attended to this matter.

Now that their attention has been directed towards it through the official medium of a recommendation from the body encharged with the care of the health of the citizens, it is expected that action to implement the resolution will be before long taken.

ON WITH THE CAMPAIGN.

Despite the efforts of the Board of Health to clean up Peterborough so far as the elimination of outdoor closets is concerned, the campaign has not made the progress that is desirable.

It is doubtful whether this year's showing will be as good as last year when 125 of such menaces to health were done away with.

So far in 1923 there have been 95 outdoor closets abolished.

There are still in existence, according to the Sanitary Inspector, some 1,200.

That is a number far too large in this modern age, and the campaign should not be relaxed until every house in this city where it is possible to have sanitary conveniences is connected with the sewer.

On some streets, of course, where the sewer or water mains have not been laid, it is necessary to put up with the inconvenience of outdoor privies.

The construction of services on such streets should be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

In the meanwhile, however, on thoroughfares where connection with the sewer is possible the installation of conveniences must be insisted upon, and where there is a refusal to comply with the regulations the courts should be appealed to for assistance.

The carelessness or veniality of a few citizens cannot be allowed to endanger the health of the whole community.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

The present week has been set apart as Fire Prevention Week, and throughout Canada the citizens of the Dominion have been directed by a Royal proclamation issued by His Excellency the Governor-General to give observance to the occasion and to correct the conditions which menace prosperity by the destruction of created wealth and developed resources.

Of the necessity of such a movement the figures leave no doubt.

Fire in taking its direct and indirect tole of over $100,000,000 annually out of the pockets of the people of Canada adds to the high cost of living and gives nothing in return for the vast expenditure save the regretful memory that eighty per cent. of the loss was caused by inexcusable thoughtlessness and carelessness that is akin to crime.

Fire destroys one human life every day in Canada.

$6,500 worth of property every hour.

One dwelling every twenty minutes.

Seventy business buildings every week.

Thirty schools and churches every month.

One institution every four days.

$54,390,600 worth of property in 1922, equivalent to the interest on over a billion dollars.

Isn't it time that this huge and needless destruction should be stopped?

And the cure begins with every citizen of Peterborough as with every citizen of Canada.

Premier Ferguson emphasizes this point in his fire prevention message when after pleading for co-operation he declares that this co-operation cannot be obtained without the full recognition of the factor of personal responsibility.

"I cannot urge too strongly," says Mr. Ferguson, "the duty and necessity of the full recognition of personal responsibility in this matter, for it must be apparent to us all that the measure of our response as individuals to this appeal will be the measure of our success in saving the country from the destruction of its wealth and the still more serious loss of human life."

Peterborough people should ponder over this message and decide what as a community and what as individuals can be done to locally check the ravages of the fire fiend.

GATHERING THE FRUIT.

Bacon said that the end of all scientific investigation is the "gathering of fruit"—that is, the turning of all discovery to practical account. This emphasis upon utility was the blemish of Bacon's character and the defect of his scientific method.

The highest utility is ultimately served when men pursue truth for its own sake. Much wiser is the statement of one of the pioneers of chemistry, Beecher, when he speaks of chemists as "a strange class of mortals, impelled by an almost insane impulse to secure their pleasure among smoke and vapor, soot and flame, poison and poverty." "My kingdom," he said, "is not, however, of this world. I trust that I have got hold of my pitcher by the right handle, the true method of treating this study; for the pseudo-chemists seek gold, but the true philosophers, science, which is more precious than gold." These investigators leave to the world what they themselves never possessed—the means of increased wealth, health, comfort and power.

The practical value of knowledge is slow of revelation. It requires to undergo an aging process. The new wine of truth needs the touch of time. It is the infinite patience, the range of imagination, the sweep of thought, the power of divination that discovers the hidden law. The seeker after the practical is more apt to range on the surface, and the laws upon which great practical applications are built lie at the centre of things. If utility is forgotten in the passion to get at the heart of things for their own sake, the secret of nature is surprised. The result is knowledge which admits of untold applications to the practical conveniences of life. The great discoveries which have transformed life have been by those who have brought to their labors a spirit fired by the love of nature for her own sake.

In this age of materialistic drift, it is hardly necessary to mention practical values and material ends. They cannot be escaped. Their influence is all-pervading, inevitable. We have even a bread-and-butter theory of education for children urged today with all the enthusiasm of a new gospel. It says, "Teach the child that all knowledge can be disposed to some useful end. Cultivate early the habit of looking for the practical worth of knowledge, so that you can appropriate the fruits." The current is there and we push children out into the stream, in a mad quest for material ends. But education has no need to stoop in this way and cry her wares in the street. The strange fact is that children thus urged not only miss the fine flavor of thought, the sane appreciation that should follow instruction, but in the haste to acquire that knowledge that appears practical they also miss the efficient direction of their energies. He who regards knowledge as his servant is never master of it; but whoever regards himself as the servant of knowledge alone becomes master in the world of thought.

Nature is full of secrets waiting to be known. For many generations she concealed laws and processes which science has discovered and which are now familiarly and generally understood. But they were first sought out and discovered by those who had pleasure therein. She freely yields up her secrets to the earnest and persistent student, and every revelation disclosed becomes a blessing to the race.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make Fire Prevention Week mean a cleaner and safer Peterborough—not only this week, but during the next fifty-two.

It is rather cruelly suggested that what Peterborough needs is more paint on the old places and less paint on the young faces.

Lloyd George is only going to deliver one address in Toronto. At that he'll probably say more than most of the speakers in the Ontario Legislature have done in the last half a dozen sessions.

Quebec reports an earthquake. Perhaps our neighbors were merely shaking for the drinks.

Toronto police seem to have been considerably in a hurry in using their guns in that rum-running case. That kind of treatment should be saved for the desperate kind of crooks who shoot bank messengers and get away with big hauls in the centre of the city.

Many a presidential aspirant would like to be able to get a reception in New York as cordial as that given Lloyd George.

The trouble with the Home Bank seems to have been that the depositors' money not only did not find a home therein, but was scarcely accorded stop-over privileges.

There are surely enough dangerous crooks running at large in Ontario to give the police all the target practice that is necessary.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, October 9. — Last week's bad market did not keep down shipments at the Union Stock Yards yesterday to any great extent. The record showed 1,300 cattle carried over from last week, and the receipts yesterday were 4,246 cattle, 656 calves, 2,613 hogs, and 2,455 sheep and lambs. There was a fairly brisk trade following the opening, but this was done in the best grades of butchers, of which there were not many.

Frank Hunnisett took two loads one at 5.3-4c a pound and one at $6.40 a cwt. The latter were a little over 1,000 pounds each. These were not up to the standard wanted, but the best available. For another load of 1,250-pound steers he bid 6.3-4c, but these were held for 7c a pound, and finally sold at $6.90. These will not qualify for the best Toronto beef trade, and 50c to $1.00 more a cwt. would be paid for the right kind for this purpose.

The exporters were buying and prices were stronger as there were only 10 to 12 loads of these available. For three loads of Ontario fed Westerns $7.35 a cwt. was paid. Two loads of four and five year old fat Western steers, 1,400 to 1,500 pounds each, were bought at 5.3-4c a pound. The exporters figured about 2c a cwt. higher than last week, and good to choice butchers were firmer by about an equal amount.

In the general run of butchers, prices were about steady, but the large number of unfinished in-betweens are again a hard and slow sale, and a further lowering of prices in keeping with the supply is quite expected.

Several large shipments of Western cattle arrived since last Thursday, but 21 loads of these were shipped into the States. Fancy butcher cows are scarce and only an occasional few made up to 5c a pound. Few stockers were sold yesterday morning, except to dealers who were rounding up loads.

Calves held unchanged and were quite firm. Four good calves, but not in the choice class, sold at 11c for three and 12.1-2c a pound for one. Prices for calves were firm at the quotations, and the near good ones were somewhat higher. Heavy calves sold generally at 8c a pound.

Lambs were more wanted yesterday, and an early bid of 11.3-4c for one bunch failed to effect a sale. These were later sold to Puddy Bros. at 12c. Few other loads sold below 11.3-4c and the market was up half a dollar a cwt. from last week.

Sheep were equally firm, but the advance was less.

Any hogs contracted for over the week-end were taken at $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b. but beyond this packers refused to bid higher than $8.25 a cwt. and said that Old Country cable advices warranted the cut.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, October 9 (Canadian Press). — The situation with regard to fresh remains uncharged. Some storage eggs are reported to have been bought by the Eastern trade from the Prairie Provinces, and further sales are reported of storage firsts for export to Great Britain. The publication of the figures on the eggs in storage in the United States is considered unfavourable, and has resulted in the Chicago market being very nervous and lower.

BRITISH EGG MARKET.

GLASGOW, October 9 (Canadian Press Cable). — Prices shillings per ten dozen: Irish scarcer, 20 to 24 f.o.b.; Danish sixteens 18, eighteens 19 1-2 f.o.b.; demand fair; retail unchanged.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, October 9 Canadian Press). — Receipts, 1,950 cattle and calves, 460 hogs, and 35 sheep and lambs.

Under a comparatively light volume of offerings the cattle market opened yesterday morning with bidding generally showing a firmer tone and trading as a whole was more active, as compared with the close of last week. Early sales for the general run of the killing classes look fully 25 cents higher, while the stockers and feeders met a fair trade and sold generally steady to strong.

There was little doing on the sheep and lamb market, due to lack of offerings. A few good lambs were weighed up at $9.00, while a handful of sheep sold from $4.50 to $6.00.

On the hog market packers were bidding $9.00 for thick smooths, this being in line with the close of last week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 9 (Canadian Press). — Wheat yesterday outdid the season's previous high price record for May and July delivery. Buying power appeared to come largely from the east, and to be associated with continued talk about Government measures for agricultural relief.

The market closed unsettled 1-8c to 3-4c net higher, with December $1.10 to $1.10 1-8, and May $1.13 3-4 to $1.13 7-8.

Corn finished 1-8c to 1-4c to 1-2c lower; oats at 3-8c off to 1-4c up; and provisions varying from 10c decline to 17c advance.

With a conference in session here yesterday at which representatives of President Coolidge were present and farm aid plans were discussed, wheat showed an upward tendency as soon as trading began. Commission houses had liberal orders to buy and although setbacks in price were numerous the market was at a decidedly higher level most of the day, the fact that the top prices failed to hold in the late trading was ascribed chiefly to profit-taking.

However, gossip that exporters were cancelling purchases tended also to ease the market.

It was estimated that 480,000 to 560,000 bushels of wheat that had recently been bought for shipment to Europe was sold back yesterday at below replacement cost. Another incentive to profit-taking on yesterday's upturn, was gossip that no definite results would be attained from the wheat conference here until after conferences elsewhere took place.

No. 2 yellow and No. 2 white corn available for spot delivery rose to $1.05 a bushel, a new high for the season. On the other hand, favourable weather eased down the future deliveries of corn and oats.

Nearly all the provision list was lower in line with hogs.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, October 9 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, receipts 30,000; most grades fed steers 15c to 25c lower; top matured steers, $12.60; fed yearlings numerous at $10.50 to $11.50; stockers and feeders steady to strong; bulls strong; bulk vealers to packers, $11.00 to $11.50; bulk stockers and feeders, $5.00 to $7.00; numerous loads going on Maryland account, around $6.50 for 800 to 900 pound average.

Hogs, receipts 60,000; closed dull, 25c to 35c lower; bulk good and choice 190 to 350 pound average, $8.00 to $8.25; top, $8.30; packing sows, $6.80 at $7.10; desirable and weighty slaughter pigs, $6.50 to $7.25; estimated hold-over, 18,000.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 8.—Friday the school teachers of South Ontario held an excursion to Rochester where they were to visit the schools in the Flower City and gain an idea of how the work of education is carried on there. The excursion was a similar one to that held by the Public School teachers of Inspectorate No. 2 of Northumberland and Durham last year in which a number from Peterboro participated, and which proved to be a very enjoyable event. No. 2 Inspectorate is meeting here in convention this year and the dates are Thursday and Friday of next week.

Schools Are Crowded.

The crowded condition of the Public Schools in urban centre this term is by many contributed to the conditions of the Adolescent Act. Be that as it may several Boards are up against the necessity of providing an extra teacher.

Bringing In Coal.

Very little coal has come into Cobourg in the regular way the past month or six weeks. One or two dealers got in a car or so of Alberta coal, and a couple of private parties have brought in a carload of Domestic fuel each (from Pennsylvania, it is understood). Last week a carload brought in by Mr. C. E. Roberts of Grafton was sold from the car here and found quite a ready sale. A large number of residents are burning wood at the present time, and some expect to do so until about the time for zero weather. Beech, birch and maple body wood sells for $12.00 a cord, mixed wood for $9.00 and slabs for $7.00. A dollar extra must be paid for cutting.

Tea and Sale.

The Ladies Helping Circle of St. Andrews' Presbyterian church here is a very energetic and faithful band of workers, and they are always ready to assist in almost any way possible when there is financial need, as well as doing all in their power to build up a helpful social spirit in St. Andrews' church, of which Rev. W. A. Bremner is the highly esteemed pastor. Their latest social event was an afternoon sale held at the manse, with Mrs. Bremner as the genial hostess. It also served as a rally for the opening up of the autumn and winter work. Dainty refreshments were served, a few hours were spent socially and all passed off pleasantly and successfully.

Still Bowling at Cobourg.

Cobourg bowlers have lost little of their enthusiasm notwithstanding cold winds and frosty nights for the "green" and some interesting local tournaments have taken place. Supplementary to the inter-rink tournament was a competition in which those taken part played for two baskets of peaches. Then Mr. D. Coyle, the well-known apple man donated eight baskets of apples to the Bowling Club for a tourney in doubles. Quite a number went into it with right good will, and after a close competition the apples went to the following well-known bowlers: Primary First, George Neal, Fred Burge, second, F. Baker, Dr. Kerr.

Consolation—First, Messrs. Kidd and E. Guillet; second P. Davidson and E. Curvin.

Played At Oshawa.

Some of the Cobourg bowlers went up to Oshawa recently to take part in the closing tournament for the season of the Oshawa Lawn Bowling Club, and characterize it as a very successful event.

Rev. G. A. Clarke's Lecture.

Perhaps one of the most enlightening and informative addresses that has ever been heard in this district on the European situation was the lecture given by Rev. G. A. Clarke of Edmonton at the Baptist church here on Thursday evening. Of keen understanding and well-informed generally regarding world conditions Mr. Clarke was just the man to sift from the vast amount of information he gained on a recent visit to Great Britain, Sweden, Norway and the war-stricken area of Europe now being rehabitated the best and most interesting data and present it to his hearers, giving them a lucid idea of how some of the war stricken nations are carrying on in the midst of great difficulties. Such a word picture brings home to Canadians some conception of the great advantages which they enjoy in this land of peace and plenty, despite low prices for farm crops, high taxes, fuel difficulties and the hundred and one things of which many of us are constantly complaining.

Choirs Are Sociable.

Much has been said about the spirit of wrangling that pervades some choirs and very much also about the self-sacrificing, faithful work which they carry on from Sunday to Sunday. Their attendance or non-attendance goes a long way towards a successful and enjoyable service, and yet this is too often not rightfully appreciated. If six men in a congregation stay away from the Sunday service, that service goes on just as usual, even though they be influential members, but if six of the choir members are away, even though they be stenographers or clerks, their absence makes a big difference in the chorus work and in the inspiration of the musical service. But quite often we have choirs who are not only regular attendants but also co-workers socially and who desire to stretch out their geniality towards others. Such was the spirit that resulted in a social gathering that took the form of a weiner roast on the lakeshore here one night recently when St. Paul's Presbyterian choir, Peterboro motored in and spent the evening socially with the Cobourg Methodist church choir.

Three In Family Die.

A very sad bereavement came to the home of the late Arthur White of Clarendon Station, it has been learned here. Mr. White, it is stated succumbed last Sunday to an illness, which he had borne up against with great fortitude, on account of other sickness in his family. Two boys, one aged eleven years, and the other six, who had been ill with mumps, it is said, also passed away. The mother in the home died some six years ago ,and the onerous task of taking care of so many sick, devolved, it appears, upon a sixteen-year-old daughter, who did her best for her father and brothers, but was unable to nurse them back to health.

Dined at Gores' Landing.

The Black Diamonds, champions of the Port Hope Town Baseball League, were the guest of honor at a dinner given at Mrs. Frank Herald's at Gore's Landing one evening recently after which a very enjoyable social time was spent. Fish and fried chicken were on the bill of fare as well as many other seasonable delicacies and to all of these delectable viands the boys present did full justice.

A single teaspoonful of DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN Will restore good humor

Mothers! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. C. S. Bungay, 19 Chatham Av., Halifax, N. S. and Mrs. W. F. Hunter, Biggar, Sask., seldom have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Laxative Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

MARMORA HARVEST FESTIVAL SERVICE

At St. Paul's Anglican Church—Sermon on The Parable of the Sower.

MARMORA, Oct. 9. — A special service was held in the St. Paul's Anglican church on Sunday, it being their annual Harvest Festival. The church was very tastefully decorated with autumn leaves, many beautiful flowers and plants, oats, wheat and various kinds of fruit and vegetables, all being evidences of a bountiful harvest which has once more been granted to us.

The special music for the service was provided by the united choirs of Marmora and Deloro, assisted by the Deloro orchestra by all who heard it. This choir also provided music at Trinity church in the afternoon and Deloro in the evening.

The sermon was in keeping with the services, Rev. Caiger Watson taking as his text the old familiar verse, "Behold the sower went forth to sow" from Matthew XIII, 3. He pointed out that Jesus Christ, in this simple story seemed to come nearer to man. We are apt to look upon Him with awe as the great teacher, one divinely gifted and far removed from us but this simple parable shows us that He could come down as it were to the level of man and see something in the common, physical side of life. As He went amongst the people and saw them at their work, He drew lessons for them to learn and so in this parable there is much that can be applied to Christian life. The seed that fell by the wayside is like the word of God, preached to people who have no appreciation of it, who remained untouched by its message, in spite of their hearing it throughout their entire lives.

The seed which is sown on stony ground is actually scorched out. So sometimes people who have received the word in their hearts have it burned out through the scorn and ridicule of their fellowmen and because they are shallow and have no depth to their natures allow their religion to die within them.

The seed which fell among thorns is likened to those who allow the cares, ambitions, and riches of the world to crowd out their religion until finally these things take such a hold upon them that they have no room in their lives for the Word of God.

The seed which fell on the good fertile ground is like the word of God which falls upon the hearts of those who receive it gladly and when they receive it, go out and let it bring forth fruit abundantly.

In this connection Mr. Watson referred to the different results of the harvest, some one hundred some sixty and some thirty fold. All Christian workers must do their best even to bringing in one hundred fold if possible. The work is difficult but must be accomplished in order that there will be a bountiful harvest, when the Divine Reaper comes.

In conclusion Rev. Watson said that just as the earthy temple of God had been adorned with the physical tokens of a plenteous harvest so must we fill our lives with such good works that when the final Harvest comes around the Greatest Reaper of all appears with His angels to garner in the good grain we may be considered fit to adorn and beautify the Temple of the Lord.

TEXT OF LLOYD

why I am saying "Thank you." I am taking a little time to say it, but I want to say it and I want to tell you why I say it. I am the old war Prime Minister who had the chief responsibility throughout most of the war and I know what it meant to my countrymen who had to face those things and what it meant for France, and I know the sentiments of France. In reference to the courage and the resource displayed by your magnificent troops, I said that there were four battles at least, if not five, decisive battles, where the Canadian troops played a decisive part. Vimy Ridge, the battle of the 18th of August, or was it the 8th—(turning to Sir Arthur Currie, who promptly replied "the 8th")—that is right, he knows, I think he was there. (Laughter).

The 8th of August, 1918. I am not going to tell you about that, but I remember going through it. My hair was pretty black when it started. This is how it was when it was all over.

The 8th of August—the battle that determined the German general staff that the game was up—Canada took a prime part in winning that battle. The breaking of the Hindenburg line, the capture of Cambrai—all those things are written forever on the scroll of history and for part of the destiny of the human race.

Right To Be Proud.

For no man can tell now what that was. It was a fog which arises from the morass of war, the smoke is not clear. I do not know what is going to happen. I never met a man who could tell me what would happen. This I do know, that war has altered the destiny of mankind for generations, for centuries, to come, and you ought to be proud that you, the men and women of Canada, played such a part in the greatest event that human history can write about for fifteen or seventeen centuries.

Now, I wanted to say one or two other things, but I dont' want to detain you at too great length. (Cries of "go on.")

The Empire in Action.

The British Empire at war revealed itself for the first time to the world as one of the supreme guardians of human liberty. (Applause.) England fought the Armada and established forever the principle of freedom of worship. (Applause.) England fought Louis XIV, fought the attempts of Napoleon to establish an imperial regime over Europe. But the first time the empire came together into action with all its strength, all its gigantic might and majesty from the southern seas up to those of the north, from the eastern climes to the west all th earth over, the first time this majestic army came into action was on the fourth of August, 1914.

And thank God when it came it came to fight for liberty. (Applause). And that is the real significance of that episode. It is an empire of many races. Of many races. Why? I can see indications in this very room that you have at least two races here, you are told in at least two languages not to smoke (laughter and applause).

The Nations That Are Britain.

In London to-day may be at this hour the representatives of the British Emipre are meeting around the table in rather a dingy old room, but great events have been fashioned there. You've got Englishmen there, Scotchmen, and Irishmen (applause). I am glad they are there, I did my best to get them there and there is nothing I am prouder of than the fact that at last I succeeded. Using means that Irishmen did not always appreciate—you have Irishmen there, you have Frenchmen there from Canada, you have Dutchmen there from South Africa, you have got representatives of much older races and of much more ancient civilization from India.

I remember one of those races at a great conference turning round to us, looking at President Wilson and Mr. Clemenecau and Mr. Orlando and then turning to me he said, "I belong to a race which was civilized when the people you represent were barbarians (laughter.) And Signor Orlando turned around with much the same 'that is not true of Rome.' I said 'Yes you were savages when those people were civilized,' so were we'."

Those races of that date in a council of empire, the British Empire, under the British flag organizing the policy of empire all those races—it is an empire of many races.

It is an empire of many races — east and west; north and south—every color, every clime, every civilization, every religion—every religion. And every religion is good; it is only no religion that is bad (cheers).

I have just come from your great neighbor, and they have got problems of the same kind ;but it is essentially different.

Touch of Humour.

They have got every race, and it is going to be one of their difficulties. It is. But their problems and the problemsof the British Empire are different.

Now I must not get too near to that (indicating the radio receiver, amid loud laughter.) It is getting quite impertinent (laughter). It is answering me back (more laughter).

Their problem is a different one from ours. What is theirs? Their problem is to weld all those races into one common pattern. That is theirs; and it is essential—for them. There you have got a Frenchman living here and a Dutchman next door ,and God help both of them if they start discussing religion. (Loud laughter). And there it is very possible you will find an Irishman, and there is an Englishman, and there is a Welshman. But they are all living in the same street in the same town, and their business is to do what you see those great machines do when they are making concrete—crush the rocks into the same size, the same pattern, weld it together by some substance that attaches and makes cohesion. There you have got to make the concrete. attach it by a common nationhood, so as to make one solid nation of an infinite variety of types. That is the problem of the United States of America. That is not ours.

The Empire's Problem.

It must be recognized that our problem is a problem of hewing rocks of granite or marble out of different quarries; of fashioning them, shaping them, putting them into the building, each separate block contributing its strength to the building, each contributing its color, its beauty, so that the whole will be a fabric of infinite strength and exquisite beauty .That is the British Empire.

There is the granite; the marble from India, from India's coral strands. There is the Scotch granite from Aberdeen (cheers)—and very good stuff it is. There is the English stone of fine durable quality that the ages have not been able to wear down (cheers.) There is a little from my own country (loud cheers), hewn from the Welsh hills. There is not much of it, but it makes up in quality what it lacks in quantity. (loud cheers.)

That is our problem, and don't attempt to solve the problem of the British Empire in the same way it is being solved in America. It will fail. (Cheers.)

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES ON FALLIS LINE APPOINTMENT

Rev. A. L. Brown, of Lindsay, Preached Appropriate Sermons — Music By Millbrook Choir a Feature.

MILLBROOK, October 9. — Rev. A. L. Brown, of Queen Street Church, Lindsay, preached anniversary sermons at the Fallis Line appointment on Sunday afternoon and evening, exchanging with Rev. S. T. Tucker, who went to Lindsay for the day's services. Rev. Mr. Brown greatly pleased the congregation in Millbrook at the morning service, while Rev. J. Wilks took charge in his usual effective manner at night. Following their usual custom, several members of the Millbrook choir, with the organist, assisted at Fallis Line for the anniversary occasion, Miss Ella Elson supplying for Miss Estelle Hetherington at the evening service here.

The special numbers given at Fallis Line in the afternoon included the quartette, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, Messrs. J. L. Byam and F. N. Alcorn, and a solo, "Only Tired," by Mrs Sayles. Two selections were given by the quartette in the evening, "To the Rock Let Me Fly" and "For You I Am Praying," the latter unaccompanied.

Rev. Mr. Brown, who twenty-nine years ago was pastor on the Cavan South Circuit, had not paid a return visit until Sunday, and expressed his pleasure in renewing acquaintance with the families of those to whom he once ministered in spiritual things. Though many familiar faces were missing, several of those whom the speaker remembered as "fathers and mothers in Israel" having passed on before to the Promised Land, there was yet a joy in recalling their faithful prayers and testimonies, the outcome of a true Christian walk and conversation.

The Measuring Line.

The text for his first sermon Mr. Brown chose from Zechariah 2, 1-2: "Behold a man with a measuring-line in his hand. Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem."

This was one of the visions which the prophet had at a prayer-spot whither he was wont to resort. Zechariah had come back with the exiles from Babylon on that sorrowful return when, leaving behind wealth and pleasure, they found a desolated city and a ruined temple. But this very time of dejection and discouragement brought out the great men of the nation who shone like beacons with their message of faith and hope, dissipating the darkness and giving "strength to feeble knees."

At his secret place of prayer, under cover of the darkness, the prophet, waiting upon God with intense supplication, was rewarded with the vision of the text. Zechariah was to learn that "afflictions are the good man's shining time," and are better improved than removed. Undoubtedly the "man" of his vision would be a young man, for youth only has the audacity to lay its measuring-line to everything and everybody, demanding exactitude. Out of a riper experience age hesitates to ask such minuteness, having learned that there are "more things in Heaven and earth than a man may measure with his mind, and that we go out of the world before we become acquainted with it, and out of the body before we become acquainted with ourselves."

"Whither goest thou?" the prophet questioned. "To measure Jerusalem," was the answer. Think of it. As well might a ragged urchin attempt to play one of the grand oratorios upon his paltry tin horn. There were some things which the human line could not measure in that city's history—the tears, the songs of praise, the extent of the prayers of the broken-hearted poured into the quivering ear of God. These were greater than Jerusalem itself. Some of the greatest things, the influence and the powers in the world to-day, are those upon which the human measuring-tape may not adequately be laid. The room in which a student pours over his books—how would you measure that? Not by any carpenter's rule for its influence goes down the cycle of eternity.

Love of Children.

How should one measure a nursery? Solely by the love of children, who make a world of trouble and pay for it as they pass along. Or a library? Not by length of shelving or number of volumes, but by an inspection of the books. In these days our young, scholarly men are placing their human measuring-line upon the Bible, forgetting that it is not a tool-box but a seed, and its planting in good heart soil means a miracle of growth and the fruitage is spiritual, not mere intellectualism. A reasonable inspection of the Word is not at all to be deplored, but there are points where the human cannot go, and the immeasurable influence of Scripture passes the comprehension of any but the Divine.

The Bible has inspired a love that is stronger than death, and it is still true were persecution to again arise there are thousands who would endure martyrdom for the Book because of its amazing power in their Christian experience.

The scholars are even laying destructive hands upon our Lord and Christ. That He was superman, they admit, but they discount His Deity, not realising that here their human measuring-line falls far short. His people should be thankful that there are some things which may not be measured, and faith cries, "It is the Lord. He is the God."

A Woman's Friends

Good, clear daylight and a well placed mirror are the best friends that a woman has. They place honesty before tact and tell the truth—unpleasant, if it has to be.

Daylight and the well placed mirror are, too, the best friends of Peerless Erasmic Soap.

Peerless Erasmic is the daylight soap that will cause your complexion to revel in the nearness of eyes; give to it a pearly clearness and glow of youth all your own; enable your skin to meet fearlessly the scrutiny of other women, and enable your mirror to answer you pleasantly, whilst speaking the truth.

Peerless Erasmic is more than beauty to the skin. It woos the senses with its subtle fragrance. Neither pronounced nor obvious, it is the perfume of good taste—an elusive fragrance floating near.

YOUNG PEOPLE HELD MEETING

Interesting Program Included a Debate.

The Anglican Young People's Association branch of the church of St. George's, South Peterborough, held a very pleasant and successful meeting in the Sunday School Room of the church on Monday evening.

After a half-hour of social intercourse, the rector, Rev. W. A. Courage, as chairman of the evening, called the aggregation to order and opened the proceedings with a collect, and then the Lord's Prayer was recited by all present.

The president of the association, Mr. Braun, was then called upon to act as chairman to the business side of the meeting. The secretary, Miss Howarth, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly confirmed. Miss Blake, the treasurer, then followed with the annual financial statement, which showed that the branch was in good financial standing.

Then followed a debate to which Mr. Frank Russell, of St. John's Church and Mr. Farr of All Saints' Church had been invited to act as judges. The subject was: "Resolved, That Great Men Make Great Events and Not Great Events Great Men."

The affirmatives were led by Miss Blake and Miss Howarth, Messrs. Fuld and Jenkins being the champions of the negatives.

Miss Blake led off with a list of names of great men who had caused great events, instancing amongst others Marshal Foch in connection with the termination of the World's Great War, Winston Churchill in his work of providing ammunition, General Currie, the hero of the Battle of Cambrai, Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sifton, Sir Sam Hughes, who had raised a big army in Canada, and so on.

Mr. Jenkins then, for the negatives, instanced Jacquard, the poor weaver, who by his indomitable skill and perseverance had transformed the ordinary loom available only then for plain patterns, into a machine producing most complicated designs, which loom still bearing his name; and Edison, who had worked marvels in electricity.

Miss Howarth then followed with a list of around twenty names of men who from the earliest days of history had been the causes or makers of great events either in religion, science, or statesmanship.

Mr. Fuld, on the negative side, offered Robert Stephenson, the promoter of steam engines, and Marconi of wireless fame.

The usual rebuttals were brought forward, and the judges retired for consultation. On their return their verdict was given in favour of the affirmatives, who had adduced so many well supported instances of their belief, Miss Howarth being specially praised for her lucid statements, which were very complete. She had evidently well thought out her subject. Miss Blake also received words of commendation as did also Messrs. Jenkins and Fuld; but the preponderance of points were awarded to Miss Howarth, whose elocution was very good.

At the termination of this part of the programme, the business meeting was closed with an invitation to the judges to attend a social party next Monday, when two rival crews were to meet, the losing one to put up a supper for the whole assembly. A little dancing and some friendly chatting then brought a very pleasant evening to a close. F. R.

BILL FOR HELP

dian National, wrote that his company would gladly arrange for an improved freight accommodation here next year.

Protection from Drowning.

In reply to the city regarding information re an efficient life-saving plan along the Otonabee river, F. J. Wyse of the Ontario Safety League, wrote that the only expense to the city for such information would be that for Captain Saunders' visit to look over the ground. The communication went on to say that a personal inspection of the Otonabee River will cost very little. There are numerous ways by which a water front may be made reasonably safe; for instance the placing of life-saving appliances consisting of a pike pole and life buoy at dangerous points, protected bathing areas surrounded by floating life lines, might be placed in safe localities, and signs erected prohibiting bathing in unsafe places, would certainly eliminate a great many fatalities. Instructing the fire department in the use of the Chaefer method of artificial respiration, was also advised, as it is generally conceded that this method is superior to any mechanical device yet invented.

This matter went to the Property Committee.

Advertising Question.

The Heaton Advertising Agency submitted a "dummy" of the Ontario Touring Guide, soliciting advertising space from the city in that work. This was sent to the Manufacturers Committee.

Worth Considering.

A communication from Leon Frazer, secretary of the Board of Trade, stressed the congestion of traffic owing to close proximity of gasoline filling stations, and urged that this situation be considered on receipt of requests to establish new stations. This matter will be given attention.

There were present Mayor W. H. Taylor, Ald. R. Morrison, Joseph Crowe, Malcolm McIntyre, Walter Stocker, J. W. Meyers, J. O. Fife, and Nagel Phelan.

SMALL FIRES

On Sunday morning at 11.46 the Fire Department was called out to a small fire at 387 Mark street. The fire was caused by overheated pipes. No damage was done.

At 5.23 Sunday evening the firemen were called out to another small fire caused by overheated pipes. No damage.

Knox Says Rheumatism Of 20 Years Is Gone

"Six years ago Tanlac helped me over a case of rheumatism that had caused me intense suffering for twenty years, and I have never had an ache or a pain, or missed a day's work since," is the remarkable statement of George A. Knox, 38 Quebec St., Kingston, Ontario.

"My misery was almost unbearable. Every joint in my body ached and the pains in my legs, arms and back nearly set me wild. My feet would swell until I couldn't get my shoes on and finally I became almost a skeleton and got right down in bed, helpless. I couldn't sleep and my nerves were a wreck.

"Seven bottles of Tanlac increased my weight twenty-one pounds and left me feeling fine. My recovery seemed miraculous and was the talk of the neighborhood. Tanlac would be cheap at any price."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

OSHAWA ACCIDENT MAY PROVE FATAL

Charles and Harold Gerrard of Oshawa Crossed In Front of Train at Level Crossing.

OSHAWA, Oct. 9.—Charles Gerrard aged 25, married, and his brother, Harold, aged 17, single, local truck drivers, residing at 276 Celina street, were both seriously injured when the truck in which they were driving, was struck by a C.N.R. accommodation train at North Oshawa station, two miles north of the town yesterday.

Both men were taken to Oshawa General Hospital where they were attended by Dr. D. R. Cameron, and little hope is held out for the recovery of Charles, who was badly cut about the face and head and suffered concussion of the brain as well as internal injuries. Harold suffered similar injuries but his condition is not considered so serious. At noon to-day both men were still unconscious.

The unfortunate men were driving north and the driver, Charles had not observed the train coming east, although the train was reducing speed to stop at the station. The engine struck the truck with terrific force, wrecking it completely.

NATIONAL ANTHEM FOR BABY NATION

Amusing Interlude At Banquet in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—There was an amusing interlude at a banquet tendered foreign delegates to world dairy congress. Toastmaster called name of one country, after another and asked delegate from that country to stand up. As name of each country was called its flag was produced and orchestra played its national anthem. British Empire delegates were pretty much together, but toastmaster regarded each self-governing dominion as nation. There was quite a number of them and Dr. Ruddick, in responding for Canada, called attention to fact that number of Provincial Governments, including Ontario and Manitoba were represented. Thees provinces were called one by one, so that over and over again flag-waiver was hoisting Union Jack and Orchestra was playing "God Save the King."

Finally Toastmaster, with flourish called "the Baby Nation, Irish Free State," flag-waver put up the Union Jack, but leader of orchestra hesitated. He glanced inquiringly towards toastmaster and toastmaster rather blankly gazed upon him. Meanwhile four delegates from Irish Free State had risen and were about to speak. Then, somewhat to their embarrassment and to manifest amusement of other British Empire delegates, orchestra struck up "The Wearing of the Green."

ESCAPED CONVICTS AGAIN ELUDE CAPTURE BY POLICE

Red Ryan Gang Were Concealed in a House Near Hamilton — Capture Planned a Trifle Too Late.

HAMILTON, October 9 (Canadian Press). — "Red" Ryan and the three members of his gang, who escaped from Kingston Penitentiary on 10th September, have once more eluded capture.

Informed that these four desperadoes were flitting in and out of Hamilton and making their headquarters at the isolated home of a woman on Van Wagner's Beach, 40 attaches of the local and Toronto police departments, armed to the teeth with sawed-off shotguns, and rapid-firing repeating rifles and automatic pistols, surrounded the house yesterday afternoon, but the criminals were not found.

One man was in the house with the woman, and he is being held on the nominal charge of vagrancy. He gave his name as Guido Paolone, and he is suspected of knowing something of the gang's movements.

Inspector Wallace, of the Toronto Police Department, and Chief Whatley of the local force, said they were both satisfied that Ryan and his gang had recently been in ambush in the house.

Unfortunately, the planned capture was staged a trifle too late.

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 9.—State Trooper Roy Donovan is dead and George Haupt of Albany is believed dying in a Watervleit hospital, following a running battle between state troopers and a band of gangsters on the Glens Falls-Saratoga post road yesterday.

After Donovan was shot without warning his companions resumed the hunt for the murder car, finally locating it near Latham's Corners, 25 or 30 miles from the scene of the murder. They opened fire when the fugitives refused to halt, and Haupt was struck and so badly injured he is believed dying. His companions jumped from the car and ran, being lost sight of in the darkness.

NATIONAL LINE MAKES A FAVORABLE SHOWING

Revenue of United States Branches Turns Deficit Into Surplus.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—A net operating revenue of $2,984,460 was earned by the Canadian National Railways in the seven months ending July 31 of the present year. This contrasts favorably with a similar period a year ago when the result of seven months' operation was a net deficit of $2,202,992. During the seven months of the present year Canadian lines showed a net deficit of $2,232,838, but this was turned into a surplus by the net revenue of United States lines of the system which amounted to $5,217,299.

The total operating revenue on Canadian lines of the National system during the seven months was $115,317,922 and in United States lines $22,463,598, making a total gross operating revenue of $137,781,521. Operating expenses totalled $134,797,060, made up of $117,550,761 on Canadian lines and $17,246,299 on United States lines.

During the same seven month period, the net operating revenue on the Canadian Pacific Railway was $10,141,896, as compared with $11,058,298 in 1922. Gross operating revenues amounted to $96,207,935, and operating expenses to $86,066,239. Net operating revenue on all railways totalled $17,330,769, being the difference between gross revenue of $246,152,380 and expenses of $228,821,611.

For the month of July alone, the Canadian National earned a net operating revenue of $765,742, as against a deficit of $57,781 last year, reducing the operating ratio from 100.35 per cent. to 95.70 per cent. Revenue freight traffic increased 10 per cent., increasing freight revenue by $10,041,747. Passenger traffic increased 6 per cent., resulting in an increase of $258,438 in revenue. The Canadian Pacific showed an increase in freight traffic of 21 per cent., but only 12 per cent. of $1,043,986 in freight revenues.

DR. J. M'CUAIG AT ST. PAUL'S

Problems of Parenthood Discussed by Gifted Speaker.

Natural impediments to success in marriage and cementing influences of love were subjects discussed by Dr. J. Aspinall McCuaig before a large audience in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last evening.

At 8 o'clock to-night in the same church he will deliver the second of his popular lectures on marriage. The subject to-night will be "Courtship and Woman's Love."

To-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the same place he will deliver the last of his special lectures to women. The subject of this final address will be "The Care of the Girl."

In his lecture last night on "Nagging Wives and Overbearing Husbands," after explaining that it was not capriciously that he had chosen his topic, Dr. McCuaig pointed out that if a woman is unhappy with the man she has married she resorts naturally to nagging. On the other hand, the man who is unhappy with the woman he has married can be dominating and overbearing. To bring married men and women together as one, he maintained, there must be an adjustment, just such an adjustment, relatively as is made in a machine shop between the different parts of a machine before a machine works perfectly.

No Try Outs.

Declaring that marriage can never be "tried out," Dr. McCuaig said that a man and woman must come together with complete abandon of purpose in order to make marriage a success.

He then stated that, regardless of the strength of love existing between them, there are always common impediments to successful marriage, such as: First, the man and woman come from different stock by inheritance, and, therefore, they are opposites physically and temperamentally; second, the man and woman come out of different molding conditions by reason of the difference in home environment prior to marriage; third, the man and woman are each self-centred, or, in other words, both are what he called "egoes."

Sex difference Dr. McCuaig maintained never constitutes a basis of adjustment, but, rather, often sex difference becomes the rock upon which the ship of matrimony is wrecked, and, therefore, might be considered an impediment, rather than a help, to adjustment.

Gives Essentials.

As enumerated by Dr. McCuaig, the essentials for the overcoming of these impediments are: First, there must be in each, the instinctive subjugation of the self in favor of the other, or in other words, the putting of the other first; second, there must be, from the beginning of the honeymoon, the practice of transposition, or the seeing of things from each other's standpoint; third, there must be a recogniton on the part of each of the varying superiority of the other, so that both, bringing essentials to each other, will respect each other for them, and, fourth, there must be the acceptance of marriage as a love relationsbip and not simply as a business partnership.

In his arraignment of the forces hostile to adaptation, Dr. McCuaig stated that there is danger in the mother of either the man or the woman entering the home as a permanent resident, in the first year of their married life. He further expressed dogmatic opposition to the pursuance on the part of either the bride or the husband of any ambition outside the home in the first year of their married life.

In closing, Dr. McCuaig arraigned the cementing influences, which he cited as follows: First, seasons of companionship; second, common ambitions, such as planning for a home of their own, and, third, the income of the little child, than which, he maintained, there is no greater cementing influences.

Dr. McCuaig concluded by stating that if the young people of Peterboro would be guided by the principles set forth there would be ten years from now thousands of homes of laughter in Peterboro, free from nagging voice and overbearing brutality, but if not, there would be instead, homes of strain and friction and tear, and break.

In the first of his addresses to women yesterday afternoon, Mr. McCuaig discussed the responsibility of parents for the upbringing of the child.

"Every child born into the world," he said, "is born into a heritage of forces. Notable among these are the forces of his own body. The advance from helpless infancy to strong manhood is a process of development and control of these forces. The voice was there in the beginning, but by and by, he gets control and speaks. Muscular activity was there but one day he finds control and walks. Every lesson is a lesson in control.

"Among the various possessions of the child are certain impelling energies. It is as though a special force had been planted in him to impel him to every necessary thing. He has hunger. He has thirst. So important are the necessities to which these impel and so pleasant, the satisfying of these propensities that there is danger of excess. He must learn control. Among these forces is sexual impulse, the impelling force to procreation. That which is in the child is but a germ, in the man becomes a passion. There is danger. He must learn control.

"And herein lies the problem of parenthood—not how shall I take his hand and lead him over the stones? but how can I train and develop his will to help him fight the beasts and breast the storms and climb the heights? This is the heart of responsibility."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—First they destroy the spirituality of the Bible and critcize it as if it were a merely human document. Secondly they attack Conduct just as they attacked Religion and make it not a matter of moral responsibility to God, but of what is good or bad for the body. Thirdly, they attack marriage which in humanity has always been regarded as wholly spiritual and reduce it to the level of the breeding animals.

Think of the pure spiritual souls of highly intellectual and noble women that will have to be rejected while human animals are chosen. Surely the churches are doing a great work. What next? Liberty, Religion, Morality, Spirituality have gone. But what could you do, Mr. Editor, with a people anyway, who only see in morality the bad, in religion the human, in liberty a joke and spirituality a myth? It will be hard for humanity in Ontario and the U.S. to get lower than it is today, but it is still sinking and may reach hell yet. Conceit, ignorance and self-will poured like slops into the polling booth. Oh! the public welfare!

WEDDING VOWS HOLD A WIFE TRUE TO MATE

Mrs. Champion Still Continues Firm in Her Faith to Husband Who Deserted Her.

DOOMED TO GALLOWS

By ROY J. GIBBONS.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—Oh, the magic of those words! Soft words. Kind words.

Pledged in devout ritual before Matrimony's sacred shrine, they breathed an inexorable something into the memory of Mrs. Mabel Champion here, which neither pallor of her prison cell nor faith broken by an erring mate doomed to the hangman's noose in a California jail can loose.

"For better or for worse. Till death do us part," she promised seven long years ago in reply to the priestly chant which echoed about her bridal spirit like a fragrant charm, and joined her forever to Ausley F. Champion, the man to whom she gave the early flush of her first love.

Today, though separated by a continent, and each branded a felon from the eyes of man, for different crimes and in different prisons, Mrs. Champion still continues firm in her faith to the husband who deserted her in her hour of need to let her stand alone and face the law which meted out 20 years of punishment on a manslaughter verdict.

The 14 months of her confinement while awaiting preliminary examination and trial for the death of Thomas O'Connell, whom she shot down during a brawl in a downtown Cleveland restaurant, have left their traces in sunken features and a haggard look on the once girlish face.

But from the dreariness of her solitude she continues to wireless on the wings of love messages of condolence and sympathy to the man of her choice awaiting the condign penalty in Los Angeles for the murder of James Goldy, alleged by the state to have been slain in a dice game.

Fate, Mrs. Champion considers, has followed in her path like an evil wake ever since the day she bowed before the altar of marriage and became one with Ausley.

"I knew him since I was a tiny tot in pigtails," she says. "And I loved him. God, how I loved him.

"He turned the magic key of love in my heart. And the whole world opened as a fairyland when he asked me to become his wife.

"Nothing can ever make me turn from my husband. I know him better than the police can ever hope to. He is not bad. Drink was his evil. It cursed him whenever he let it blot out his real friends.

"And as for the charge against him out there—" she gestured with a limp fling of her hand toward the west—"such a thing would have been impossible for him. Because I was with him in a southern city on the day they say he-he murder-murdered the man they say he did.

"No, I am not reviling anything. What's done is beyond recall. I've killed a man, too. But I do not regret it. He insulted me and all womanhood without cause. I never saw him before. Then, when my husband objected to the language he was using he tried to beat Ausley on the head with a chair.

"An animal would have done no more than to come to the rescue of her mate lying helpless on the floor with a big ruffian standing over him ready to-to-kill.

"And besides I didn't mean to shoot him. But it was the dead man's life or my husband's. And in the scuffle, the gun I somehow got hold of, went off. That's all there is. I've had plenty of time to think it over—here in this human quagmire.

"But don't think I'm looking for pity. For what's happened is done. I've grown reconciled. This prison has opened my eyes. It has been an education.

"In here I've learned that exteriors don't count for much in the game of living. Love is all, I tell you. Love is all."

The words came from her trembling lips in sob-like shrieks. And in a moment the eyes of Mrs. Champion seemed to have grown old as the ages burning with an inextinguishable fire which leaped and blazed in their depths.

She was the tigress and fighter all in one for the instant—battling against the memory of soft words plighted in holy troth years before which would not loose their hold from the ashes of a love flickering in the winds of circumstances like a dancing candle light.

"I am his wife," she repeated over and over. "Ours was a real wedding before a minister of God. How can anyone expect me to hold my vows lightly. I promised to stand by him to the end. And I will! I will! I tell you.

"Regardless of what he has done or what he may have done, he is still my mate before heaven. Poor Ausley! My poor weak boy! What mischief have you gotten into this time?"

The girl wife, who married at 16, and is not yet quite 23, has successfully reversed the sentence of the lower court on appeal, and is now awaiting decision of the state's demurrer to the supreme tribunal on her petition for a new trial.

"If I get out, what will I do?" she asks. "There's not much left to do, is there? I'll be free. Yes! But something is dead in here." And she pointed to her heart. "Quite dead. For love is all a woman ever gets from life."

REGENT THEATRE OPEN FOR SEASON

New Decorations Make The Theatre Attractive —A Good Programme In Sight.

The Regent Theatre on Hunter street has recently been undergoing some extensive decorating and renovating, and now presents a very attractive appearance. Dainty is the word that best describes the lobby and the little homelike theatre itself. Always small and compact, it had somewhat of plain appearance which hs been entirely done away with.

A degree of artistic judgment and good taste is evident in the decorations in the lobby, which are striking but not overdone. It has been papered anew in the panel tapestry effect, with square of dull blue and purple birds and flowers framed deeply in clear grey. To several of these panels have been affixed long pointed baskets, gift-covered, holding bright orange artificial blooms. An odd creation is the gilded, branchless tree in one corner bearing milkweed pods that have been painted in dull blues, and flanked by an electric light, shaded with an orange pagoda lamp fringed with beads. Gilded also is the fountain in the centre of the lobby, with its miniature spray and triple bowl in which float tiny swans and little green frogs, based in a moss basket with training vines about its sides. Tall palms and ferns in ornamental wicker baskets with several comfortable wicker chairs, complete an attractive lobby adornment.

Inside the theatre, rose-shaded lamps have been placed at regular intervals along the walls, and here as in the entrance to the house, white lattice-work is prominent. Placed across the back of the house in long sections and over the wall radiators it gives a bright white note with its foliage trimmings. White lattice work also covers the top and sides of the screen, with simulated window, at either side, lighted from within and hung with crimson curtains. The entire balcony and stairway have been re-carpeted.

The Regent's programmes for this season include first-run pictures from the Fox and Paramount studios with English specials from time to time. An organ and piano provide music, with Paul Gliddon presiding at the piano and Ted McCarthy playing the drums.

STOCK MARKET

STOCKS UNDER PRESSURE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(United Press).—Stocks were lower on active opening of the stock market today, most changes being fractionally under the previous closing.

Other stocks which appeared under pressure were the Pan-Americans Rubber and Studebaker. The latter sold under 95, while United States, Rubber at 37 5-8 was off 1-8 Cotton prices were also under yesterday's closing levels. After a rather general re-action in the early trading in which the leading issues sold under theprevious close. Some support appeared in the coalers and under the lead of Reading, the market took on a firmer tone.

For the most part the early losses were recorded by the end of the first half hour. Reading was easily the feature and though the volume was not large and there appeared to be a rather small supply, with the result that it rallied to 79 7-8, up over a point from the opening.

Baltimore and Ohio followed with a recovery to 59 and Chesspeake and Ohio to. While none of the oils were firm California issues were affected more than the others by the new reduction in the price of crude oil on the reduced volume of business, leading stocks gave ground and going into the second hour most issues were at or near the lows of the day. The rally which was led by the coalers around 10:30 was short-lived and soon the steels were under pressure. Under considerable selling, Bethlehem Steel was off two points to 46, while Republican and United State, Steel reacted fractionally.

American Bosch-Magneto ran down to 25, off 4 1-4, a new low record. Central Leather was below 16, while Shell Union Oil was depressed to 13 5-8 on the expectation of an early announcement of an offer of two million additional shares at $10 a share.

Corn products sold under 122 while U.S. Rubber got under 37 for the first time since it rallied to 40 following the new 1923 low price of 35 1-2 about ten days ago.

Opening Prices included:—Continental Can. 47 5-8; Sinclair, 18 1-8, off 1-8; Amn. Woolen 70; Amn. Locomotive 69 off 3-8; California Petroleum 19 3-8 off 1-4; Baltimore and Ohio 58 1-2 off 5-8; Bethlehem Steel 47 7-8 off 1-8; Baldwin 115 3-8 off 3-8; Studebaker 95 off 3-8; Southern Railway 34 1-2; Reading 78 5-8 1-8; American Can. 90 1-4 off 1-2; Corn Products 123 1-8, off 1-8; Union Pacific 129 7-8 off 1-4; Southern Pacific 87 1-2; Northern Pacific 55 off 14; Pan American 56 1-4 off 1-4 B off 1-2; U. ODDITIES IN NEWS

FATAL

The death rate of tuberculosis among Americans has been cut in two in the last 50 years, says Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the New England Tuberculosis Conference.

On the other hand, many other diseases are increasing their death roll, cancer especially. We also have maladies, like Spanish flu, that were practically unknown to people of a half century ago.

In solving one problem, we usually create several new ones. And as fast as we protect our health in one direction, nature attacks us in another. Its her old system of survival of the fittest—strengthening the race by making the individuals constantly fight to keep alive.

YONDER

Fewer babies are being born in the large German cities, writes the Berlin correspondent of Journal of the American Medical Association. This year the birth rate is lower in many German cities than in leading French communities.

Such a situation, prolonged, might easily have a deep effect on European politics. For France fears the German cradle, traditionally high birth rate, a lot more than she fears adult Germany of today.

The cradle, to the average European politician, means chiefly: Cannon fodder.

CHEWER

Dan Henderson claims the tobacco chewing endurance championship of the United States. In a contest of Jonesboro, Ga., he chewed two days and nights without stopping. Doctors ended the contest, warning that he might develop lockjaw.

An item like this will interest about a dozen times as many people as could be induced to concentrate on the really important problems of politics or economics—which is the chief reason these problems remain unsolved.

MORBID

The tomb of "Bluebeard" Landru of France has been visited this year by an endless procession of American tourists. Most of the time the tomb is covered with flowers left by morbid young women.

It's difficult to understand the psychology of the wreath bearers. But why try to? They're in the extreme minority. For each young woman who would take a flower to Landru's grave there are at least a thousand who would leave poison ivy. Worth remembering, for most of us are inclined to base our general opinions on the activities of minorities.

Perfecting a Lie

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Miles Sheridan is facilitating his wife's obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. He is taking a yacht trip supposedly with

Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll. In reality, however, he is not with the Doll but

Teresa Desmond (Terry), Juliet's unbelievably innocent half-sister, whom the Doll sent to masquerade as herself. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, meets Miles and Terry at Monte Carlo, and recognizes in the supposed Million Dollar Doll, Terry Desmond whom he had met back in New York. In love with the girl himself, he is relieved to learn that Miles' conduct toward Terry has been most chivalrous.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, takes care of Terry on board the yacht.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, meeting the couple at Monte Carlo, endeavors to dissuade Miles from his disgraceful project. She writes to Betty of Terry's beauty and charm.

Miles, dining in Algiers with Terry, whom he does not recognize as the little girl he befriended so long ago, see Paul de Salvano with a group of strangers.

CHAPTER LXI

What We Might Have Known Days Ago

Sheridan threw Terry a keen look. "Of course you're too much a Bohemian to—er—worry about chaperons," he went on with his discussion of the trip. "They're as old fashioned as dragons, and even if they weren't, it wouldn't have suited my book on this trip, you know, to have your every step dogged by a duenna. On the contrary"

"But you and I won't be acting for the gallery at Bousaada. The chances are we won't meet a European there, except a few French officers, en garrison. Would you like to take old Harky along? She'd nearly fall over herlf with joy to go."

"Oh, I'd love to have her" cried Terry, clapping her hands.

It occurred to Miles that Salvano and his friends were probably staring; but suddenly he didn't care. He cared for nothing except the girl, who looked a darling child. She should be a child for a few days, and he would be a boy.

Old Harky should play nurse to them both. Away off in the desert he and Juliet Divine would forget everything except the sunshine, the golden sands, and the burning violet of the African sky.

"Good" he said in a care-free voice. "We'll start soon. It's too late today, because I must hire a car, and there'll be some packing. The journey's seven hours at least, and we ought to arrive before dark. But I'll take you to a Mosque or two, this afternoon," (he was pretty sure that Salvano would do no sight seeing on these lines) "and we can get off about ten tomorrow morning."

When they rose from their table a quick glance showed Sheridan that the Italian and his friends were gone. He took Terry to the Museum at Mustapha Superieure, where only those interested in history and archaeology were likely to come, and there he left her while he hurried off to hire an automobile.

There were several garages, and as the season had just begun he found a good car and a chauffeur at the second place he visited. Satised that all was arranged, he returned for Terry, showed her El Biar, and the Jardin d' Essai with its wonderful trees; the Kasbah; the Mosques; and the Rue Bab Zzoun.

Everything else for which people visited Algiers, Miles left till their return, because—he imagined—Salvano wasn't a man to stop long in one place which lacked the kind of amusement he cared for. Now that the "spy act" was accomplished, a wire would probably flash the news to Betty.

Salvano would then travel to Biskra, and await the next chance to do a little spying. Everyone does go to Biskra, and Miles had intended to go. But Salvano's movements in Algiers would decide his

It was bad enough to keep running sight compWred With the Italian. Naz appeared only in the distance and had as much right as Miles Sheridan to wander along the shores of the Mediterranean. But Miles drew the line at Paul di Salvano.

He and Terry dined on "Silverwood" that night in the harbor of Algiers, and Miles was more friendly than usual in his manner, with the dim wish to "make up" for keeping the girl on board the yacht. She had never enjoyed an evening so much.

Next morning early Sheridan, Terry and Mrs. Harkness set off in a high-powered touring car for the desert oasis of Bousaada.

Terry had read "The Garden of Allah," on board the yacht, and last night at dinner she and Sheridan had talked of the desert. The girl was disappointed not to see a waste of golden sand, when Algiers and its suburbs were left behind. But the Moorish irrigation and fields of wheat, green in the midst of desolate tracts, were like the preface to an exciting book. Then, at last, there was yellow sand whose hillocks were sparsely sprinkled with grass.

It was as if the waves of a stormy sea had been sown with seeds which had sprouted, and covered the tops of the billows with green. The car rocked among the billows of sand like a boat; but presently the waves subsided into a plain, and there was a glimpse of real desert. Away in the distance the sand was piled in fantastic shapes, like an army of lions that grouped and crouched, tawny in the sunshine, to drink from lakes of purple shadow.

Beyond the horizon seemed to lie the sea, deep violet, and still as sleep. Terry could hardly believe that it was not the sea; and always just ahead, as the car plunged on, lay masses of color—gold rose and amethyst—which were like beds of flowers till they turned with nearness into bunches of desert crystal, and red or purple rock.

In the midst of brown and arid wastes were emerald patches, bright as a serpent's eyes. By and by, low mountains like a belt of uncut sapphires, enclosed the travellers in a secret world. Terry saw her first camels, passing in a string, and gazing at the car with supercilious disdain. Here and there a miniature oasis lay spread over the sand like a dark prayer rug, on the old-gold floor of an ancient mosque.

"When shall we see Bousaada?" Terry wondered. But the mountains, of unbelievable shapes—castles and towers, sphinxes and giant tables seemed to have banded themselves together for the keeping of secrets. The road improved, and had been carefully made; yet apparently it led nowhere.

As the afternoon waned, the car forged on through an ocean of changing colors. The blue mountains turned crimson and mauve, and the sand glittered in the sunshine like a powder of rubies.

Terry had not spoken for a long time; but when the gateway of the mountains opened to show a forest of dark green palms, ringed with gold, and the diamond sparkle of water, involuntarily she touched Sheridan's hand.

His closed upon it.

The girl's heart stopped, then beat again with a new rush of blood.

She looked up at him, and their eyes met. She did not know how to read his look, but it made her happier than she had ever been.

Miles knew what she might have known days ago. Such as this Juliet Divine was, he loved her

MAKING BACON IN WINTER MONTHS

What to Feed to Get Best Results From Hogs.

The success attained at pig feeding in the winter depends to a greater extent upon the skill of the feeder than does summer feeding, when weather conditions are favorable. Comfortable quarters, which may be under the strawstack or in an elaborate pen; some place that is dry and will stay dry is the first necessity. A well-balanced ration, suited to winter conditions, in that it will supply, so far as possible, something to take the place of grass and clover and "on the soil" conditions. Roots and soils are the most easily supplied substitutes. Room for exercise, and inducement to take such by scattering whole grain in the litter or feeding ear corn, are advised. The well supplied conditioner box is much more necessary during the winter than it is when the pigs are running on the land. The "under the strawstack pen or nest" succeeded because the pigs were allowed freedom of action and could therefore make a dry nest, a condition so different from that of a pig "jailed" in a pen and forced to sleep in a damp bed. Dampness is the great trouble to overcome. In the modern piggery this is accomplished by abundant glass space in the roof and walls, and elevated platform for sleeping quarters, and ventilators to carry away damp, foul air. The pig will keep itself cleaner than any other domestic animal if given freedom to do so.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 95 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

NATIONS HAVE DECLINED TO ACCEPT CHRIST'S TEACHINGS

Explanation of the Envies and Fears That Keep Europe in Condition of Unrest, Said Rev. R. Bamforth.

AT CAVANVILLE.

MILLBROOK, October 8. — The Cavanville Methodist Church held very successful anniversary services on Sunday when Rev. R. Bamforth, of the Mark street church, Peterboro, preached excellen sermons both morning and evening. Rev. S. G. Rorke of Peterboro, a greatly beloved pastor on the circuit, was also present and assisted with the services throughout the day.

The special music prepared by the choir was much appreciated, the selections in the evening including the anthem, "O, ye, who Wander," with solo by Mr. B. F. Carley, and a trio, "Rest of the Weary," by Miss A. Tinney, Messrs. B. F. Carley and R. Sutton. Mrs. A. Kennedy presided at the organ in her usual efficient manner.

Prior to the sermon at night Rev. Mr. Rorke thanked many friends at Cavanville for the sincere and heartfelt sympathy which they had shown for Mrs. Rorke and himself in those "first few awful days of suspense and uncertainty in the beginning of September," when as yet the fate of their daughter, Miss Luella Rorke, missionary to Japan, was unknown, following the terrible catastrophe which had befallen that Island Empire. With intense gratitude to a loving Heavenly Father they would join with him now in praise and worship for the safe keeping of all the missionaries during that time of 'quake, fire and flood, the full extent of the horrow of which would probably never be known.

Mr. Bamforth's Sermon.

Rev. Mr. Bamforth chose his text from Psalm 16:8, "I have set the Lord always before me; because He is at my right hand I shall not be moved," and also from Psalm 40:2, "He brought me up also out an horrible pit, and out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings." Two leading thoughts were developed by the speaker, "I have set," the one and only way of safety, peace and progress, defined in the personal attitude of the soul to God, and "He has set," that is a responsive action on the part of the Father. The hatred, malice, jealousy, fear and unrest among the nations of Europe today has but one explanation: failure to accept the teachings of the Man of Nazareth. Service was His standard; man only reaches his own highest happiness by seeking the happiness of others, the practical outcome of "setting the Lord always before me." "I determine the direction of my gaze; He will fix my life and there will be no blunders."

The texts picture two sides of a wondrous fellowship with God but keep clear the thought that it is "always" God in the background of one's life—not a temporary arrangement to be suspended at will, but a fixed outlook never replaced, having God always as the objective. "Young man, if you do that, you won't go wrong, no, you won't."

Now, to look at "God's setting," "He set my feet upon a rock." That means that the shake and the tremble will go out of life, timidity and uncertainty shall take their departure. "He set my feet upon the sand!" — how would that sound — how would that sound? Rather shifty, and there are none of these shifty expressions in the Word of God. Loose ideas and loose opinions are changed into immovable convictions, vagrant affections into unwavering love, and a weak will into the power of a righteous will, when God places our feet upon the rock of His eternal truth.

Expanded Horizons.

The "roominess of the narrow way" becomes an increasing joy as the soul, freed from sin's bonds, which meant dwarfed affections and narrowed views, gazes over larger skies and more remote horizons. The pools and puddles of fleshly desires are changed for the rivers of God's goodness, and something of that frankly unknowable thing, "The measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," becomes an enriching experience. Daily enlargement, enchanting views, richer feasts, these are for those who setting the Lord always before them learn that in serving God they have entered the only service never oppressive, and which brings its own reward.

Of the $200 thank offering which the trustees had asked to be voluntarily placed upon the plates, $175 was received with the assurance of the remainder being made up in the immediate future.

Fairmount church withdrew its afternoon service on Sunday out of compliment to its sister appointment at Cavan observing its annual anniversary occasion.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE HIDDEN NEST

Finally they found Missez Hen settl ed on her nest behind the oatbin in the barn-loft

"Do you know, my dears, I have more trouble watching the chickens than all the other animals in Squealy Moo Land put together," said Little Mister Dodger, the fairyman as he dodged under the haystack and out again.

"What have they been doing now?" asked Nick.

"It's Missez Henrietta Hen," answered Mister Dodger. "She's got a whole nestful of eggs hidden away somewhere and she's clucking on them. I'd give anything to know where it is.

"What is clucking?' asked Nancy.

" 'Clucking' means 'setting'," said the little barn yard fairy. "When she takes a notion to hatch out a family of little chicks, she hides her nest and sits on it for three weeks to keep the eggs warm. Then out pop the chicks and there you are!"

"Well isn't that all right?" asked Nick.

"Certainly!" nodded Mister Dodger. "As right as bananas on a pine tree! If this were April or May But it isn't. It isn't far from winter and Missez Hen certainly ought to know that baby chicks hatched now would be sure to freeze or die of whooping cough or pneumonia or something."

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Nancy.

"First, I'm going to find her nest. And then I'm going to fool her," chuckled Mister Dodger. "Come on and help me hunt."

Finally they found Missez Hen settled on her nest behind the oatbin in the barn-loft. She just sat there and looked at them without even blinking her eyes. Perhaps she was trying to pretend she was a statue or something.

'Come on, children!" said Mister Dodger loudly. "Come away! And let Missez Hen alone."

The Twins were puzzled, but Mister Dodger winked mysteriously so they knew it was part of the trick.

So they climbed down the ladder and waited.

"She has to eat," whispered the fairyman. "She'll leave her nest for two or three minutes pretty soon, and when she's gone, we'll get her eggs."

And that's exactly what happened. Nancy held her apron and Nick and the fairyman put them carefully in.

And then the fairy did a queer thing. He took a glass egg out of his pocket and put it in the nest. "She'll sit on that and never know the difference!" he chuckled. "When she finds it doesn't hatch, she'll quit."

"It seems kind of mean!" said Nick.

"Not mean at all!" said Mister Dodger. "She had one nice family this year. Besides foolish people have to be managed."

DOPE WILL BE UPSET AGAIN IS OPINION OF FOREGATHERING FANS

Speculation Warms Up As Loyal Followers of Baseball Arrive in New York For Third Series There.

PIPP MAY PLAY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.— The respective chances of the Giants and Yankees in their third world series are being discussed tonight by the usual vanguard of players, writers and fans, come from the thousand and one baseball corners of the continent.

Everyone has a different opinion regarding the whys and wherefores of the weaknesses and strong points of the teams, but the general idea seems to be that as in the previous two series, all the dope will be turned upside down.

The Yanks, as in 1921 and 1922, have by far the strongest pitching staff on paper. The five regular hurlers on the Huggins' staff—Jones, Pennock, Bush ,Hoyt and Shawkey, have worked in twice as many complete games as Scott, Nehf, Watson, Bentley, McQuillan and Ryan of the Giants—yet in 1922, when the same sort of condition obtained, McGraw's pitchers were the best in the series.

Depend on Ruth.

It is believed by many that Ruth, the axis about which the Yank machine revolves, will lead his team mates to their first world title. In 1921 and 1922 Ruth was a stunning disappointment in the series. Without his battering ram the Yankees could not go on. This year, however, Ruth is fresh from the greatest season of his career, a season in which he was the most valuable player of all those in the American League.

The followers of the American League champions have been anxious about Wally Pipp, the first sacker, who injured his ankle in a game at Boston several weeks ago. Pipp, however, joined his team-mates in practice to-day and while he betrayed a slight limp, was able to get about speedily and with his accustomed ability. Huggins watched him work, but would not say whether he would start him in the first game Wednesday.

"He looks all right," said Huggins, "but I want to see him work again to-morrow and then have the doctor examine his ankle."

May Use Hendricks.

Should Pipp be unable to play, Huggins probably will send Ruth to first base, and Hendricks to Ruth's place in left. Hendricks is one of the newest of the Yankees, but a hard hitter, while Elmer Smith, the veteran upon whom the choice would ordinarily fall, has been weak against left-handed pitching and Huggins desires all the attacking force he can muster aaginst the Giants.

Bob Meusel, Ruth's brother gardener, has recovered fully from his ailments and will play.

McGraw's only injured player is Casey Stengel, who got into last years' series. Should McGraw have to replace Stengel, Jimmy O'Connell, the expensive outfielder from the West, and Cunningham, another youngster, would be used alternately, according to whether the pitching is left-handed or right.

Question of Pitchers.

There still is some speculation about the opening game pitchers. McGraw, most probably, will call Artie Nehf to start, yet there is talk that John Scott, the hero of the 1922 walkaway, may get this honor. Huggins has Jones and Pennock ready.

The Yankee management announced to-day that all reserved seats for the first, third and fifth games, to be played in their stadium, had been sold. Ed. Barrow, the Yankee Business Manager, predicted that with fair weather, the record receipts for a world's series game would be broken in the opening game .Barrow said he expected the seat sale for the opener to reach $200,000. The greatest receipts recorded for one game were at the last contest in 1922, $125,147.

FIRPO LOYAL TO HIS ARGENTINE

Application For U. S. Citizenship All a Mistake.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. — There were no tears in the eyes of Luis Angel Firpo when he was knocked out by Jack Dempsey, but the keen black eyes of the South American heavyweight were moist to-day when he pleaded for a return of papers in which he proclaimed his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States.

Merton E. Sturges, chief naturalization examiner and County Clerk Donegan ruled that the paper must stand on record, but agreed to give the pugilist a letter certifying their belief that he had signed his application under misapprehension.

Accompanied by Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, and a lawyer, Firpo appeared before the officials and told them that he never had dreamed of deserting his beloved native land; that he still was a loyal Argentine, and that he believed he had applied for a certificate such as he said was issued in Venezuela and other countries to foreigners touring a strange land.

Rowland Picks Yankees to Win

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press)—"I pick the Yankees to beat the Giants in six games."

Thus predicts Clarence Rowland, manager of the world's champion White Sox of 1917, and now an umpire in the American League, on his arrival yesterday to attend the series.

Billy Evans, one of the two American League arbitrators chosen to officiate in the series, declined to put himself on record on the outcome, but expressed his opinion that the Yankees' all-star twirling staff might be the deciding factor.

1911—Frank Baker, Athletics' third baseman, whose home runs defeated the Giants.

1912—Tris Speaker, Red Sox center fielder, by his hitting, and Harry Hooper, Red Sox right fielder, by his fielding, featured the victories over the Giants.

1914—Hank Gowdy, Braves' catcher, batted his team to victory over the Athletics. Dick Rudolph was the star pitcher of the Braves.

1915—Duffy Lewis, Harry Hooper and Tris Speaker, the Red Sox outfield, defeated the Phillies by their batting and fielding.

1917—Eddie Cicotte and Urban Faber, White Sox pitchers, who won the games from the Giants by their twirling.

1918—George Whiteman, veteran of the minor leagues, who played left field for the Red Sox and was the chief factor in defeating the Cubs by his batting and fielding.

1919—Walter Reuther, Red pitcher, by his batting, and Eddie Roush, Red center fielder, by his fielding, were the big factors in most of the defeats of the White Sox. Dickie Kerr, White Sox youngster, pitched his team to two of its three victories.

1920—Elmer Smith, Cleveland right fielder, hit a home run with the bases full, the first time in world's series history. Bill Wambsganss, Cleveland second baseman, completed a triple play unassisted. Jim Bagby, Cleveland pitcher, hit a homer with two on. All happened in the fifth game which Cleveland won from Brooklyn 8 to 1.

1921—Jess Barnes, regarded as the "pall bearer" of the Giants' pitching staff, relieved Toney twice after he had been knocked out of the box and won both games. Ross Young, Giants' outfielder, hit a triple and a double in the seventh inning of the third game. Frank Frisch, Giants' third baseman, scored two runs in the same inning. Carl Mays, Yankee pitcher, pitched the first, fourth and seventh games without giving a base on balls. Mike McNally and Bob Meusel, of the Yanks, stole home.

1922—Jack Scott, released unconditionally by the Cincinnati Reds for having an incurable arm, and picked up by McGraw only when he pleaded that he had to have a job to keep his family, turned the big hero of the series when he let the Yanks down with four hits in the third game and won for the Giants by a score of 3 to 0. Babe Ruth was not one of the heroes and, on the other hand, was a terrible bust. In seventeen trips to the plate he got only two singles and a double for the grand average of .118.

Don't Play Golf At 50? Mrs. Fox Stars At 60!

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—"So golf is no game for the fifty-year-olds, eh?"

It was Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia, here for the women's national championship, talking.

She had just read the statement of a London health scientist that golfers who persisted in playing after fifty did so at the risk of a sudden not to say abrupt death on the links, due to heart failure.

"Now isn't that just terrible," Mrs. Fox went on, a merry twinkle lighting up her kindly eyes. "Here I have been dead for more than ten years and don't know it."

It so happens that Mrs. Fox is America's oldest woman tournament golfer. She is past sixty and a grandmother of ten children.

And what's more to the point, she is a splendid golfer. Last spring in the Bellair, Fla., championship, she defeated Glenna Collett, the youthful American champion, shooting at 79.

She has been a notable figure in American golf for thirty years and has qualified for play in 24 national championships.

WHAT WILL RUTH DO?

Ray Schalk Thinks Babe Will Be Big Star

BY RAY CHALK
World's Greatest Catcher

What about Babe Ruth? Will the big fellow again be a "bust" or the series hero?

Unquestionably Babe Ruth is the question mark, the mystery man of the coming series. Will he repeat the success that he invariably enjoys during the season, or will he slump in the series and be a big disappointment again?

Ruth has gone into two world series carrying a big burden and each time faltered under the load. The batting hero of the baseball world has been slowed up to a whisper by the intelligent pitching of McGraw's staff.

During the 1923 spring training trip between the Giants and the White Sox, I several times discussed the manner in which the National League pitchers worked on Ruth. I was interested in trying to learn how McGraw's team had stopped the big fellow. Here is what McGraw told me.

"Prior to each world series between the Giants and the Yankees I gave my pitchers definite information as to how to work on Ruth. My dope is not to give him any fast ball cripples. I instructed my pitchers to slow up on the big fellow. I told them to keep the ball down and on the outside and to mix the curve with the slow ball. Ruth was fed on a diet of curve and slow ball pitching, kept low and on the outside.

"During all the games that the Giants have played against the Yankees Ruth has been pitched just two fast balls in his groove. In one game Phil Douglas tried to cross him up and get a fast ball past him. He hit the pitch into the right field stand for a home run. The other fast ball, to his liking, resulted in a terrific drive to the deepest part of center field at the Polo Grounds, where Bill Cunningham made one of the most sensational catches in the history of the world series and saved the game for the Giants.

"No fast balls for Ruth, is my theory on keeping the big fellow from hitting. If we play the Yankees again this fall, Ruth can be prepared for that style of pitching," concluded McGraw.

Dick Kinsella, chief scout of the Giants, lives down my way. I met him several times during the winter. The fact that the Giants' pitchers had stopped Ruth caused him to say to me:

"What kind of judgment do you catchers use against Ruth during the season? Looks as if you pitched right in his groove, the way he hammers out home runs. Feed him slow balls, low and outside, is McGraw's theory, and it has stopped him dead."

This spring I decided to pitch to Ruth just as McGraw's staff had worked on him during the series. When the Babe came to the bat, the understanding between me and my pitcher was nothing but the curve and slow ball. It worked the first few times up. Then, instead of standing in his usual position and failing to hit the ball, Ruth began running up on the slow offerings and denting the fences.

After he had knocked a couple of slow balls out of the lot, I decided that a constant slow ball diet would not work during the regular season of 154 games. I found it necessary to mix them up, slipping in a fast ball every now and then, to upset Ruth's plan of running up on the slow ball or the curve.

Possibly slow balls and tantalizing curves will stop Ruth in a short series, but I am convinced that the system will not work over a long campaign.

I want to go on record as saying that the Babe Ruth of 1923 is the most valuable ball player in the American League. In the best condition of his career, Ruth has starred in every department of play. His phenomenal work has been the big spoke in the Yankee's overwhelming victory in the American League. Ruth of this year has been more than a mere slugger, the home run king; he has been the American League's most valuable player.

During the season's play Ruth has put aside the fact that he must try for a home run on his every appearance at the plate. He has mixed them up at the bat, laying down an occasional bunt, and at other times meerly chopping at the ball instead of taking a healthy swing at every offering.

Psychology is going to play a big part in Ruth's showing in the coming series. He must forget his failure of the past two years. That is most essential. Likewise he must swat a home run in every game or he will be regarded as a "bust."

Ruth of 1923 is twice the ball player of the 1922 edition. I look for him to regain much of the prestige that he lost by his failure to show in the two previous meetings.

Also, the success of Ruth means the success of the Yankees.

HUGGINS IS THE BIG BOSS THIS YEAR

And That's Why the Yanks, Now a Happy Family, Are a Much Stronger Team.

(By RAY SCHALK)
World's Greatest Catcher

Are the Giants of 1923 as strong an aggregation as the pennant winners and world champions of 1921 and 1922?

Are the Yankees of 1923 a better ball club than the team that twice fell before the Giants, after winning the American League pennant?

To my way of thinking the Giants of 1923 are a superior club in every way to the pennant winner of the two previous years with the exception of pitching. And I do not believe that the pitching has slipped enough to make any great difference with the play of McGraw's club.

Mental slips lose many ball games. Incidentally, such lapses have a decidedly bad effect on the morale of a club. Sloppy work on the bases played havoc with the chances of the Yankees in both of their clashes with the Giants. The memory of how Bancroft, at short for the Giants, cut off several throws that seemed certain to be allowed to go through, thereby trapping unsuspecting Yankee runners, changed the complexion of several important games. Only a ball player knows what such slips take out of a team.

Very often one good utility man adds much strength to a ball club. In Travis Jackson, the youthful southerner, the Giants have p?ay?d bb one of the most promising infielders I have seen in action in years. Jacksons' ability to fill in at short, second and third, just about saved the Giants.

Speed is always a big factor in baseball. The Giants have the speed. There isn't a slow man on the team chaperoned by John McGraw. I don't except Catcher Frank Snyder, who, despite his bulk, can travel mighty fast for a big fellow.

McGraw always has his team running. He has drilled into them that each and every man must play heads-up baseball and utilize his speed to the greatest possible extent.

The Yankees are a direct contrast in this respect. As a whole the Huggins entry is rather slow moving. It takes more base hits for the Yankees to score a run than the Giants. Incidentally, there isn't the intelligent use made of speed that really is available.

Then again, in considering the Giants as a team, one must not overlook the part that Manager McGraw plays. In a short series perfect direction of play means much. McGraw is a great leader who has the courage of his convictions. He makes few mistakes. He dominates the play of his team. His players respect his every word. Woe be to the athlete who fails to follow his directions.

The Giants then are a smart ball club, well handled. The team has great power well handled. The team has great power on the offense and a pretty fair defense. The pitching is just so-so. However, the Giants don't need air-tight pitching to win. Twice being returned the world champs has given the club much confidence. However, McGraw has never let that confidence reach the stage of acute cheatiness, which is so fatal to any ball club.

Unquestionably the Giants of 1923 are a better ball club than the team that won for McGraw in the two previous years.

What about the Yankees?

The Yankees are one of the most unusual ball clubs in the history of the game. At times the Yanks display a game that is unbeatable, and yet for a great ball club it can look very ordinary. It has an y number of individual stars, a punch on the offense, the biggest threat in baseball in Babe Ruth, a remarkable pitching staff, yet in the two big tests the world series, the club has failed to live up to expectations.

I think better days are ahead for the Yankees. The addition of Herb Pennock strengthened the pitching staff. The Yankees lacked a good southpaw. Pennock has filled that breach. He should trouble the Giants.

However, to my way of thinking, the outstanding feature of the Yankees' play this year has been the fine spirit and harmony that has prevailed in the club ranks. Individual effort has been shunted aside for team play. Incidentally, Manager Miller Huggins is reigning supreme. His word is law, and his orders are being followed to the letter.

Yes, the Giants and Yankees of 1923 are both improved ball clubs over former years, and the Yankees, to my way of thinking, have gained the more strength.

SOCCER NOTES

Saturday's game will be G.W.V.A. versus Canadian Woollens. Kick-off at 3.30 p.m. Referee J. Clark.

It has to been decided where this game shall be played.

The Canadian Woollens got their photograph taken with the Peck trophy included, after their victory over the G.V.W.A. on Saturday afternoon. Yes, it is first cup they have won since entering football league.

An interested spectator at Saturday's game was Bob Ralston, the well-known soccer player who broke his leg eleven weeks ago in a game between Thistle and G.W.V.A. at the Oval. He was walking on his injured leg with the assistance of the habitual cane and it must be a record for a compound fracture injury to be walking upon it all within ten weeks. Bob anticipates that his next move will be "back to business!"

After many hours debate, the Junior Association Executive had to accept the general rule, "a cup-tie final must be played" or the competition become null and void, also the trophy be retained by the Association. But after the amicable adjustments were brought forth by the President, Mr. Willis, they decided that the Taylor Cup final will be played in near future when the teams—C.P.C. and DeLaval—will have every man available.

When Greek meets Greek they talk about an Italian.

Billy Evans Says

Shortstop Scott Is Remarkable Ball Player Has Set Unusual Record For Endurance Has No Intention of Resting For Series.

Everett Scott, famous shortstop of the New York Yankees, now reigns supreme as the "Iron Man" of baseball. On Monday, Sept. 23, at the Yankee Stadium in New York, Scott completed his 1128th consecutive game. That sets a record for all time, majors or minors.

When Scott, early in the spring, played his 1000th consecutive game the feat was heralded as a record. The American League, in honor of unusual performance, presented Scott with a medal commemorating the event. After all the ceremonies were over the statisticians discovered that Scott in playing 1000 consecutive games had merely established a major league record. Delving into the dope it was found that Perry Lipe, a player in a number of minor leagues in the south, had played 1127 games in a row. This discovery on the part of the statisticians didn't worry Scott in the least, he simply opined that he would pass Lipe's record before the season was over, if he continued to be lucky. Scott set his new record against the Detroit Tygers.

Lipe's mark of 1127 games in a row, which was shattered by Scott on Sept. 23, has stood for 21 years. The Yankee shortstop started his record performance on June 20, 1916, when with the Boston Red Sox. If he finishes the season without a break he will have played seven complete seasons and a greater part of another.

* * *

After Scott has set his record, I asked him if he intended to take a few days of rest prior to the series. It's a long grind that Scott has been through over eight seasons. At times during the last few years Scott has shown signs of going stale as a result of the strain. However, Scott doubts whether it would be advisable for him to lay off for a week or so.

* * *

"In some ways a week of complete rest might do me a world of good. Then again the relaxation might set in so strong that I would be unable to regain my stride. I am of the opinion that the best thing for me to do is keep on playing and hold my game. During the final week of the season we have several off days, also a couple prior to the opening of the series and I think they will be about enough."

ABANDON ANNUAL ROAD RACE HERE

Lack of Interest in Long Distance Road Races.

Owing to the lack of interest in long distance road races, the Examiner has decided that it will not put on the annual road race to be held on Thanksgiving Day.

It appears to those who have had charge of the road race in the past that contestants as well as the public are not sufficiently interested to make it a success.

The time of the race last year was an hour and ten minutes which was slower time than the slowest of any of the races previously held when the old guard was in the running game. Then again throughout the country, there does not seem to be the same interest, and the development of the young athlete along other lines than long distance running seems to be a better possibility for doing something that is helpful than in long distance running.

As a consequence the Examiner will not put on the senior road race this year. Whether any organization will take up the junior road race is not known.

BOSTON IS DUBIOUS OVER CLUB OWNERS

Suspect New York Major League Connection—Ask For Enquiry.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—District Attorney O'Brien of Suffolk County intimated to-day that he would take no further action on a petition filed by J. Collier and other Boston citizens asking for an investigation as to the real owners of the Boston Clubs of the National and American Leagues and charging fraud on the public. The District Attorney has obtained a report from an inspector as to the owners of record, and it is understood that he does not share the views of the petitioners that there has been fraud.

The petitioners had expressed the opinion that the recorded owners were "straws" for the owners of the New York major league clubs and that an indictment might be maintained for obtaining money for false pretences.

WELLAND TEAM HERE TOMORROW

Final Series For The Intermediate Ontario Championship.

There promises to be a big crowd of fans at Riverside Park to-morrow for the final clash in the Intermediate series between Welland, the Western winners, and the C. G. E. crew, who have just cleaned up Eastern Ontario. The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp, and Peterboro fandom should give the Electricians every support in their final dash for the Intermediate honors. Welland, who have had a rest since disposing of Guelph, are in good shape and expect their clever box artist, Garner, to tie up the homesters. The C.G.E. crew have been steadily improving, however, and will take a lot of beating now that the championship is within reaching distance. The second game will be played in Welland on Saturday. Ray Rose is likely to be on the firing line for the C.G.E. to-morrow, although no definite announcement has been made as to who will get the assignment.

SPEAKER WILL LEAD REAL TEAM

Many Stars Will be Seen In Action at Riverside Park Saturday.

The All-Star team which Tris Speaker will lead into action against the Toronto Wellintgons at Riverside Park on Saturday will be a real classy aggregation and will likely line-up as follows:

Pitcher— Jim Edwards, Cleveland Americans.
Catcher— Les Nunamaker, Chatanooga, Southern League.
First Base—Jack Beattie, London, M.O. League.
Second Base — Andy Anderson, Newark International.
Shortstop— Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington American League.
Third Base—M. Burns, Toronto.
Outfield—Tris Speaker, Cleveland American League, Babe Dye, Buffalo International League, and Andy Kyle, M. O. League.

Against them the Wellingtons, who by the way are headed by an old Peterborough boy, Corney Burns, will have O'Connell and Beaume as battery, Lamond first, Donahue second, Eagleson shortstop and Heaver third, and Freeman, Pennock, Graham and other well known semi-pros. from which to pick the outfield.

This is the greatest opportunity Peterborough fans will ever have of seeing such famous ball players in action and a record crowd from all over the district is expected. The proceeds go to the Marmora and Deloro War Veterans for a G.W.V.A. hall.

The game is called at 2.45 p.m. and the scores of the World's Series games will be given out.

LONDON JOCKEY CLUB DEFIANT RE BETTING

Situation is One Bound to Lead to Legal Battles

TORONTO, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Attorney-General Nickle's reply to the London Jockey Club's statement of defiance in regard to its proposed Niagara Falls race course is a terse reiteration of the statement contained in his letter to the Club Secretary to the effect that efforts to conduct betting operations in connection with horse racing at the Falls would be met by provincial police intervention and prosecution.

The situation is one which is now almost sure to lead to legal battles between the province and the jockey club which maintains its right to operate at Niagara Falls by virtue of recent Federal Charter extension.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

There is a very entertaining picture at the Capitol Theatre in "Strangers of the Night." Anyone who likes whimsical humour and plenty of action combined with an interesting plot will enjoy the jolly atmosphere and funny situations in the screen version of "Captain Applejack." The hero is somewhat like the Baroness Orczy's famous "Scarlet Pimpernel." He lives in an old manor by the sea in afr-away Cornwall, and his life is so absolutely conventional that the young man, Ambrose Applejohn, himself an extremely conventional creature becomes extremely bored with the whole thing. He explodes a bomb in a peaceful and orderly family circle by announcing his wish to sell his manor, go to Tangier, and revel in adventure complicated by the passionate embraces of beautiful women. Like the pressmg of a magic button his expressed wish causes things to happen immediately and his castle by the sea becomes the overnight haven of many mysterious characters.

Anna Valeska appears, a beautiful and temperamental Russian, running in haste from pursuing Russian spies, and bearing with her the jewels of the Grand Duchess Sonya; Mr. and Mrs. Pengard arrive for a space of time and succeed in locating a secret panel in the castle; then comes the Russian himself, a real villain, played by Robert McKim. The inane owner of the manor has a wonderful series of nocturnal adventures, with a gang of thieves, a secreted parchment pointing the way to a wonderful jewel cache, and the passionate Russian lady. His early evening slumbers are enriched by a hectic dream, in which he sees himself as a famous pirate ancestor, Captain Applejack, and goes through all manner of startling happenings The sly humor of the piece is enlivened by the way in which the timid young man proves himself to be a man of action and a match for the skilful gang of thieves who unveil their intentions during a mad night.

Matt Moore plays the part of Ambrose Applejohn, Barbara LaMarr is the charming Russian adventuress, and Enid Bennett is the dainty heroine, Poppy.

AT THE REGENT.

AT THE REGENT.

"Son of Kissing Cup," one of the greatest racing pictures of the year, including the world's most noted turf classic, the Derby at Epsom Downs with Papyrus, England's super-horse, soon to race Zev for the world's championship, with the greatest jockey of the British Isles, O'Donoghue on his back, is the fine picture direct from its London run, that will have its Peterboro premiere to-day at the Regent Theatre, and which will remain there for 3-days.

"Son of Kissing Cup" is the successor to that other thrilling race story, "Kissing Cup's Last Race," which broke records when it made its appearance on the screen. It is a story that holds one breathless from start to finish! One that is not easily forgotten when once seen! In it is the unscrupulous dealings of two bookmakers against a knight and his lady love. They almost succeed in their cold-blooded plans when at the last moment, just in the nick of time all is solved, and the picture ends on a very happy note.

In the cast, which is headed by England's most beautiful star, Violet Hopson and handsome Stewart Rome, appear Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Cameron Carr, Judd Green, Arthur Walcott, Bob Vallis, J. Fraser and Lewis Gilbert.

AT THE ROYAL.

"Merry-Go-Round" Lives Up to All Claims Made of It—Super-Film in Every Sense.

Love — war — romance — tragedy —heart—drama—Vienna, old, gray, historic——

The Prater, the famous amusement park of Vienna, so much like the American Coney Island——

Realism and — the "Merry-Go-Round" that goes around and around at the beck of fate, upsetting human plans, turning worlds topsy-turvy and robbing glory of its gilded blood——

This best describes "Merry-Go-Round," the whole story of the picture that opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre. The attraction is a Super-Jewel photodrama of the most elaborate type.

The Royal used a slogan in advertising this production, "You'll be surprised." Well, we were surprised.

We predict great success for "Merry-Go-Round." It is lavish, human, dramatic and rich in its story-telling quality. We especially liked the manner in which the central figures are ever in the foreground regardless of the surging tide of life in the background. Indeed we never lose track of the story —the pathetic little domance of the organ-grinder who found her Prince Charming and made him real when he was inclined to play. The idea here is novel in that picking a figure from a carnival has never been employed before. She might be called a first cousin of the circus performer. Which, of course, makes her fascinating and appealing. For stories of the big top never fail to touch the heart-strings.

Rupert Julian, the director, plays upon these same heart-strings with the same effectiveness of a great orchestra leader. He lifts his baton (a simile for a megaphone, if you would have it) and the players respond with fine co-operation and feeling. The concertmaster (it's a concertmistress here) is Mary Philbin who, prior to this picture, had never indicated that she was destined for the high places. It must be that we were blind to her ineffable charm and hidden talent. It has taken a great role to bring out her expressive gifts. Surely Mary Philbin has arrived, Lillian Gish, emotional as she is, could not have done any better. This newcomer (after all she is a newcomer) extracts the deepest sympathy and the most compelling admiration in her wistful and pathetic study of the organ-grinder. Her child-like expression—her youthful naivete—her suggestion of deep humility covering wounded pride—these are but a few of her shadings. And nearly keeping pace with her are players, thoroughly in character, such as George Hackathorne, Norman Kerry, Cesare Gravina and George Seigmann.

"Merry - Go - Round" palpitates with real heartbeats. It sings a colorful swan song. It moves with real, dramatic strokes through scenes which never clash. How deep are the humanities and how finely expressed. Universal has reason to feel immensely proud. And some dare to say that the screen is going to the bow-wows.

LITTLE HARD ON D. LLOYD GEORGE

Says He Is Not in Zenith Of Extravagant Fame As When Allied Demi-God.

LONDON, October 9 (Canadian Press Cable).—Lloyd-George's tour of the United States and Canada continues to be the subject of editorial comment in the British papers.

The Manchester Guardian says there is already a good deal of surprise in this country at the fervour of the official and popular welcomes. Immense numbers of Americans and Canadians are seeing Lloyd-George now pretty much as the Englishmen saw him at the general election of 1919.

The Guardian says:

"If Lloyd-George is able to speak fully and frankly to Americans about the Europe of to-day, he will do a good deal to theoir knowledge. In reality, he is a more sound informant and guide for America as regard British opinion now than he was when at the zenith of his extravagant fame as an Allied demi-god.

Treaty a Failure.

"He knows that the Versailles Treaty is a failure, that France has lost her way, that the lesson of Germany's tremendous fall is still unlearned, that the democracy for which the war was to have made the world safe has been suppressed in Italy, Russia and Spain, and that a Europe hungry and half idle is more preoccupied than ever in its history with snarling spites between Government and Government.

"America sees well enough that the present plight in Europe is discreditable. She was inclined to hold her nose and stand off from us all as far as she can. Lloyd-George was an oratorical power required to show her without offencewhat an abdication of true greatness such denial of brotherhood would be."

LATEST OFFER FROM GERMANY WAS REJECTED

Proposal to Negotiate Regarding Resumption of Work in Ruhr Not Acceptable to Poincare.

REQUESTS A PARLEY

PARIS, Octber 10 (Special to The Examiner). — Premier Poincare rejected Germany's latest proposal to negotiate concerning the resumption of work in the Ruhr and the payment of reparations.

The French Premier replied that negotiations are proceeding between the French and Belgian authorities and German workers and employers in the occupied territories, and in that he sees no reason to substitute negotiations between Governments.

Poincare reiterated that Germany must forward any reparations proposals to the Reparations Commission.

Await Events.

Germany has requested a conference with France and Belgium on economic co-operation in the Ruhr.

The German proposal, which was made through Belgium, calls for a meeting to smooth out problems arising from the cessation of passive resistance, but it is pointed out that such a meeting would also pave the way for reparations discussions.

Premier Poincare of France and Foreign Minister Jaspar of Belgium, discussed the German proposal in a telephone conversation on Tuesday.

Both are determined to await the absolute cessation of passive resistance and the resumption of work in the Ruhr.

Negotiations Continue.

Negotiations continue between Hugo Stinnes and General DeGoutte, French commander in the Ruhr, according to the Paris correspondent of the London Exchange Telegraph.

GERMANY TRYING TO COLLECT DEBT

Hungary Might Consider Payment at the Present Value of Mark.

BERLIN, Oct. 10. (United Press —While all the world especially France, stands at Germany's door cry ing for money, Germany, too is attempting to collect a little pre-war debt. The debt is due from Hungary. Berlin wants Budapest to pay up. Negotiations in connection with the debt are said to have reached the "acute" stage.

The German delegates have returned to Berlin announcing that Hungary refused to valorize any obligations other than those placed in England at the time Germany made the loan.

Previous discussions are said to have reached a point where Hungary announced a willingness to take into consideration the fall in value of Germany's money.

HELPED SAVE LIBERTY OF THE WHOLE WORLD

Without Canada Europe Would be a Vassal Continent Today Declares Lloyd George.

STRENUOUS DAY

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—"You helped to save the liberty of the world. Without you Europe would be a vassal continent to-day." This was the summing up of Canada's effort in the world's greatest struggle which David Lloyd George, War Prime Minister of Great Britain, gave to the multitude of people thronging the City Hall Square, adjacent streets and office buildings shortly before noon this morning.

The words of the great statesman were few, because he is suffering from hoarseness, but the tremendous crowd, which was variously estimated at from fifteen to twenty thousand, hung on them.

This morning was a strenuous one for Mr. Lloyd George. From the time that his special train pulled into the Union Station up to one o'clock in the afternoon he was constantly on the move. At the station he was met by Mayor C. A. Maguire, Sir Robert Falconer, Sir Thomas White, members of the Board of Control and others. Dame Lloyd George was presented with a bouquet of roses by Mrs. Maguire, and a hearty welcome was extended to the great statesman and members of his party. From the station the party was driven to Christie Street Hospital for disabled veterans, where Mr. Lloyd George addressed the veterans and nursing sisters. Accompanied by Dame Lloyd George and Miss Megan, the famous statesman made his way to the roof of the hospital, where the men who had given all but their lives were waiting on their wheeled beds to see him. From bed to bed, Mr. Lloyd George proceeded with his kind, quizzical smile. Sometimes he addressed a few words to sufferers, always shaking hands with them.

From the hospital, motors speedily bore the party to the City Hall, where a great crowd had already assembled. Here Mr. Lloyd George made two speeches, the latter an extremely short one. Presenting Mrs. Arthur Van Koughnet, one of the active soldiers' comfort workers, with a set of china, he emphasized the far-reaching nature of her work. "War is not the end but the beginning of effort."

Two War Premiers.

The World Brotherhood Congress at its closing session this morning was honoured by the presence of two war Premiers. Right Hon. David Lloyd-George found time to address the gathering briefly before he was officially welcomed to the city, while the Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, former Prime Minister of Canada, acted as chairman of the session.

Massey Hall was crowded long before the former British Premier made his appearance on the platform, and his entry was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm rarely equalled in this city.

Following Sir Robert's address, J. A. Stewart presented the report of the business meeting, and later Rev. Dr. Sclater, a leading Scottish Presbyterian divine, delivered an address.

Taking as his subject, "Brotherhood," ex-Controller J. O. McCarthy preceded the British statesman, who was the last speaker.

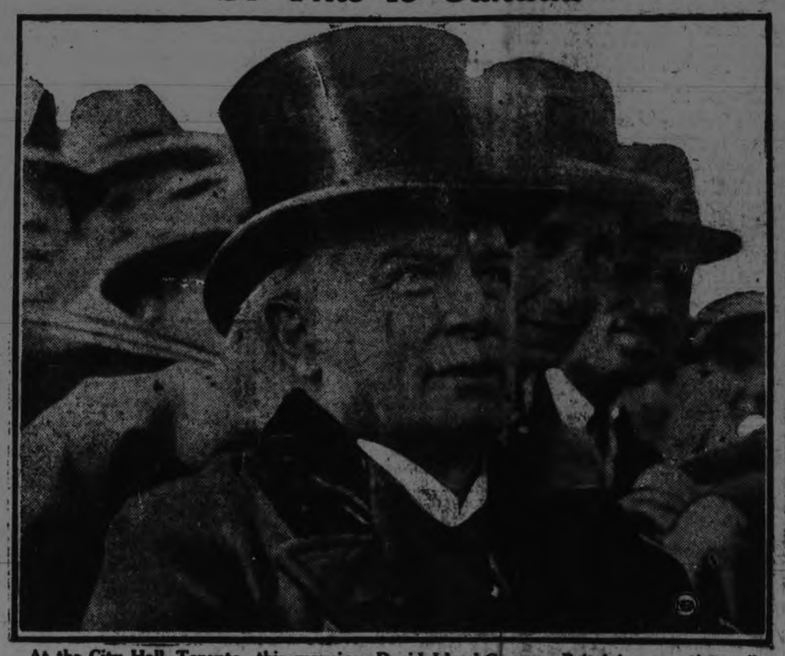
So This Is Canada



At the City Hall, Toronto, this morning, David Lloyd-George, Britain's war-time pilot, set forth the only claim that he makes for himself: "I claim nothing," he said, "nothing, except that I am one of millions who did their best for the cause, according to their gifts and powers, in positions God saw fit to place them."

Long hours before two o'clock when the game started, crowds began gathering at the many entrances scrambling for places in the lines at ticket booths.

A bright Indian summer sun ushered in the day, auguring fulfillment of the weatherman's prognostication of fair weather. The man on the soap box who last night became first in line of the vigilants of the bleacher seats entrance, yawned, stretched, shook the dew from his turned-up coat collar and looked around to find himself leader of a long line of fans who had joined him in the night watch while he sat huddled under the influence of morpheus.

OF MUCH INTEREST TO MUSIC LOVERS.

Appearance of Jules Falk, Violinist, and Vanette Van Sweringen, Soprano, on October 29.

The Rotary Club is to be congratulated on bringing to Peterboro on the occasion of their concert on Monday, Oct. 29th, such high class artists as Falk and Miss Van Sweringen. Both are of the very highest type and their programme has more than pleased thousands who have been in attendance at their concerts during the past season.

Of Julius Falk, the Washington Post has to say:

"Musicians in Washington last week had an opportunity to compare two famous violinists. It was an interesting study. Kreisler's violin sings, and as it sings it spreads a magic that makes the spell grow more and more. Falk's technique is faultless and his expression as it should be. It furnishes an interesting thought for the critic who persistently plows through the dictionary to find words with which to express technically his admiration of performers. The two violinists, as far as human dexterity can make them, are faultless. Citizens should not overlook this event—the concert event of the season.

PESSIMISM IS QUITE REFUTED

Mill of Dick & Carew Lumber Co. Filled with Orders and Humming With Industry.

Humming with industry and filled up with orders, the lumber mill of the Dick and Carew Lumber Company, Limited, refutes the pessimism that seems to be rampant in regard to the future of Peterboro. It speaks well for the future of the city when local men organize an undertaking such as this and carry it through successfully.

The officers of the new company are: F. J. Carew, president; R. M. Waddell, vice-president, and A. Dick, managing director, and the company itself is formed of Peterboro citizens.

The factory takes up the large tract of land between Murray and McDonnel Streets, fronting on Bethune Street, and with the office situated on Murray. It is a modern plant, prepared to make anything in lumber. Twenty machines have already been installed and are in operation. They are fully up-to-date, and the building itself is well lighted and ventilated. A rough of the products of the plant are: doors, sash, frames, moldings, box shooks, crating, hardwood flooring, office fixtures and all classes of dressed and manufactured lumber.

Public Welcome.

The factory is the best equipped and roomiest plant of its kind between Toronto and Ottawa, the Examiner was told, and adds materially to the prestige of Peterboro as a manufacturing centre. Its working will be gladly explained to anyone who calls on Alex. Dick at the office, and the manufacturing of rough lumber into finished furniture and other useful articles is well worth seeing. One man who visited the plant yesterday professed himself ignorant as to how boards are tongued and grooved. Alex. Dick was glad to explain and demonstrate the process, and said he would be pleased to welcome visitors to Peterboro's newest factory.

A LECTURE ON COURTSHIP AND WOMAN'S LOVE

Girls Making Acquaintance of Young Men Without Proper Introduction Are Scored.

CARE OF THE BOY

"Why Do Men Cease to Love Women After Marriage?" will be Dr. J. A. McCuaig's subject tonight at 8 o'clock in George Street Methodist Church, when he will deliver the closing lecture of his series on "Marriage Standards." This, it is anticipated, will be the crowning event of this series of lectures that has attracted city-wide attention.

Girls forming the acquaintanceship of young men without an introduction by proper persons was scored by Dr. McCuaig last night in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, in his lecture on the subject, "Courtship and Woman's Love."

"The period of courtship in a girl's life," declared Dr. McCuaig, "is the most critical period of her experience—the time when the wonder of love is unfolding within her and reaching out to find an answer in another life. At this time more than any other the girl needs the brooding care of an enlightened father and a loving mother.

"It is the time of unfolding realities and a period to be considered by parents as solicitously and thoughtfully as the most pronounced period of physical development.

No Sex in Courtship.

"We say commonly that the man courts, and that the woman is courted, but this is not strictly so. There is no one-sided sex in courtship. The attitude on the part of the woman may be passive, and the expression on the part of the man aggressive, but the impulse behind each is the same out-reaching, hoping, wooing, purposeful force.

"The door of acquaintanceship into a girl's life is the entrance to friendship and possible love. It is too late to thrust out an intruder after the wonder of a woman's heart has unfolded to him. And many a parent has lost a daughter to an ignoble man through not watching zealously the door of entrance to her affection.

"The mother who thinks that her daughter is able to look out for herself in the forming of her associates and attachments at this period of life is ignorant of the forces that underlie the lives of men and women.

Don't Understand Love.

"No girl developing into womanhood understands the secret unfolding of love, and against the possibilities of false affections she needs the wisdom and love of enlightened parents.

"The greatest tragedy in the life of a woman," Dr. McCuaig declared, "is the giving of her love to a man who cannot or should not be hers."

In the course of his lecture Dr. McCuaig flayed the negligence of the home in its attitude toward the girl during this period of her life when love is awakening within her.

"Hundreds of girls of tender years walk the streets of every great city after dark, and frequent places of amusement without proper escort. The parents of these girls are at fault. They are blood guilty.

"It has been quite the usual thing to bring the saloon man to judgment and the keeper of the house of ill-fame and the vender of depraving amusements and the exploiter of games of chance for the wrecks and derelicts of society, but I would put the fathers and mothers of these girls in the dock face to face with unerring justice, with the blood of their own children on their hands.

"Every girl under age, of a Peterborough home, who habitually walks the streets of Peterborough at night without proper escort is a living proclamation of criminally negligent parents—people who are false to the most sacred entrustment of life and who through their negligence are a menace to civic well-being."

Talk To Women.

In the course of his address to women yesterday afternoon on "The Care of the Boy," Dr. McCuaig cautioned parents regarding the danger of making life too easy through their tender love for their boys, stating that too sheltered a life leads to morbidity for which vigorous exercise is the safest counter influence. The boy is often safe-guarded too closely for his health and happiness, he said. When kept indoors too closely he becomes morbid. The outdoor life is the natural life for the developing boy.

Eloquently Dr. McCuaig described the home life of the average growing boy as he urged mothers

BACKWARD AT SCHOOL.

If your child does not make the progress at school that you think he should, do not blame the child. Eye strain which often becomes real pain may cause the lack of interest on the child's part. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George Street. 'Phone 1160.

Lloyd George Must Be Quite Fit When He Goes Back Home

OTTAWA, Oct. 10—(Canadian Press).—Mr. Lloyd George is over sixty. He must be as fit when he returns to England as he was when he left. We cannot afford to take risks from fatigue and exposure at his age. He is an extraordinary healthy man but like other men he needs good care. We do not want tour to impair his health, for he will have much to do on his return to Britain." That was official explanation given by Sir Alfred Cope, Chief Secretary ot Mr. Lloyd George, of the sudden curtailment of the Ottawa visit. Regret was expressed that this should have occurred in the Capital but Sir Alfred, remarked that it could not be avoided.

MONTHLY MEET CHILDRENS' AID

Committee Appointed to Arrange Official And Public Opening of the New Shelter.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the board-room at the Chamber of Commerce, the president, B. F. Ackerman, in the chair, and the following members present: Mesdames Gibbs, Fanning, Knox, Hopwood, Devey, Welsh, Messrs. Edgar, Powell, Stocker, Parsons, Dobbin, Rev. P. Costello, and Dr. D. C. King.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, J. Edgar, who also noted the contribution to the new Shelter by the president, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, of a barrel of tar paint, worth $37.30, for use on the shed roofs.

The agent, G. W. Powell, reported for the month of September: 9 applications received; children brought in (not wards), 2; returned to parents (not wards), 1; wards placed out, 4; returned to Shelter, 2.

Tag Day Receipts.

Mr. Powell gave the total realized from tag day efforts as nearly $1,100, with later contributions which increased this sum to $1,319.70, and a prospect of receiving the surplus of $100 or over from the Campbell-Morgan meetings, which will bring the total to something in the neighborhood of $1,419.70.

Mr. Powell read a letter from the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Board, asking that coupon payments accruing from bonds held by the Society in trust for a certain family of wards be turned over to the Board, who are desirous of converting these funds into more bonds. After considerable discussion, it was decided, on motion of Mrs. W. H. Gibbs and Ald. Stocker, to inform the Soldiers' Board that the Society regarded it as a duty to retain monies accruing from such coupons in case of emergency needs in said family who are children of a deceased soldier, but are at present under the care of the Children's Aid Society as wards, the local Society realizing that its responsibility for these children will extend to their majority.

The Matron's Report.

The matron's report showed 15 children in the Shelter during the month of September, with 5 brought in and 2 sent out, and no sickness.

Mr. Edgar referred to a meeting of the Property Committee, held on September 26th, at which it was decided to award the contract for re-roofing the high shed at the new Sheler to A. McLeod, who offered to do the work in asbestos shingles for $210 or in British Columbia shingles for $200. The tender for asbestos shingles was accepted.

Mrs. W. H. Gibbs spoke of the excellent work done by Mrs. Jas. Fanning, as convenor for tag days, and, on motion of Mrs. W. J. Hopwood, a vote of thanks was tendered her for her services. Mrs. J. Welsh referred to the generous donation made by Mr. Ackerman on tag day.

Mr. Powell brought up the consideration of a family in whom the Big Sisterhood have been actively interested for some time, in which intermittent employment by the bread-winner is the chief cause of lack of funds. A plea was made for care of the three children in the home during the mother's illness in the hospital, and it was decided to take care of them in the Shelter during the time that the mother expects to be in the hospital.

Public Opening.

The ladies of the Board were appointed a committee to supervise arrangements for holding an official and public opening of the new Shelter premises, with Mrs. Jas. Fanning as convenor.

The following donations were acknowledged: Mrs. Murky, 9 cans fruit; L.O.L. District No. 3, buns and weiners; Mr. Underwood, basket of peaches.

The following accounts were passed: Can. Packing Co., $17.10; B. F. Ackerman & Son, $1.13; C. Griffin (repairing shoes), 75 cents; Warne Drug Co., 60 cents; R. Denne, $3.95; R. Hall & Son, Ltd., $8.64; J. M. Heard, $12; Peterboro Examiner, $62.31; Bell Telephone Co. (2 'phones), $6.71; Sanitary Ice Supply Co., $5; B. Heard, $28.15; New Centre Meat Market, $10.52; [illegible]

Y.M.C.A. RALLY WAS FEATURED BY A BANQUET

Short But Interest-Holding Addresses, Together with Dainty Bill of Fare Much Enjoyed.

PRIZES PRESENTED

The annual fall rally banquet of the Y.M.C.A. held last night in the Association Gymnasium was an unusually interesting event inasmuch, as in addition to a large turnout of the members, the occasion was notable for the presence of members of the five local Ontario Basball champions or finalists, the C.G.E. Lakeviews, Maple Leafs, Curlers and Rotary Bantams being given seats of honour in the centre of the room. The banquet was served by the members of the Ladies Auxiliary, who during the programme were given a very hearty manifestation of thanks proposed by Rev. Dr. S. W. Rose.

The tables were appropriately decorated with autumn leaves and presented a very attractive appearance. Over 200 guests were in attendance.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, chairman of the Board of Directors, occupied the chair and the majority of the directors were at te head table.

Grace was said by Rev. Robert Pogue, after which justice was done to the repast served by the ladies.

Cheering Addresses

In his opening address Mr. Gillespie explained that Mr. G. N. Gordon K.C. M.P., and Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., were unable to be present, at the banquet on account of being out of town. He extended a hearty welcome to the guests of honor.

Dr. A. W. McPherson took Mr. Gordon's place and gave a short address felicitating the directors of the Y.M.C.A. and all others who organized the banquet. He also congratulated the ladies for the very nice spread they had prepared. Dr. McPherson's task was to congratulate the five teams on their good showing so far, and he wished the C.G.E. the best of luck at to-day's game and at the game in Welland. He also expressed the obligation of the citizens generally to the managers of these teams who spent a lot of time on these boys getting them ready for the finals. The managers are: Mr. L. LeBarr, manager of Lakeviews; Mr. C. Curtis, manager of Maple Leafs; Mr. A. Kay, manager of Curlers; Mr. N. H. McFadden, manager C.G.E. and Mr. J. Primeau, manager of the Rotary Bantams. The services of Mr. Eddie Wright and others who had given freely of their time and means were also eulogized by the speaker.

Mr. Kelso, who was a member of the Y.M.C.A. Board in Rochester, for many years, also gave an address. He was born out on the Chemong Road about 60 years ago and lived there for about 16 years, then he moved to Rochester, N.Y. Mr. Kelso said that he was very interested in boys and thought that the Y.M.C.A. was one of the best places for boys. He also expressed his pleasure in meeting the boys of this city.

Dr. McCauig of New York, delivered a forcible address on control, following the lines of his address the other day to the Kiwanis Club. It was a fitting message for the occasion.

Mr. B. D. Hall presented to the winner, in the Y.M.C.A. Field Day for the championship of Peterboro.

CABINET GIVEN DICTATORSHIP

Bill Providing Absolute Power for Stresemann Executive has Passed Its Second Reading.

BERLIN, Oct. 10. — (By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent).—The Stresemann Cabinet is given dictatoral powers for six months in the bill which passed its second reading shortly before midnight. The measure may be rushed through its third reading.

The Government can no longer evade the issue raised by Hugo Stinnes, who, it now appears, sought a virtual industrial dictatorship. Replies from Belgium and France having unanimously rejected Stresemann's proposal for immediate negotiations, the Chancellor must settle definitely whether his Cabinet, big business, or labor is going to run Germany.

Stresemann had been waiting to hear from the Allies before talking the lists with Stinnes. The latter was called a traitor in the Reichstag by a Communist deputy, and it was noticeable that President Loebe did not reprove the speaker.

Issues New Note.

Rushing the Government presses in an effort to catch up with the falling mark, officials of the Reich Bank to-day announced the issuance of a new note of ten billion marks face value. It was pointed out that the highest note previously in circulation was for a billion marks, and that this is now worth but about half a dollar.

ENJOYED WEINER ROAST AT CRAWFORD'S GROVE

On Monday evening the staff of Richard Hall & Son, Ltd., with the business heads and their wives as their guests, held a very successful weiner roast at Crawford's Grove. The party gathered around a huge cheery bonfire, where they roasted weiners and toasted marshmallows.

The music, supplied by Messrs. Reg. Thurston and Ballard, two of the staff, was very much enjoyed and appreciated. At about 11 p.m. the party, having enjoyed the evening, gave three hearty cheers, after which they departed for their respective homes.

TRADE CONCESSIONS OFFERED DOMINIONS BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT

LLOYD GEORGE WAS GUEST AT STATE DINNER

Entertained at Ottawa By the Dominion Cabinet—Welcomed By Hon. Mr. Fielding.

ON TO TORONTO.

OTTAWA, Ont., October 9. — Associated Press. — Lloyd George was the guest of the Government of Canada to-night for several hours, coming to the capital of the Dominion in his special train from Montreal and being received with every demonstration of friendship and loyalty.

Bareheaded, his long white hair making him conspicuous in a gathering of many notable men, he walked through the Union Station and to the lobby of his hotel before massed standards of the colors of the Empire and of Wales as the distinguished visitor walked slowly between human lines, smiling and with hand outstretched to greet old friends. As he reached the station concourse a choir sang the Welsh national hymn, while the veteran premier paused at attention.

Received by Fielding.

Welcoming him to the capital were Hon. W. S. Feilding, acting Prime Minister, in the absence of Premier Mackenzie King in London other government officials, and dignitaries of the church. Dame Margaret Lloyd George and Miss Megan were burdened with flowers as testimonials of the friendship with which they were held in Canada.

Proceeding to his hotel suite, Mr. Lloyd George remained in seclusion for a short time and then went to the Royal Ottawa Golf Club for an official state dinner, tendered in his honor by the Acting Prime Minister and his associates of the Cabinet.

Proceeding to the club by automobile he passed through the cheering crowds who did not stint in giving the distinguished visitor a hearty welcome.

Dinner Private.

The dinner was private and was attended by about 50 persons. During the dinner Mr. Lloyd George spoke briefly, discussing the reparations question from the standpoint of President Coolidge's position and in line with his exposition of the subject to newspaper correspondents on his trip from Montreal to the Capital. He retired to his private car in order to leave before midnight for Toronto, where he will face a strenuous programme tomorrow.

Mr. Lloyd George is in apparently excellent physical condition, saying to-day that the hoarseness of his throat which appeared last Sunday had almost completely disappeared. He is enjoying the tour through Canada immensely, admiring the scenery with its autumn foliage and inquiring of associates concerning all points of interest.

It is known that he would like to extend his trip, and it was admitted to-day that the proposal for him to go to Vancouver before leaving this continent has not been entirely abandoned.

"You have the right to a voice in the settlement of Turope, and I hope that you will assert it, because it is your right ,because it is your interest, and because it is in the interests of the world."

So declared the Right Hon. David Lloyd-George to the Canadian people last night at the banquet when discussing the problem of war reparations and the proposal of the United States for the appointment of an International Commission of economic experts to determine the capacity of Germany to pay.

The War Premier of the United Kingdom declared himself heartily in favour of this proposal, which was made last December or January by the Hon. Charles Hughes, United States Secretary of State.

STOCK AND BOND

here is a great boom in the mining industry. I have had many years experience in practical mining, both in Cobalt and Porcupine, and have a wide connection there. I am therefore in a position to get early and reliable information in both camps. I have made a profit for every one of my clients up to date, and shall be pleased to advise any one interested. There will be a strong market this summer and now is the time to get in.

Thunder Bay Under Quake

PORT ARTHUR, October 10 (Canadian Press).—The upper stretches in Thunder Bay are still obscured in smoke from burning bush, and vesselmen are finding it exceptionally difficult to navigate at night because of smoke and fog, the smoke adding to the density.

No reports have been received from the outside relative to the fires, but the smoke which has been over the city for the last few days indicates that fires of perhaps dangerous proportions are burning all over the district.

While settlers are watching their clearing fires as carefully as possible, the absence of fire ranger service at this time makes the situation somewhat precarious.

PLOWING STARS TO MATCH SKILL

At International Competition Near Sarnia This Month.

SARNIA, Ont. Oct. 9.—Next week on the big area devoted to the International Plowing match October 17 18 and 19, will arise a city of tents to house the made-in-Lambton exhibition which will be a feature of the plowing match. Space has almost completely been taken up. Committee's are meeting daily to bring the several details of the big event in working order and on Wednesday next, the opening day, it is expected that 20,000 people will be on hand to witness the exhibition of expert plowing by the best agriculturists of Ontario and Michigan. A well is being sunk on the premises and fountains for drinking purposes will dot the field. A public telephone will be placed and a postal station erected, and the hydro current will illuminate the grounds throughout Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt and Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, are expected to open the show.

The choice of location for the 1924 match is already exciting interest and it is said that a big deputation from St. Thomas as well as a deputation from Michigan will urge their claims in force. Steps are being taken to amply provide for the big crowd of people by billeting in Sarnia houses.

NEW TWO-DOLLAR BILL TO PRINCE

First of Issue Struck in His Honor a Souvenir.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—A new $2 Dominion of Canada note has just been placed in circulatiop by the Department of Finance. On the face or front of the bill is a new steel engraved portrait of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and the date of issue is June 23rd, 1923—the last birthday of the Prince. The Department has taken advantage of the presence in Ottawa of His Royal Highness to introduce this bill.

The new note is of striking design and is altogether one of the most artistic that has been issued by the Department in recent years. The back carries an excellent engraving of the new coat-of-arms of the Dominion. The color printing on front and back is in a pleasing shade of olive green.

The new Prince of Wales issue will be gradually placed in circulation and will in time supplant the old Connaught $2 note which has been in circulation since 1914.

Mr. Fielding has submitted to his Royal Highness for his acceptance the first issue—No. 1—of the new note.

CHURCH MEETINGS OMEMEE VILLAGE

Young People's Contest Off to Good Start—Successful Union Gathering

OMEMEE, Oct. 10.—The contest in the Young People's League of the Methodist Church got off to a good start on Monday evening, when the young ladies of the League conducted a splendid programme. The meeting was presided over by Miss Eva Race, 2nd vice-president. Following the devotional exercises the minutes of the last week's meeting were given by the secretary, Miss Muriel McGinnis. Delegates were appointed to attend the District Convention to be held in Queen Street Methodist Church, Lindsay, on October 10. Miss Eilene Johnson, corresponding secretary, read a beautifully worded letter of thanks from Mrs. Bent to the League for flowers sent during her son's illness. A number of young ladies rendered a rousing chorus, entitled "Conquest Calls Us." Following this splendid chorus the topic for the evening was taken in four parts, the different parts being interspersed with singing. The first part, "Good Literature in the Home," was given ably by Miss Jean Sandy. "Canadian Literature" was taken by Miss Eilene Johnson; "Robert Edward Knowles," by Miss Florence Rutherford; "Pauline Johnson, Canadian Indian Poetess," by Miss Ida Shea.

The social half-hour, which is a part of a League service, was taken charge of by several girls and much enjoyed by all. The meeting closed with that rousing hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," followed by all repeating the watchword.

This week's service is in charge of the married women.

A Union Meeting.

Mr. Godfrey, of Toronto, a returned Anglican missionary from India, occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, and in the evening a Union Bible Society meeting was held in the Methodist Church, where Mr. Godfrey delivered an address, dealing chiefly with his work in India. The pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland, and the Presbyterian pastor, Rev. J. Black, were also present and took part in the service.

Reports were read from the secretary and treasurer, the latter showing the creditable amount of over $160, which was collected in this district last year.

In Monday evening Mr. Godfrey gave an illustrated lecture in the Anglican Church.

Rum Raiders Ordered To Return a Seizure Of Gin

NORTH BAY, October 10 (Canadian Press). — Sixteen quarts of gin must be returned to the cellar of Tony Mussolini, local citizen, as a result of an order made by the Master in Chambers at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, quashing a warrant on which Mussolini's house was raided by a squad of Provincial and town police two weeks ago.

The liquor was found beneath the false bottom in a cupboard.

The warrant was quashed on account of the fact that it failed to specify the cause of the officers' suspicions that liquor was held for sale in Mussolini's house.

WOULD REMOVE DUTY ON SOME FOODSTUFFS FROM THE DOMINIONS

Important Announcement From British Cabinet to the Imperial Conference—Increase the Purchasing Power of Dominions.

AUSTRALIA'S NEEDS.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Imperial preference took a great step forward to-day when, yielding to the request of the Dominions, the British Government announced to the Imperial Conference its new offer to admit Empire dried, preserved and canned fruits duty free, while maintaining considerable duties against similar foreign products. The Government offers also either to increase the Empire preference on unmanufactured tobacco or stabilize the existing preference for a decade and to guarantee that there shall be no diminution in the preference granted to Empire sugar for a decade.

This concession followed upon frank advice given to the Government the previous day by the Australian Premier, Stanley M. Bruce, to place a protective tariff on foodstuffs and raw materials, on a sliding scale, in order to protect producers from unremunerative prices.

Mr. Bruce also provided other means of discriminating in favor of the Empire producers against foreigners, especially a scheme of purchase corporations, which would give preference to British and Dominion products for the stabilization of prices and the maintenance of war reserves of essential foodstuffs.

EXTEND RAILWAY TO SILVER CAMP

Premier Ferguson Gives Instructions to Surveying Engineers.

NORTH BAY, Oct. 9.—Locating Engineers of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway left today for Cobalt with instructions to start immediately the work of surveying a proposed route for a branch extension of the railway into the South Lorrain Silver Camp.

Three routes are under consideration, one of which would follow somewhat closely the present highway between Haileybury and South Lorrain. Another would enter the field via North Cobalt and the third would serve the promising district already widely staked and known as Gillies Limit as well as tap the rich terrtiory surrounding the Keeley and Mining Corporation operations.

Instructions have been received by the commission from Premier Ferguson to lose no time in making preparations to construct the proposed branch.

Winnipeg Voters' List Ancient, Says Heaps.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.—Alderman A. A. Heaps, Labor's nominee in the North Winnipeg by-election was granted leave to-day to apply for a writ of mandamus against Judge Dawson officer in charge of revision and J. K. Morton returning officer in respect to the use of the 1921 voters' lists in the election. Mr. Heaps contends that the list is too far out of date to serve as a proper basis for the election and wants the 1923 liquor referendum lists used.

The application will be argued in the King's Bench next Wednesday afternoon.

New Stunt in Robbing Bank Disclosed in Trial of Teller in Montreal.

THOUSANDS LOST.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—Thousands of dollars were lost when copper one-cent coins were substituted for silver 25 cent pieces in paper rolls marked $5 and $10, according to the evidence heard before Mr. Justice Monet here to-day in the case of Russell F. C. Burnett, former teller in the Peel Street Branch of the Bank of Montreal, this city.

Burnett who is charged with theft of $6,000 from the bank with making false entries in the cash book and with uttering forged cheques was committed for trial and will appear before the court of King's Bench here during the November term.

Evidence showed that Burnett was arrested last June after an inspection of the Peel street branch of the Bank of Montreal, had May 31, revealed that $2800 worth of 25 cent pieces in paper rolls had been replaced by one-cent copper coins. The money was left for some time in the vault of the bank and it is assumed that the process of substitution must have been carried out over a considerable period of time.

For the prosecution it was stated that four cheques were forged in the name of Miky Chorny, a client of the bank now residing at Bridgeport Conn.

The cheques were for a total of $1551.97. A further charge stated that Burnett had stolen $6,000, the property of the bank.

Voluntary statement was fixed for next week and Burnett was granted bail at $2,000.

FLORIDA FARMS ARE INUNDATED

The Mississippi Reported Broken Through Bank in Five Places.

ORLANDO, Fla., Oct .9.—A special despatch to the Reporter Star from Moorehaven at 4:55 p.m., said the levee had broken in at least five places and that water is from one to six feet deep in the country. Almost all two-storey buildings are filled with persons coming in from the farms in boats, and many are leaving town, the dispatch stated.

Three Vessels Ashore in Puget Sound Fog.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 9.—A list of vessels ashore reported here today increased to three when it was learned that the steamer Bearport, loaded with lumber for Japan, went aground yesterday while trying to back out of Port Ludlow on Puget Sound, The motor ship Kennecott struck rocks last night south of Dixon Entrance and the British steamer Sunland got fast in the sand near Seattle to-day. All three mishaps were attributed to fog.

Manitoba Government Has Balance of $650,000.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.—Governments, passed at the last session of the legislature, have been under-expended by $630,000 according to an official statment made by Premier Bracken to-day. Strict economy in all departments of the government resulted in the saving the premier stated.

Despite the savings effected in the estimates, it is understood the expenditures will exceed revenue by approximately $1,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

FOR FEEDING PIGS.

From a mechanical standpoint, any mixture of whole or ground grains or mill feeds may be successfully self-fed. The grain ration may be fed mixed or with each component part separate, allowing the pig to choose for himself. He can do this. Such a plan requires partitions in the feeder. For young pigs or shoats, any of the following mixtures will be found suitable provided all hulls are fairly finely ground:

1. Shorts or middlings, fine ground barley or corn—equal parts.
2. Shorts or middlings, 4 parts, any of the above grains 4 parts, ground peas two parts.
3. Shorts or wheat 2 parts, barley 2 parts, peas 1 part.

With any of the above mixtures fed to young pigs skim-milk may be profitably fed. Where such cannot be obtained, the addition of tankage, meat, or blood meal is recommended. Tankage may best be fed from a separate feeder or by partitioning off a small section of the regular structure. Allow the pigs to meet their own requirements.

New Ontario Harvest Is Unusually Late.

NEW LISKEARD, Oct. 9.—Farmers of South Temiskaming will remember 1923 as one of the latest harvests in the history of the north. Every effort is now being made to complete the belated gathering of the grain crop and despite the rain, which proved so discouraging a feature of September, there are hopes that the yield will be as heavy as was originally anticipated. On Friday and Saturday last stocks were standing in a blanket of snow, but most of the fields are now finally cleared.

OPTIMISM THE CURE.

Quotations from Government reports and the press of Canada are, no doubt, about as accurate as anything that can be had covering such a broad scope of conditions, and if one will read them carefully, note our position in relation to other countries, he will wonder what the West is hollering so much about.

Business depressions always breed a crop of pessimists—the kind of gloomy individuals who, consciously or unconsciously, spread a feeling of discouragement to all whom they meet.

What business needs now is a vigorous army of optimists—men and women who will look on the best side of things.

Let us get right back to whole-hearted, hard, intelligent effort and apply it aggressively to each problem as it comes along. Continual hammering on this line coupled with economy in living will accomplish results which everyone wants and everyone can have.

Practice optimism in the home, in the shop and in contact with everyone whom you meet in your daily life and an atmosphere of happiness and contentment will be built up which will spread and radiate its influence so strongly that even the grouchy, discontented ones will be better off for it.

Our whole country is calling for optimists today! Be one, and help the good work along! He who helps others, helps himself.

THE PROPER COURSE.

Public opinion will support the Ontario Government in the stand that it has taken in refusing to grant the application of the London Jockey Club for a license to operate a race course at Niagara Falls, Ont.

There are many things that Ontario needs, but another race meet is not one of them.

The object in endeavouring to locate a course at Niagara Falls is readily apparent.

Situated on the border, a track at the Falls would attract thousands of visitors from the United States, who would welcome the opportunity to gamble and many of them the chance to do business with the Canadian bootleggers who would naturally congregate in the vicinity during racing week.

It would be a pity indeed to have this magnificent tourist resort debauched by the illicit traffic in several lines that would inevitably be associated with a race meet.

There are tracks enough already in the Province, and although the Government's share of the revenue derived from such a source would doubtless be welcome, the Cabinet has taken the proper attitude in flatly refusing to endorse the proposal which, for the enrichment of a few individuals, would turn Niagara Falls for a week or two each year at least into a maelstrom of gamblers, bootleggers, drug pedlars, and worse.

A GREAT INDUSTRY.

Speakers at a meeting in Chatham the other day called for the purpose of booming the Bluewater highway along the shore of Lake Huron, developed a point that is often overlooked when they declared that the tourist traffic in Ontario should be regarded not as an incident, but as industry.

They were right.

The tourist traffic in this Province has, thanks to the motor car, become one of the biggest industries we have, and it should be regarded as such.

During the past few years a steadily increasing army of visitors has poured into Ontario from across the international line.

The license numbers of every border State and many States that are not on the border are to be seen on the streets of Ontario cities and at the hotels of Ontario's lake and river resorts.

The visitors who come in these cars all have money, and as a rule they spend it freely for food supplies, gasoline, motor repairs, souvenirs and many other articles, the total expended in this way during each tourist season being beyond anything dreamed of a few years ago.

No wonder the tourist traffic is called an industry, for many thousands of dollars are involved each year, and directly or indirectly everybody shares in the benefit of the immense distribution of money.

It is of the greatest importance therefore that every effort should be made to increase the traffic.

THE G.W.V.A. CAMPAIGN.

The membership campaign being conducted by the local branch of the G.W.V.A. should commend itself to Peterborough's returned soldiers generally for two reasons

In the first place, there is need of new blood in the local organization.

And secondly, the fact that the Dominion Command of the G.W.V.A. is without funds, and as a result much of its work will have to be suspended, should cause a renewed interest in the objects of the G.W.V.A. and a resolve that the movement shall carry on.

Upon the health of the branches depends, of course, the health of the central body, and until the local organizations are placed on a sound footing it cannot be expected that the Dominion Command will be able to pick up its splendid work on behalf of returned soldiers and the dependents of their comrades who failed to return.

That work has been very efficiently done in the past, and there can be nothing but admiration for the manner in which the officials in charge have discharged their obligations towards the men they represented.

Their leadership has been sane and sound, and the returned soldiers of this country owe a great deal more than some of them imagine to the constant fight for justice fought by the Dominion officers of the War Veterans' Association.

The S.O.S. call has now gone out, and it should meet with a quick response from the men who fought.

Here in Peterborough the result should be a greatly increased membership in the local branch of the organization.

GET EXPERT ADVICE.

The offer of the Ontario Safety League to have Capt. Saunders, one of their officials, make a personal inspection of the city's bathing places with a view to recommending means of making the water-front safe, should be accepted by the City Council.

There is every reason to feel that the civic bathing places are far from as safe as they should be at present, and it would be a wise precaution to secure advice from an expert as to what can best be done to ensure the safety, so far as is possible, of the hundreds of bathers who each season visit the city's beaches.

There are conditions at both Inverlea Park and the Lake street beach that should be corrected, and the work might as well be done properly when the services of an expert are available at a trifling cost.

It is a long time until the next bathing season, but in the meantime the Council can consider what is needed to protect the young people next summer and be ready with a plan of action when it comes time to open the beaches again.

Now is the time to consider this matter—not after a drowning accident has caused attention to be focused on the question of better protection and more efficient supervision.

CURZON AND THE CONFERENCE.

The extracts which were cabled to us of Lord Curzon's review of the foreign relations of the Empire since the meeting of the last Imperial Conference, would seem to have been informative and convincing. We have some hesitation in expressing this opinion in view of the hostile attitude of quite a section of the London press. But much of that criticism was no doubt partizan—we occasionally have displays of partizan bias in this country—and some may have been inspired by personal feeling against the Foreign Minister. Whatever crimes Lord Curzon has been accused of, he has never been charged with popularity.

It surely was not Lord Curzon's duty to meet the Conference of Overseas Premiers on his very first appearance before them with a cut-and-dried program. A future program is precisely what they are met to confer about. Their conference would possess little reality if the British Foreign Minister were to lay before it, to begin with, a detailed set of policies which they were invited to endorse, holus bolus, by signing on the dotted line. It would be much better surely to have, first, an official report on past incidents and the present situation from the British Minister; then a free discussion by the Premiers and the Minister as to what had best be done now; and finally a formal declaration of policy to which they had all agreed. And that is precisely the program which seems to be in train.

For the facts which Lord Curzon was compelled to report, he may or may not have been chiefly responsible; but to a great extent they were admittedly unsatisfactory. Still this was old news. The Dominions' Premiers knew all about it before they sailed for London. Great Britain has been out-manoeuvred diplomatically ever since the French changed camps in Asia Minor and left her tied by the leg to the discouraged and doomed Greek army. This is not a pleasant story for any one to tell; but it had to be told, and the question now is: What is to be done about it in the future?

* * * * *

We must presume that Lord Curzon told the conference a great many things which have not been published to the world. That is what chiefly they went over to hear—presuming they went to "hear" and not to "tell." Doubtless in these secret statements and in the man-to-man discussions which will follow, he may well have given them his ideas as to what the Empire should now do.

It is to be hoped that there will be few set speeches before the delegates have had plenty of time for open and full discussion. We do not particularly want to hear what the Dominions' Premiers thought about British foreign policy before they left home, but rather what they think about it after getting confidential information and taking part in a business-like discussion. The premature set speech is apt to harden a public man's position in advance, and make it more difficult for him to take a different line on fuller consideration.

Of course, all the Premiers will say that they must refer every decision to their home Parliaments for final ratification. They are not autocrats—they are democratic leaders of democratic countries. They must carry their Parliaments and their electorates with them in any policy. This all goes without saying; and the saying of it in public will not affect the situation by a hair's breadth. The real question is what these Premiers will finally decide to recommend to their Parliaments.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Fire Prevention Week can only be a success if you recognize your responsibility and remember it during the next fifty-two weeks.

Children poured coal-oil on a fire and six little lives were lost. That is the warning Vancouver sends out during Fire Prevention Week.

One message Lloyd George delivered at Montreal should not be forgotten. He said: "Your first patriotism is your city. The next is to your Province. The next is the Dominion; you are Canadians. Your next to the British Empire. That is not the end. Your great next is humanity."

The only trouble about the round-up of the escaped convicts in Hamilton the other day was that the men wanted were not there.

The American Federation of Labour has again denounced Communism. The Russian plan makes no impression upon this continent.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Well, scientists found eggs six inches long in Mongolia, which may make our hens mad.

Scientists found 70 fossil skulls well preserved, showing all fossils are hard headed.

Mongolian discovery is greatest known in paleontology. They even found what that words means.

All of these dinosaurs dug up in Mongolia lived in a cave, proving rents were high then.

Discoveries only date back a few million years, so first coal strike is not among them.

If they bring these Mongolian fossils into America the things may run for Congress.

Had King Tut dresses last winter. Found dinosaurs now. Dinosaurs went naked. Look out!

Seems as if scientists are able to dig up about everything except pre-war prices.

If they go far enough into these Mongolian relics they may find a nickel cigar.

Better bring these scientists back to America and let them try digging for coal.

Dinosaur bones are great big things so rheumatism must have been terrible in those days.

Of course huge dinosaur eggs were found by egg-sperts.

Bet the ancient dinosaur had to crow like a cannon after laying eggs six inches long.

Imagine an ancient little boy carefully trudging homeward with an egg on his shoulder.

When huge dinosaur eggs were common, ham and eggs were probably a ham and an egg.

Ancient picnics were bad. Think of forgetting the salt for a boiled egg six inches long.

These huge eggs they found are millions of years old. Bet they found them in a cafe.

Perhaps these ancient eggs are so big it only takes about ten of them to make a dozen.

Mongolia, with six-inch eggs a million years old, must be a bad place for actors.

Fossils a million years old have good teeth. Wonder what kind of tooth paste they used?

Dinosaurs walked on four feet. Hope their discovery doesn't start a dinosaur dance.

RESTRICTIONS IN THE MOVEMENT OF CORN

PORT HOPE, Oct. 10.—In a treatise on "The Destructive Insect and Pest Act" and the regulations existing in its connection, the Department of Agriculture has issued restrictions affecting the movement of corn and corn products from certain areas in the Province of Ontario on account of the European corn borer. The restricted areas include the township of Brighton in Northumberland County and the townships of Darlington and Clarke in Durham County, along with other Ontario municipalities.

The Act provides that in the areas comprised within these municipalities, the removal of corn fodder or corn stalks, including broom corn, whether used for packing or other purposes, green sweet corn, roasting ears, corn on the cob or corn cobs is prohibited.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, October 10. — Though not at all satisfactory to shippers Monday's market at the Union Stock Yards finished better than anticipated. Of the 5,600 cattle on sale 3,400 were disposed of and prices were fully steady in any of the good butchers

Receipts yeterday morning were: 520 cattle, 265 calves, 1,677 hogs and 1,260 sheep and lambs. The exporters took around 250 head of steers on Monday. The Ontario's brought $7.00 to $7.50 a cwt., and two loads of heavy coarse Westerns were taken at $5.75 a cwt.

Most of yesterday morning's trade consisted in picking over left-overs and getting concessions. J. Wilson sold a load of 1,200-pound steers at $6.25 a cwt., that had been held in the market two weeks and had cost the shippers $7.65 a cwt. in the country. A lot of the in-between stuff was being sorted out to go back to the country and packers were getting some of the poor killers at pretty much their own prices. Light heifers were taken for slaughter at 4 cents a pound.

There was a steady demand for bologna bulls at 3 cents a pound, and canner cows at about 1 3-4 cents. About 100 Western cows sold fairly well this week, but they were good and the prices ran from 3 1-8 to 5 cents. There is an unfilled demand for good to choice butchers, and these are bringing 6 1-2 to 7 cents a pound.

Stockers and feeders are selling reasonably steady, but the trade is none too brisk. A nice type of 800 to 900 pound steer is fetching 5 1-4 cents, and fair yearlings 3 1-2 cents. A load of Western black feeders were sent on to Pennsylvania on Monday, as they could not be sold here at 6 cents a pound.

Handyweight finished calves are selling quite steady and firm from 10 to 11 cents a pound. These, however, are not choice. Heavier calves are bringing 2 to 3 cents lower.

A good many of yesterday's lambs were quickly sold early at 12 1-2 cents a pound, a further advance of 50 cents a cwt. The light run contributed to this strength. Breeders are taking most of the ewe sheep offering at about 7 1-2 cents, and the packers are taking few as this price is considered too high. Fred Dunn sold one deck of lambs shipped by R. P. Maloney, of Peterborough, at 12 3-4 cents a pound.

Packers secured a number of hogs late on Monday at $8.25 a cwt. f.o.b. and following this success they are going to try to effect another 50 cents a cwt. cut for Wednesday's loadings.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.— Heavy selling on the part of recent buyers broke down values in the wheat market to-day. The selling appeared to be largely a result of disappointment the wheat conference here gave no promise of immediate farm relief. Closing prices were unsettled 1 3-8c. to 2 3-8 and 1-2c. net lower, with December $1.07 5-8 and 3-4 to $1.07 3-4, and May $1.12 1-4 to $1.12 3-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1 1-8c. decline to 1-8c. gain, oats 1-4 and 3-8c. to 3-4 and 7-8c. down, and provisions showing two to 22 cents fall.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.— The market for fresh continues very firm. Receipts are lighter in Ontario and the east, and considerably lighter and firmer in British Columbia. In the Prairie provinces, the situation generally is governed by the consumptive conditions at production points. Until threshing operations cease there is very little likelihood of any extensive shipping of farm products to consuming centres. As a result of this receipts of fresh eggs are practically nil in the Prairie provinces.

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.— Receipts, 460 cattle and calves; 290 hogs and 14 sheep.

There was a fairly active demand for the limited offerings available on the cattle market this morning. Prices were firmer and 25 cents above Saturday's close.

The hog market maintained a steady tone. Thick smooths sold at $9.00 and select bacons at $9.90.

Trading in the sheep and lamb market was light.

It was evident early that the action of the Wheat Conference here in planning a new co-operative marketing association had failed to encourage confidence in a continued upward tendency of prices. Absence of fresh buying was so noticeable that selling pressure quickly increased and the volume of offering became more of a burden than the market could withstand. Rallying power seemed to be almost entirely lacking, and the close was at near the bottom figures of the day. Bears pointed out the new co-operative association even if finally successful, could only function after the lapse of considerable time, as the plan would be inoperative until fifty per cent. of growers in the nine principal States had joined the organization.

Under such circumstances, the plan would apparently offer little help so far as this year's is concerned.

Although contract grades of corn for immediate delivery commanded $1.06 a bushel, the highest price this season, future deliveries went down with wheat. Oats followed.

Grain Clearances Below the Average.

FORT WILLIAM, Oct. 9.—Grain clearances dropped to-day to a figure considerably below the average which must be maintained if there is to be no congestion in elevators here incidental to the handling of the season's yield in western Canada.

Clearances to-day amounted to a total of 1,517,000 bushels of which 1,060,000 was wheat. There were a few United States' boats in the list. Ten boats are under the spouts to-day. Most of them carry between 200,000 and 300,000 bushels.

Seven boats of average capacity are up-bound light for grain.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 10.—The services in the different local churches Sunday were well attended and also of an interesting character.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. D. A. Bremner in charge, the annual W. M.S. Sunday was observed, and also the annual Thankoffering of the Womens' Missionary Society. This was followed in the afternoon by an interesting promotion exercise in the Sunday school. Mr. and Mrs. Williard of Stratford who are applicants respectively for the position of choir director and organist were in charge of the musical part of the service.

The Methodist Church.

At the Methodist church where the pastor, Rev. R. F. Stillman, is just winning esteem and kind regard from his congregation the usual services were held. But this church is attempting a rather unique program this week, which, it is hoped, will have a far-reaching influence for good. A thorough visiting scheme of the church's constituency is to be put into effect. The town has been divided into subdivisions and thiry couples are appointed to do the canvassing between Monday and Friday. Every home of Methodist adherence is to be visited. It is hoped by this plan to secure a larger attendance at the church services and also at all the meetings of the different departments of work. At the Sunday School, the Young People's meeting and the prayer meeting.

"The Men of Methodism" have again got busy and have decided to put on their first supper on October 25. These social gatherings for the men, both young and old, were held throughout the winter season of 1921-1922 and proved very successful, and even greater success is being aimed at this year.

St. Peter's Church.

At St. Peter's Anglican church, the popular rector, Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers, a former Peterboro rector by the way, was in charge of the services.

Canon Sawers was assisted in the morning service by Rev. J. S. Harrington.

The Baptist Church.

At the Baptist church, Rev. J. N. Norton, pastor, has commenced a series of sermons on "The Christian," and tok as the theme of an able sermon last evening, "What is it to be a Christian?" Rev. Dr. Haggard preached at the morning service and also addressed the Methodist Sunday school in the afternoon.

Congregational Church.

The Congregational churches of Cobourg and Coldsprings are still privileged in having the services of Rev. James W. Pedley, Toronto, the son of a former well-beloved pastor, and a member of a family whose name is indissolubly connected with Congregationalism in this district.

Camborne Anniversary Services.

The Methodist congregation at the little village of Camborne, five miles from here, held interesting Jubilee services ysterday as it was the occasion of the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversay of the building of their church. Rev. Wesley Down of Yacher, under whose pastorate this laudable enterprise originated and was successfully carried out was the preacher for the day and delivered two fine sermons to large congregations both morning and evening. The music was under the direction of the pastor, Rev. F. J. Horwood.

Monday night the celebration was further continued in the form of a fowl supper, at which the speakers were Rev. Wesley Down, Yacher; Rev. R. F. Stillman, Cobourg, antoher former pastor; Rev. Archie McLaughlin of Keene and the resident ministers. In addition to local talent, Mrs. Vanalstine, Port Hope and Mrs. Foster, Dowmanville, were heard in pleasing solos and duets.

Renowned Musicians Here.

Tonight the world renowned musicians the Rhondda Welsh Male Glee Singers gave a concert in Victoria Opera House under auspices of the Cobourg Women's Music Study Club. This is a very energectic organizations and has been the means of bringing a number of notable musicians to Cobourg, who possibly otherwise would not have visited our town.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Bereaved.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Anderson of this town have the very deep sympathy of citizens because of the death of their young daughter, Vera Ann, aged eight years. The young girl had the measles last winter, a disease that all too often leaves distressing after effects. She was left with an apparent weakness of the heart. Being seized with pneumonia, she passed away after a short illness. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. R. F. Stillman, and the interment was in Cobourg Union Cemetery. Besides her parents two younger children are left in the home.

Circulars Sent Out.

Chief John C. Ruse of this town has sent out circulars describing the two valuable rugs which were recently stolen from "Ravensworth", the residence of the late General Fitzhugh here. It is thought that the perpetrators of the robbery may have been the same parties who broke into Mr. Harry Fitzhugh's basement a short time ago.

This memorial, the first of this nature in the Apsley Mission, was the gift of scholars of St. Stephen's Sunday School, whose teacher is Mrs. Philip Tanner of Chandos and some years ago a member of the congregation of St. John's church, Peterborough. WOMEN'S ABSENCE PERTURBS POLICE

Twin Cities Searching For Missing Woman of Seventy

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., October 10 (Canadian Press). — All Fort William and Port Arthur are searching for information of Mrs. Fancher, a woman of seventy years, who, thirteen days ago, left an automobile driven by her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. E. Berringer, in West Fort William, at 9 o'clock at night, saying she intended going towards the Indian Mission to hire a servant girl.

The mission is about five miles from the point where she left Mrs. Berringer.

Mrs. Fancher never reached the mission. It is doubtful if she intended going there because she was too poor to hire a maid. Drawing relief from the city of Port Arthur, where she lived with her sister-in-law.

Another mystifying angle of the story is that she had given out her intention to live in her own house in future.

Newspapermen visited the property yesterday morning and saw only a shack made of old packing cases, and say it is unfit for human habitation.

WOULD REMOVE

gestions by strong arguments which it may be supposed will have great influence upon the British Ministers, who already have been accused of coquetting with the idea of protection,, although both Premier Baldwin and his predecessor, Mr. Bonar Law, have repeatedly declared themselves in the present Parliament, pledging no change in the present fiscal policy, and, above all, that they would not place protective duties on foodstuffs.

The Labor organs have long predicted the coming of a big struggle —free trade versus protection—and to-day's concession to the Dominions will be regarded by them as an advance in the way of protection which will be fought to the utmost in Parliament.

Might Cause Election.

The British Cabinet is a Conservative cabinet and if the party organization declares in favor of Premier Bruce's tariff proposals, the Cabinet would almost certainly be bound to acquiesce, but in that case would, under the existing pledges, need to dissolve Parliament and appeal to the country. Presumably the proposals the Government made to-day could be adopted by Parliament without infringing the free trade pledges.

The subject of overseas settlement occupied the attention of the conference for a time to-day. The discussion ended with the decision to establish a committee to investigate the entire question with a view to the adoption of any profitable scheme.

It would appear that the idea that unemployment can be solved by emigration must be abandoned. The Minister of Labor emphasized that overseas settlement must not be regarded as a means of relieving British unemployment, while the Australian Premier, Stanely M. Bruce, insisted that it would be impossible for Australia to absorb immigrants until she found markets for her products.

Australia Needs Markets.

Premier Bruce explained that Australia had settled her own returned soldiers on the land and now was faced with the dilemma of what to do with the enormously increased production, and the Government had been compelled to come to the relief of the fruit growers.

Sir Phillip Lloyd-Greame, president of the Board of Trade, took up at the afternoon session the question of Imperial preference, which, he said, was already an established fact and an underlying principle of the Government policy. The value of Imperial preference, he added, lay in the increased purchasing power of the dominions themselves.

The British people realized that the dominions were unable to take settlers in large numbers unless they were absolutely sure their products would find a market. He then unfolded his scheme for the import of dried fruits from the dominions, duty free.

G. P. Graham, in behalf of Canada, said that it was not desired to force any fiscal system on the British Government, but they would be glad to accept any help, and Canada gratefully accepted the British offer.

No serious earthquake has been felt in England since 1350.

The Monthly Cheque — That Never Fails

How the Money was Lost

"You see I had only a few thousand dollars left after the estate was settled—and my brother borrowed some to help him along; of course that went and then—

I simply had to help father with his business, he was so worried—and I thought it best to make an investment at once. Well that failed—and, really, if it were not for the monthly income cheque from the Canada Life I don't know how I should be getting along now."

It is all so simple and effective!

Just a few dollars set aside regularly, and the Canada Life will guarantee to your home a continuous monthly income.

What a relief to know that no matter what may happen, the monthly cheque that never fails, issued regularly by the Canada Life, will come to your home!

"Your present Life Insurance will perhaps "clear the mortgage," pay off the obligations of your estate, and leave something for your family, but

Consider This:

Financial problems should not be thrust upon a woman who is not used to business deals.

Therefore in addition to a "lump sum" of money, you should provide a definite income that cannot fail—

Because a weekly or monthly income is the natural thing for most people—

And a woman can keep a family together on even a small income, provided it is regular.

Moreover, the hands of unscrupulous men are always outstretched for money held by the unwary.

The Monthly Income Plan

Will solve the problem.

Only a few dollars saved and set aside from your regular earnings can be multiplied into a substantial income for your Beneficiary. You will be surprised to learn what a reasonable proposition can be made to you.

A NEW RECORD IN GRAIN SHIPMENTS

Activity on C. N. R. Midland Division Exceeds All Previous Experience

LINDSAY, October 10. — A new record in grain shipments on the C. N. R. Midland to Belleville, was reached on Sunday, when 400 cars passed through Lindsay from the northern terminal. The average haul since the grain rush commenced has been 300 cars per day.

Never in the history of this division has there been such activity in grain shipments, and the end is not yet.

This year all the traffic which formerly went east from Depot Harbor, over the old Canada Atlantic line, passes through Lindsay.

Another important contribuution to the increased activity is the installation of high power engines.

There are seven engines of the Consolidated type and two of the Mikado type engaged in hauling grain. The Mikados are capable of hauling 42 laden cars and 80 empties, and the Consolidated engines 35 laden and 70 empties.

Railway employees from Allandale Ottawa and other centres are being brought to Lindsay to assist in handling the grain.

NEW CHURCH SHED FOR JANETVILLE

Accommodation For Ninety Cars in the Big Structure.

JANETVILLE, October 8. — Anniversary services were held yesterday at Ballyduff, both afternoon and evening, and Rev. Mr. Wesley, of Norwood, who was the preacher of the day, rendered excellent service.

Sunday was a great day in the Methodist church. The appeal for the Japan Emergency Fund was presented by Mr. Blatherwick, at the request of the pastor and envelopes were distributed, which will be returned with the offering of the people on Sunday next. The congregations are gradually increasing, and last evening the audience was the largest that has yet greeted the present pastor.

Young People's Work.

On Thursday evening last the young people of Mount Horeb were organized into a very healthy Epworth League, and promises to do excellent work.

On Friday evening the Young folks of Janetville were organized into all the departments of the young peoples' work. The religious interests of the young folks were given into the charge of the pastor.

Rally Day.

This anniversary was eminently successful. The amount of $40.00 was raised by collection for the object presented.

The "Children's Home Mission Band" was held yesterday afternoon and was well attended. Mrs. (Rev.) Ross had charge of the musical part of the programme and her effort was received with the deepest apreciation.

Incidents by the Way.

While Mr. David Belch of Mount Horeb, in company with his sister, was driving away from church yesterday afternoon, the steering gear gave way, and the car turned completely around on the road. Mr.Belch kept his head, and the car kept right side up, and there was no harm done. However, there being a little of the steering apparatus in tact, Mr. Belch started slowly for home.

The Community Shed.

This term may well be applied to the new shed at Janetville. This building is 180 feet long, 50 feet wide, and 40 feet from the ground at the highest point of the roof. The outside sheeting is galvanized iron, and it is one of the most comfortable buildings of its kind in the province. It is the Methodist church shed, but, like the church, is free to all but stray cattle.

A cement floor is being laid along each side of the building, which will be 12 feet wide. The work is under the supervision of Mr. John McGee and is in good hands

In this great structure 90 motor cars or 60 span of horses can easily be sheltered.

The next move is likely to be the establishing of a plant to light the Methodist church, parsonage, and shed, with electricity.

TIME STRENGTHENED BOND THAT UNITED THIS COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Oddie, of Seymour East, Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary of Wedding.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Oddie, who reside in Seymour East township, near Burnbrae, Tuesday, this week, celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding day. It is given to few to live to witness that day, and fewer still to observe it under the same happy conditions as those which bless this aged couple. Mr. and Mrs. Oddie are the parents of 11 children and death has not yet made a gap in the family circle. Father and mother are still hale and hearty. Time has strengthened the bonds which united them when they stood at the altar so many years ago. They are supposed to be living a retired life on one of their farms, but those who know them intimately say that they always find some useful task which they are happy to undertake and which they perform with as much enthusiasm as ever.

To Mr. and Mrs. Oddie it seems but yesterday that their golden anniversary was celebrated. The intervening decade has brought few changes in their existence. Ten years ago all of their 11 children were present at the celebration.

Born in Seymour

Mr. Oddie is one of the few survivors of the native-born pioneers of Seymour. He was born in that township on 29th of October 82 years ago. His mother died when he was young and his father went to the United States, where he made his future home, leaving his son to the care of relatives. When Thomas grew up he went to Pickering where, on 9th October, 1863, he was married to Mary Jane Munro, by the late Rev. M. McFayden, a Methodist minister. Mrs. Oddie, who is five years younger than her husband, is a sister of the late Robert J. Munro, well known in Peterboro during his life time as the proprietor of the Munro House in that city.

Return to Seymour

Three days after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Oddie were settled on the farm across the road from their present home, on which they spent so many years of active life, and which is now owned by their youngest son. At that time the late Dr. Neill, who for over half a century was pastor of the Burnbrae church, was in the heyday of his career, and this young couple were numbered among the first members of the congregation. Of their contemporaries there are few survivors.

There was nothing eventful in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Oddie. They toiled early and late, clearing up their bush farm and the years brought them increasing prosperity.

They have lived to see all of their 11 children settled in life, each one successful in his or her vocation. The members of the unbroken family circle are as follows: Annie (Mrs. H. Donald) of Seymour; John, the well known breeder of Ayrshire cattle, Seymour; William, of Cleveland, Ohio; Jessie (Mrs. W. A. Ingram of Fernie, B.C.; Gilbert, of Manitoba; Mellville, of Portland, Oregon; Jennie (Mrs. William Varcoe) of Windsor; Alexander of St. Catharines; Lena (Mrs. John Thompson) of Seymour East; Ina (Mrs. John Rannie of Seymour East, and Percy R., on the homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Oddie have 23 grand children. Two of these, Roy Varcoe of Windsor and Andrew Ingram of Fernie, B. C., lost their lives in the war. Their son, Alexander, spent three years in active service overseas.

Rev. John Moore, of Strathroy, who for 15 years was pastor of Burnbrae church, and who officiated at the marriage of six of the Oddie children, was a guest at the anniversary Tuesday. Mr. Moore has been taking the services at Burnbrae for the past two Sundays during the absence of Rev. J. J. Black, on his vacation.

TORONTO'S WELCOME TO VISITOR IS SUGGESTIVE FUTURE GENERATIONS

David Lloyd George Greeted by Thousands of School Children Who Welcomed Great Man in That Whole-Hearted Way Only Little Folks Can Assume

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.)— First impressions of Toronto presented for Right Hon. David Lloyd George and his party were tumultuously suggestive of coming generations. Thousands of school children, released from lessons to see Britain's distinguished war premier, lined the route from the Union Station to his first appointment here this morning and greeted him in that whole hearted way that only great crowds of children can.

Lloyd George and his party arrived about 8 a.m. and after a preliminary reception by civic and Ontario Provincial authorities, motored to Christie street permanent military hospital, where some hundreds of entirely disabled and partially incapacitated soldiers are quartered.

Following this visit the party proceeded to the City Hall, where a formal civic address was read by Mayor Maguire in the presence of a large throng.

This afternoon, after lunching at Government House, Lloyd George will deliver his address to the World Brotherhood convention. To-night there will be a dinner at Government House. Dame Lloyd George and Miss Megan will be guests at various functions during the day.

To-morrow the party will proceed to Niagara Falls, via Hamilton and St. Catharines, according to the present programme.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.
Here's an easy way to save $1, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Special mention should be made of the decorations which were beautiful, consisting mostly of asters and autumn leaves.

The Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church held their opening meeting for the year on Monday evening, with the President Mr. John Storie, occupying the chair. The meeting took the form of a rally the young people being the guests of the executive. About fifty responded to the invitation.

During the devotional period the report of the Young People's Rally, held in Peterborough last week, was given by Miss Emma Meiklejohn, Miss Lillian Hay, and Rev. Mr. McIntosh.

In the business period it was decided to forward to Mr. Williams, missionary in Formosa, a number of books essential to his work among his young people.

The social hour was spent in community singing which proved to be an interesting feature under the leadership of Mr. Wigglesworth. Refreshments were served and the meeting was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some deranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or any one else.

For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Toronto, Ont.—"My work is to run a power-machine which is very heavy, and I had a pain in my left side and a weakness caused by getting my feet wet. It was only a few days later when I saw your advertisement in the paper and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash. The pain left my side and the weakness disappeared after I took the first bottle of Vegetable Compound, but I took five in all and used two of the Wash. I didn't have a physician and I didn't take any other medicine. If this letter will help you you may use it."—Mrs. KATY KELLY, 21 Sullivan St., Toronto, Ont. C

Nova Scotia Woman Helped

Scotsburn, N. S.—"I have been bothered for over three years with a weak side caused by female illness. At times it has bothered me so that my side ached so I could feel it way to my toes. I took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it helped me considerably, and I intend taking more as I know the results will be good. I saw the medicine advertised in the newspapers, and before I had finished the first bottle of it, noticed a difference in my health. I hope every woman who has female troubles will try it."—Mrs. JOHN R. MCLEOD, R.R.1, Scotsburn, N. S.

Pains In Side

Portreeve, Sask.—"My sides would get so sore and pain so that I would be unable to move around. I felt just as if there was a weight bearing the abdomen down. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound from a neighbor who took it, and that soreness has left me. I live on a farm and have housework to do. If this letter will help any woman who suffers from female troubles you can use it. I know of no better medicine than the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. C. MATTICE, Portreeve, Sask.

CHEESE DROPPED NEARLY 4 CENTS

Sellers Were Chary Of Accepting the Low Price But Finally Capitulated —912 Boxes Boarded.

Cheese was sold on the Peterborough Board this morning only after a lengthy conference between the sellers who were chary of accepting the comparatively low price offered. their patrons they said, would require an accounting at their hands if the price increased next week. The highest price offered was 19 7-8 representing a drop from last board of 3 7-16 cents and a drop of 3 13-16 cents from the season's record on the local board. There were 912 boxes boarded.

Old days were recalled by members of the Board when cheese was down in price to what would to-day be the vanishing point. Secretary Hawthorne remarked that in 1880 the retail price of cheese here was 7 cents a pound, and others remembered a wholesale price of 6 and 7 cents.

It was remarked that this did not help the present situation at all, the buyers saying no cheese was bought last week.

Opened at 19 1-2 cents

J. S. Cooke, buying for W. S. Cooke and Son opened the bidding at 19 1-2 cents and bid alternately with G. A. Gillespie and W. E. Fanning to the high at 19 7-8 taking 349 boxes at that price. W. E. Fanning took the remainder on second selection at the same price. G. Thompson, buyer for the A. A. Ayer Co., Montreal, did not bid. L. T. Braden who presided said he believed the drop in price is caused by imports of cheese from other countries.

Factories boarding cheese were as follows: Warminster, 72; Warsaw, 125; Oakdale 100; Young's Point 100; North Dummer 52; East Emily 100; Cedardale 50; Star 45; Dunsford 55; Buckhorn 45; South Burleigh 30; Killarney 138.

His costume differed in almost every detail from th, "correct form" laid down by "Lord Renfrew."

MRS. LLOYD GEORGE PLEASED WITH TOUR

Inclined to Be Modest and Retiring, Will Come Out for Good Cause.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press). — Dame Margaret Lloyd George, who with her youngest daughter, Miss Megan accompanied her distinguished husband to Ottawa, expressed her unbounded delight in their present tour.

Dam. Margaret is much interested in social welfare—temperance to be more explicit—which to her does not mean prohibition, but rather education of the masses to the failings of the excessive use of alcohol.

Inclined to be modest and retiring, she yet will come out for a good cause. She has taken the stump for her husband and has reputation as a fluent speaker. Her favorite place is home she says, where all her old friends are, and where she may talk with her husband and with them in their native language, Welsh.

A LECTURE ON

to develop in their sons the home instinct, which in later years may save their wives much unhappiness and may save their homes from disaster. This home instinct, which Dr. McCuaig described. was declared to be natural to every boy as well as to the girl and may be developed by teaching the boy love of order and cleanliness in the home. It is detrimental to a boy to have a woman, either mother, sister, or maid, as the case may be, always picking up his toys and putting away his carelessly thrown coat and cap for him, asserted the lecturer. He should be made to do these things for himself and to help with household tasks.

Boys should be taught to love helpless creatures, said Dr. McCuaig in discussing the moral training of the boy. A boy's love for a helpless animal brings out the fatherhood that is dormant within him.

A boy cannot be taught nomelife apart from God; neither can he be taught anything relating to sex apart from God, the speaker declared. The boy, he said, should be instructed and prepared for the change from boyhood to manhood as definitely and carefully as the girl is instructed and prepared for the change in her. life when she passes physically from girlhood into womanhood.

During the course of his lecture Dr. McCuaig read the following rules published in an eastern city to be observed by girls in avoiding the dangers that beset their lives:

"Girls should never speak to strangers, either men or women, in the street, in shops, in stations, in trains, in lonely country roads, or in places of amusement.

"Girls should never ask the way of any but officials on duty, such as policemen, railway officials, or postmen.

"Girls should never stay to help a woman who apparently faints at their feet in the street, but should immediately call a policeman to their aid.

"Girls should never accept an invitation to join a Sunday school or Bible class given to them by strangers, even if the strangers are wearing the dress of sisters or nuns or are in clerical attire.

"Girls should never go to an address given to them by a stranger.

"Girls should never go with a stranger even if the stranger is dressed as a hospital nurse, or believe stories of their relatives having suffered accident or having been taken ill suddenly, as this is a common device to kidnap girls.

"Girls should never accept candy food, a glass of water or smell flowers offered to them by strangers. Neither should they buy scents or food or candy at their doors. Any of these things may contain drugs.

"Girls should never take situations without first making inquiries through a society active or affiliated in travellers' aid work.

"Girls should never go to any large town, even for one night, without knowing of a safe lodging."

A FEW HINTS ON THE CARE MANURE SPREADER

The manure spreader is generally much neglected, due to the character of the work that the machine performs. When men neglect to oil machines that are free from filth their inclination to take care of the manure spreader is almost negative. The use of hard oil or grease cups on all bearings possible is advised. One filling will take care of the requirement for a week if the machine is receiving intelligent care. On those bearings where grease cups are not practical, provision should be made for easy accessibility and also protection from foreign matter. The work performed by the mechanisms that drive the beater and also move the heavily laden conveyer is much greater than the average farm man appreciated, hence the neglect to apply ample lubrication. Worn and broken drive chains, sprocket wheels and worm gears with the costly delays consequent on their replacement is generally the result of neglect to lubricate. An oil can kept well filled can do much to aid in getting the full efficiency out of your investment. At the end of the period of use the spreader should be cleaned by using a broom and a stream of water from a hose. When clean the machine should be exposed to the sun long enough to dry, oiling of all bearings and rollers should follow. The metal parts should be brushed over with a light mineral oil or grease and the spreader then stored in a dry shed.

Sketches By J. H. Striebel

By Robert Quillen

Simon Clark

Simon Clark worked as a clerk down at the railway station, trucked freight, wheeled the incoming mail from the station to the post office in a ramshackle cart, and made himself generally useful. He was very bow-legged and had a nose ridiculously long, and because he had little to say a great many people thought he wasn't very ambitious, and might have been trucking freight still except for a joke.

One year there were seven candidates for Justice of the Peace, and because some of them were wholly unfit, some wags got together and placed Simon's name on the ticket in an effort to make the election ridiculous.

Simon wasn't elected. He got only eight votes, but eight was enough. Within a week he was shaving daily and keeping his shoes shined. He began to look people in the eye, and he talked as one having authority. Morever, he talked hard sense.

Next year he was in the State Legislature. Three years later he was County Treasurer. He wasn't much of a public speaker, but he always knew what he was talking about and there was about him the cock-sure air that is common to men who know their business and respect themselves because they know they deserve it

There is talk of running him for Governor, and the worst his critics say concerning him is that he can't take a joke.

Famous Guys

ROBERT BURNS was born with the knack of saying simple things surpassingly well, and handicapped with an environment and temperament that conspired to make him many things a decent white man shouldn't be. He could fashion beautiful lines without pause for breath, but he could with equal celerity fall in love with any comely lass he met; and convention was not permitted to cramp his style in either case.

Because his origin was humble and his youth untutored, he had an unlimited appetited for the flavor of the social elect; but when fortune smiled upon him and he was given a little reward, he straightway lost favor with his muse and his spark of genius was gone.

The world is debtor to Bobby, and because he played the pipes right merrily can forgive his many derelictions. It is debtor to him in another particular, also; for he added his mite to the evidence that success is a very dangerous friend.

In poverty and obscurity, the possessor of a gift will develop and be labor it in a desperate effort to obtain recognition and riches, and while ill fortune bides with him he will do his greatest work. But the crown the world awards his frequently bears the word "Finis;" and when his day of glory begins, his day of honest labor is finished.

Uncle Gus

"I've knowed a lot o' men that wouldn't look me in the eye, an' ever' one of 'em was so ashamed o' bein' yellow that he tried to keep his self-respect by abusin' his wife."

Aunt Het

"Pa is sociable enough. The reason he don't like to go visitin' is because he don't never know whether he'll have a place to put his tobacco juice.' '

THE GIRL AND THE BUTCHER BOY

Here Come's The Bride!

"The girl across the street stood church and became the wife of in front of the pulpit of the Baptist Hiram, the butcher boy."

At high noon Friday, in the presence of the entire community, the girl across the street stood in front of the pulpit of the Baptist church and became the wife of Hiram, the butcher boy. Hiram was white and obviously petrified from the ears up, and he made the responses in a hoarse whisper, but he came through the ordeal without other casualty than a wilted collar.

After the ceremony a number of guests motored to the home of the bride's parents, one block east of the church, and enjoyed a dinner of baked hen with dressing and string beans.

At the conclusion of the meal the happy couple left in Hiram's decrepit flivver for the county seat to enjoy a movie show and eat supper at a Greek restaurant. As they walked from the front porch to the flivver, the assembled guests threw rice and old shoes. Hiram's seven-year-old brother, who had been overlooked in the distribution of missiles, threw rocks.

Despite Friday's proverbial affinity with bad luck, the only unfortunate incident of the day occurred on the front porch as the excited couple began to say their farewells. Five young and attractive male cousins of the girl's—one of them a cousin twice removed—took advantage of the occasion and the relationship to kiss tthe bride. Hiram glowered from the beginning to the ending of the series of salutations, and as he came down the walk, one hand tightly clamped on the girl's arm, he was heard to mutter something to the general effect that cousins didn't look any better to him than anybody else, and he expected to stand up for his rights, and if there was any more of this petting business some slicked-up little stranger would have him to whip.

He need not worry, poor foolish boy. Saturday afternoon the girl sat on the front porch, her face alight with the tenderness that accompanies love's service, and darned his socks. Hiram's mother, it transpired, had studiously avoided this task for eight weeks, in order, as she explained to Aunt Het, that the bride might not begin her married life in idleness, and thus get foolish notions in her head.

Little Willie Willis hitched his bicycle to the rear end of a delivery truck Monday. The truck driver brought him home; and he says is was an old bicycle and not much good anyway.

MAY PUT DUBLIN ON FOOD RATIONS

Deadlock Between Capital and Labor Having Its Effect.

LONDON, Oct. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Belief that Dublin is to be put under rigid food control is expected by the Dublin correspondent of the Morning Post. He says establishment of fixed prices of food and jerhaps for other commodities, is almost certain to come as a result of a deadlock between capital and labor, which is forcing industry to a standstill.

The correspondent adds that there is no scarcity of food in Dublin, and that rationing is unnecessary, but everything is so dear that there seems to be no alternative to compulsory regulation.

THE MALE VOICE CHOIR EXECUTIVE IN SESSION

The Executive members of the Peterboro Male Voice Choir met last night in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms to make final preparations for the beginning of their 1923-24 musical season. All arrangements in detail are in perfect order for the opening rehearsal next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Greene Music Studio, Charlotte Street. A large attendance is already assured, and the event promises to be the most successful opening rehearsal in the history of the organization.

Mr. Martin Chenhall, the new leader of the Choir, arrived during the progress of the meeting last night, and received a great welcome. Mr. Chenhall is taking his duties over seriously, and remarked that a Male Glee Club affords great pleasure to both leader and members, if that spirit of co-operation which is essential is manifest. By the attendance and enthusiasm shown at this meeting he was satisfied the executive would make a great success this year.

Before the meeting closed reference was made to the visit of the Welsh Male Choir to Peterboro, and many members will be found at Murray Street Church to-night to pick up valuable information in the art of male voice work.

WILL CONSIDER REQUEST TO LIBERATE OFFENDERS

PARIS, October 10 (Canadian Press). — A request from the Vatican that the French pardon certain Germans sentenced for political offences in the Ruhr has been presented to General DeGoutte at his headquarters at Dusseldorf by Monsignor Testa, papal representative, according to a Havas despatch.

General DeGoutte, after a lengthy conversation with Monsignor Testa, is said to to have promised sympathetic consideration of the request.

FOUND SIX PENCE LOST MANY YEARS

Kingston Man Remembered Coin He Lost When a Boy Sixty-Four Years Ago.

KINGSTON, Oct. 9th.—(Special.— Playing around his father's bakery as a little boy, sixty-four years ago, William Pillar, one of Kingston's well known citizens, and for many years secretary of the Frontenac Cheese Board, dropped a sixpence in the wainscotting and to the youngster the coin was "losted."

This week workmen are engaged in tearing down the building situated at the corner of Princess and Barrie street, and Mr. Pillar, remembering the exact position where he had dropped the coin, paid a visit to the building and had no trouble whatever in finding the long lost coin, which he naturally prizes very much.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS FOR ACTIVITIES IN RUHR

PARIS, October 10 (Canadian Press). — Herr von Hoesch, German Charge d'Affaires, called on Premier Poincare at eleven o'clock this morning to open direct negotiations between the Berlin and Paris Governments.

He offered the co-operation of the Reich toward the resumption of the normal economic life of the Ruhr.

Premier Poincare replied that inasmuch as negotiations were in progress in the Ruhr with groups of industrialists and labour leaders, he did not consider it advisable to begin further conversations on the same subject.

He informed Herr von Hoesch that when Germany was ready to make a proposition covering the entire reparations question, he would be glad to consider it.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR CAVAN FOLKS

Mr. and Mrs. William McKnight Honored by Relatives and Friends.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 10. — A delightful surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. William McKnight, Seventh Line, Cavan, on Monday evening, when their children and grandchildren gathered at the homestead to celebrate with them the forty-fourth anniversary of their wedding day.

Mr. and Mrs. McKnight were wholly unaware of what was going forward, and were dinner guests at the home of her brother, Mr. D. Hampton, Millbrook. During their absence the immediate relatives took possession of the home, decorating the rooms in a charming color scheme of pink and white asters, with brilliant autumn foliage, and feathery asparagus. The supper table was made very dainty and attractive, the handsome wedding cake, with its quota of candles, supplying a most appropriate centrepiece.

When the "bride and groom" arrived home in the evening and found the festivities which awaited their coming, their surprise, unfeigned and unbounded, could not, indeed, find expression. During the evening the five grandchildren, George, Reg. and Edna, Mary and Dorothy, presented their grandparents with two handsome rattan chairs. On behalf of the family, Mr. R. J. McKnight read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. William McKnight, Cavan.

Dear Bride and Groom of forty-four years ago.—There has been much pleasure in planning this surprise for you on this the evening of the forty-fourth anniversary of your marriage. We come to you as relatives. "Not a very large band," but a band of sincere well-wishers.

We wish to congratulate you and offer our best wishes for your future happiness. Although you have had your troubles during these forty-four years, God has surely been with you and has wonderfully sustained you.

You are surrounded by most of your children, and have much pleasure in their companionship, which is in itself a blessing.

We ask you to kindly accept these chairs as a token of our love and esteem. And as you enjoy them by the fireside in the evening, may you have many pleasant memories. Our prayer is that you may have many more years of health and happiness.

Signed on behalf of the family circle,

"Your Very Own Loved Ones."

Out of a full heart, and as well as his overcharged feelings would permit, Mr. McKnight replied briefly, thanking the family circle, on behalf of his wife and himself, for the tangible tokens of their love, which indeed they had never doubted but which now seemed to have become "the very substance of life." The occasion was one which made doubly true the words, "Verily, they who have no children do not know what love means."

The remainder of the evening passed pleasantly in social intercourse and reminiscences of earlier days, and when its happy conclusion was reached, with hearts warmed and family ties drawn closer, the guests left for their various homes.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John McKnight, Millbrook; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Armstrong, Cavan; Mr. D. Hampton, Miss Agnes Hampton. Mrs. (Dr.) H. Rea, Millbrook; Master George and Master Reginald McKnight, Miss Edna McKnight, Misses Mary and Dorothy Armstrong.

Letters were read from their son, Mr. William McKnight, of Simoon Sound, B. C., and other friends, offering warmest congratulations.

EARTH TREMORS TO-DAY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Earth tremors of pronounced intensity were recorded early to-day on the seismograph at Georgetown University Observatory. Beginning at 2.30 a.m., tremors reached a maximum intensity about thirty minutes later, and continued until 3.48 a.m. Director Tondorf, of the Observatory, estimated the centre of the disturbance to be 3,500 miles distant from Washington, apparently in a southerly direction.

FORMER RESIDENT PETERBORO DEAD

George Jacob Scollie, Aged 86, Passes Away in Fort William.

The death occurred in Fort William on September 29th, of a former resident of Peterboro, in the person of George Jacob Scollie, in his 87th year. The Times-Journal of Fort William, publishes the following account of Mr Scollie's life:

George Jacob Scollie, aged 86 years and 4 months, died at an early hour this morning at McKellar hospital after a brief illness following an injury which happened Saturday afternoon It is stated that the injury itself was not a serious one, but owing to his advanced age, and incidental physical weakness his system was unequal to the task of replacing the injured tissue and clearing away the effects of the shock

Mr Scollie was born at Martin Falls, Albany River, post of the Hudson Bay Company, in 1837. His father, Robert Scollie, came out from Scotland in the service of the company in 1821. Robert Scollie became the chief trader at the post, which was then under the general supervision of Governor Corrigal, woh had charge of entire territory about James Bay for the company. In 1834 Robert Scollie and Mary Corrigal, daughter of the governor, were married. When George Jacob their eldest child, was four years old, Robert Scollie severed his connection with the company, and the family moved to Cobourg, Ont, arriving there in 1841. George Jacob received his education and grew up there to take a prominent part in the commercial and public affairs of the community. While still a young man he and Anne Fowler, daughter of John Fowler, the contractor who built the pioneer lines of the Grand Trunk Railway in Eastern Ontario, were married. At that time the building of the Hamilton-Burlington line was regarded as the premier engineering exploit of the decade. Mrs. Scollie died in Fort William, May 17, 1918.

Of that union four daughters, 11 grandchildren, and three great grand children survive. The daughters are Mrs. Harry Young, and Mrs. J. R. Goodfellow, both of Peterboro; Mrs. Fred Scollie, 930 Catharine street, and Mrs. Guy Allen, 115 Cameron Street.

After a residence of nearly 55 years in Cobourg the family in 1895 removed to Peterboro, where they resided until 1901, when they came to Fort William. Mr. Scollie in all the places of his residence, was engaged in the market gardening business and he did not retire from active life until 1912. His location here was on the old Sills estate.

When he retired he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Scollie and he resided with her until his fatal illness came upon him. He was always a hale and hearty man who greatly enjoyed outdoor life. One of the experiences of which he was justly proud was the indication of confidence and trust reposed in him on the ocasion of the tour of Canada by the late King Edward, who was then the Prince of Wales, the year being 1861. Mr. Scollie was then the captain of a small boat, the Whistle-Wing, being operated on Rice Lake. There was a long railway bridge across the lake, but it was old and there was some doubt about its ability to carry the royal train, which was a heavy one, as trains went in those days. It was decided that the Prince should not risk his life on the bridge but that he could safely cross the lake on the Whistle-Wing, as piloted by the then young Captain Scollie. The trip was safely made, and the "skipper" received a greatly treasured token of the royal appreciation.

At a late hour this afternoon it was stated that details for the funeral service would be announced tomorrow. The service will be conducted Thursd. afternoon but the other arrangements have not been definitely settled. Interment will be in Mountain View cemetery.

An inquest to comply with the technicalities of the law will be held. The jury will view the body at 7.30 this evening, at the Blake & Henderson funeral parlours, May street south. An adjournment will then probably be taken to another evening for the inquiry, which it is said, wil be merely formal, as the resident members of the family are quite confident that the collision was purely accidental. Members of the family had hoped that it would not be necessary to hold an inquest.

Survivors are one brother and five sisters Robert of Otonabee, Mrs. Jas. Wilson of Otonabee, Mrs. George Kent of Orillia; Mrs. John Morgan of Warsaw, Mrs. Samuel Fowler of Brockville, and a sister living in Alberta. Two cousins live in Allandale, Ont. One brother, William, passed away 11 years ago.

SOMETHING ABOUT SWEDISH DAIRYING

Steps Taken By That Government For a Pure Milk Supply.

Sweden as a country, is probably farther advanced in at least some lines than any other country in the world.

A few years ago the Swedish government became aware of the fact that bovine tuberculosis was rampant in the dairy herds of Sweden. That government immediately got under way the testing of all dairy cattle in the country, and those which were not curable were destroyed.

They then compelled pasteurization of all dairy products, the ultimate result being that to-day in Sweden there is not one case of bovine tuberculosis among the dairy herds, and it is interesting to note that the prevalence of tuberculosis in the human family has decreased to a remarkable degree.

It has decreased to such an extent that one of the largest. and very finely equipped hospitals for tubercular patients has. because of the lack of patients, being turned into a school.

PETITION FOR SERVICE FROM SEWERS OF CITY

North Monaghan Residents Hope For Agreement in This Regard Between Peterboro and Township—To Arrange Meeting.

COUNCIL IN SESSION.

The regular meeting of the North Monaghan Council was held at the Court House on Monday, all the members being present.

A resolution was passed to pay T. Walker & Company $8.33 for use of property in North Monaghan as a dumping-ground for four months; also that John M. Gilroy be paid $16.66 for taking care of the dumping ground on this property.

A letter from R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, was read, notifying the township of North Monaghan of the city's intention of constructing a sewer from the river to King George street, and that Park street, from King George street to the river, will have to be closed to traffic, and the said traffic diverted to Monaghan road.

A letter was also read from L. E. Tomkins, New Chamberlain street, asking for a grant toward a drain through his property on New Chamberlain street. This matter was left in the hands of the Road Superintendent, with power to act.

Reeve Rye reported that Archie Patterson would furnish the township with a dumping ground for $100 per year. A resolution was passed, accepting Mr. Patterson's offer.

A letter was read from the Peterborough Fair Board, asking for a meeting with the North Monaghan Council, in regard to the leasing of a certain portion of Lansdowne street, to be used by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Association. This matter was referred to E. A. Peck for legal advice and was left with the Reeve to arrange a meeting.

Connect With Sewers.

A largely-signed petition was presented by Herman Wilson and others, asking the Council of the city of Peterborough and the Council of North Monaghan to enter into an agreement for connecting with, and the use of, city sewers by residents of the township of North Monaghan. This matter was left in the hands of the Clerk, to arrange a meeting with the said Councils in regard to this petition.

A second largely-signed petition was presented by J. A. Seagar and others, asking the Council of the township of North Monaghan to pass a bylaw restricting the building of dwellings which will have a value of less than $1,500. The area covered by the petition was the eastern portion of the township, bounded on the west by Park street.

The Clerk was instructed to write to W. A. MacLean, Deputy-Minister of Public Highways, and ask the Provincial Highway Department to replace the old culvert, which is too small, at Scott's Corners on the Provincial Highway.

The petition to the Council for a building bylaw for the Claraday district of North Monaghan was referred to E. A. Peck for legal advice.

Offices Are Combined.

A resolution was passed combining the offices of Township Clerk and Treasurer, and that the Clerk, Bruce Johnston, be appointed Treasurer also, the appointment to date from the end of the current year. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., will remain as Treasurer for the balance of this year.

The Clerk was also instructed to write the Commissioner for Road Division No. 3 and notify him to have the road work for his division done without any further delay. The Council is particularly desirous of having the portion of the road in his division known as Dobbin's Hill completed this fall.

Bylaw No. 837 was then introduced, read and finally passed, authorizing the levy of county rates and fixing township rates for the year 1923. Bylaw No. 838 was also regularly read and finally passed, levying school rates also for the current year. The Council adjourned, after ordering the following bills to be paid:

IF YOU ARE NOT WELL HERE IS YOUR KEY TO HEALTH!

Hattonford, Alta. — "Being run-down after the 'flu' I was in a weakened condition, had dizzy spells and shortness of breath, followed by faintness. The middle age period made things seem as though I'd never feel well again, but I was determined not to give up. Hearing of Dr. Pierce's famous Golden Medical Discovery I sent for a bottle, followed the directions, and soon felt less tired and faint, and finally I got back to my normal state. I have thanked God many times for the restoration of my health so I could remain with my family, and I gladly recommend this Discovery of Dr. Pierce's for it is so pure, and worth a trial to any one who is run-down."—Mrs. Gertrude White, Crystal Springs Farm.

Golden Medical Discovery is put up in Dr. Pierce's Labratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., and sold by all druggists in both tablets and liquid. Send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package of tablets.

Signs and Omens

"If you smell gas or gasoline and look for it with a lighted match it is probable that you are about to start on a long journey."

"The best way to go about burning the house down," Fire Chief George Gimblett said in speaking of fire prevention week, "is to clean clothes with gasoline near a fire or open light. It seldom fails to work. The way to avoid fires is to take the gasoline outside and keep it there."

Looking for gas with a lighted match is an absurdity that has been the butt of many jokes, but there are still thoughtless or foolhardy people who indulge the hazardous test. Cellars and garages are lurking places of death, waiting to spring on the striking of a match.

SISTERS ARRESTED IN SMUGGLING PLOT

Accused of Conspiracy in Bringing $60,000 of Diamonds Into Country.

NEW YORK, October 10.—Miss Augusta Gross, 40 years old, and her sister, Anna, 37 years old of Brooklyn, were arrested here in connection with the alleged smuggling of more than $60,000 worth of diamonds into the United States during the past year.

The two women, according to United States Deputy Marshal Edward Frankel of Brooklyn, are alleged to have conspired with a man and his wife, employed on the steamer George Washington as steward and stewardess, to bring the gems into this country.

The Gross women were indicted a few days ago and since then the Deputy Marshal had been trying to apprehend Miss Augusta Gross, who had taken up a summer residence at Northport.

Through a subterfuge the Marshal was able to get the woman from her home, and then placed her under arrest in front of the post office at that place.

She insisted upon being driven to Brooklyn in her own automobile, but the Marshal refused to allow her to return to her Northport home to "dress' 'as she had requested.

Sister is Also Arrested.

In some manner, her sister Anna, at her home in Montague Street Brooklyn, received word of the arrest of her sister, and when the automobile drew up in front of the Federal Building in Brooklyn, Anna was on the sidewalk.

As her sister stepped from the automobile Anna rushed to greet her, and then she, too, was placed under arrest.

United States District Attorney Oliver E. Nosser, who worked up the case against the women and caused their indictment, said:

"We know that at least $60,000 worth of diamonds have been smuggled into this country, and before we get through that sum will have been greatly exceeded."

Released in $10,000 Bail.

Richly dressed and well poised, the two sisters made a striking appearance as they were questioned by the Assistant United States District Attorney before they are released in $10,000 bail each.

As they left the building with their lawyer, Nathan G. Goldberg, of Manhattan, the women refused to make a statement, but Goldberg predicted the women will be cleared.

According to Nosser, Anna is the vice-president and general manager of the Stove Makers' Repair Company, Stove Manufacturers' Repair Association, Stove Repair Corporation, and the Stove and Furnace Repair Company, with offices in Manhattan.

The two are the stepdaughters of Albert E. Hauser, a wealthy retired manufacturer, who is now seriously ill.

It is charged by Nosser that the women operated through Mrs. Bertha Bruns, formerly attached to the household of Count Johann von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador who left the United States with the Count just before war was declared. She is said to have become chief nurse in one of the large German hospitals along the Russian border.

In this wise she came into possession of a quantity of diamonds and jewellery, purchasing them with her savings. Mrs. Bruns is well educated, and is said to have been a graduate of a German University.

According to Mr. Nosser, Mrs. Bruns obtained employment on the steamer George Washington as stewardess about the time that her husband was employed as steward on the same ship, and the pair smuggled in the gems.

MRS. LLOYD GEORGE HAS NO SOCIAL AMBITIONS

OTTAWA, Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—"I try to leave my husband free to live his political life. I am keenly interested in politics, but do not take a very active part in them. I have no social ambitions and am happiest at our home in Criccieth, among my own people." Creed is that of Dame Margaret Lloyd George.

Ladies Aid Society Re-open for the Winter Months—Personals.

MILLBROOK, Octo[illegible] 10. — The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, held their reopening meeting for the fall and winter months at the home of Mrs. E. S. Burnham on Tuesday afternoon, 25 members being present. The president, Miss May Needham, was in the chair, and after the opening hymn, Mrs. (Rev.) Tuucker read the Scripture lesson from the 103rd Psalm.

Ot the conclusion of the devotional exercises, the secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds read the minutes of the June meeting which had been held at the home of Mrs. A. J. Brown, and was the closing gathering for the summer months. During the discussion of business items it was finally decided that the Aid would not hold their usual hot supper and entertainment this fall, but would have instead a number of smaller teas, etc., to raise the necessary funds, the general feeling being that a dinner on a large scale involves too great an expense for supplies and talent, and that too small an outlay is actually cleared to make the undertaking profitable.

A sale of home made baking, candy, with afternoon tea served, will be held on Saturday, October 27th, the place and other details, to be decided upon later.

Miss Estelle Hetherington gave a most comprehensive and helpful talk on the first two chapters of the study book, "The Christian Venture" portraying the Christ in His selflessness and daring, and the manner in which He draws the soul to Himself for surrender and service. A sketch of the life of David Lloyd George was given by Miss Pearl Burnham with the reading of Robt. J. Burdette's beautiful prose selection, "One Golden Day," the latter forming a suitable complement to the characteristic of the "People's Prince" having his "decks always cleared for action."

A solo, "He wipes the tears from every eye," by Miss Needham brought the programme to a close, Mrs. Tucker dismissing the gathering with prayer.

Refreshments were served during a social hour which followed, and a hearty vote of thanks to the hostesses, and also to those who had assisted with the programme, was moved by Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, seconded by Mrs. Brown, and carried unanimously.

The quarterly meeting of the Methodist Sunday school executive was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Burnham, th superintendent, Mr. F. W. Fallis presiding. There was a fair attendance of teachers and officers, many who are always to be counted upon for their presence and interest being unfortunately prevented from being at the meeting because of prior engagements for other gatherings the same evening.

Rev. S. T. Tucker opened the proceedings with prayer and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. A number of important business items were discussed and the necessary action taken including the appointment of delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council to be held at Napanee, on October 23rd. 24th and 25th. Misses Florence Fallis and Pearl Burnham were appointed to represent the Sunday school at this gathering. For schools west of Toronto, the convention is at Stratford, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday of the following week, the same programme being presented.

The annual Sunday school anniversary, which is always held at the New Year, was discussed at some length, the matter of securing a minister for the Sunday services being left with Mr. Tucker. The form which the annual entertainment will take was left in the hands of the Programme committee, which will meet at an early date and complete arrangements for same. The superintendent was authorized to order the usual helps, and other supplies for the year, and the matter of rewards for regular attendance, memorizing Scriptures, etc., also received the necessary attention. Special meetings will be called when needed to complete details in these important matters.

Rev. G. S. Gervan attended the Presbyterian Synod meeting in Toronto this week.

Rev. H. Wilkinson, of Pontypool, will preach anniversary sermons at Zion Methodist church on Sunday, October 14th, at 2.30 p.m. and at 7 p.m. Mr. Wilkinson is exchanging with Rev .S. T. Tucker and will have charge of the morning service at Millbrook.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh, of Campbellford ,will preach Sunday school anniversary sermons in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday, October 14th, morning and evening.

The October meeting of the ministerial association was held on Monday at 9.30 a.m. Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville, giving an instructive paper on "A Study of Solomon," which was much appreciated. The usual discussion followed and many interesting points were developed. Next meeting first Monday in November at the usual hour.

Mr. W. Howden, who has been in the west for the past month, returned home on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Loomis, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H .Wilkinson for the week end.

Perfecting a Lie

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

Miles Sheridan is facilitating his wife's obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. He is taking a yacht trip, supposedly with

Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll. In reality, however, he is not with the Doll but

Teresa Desmond (Terry), Juliet's unbelievably innocent half-sister, whom the Doll sent to masquerade as herself. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian,

Eustace Nazio, a wealthy Greek, meets Miles and Terry at Monte Carlo, and recognizes in the supposed Million Dollar Doll, Terry Desmond whom he had met back in New York. In love with the girl, himself, he is relieved to learn that Miles' conduct toward Terry has been most chivalrous.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, takes care of Terry on board the yacht.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, meeting the couple at Monte Carlo, endeavors to dissuade Miles from his disgraceful project. She writes to Betty of Terry's beauty and charm.

Miles, dining in Algiers with Terry, whom he does not recognize as the little girl he befriended so long ago, see Paul de Salvano with a group of strangers.

On the way to Boussada, Miles realizes that he loves "Juliet Divine."

CHAPTER LXII

It seemed to Terry that something very great and wonderful had happened. If she could have put it into words it would have sounded like nothing at all. But the thing itself—the reality which she felt—was as much greater than words as the perfume of the rose is greater than the rose.

Neither spoke. They sat in silence, close together in the car, which now and then flung the girl against the man's shoulder, with some jolt; and Sheridan was making up his mind to act which, only a few days ago, would have been impossible.

Now, nothing was impossible where Juliet Divine was concerned, except to let her go from him forever.

Mrs. Harkness was chatting on the front seat with the French-Algerian chauffeur who had a little English, and knew all about Boussada; but the two behind did not even hear the voices.

Terry, who could not tell what was in Sheridan's heart, feared that he might hear hers beating, it was so loud in her own ears.

Even if he did not care in the wonderful way she cared, at least he must be trying to show that he no longer despised her, and that, after this day, they were to be true friends.

Of course, she reminded herself, he was married, and she—if he knew her real age—would seem to him a child. Still, whatever she was, and whatever he believed her to be, from this moment an exquisite, a heavenly change had come over their relations to one another.

Terry realized that never until now had she known the full meaning of ecstasy. The hand of the man she adored, clasping hers, had taught her what joy could be on earth, and her whole life had only led up to this moment. If she had to die now, within an hour, she would have had something to make her years worth while.

As in a vision she saw the rose of early sunset fade from the billowing sand, to leave it a pale, luminous gold, strewn with heart-shaped, violet hollows that were tracks of camels' feet. She saw low tents of nomads, black striped with red, or oranged striped with black, spread over the desert near the river and palms of Boussada; and the thought flittered across the surface of her mind that they were like huge, resting butterflies.

But all thoughts, except thoughts of Miles Sheridan, were on the surface. The depths of her were for him.

The chauffeur, who had been often to Boussada, drove past the tall palms that spouted, above the river-bed, like fountains of dark water against the crimson sky; wove through the small white town, and stopped before a low-built hotel.

Sheridan had wired for rooms (the telegraph poles stride far and far, along the Algerian desert) and the landlord came to greet his guests. A smiling dark maid showed "Mademoiselle et Madame upstairs to their quarters; and a few minutes later Terry stepped from the long French window of her room onto wide, covered balcony. Two other rooms opened also upon this balcony, and Terry had not stood, looking down, for more than a moment when Sheridan joined her.

He did not speak, but took his place beside the girl, and together they gazed at the river, the palm grove, and the distant hills. There was little water in the oued, but what there was sparkled like shattered glass, and the wet stones between the pools were red as huge garnets, or purple as lumps of amethyst. All the hills, near and far, blazed with the last fires of sunset and poured flames high into a sky that was azure at the zenith.

"Do you like it?" Sheridan asked at last. "I didn't know there could be anything so beautiful in the world," Terry answered; and her voice shook a little, because these were the first words they had exchanged since he had held her hand.

"It is beautiful," Miles granted. "But you'd soon tire of it!"

"No, I should never tire of it—I couldn't," the girl assured him. "I shall hate to go away when the time comes."

He laughed. "I wonder? That would depend upon how long you had to stop. You wouldn't—exchange New York for Bousaada!"

"I would," Terry persisted. "I couldn't bear to live in New York. It's splendid there—but just to go, now and then, from the country. Not to live. I think to live, people need sky, and great wide spaces."

"You seem to be a very different sort of girl at heart from what one would judge you, if—you know yourself and speak out your real thoughts, not just some sudden impulse that can't last," Sheridan said. "Can you imagine yourself a desert dweller?"

"It would be glorious!" Terry cried. "That is, if—" She stopped.

"Go on. 'If'—what?"

"Oh—only that I wouldn't like to be quite, quite alone. It is so beautiful in the desert—a desert like this—that it would be sad to be all alone, sadder than in a place not so beautiful. Because I should want someone to—to talk with about the beauty—someone who'd understand."

"Someone, you mean, whom you loved?"

"I—suppose so."

"Can you love?"

The words were spoken, not sharply or harshly, but with a certain hoarseness, as if they came with an effort.

THE SQUEALY-MOO CONCERT

"I've got the finest voice in Squealy-Moo Land and I dare anybody to say I haven't."

"Quack, quack, quack!" went Missez Waddle Duck.

"Quack, quack, quack!" went her six children.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck!" went Missez Hen. "Cluck, cluck, cut-a-cut, cut, cockle-a-doodle-doo!" went all the chickens and roosters.

"Gobble, gobble, gobble!" went Mister Turkey. "Gobble, gobble, gobble, peep, peep, gobble!" went all the turkeys, big and little.

"Moo!" called out Missez Cow, lifting her head—and her voice.

"Moo!" echoed Crazy Calf in his funny short way.

"Oink, oink, oink!" went all the pigs, looking through the barnyard fence.

"Honk, honk, honk!" hissed the geese.

"Maa!" went Billy Goat.

"Baa!" went Snipper Sheep, and all the other sheep out in the field said "Baa!" just to keep company.

"My goodness!" laughed Nancy. "It sounds as though Squealy-Moo Land was giving a concert."

"I think it is," said Mister Dodger solemnly. "Each one has a very good voice, too."

But suddenly a dreadful sound split the air. It was simply awful. It was so loud that the Twins clapped their hands over their ears and Mister Dodger made a wry face.

"Hee, haw! Hee haw!" it went over and over again.

And there stood Dummy Donkey, grinning like a Chessy Cat. "I've got you all beat!" he brayed, laughing till he showed his teeth. "I've got the finest voice in Squealy-Moo Land and I dare anybody to say I haven't."

The ducks waggled their tails and waddled off to the pond without answering.

The chickens all started to dig for worms.

The turkeys marched off and so did the geese.

Billy Goat and Mister Sheep and all the pigs disappeared and Missez Cow and Crazy Calf switched their tails and went off for a drink.

Nobody said a word.

Just then Farmer Brown came along. "Get out!" he yelled crossly. "You're the only one of all my farm creatures who won't work for his living. You won't even pull my cart without balking. You're all voice and no brains, just like a lot of people I know."

Dummy Donkey looked foolish and trotted away. But Mister Dodger and the Twins heard him say to himself: "I suppose I'll have to start to work if I want my board and keep. If Farmer Brown hitches me up tomorrow, I won't balk once."

LETTERS GIVE ANECDOTE.

LONDON, Oct. 10—(Associated Press).—Some interesting letters written by Austen Chamberlain to his family when, in 1887 as a young man he visited Germany to complete his education, are published in the September issue of the Empire Review.

Among other anecdotes the writer gives the following story of Prince Wilhelm, now the occupant of Doorn House, in Holland, and often referred to as plain William Hohenzollern.

"Prince Wilhelm, seeing one of the German officers, Goltz Pasha, who is serving in the Turkish army, with three orders on his breast, asked for what service he got them. The Pasha, after a moment's hesitation, replied: 'The first I got for flattery, the second for stealing, and the third for lying.'

"'What a scoundrel I must be,' answered the Prince, 'the Sultan has sent me all three, and in diamonds'."

ONTARIO BONDS TO BE MARKETED

Arrangements Completed For Issue of Forty Million.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—That arrangements have been concluded with a strong syndicate to handle $40,000,000 province of Ontario five per cent. bonds due at the end of twenty-five years was the announcement made yesterday by Hon. Price, Provincial Treasurer who added that the price was considerably better than the province received by public tender for its proposed issue of $15,000,000 which was recently declined.

"The Bonds", Hon. Mr. Price stated "will be offered through a very wide organization covering not only the Province of Ontario, but also financial houses as far east as Halifax and west to the Pacific Coast. This loan is best Ontario issue made in Canada since the war and is an eminently satisfactory one to the province."

Provincial Treasurer emphasized that the bonds of Ontario stood second to none to-day and were in fact the very best security that money could seek. "The citizens of Ontario," he said, "should be proud to invest in their own securities."

STORE COMPLEXION NOT INJURIOUS, IF?

Those who can remember fifty years back will recall that Canadian women then had the clearest and ruddiest complexions that real beauty could tolerate. To-day how rare it is to see a clear and rosy skin. The cause is improper food. Then women ate no "denatured" white flour, prepared or refined cereals or white sugar sweets for they were not known. All of these foods are "Excess Acid," because their alkaline salts are largely removed in milling the grains. This makes the blood acid and these acids are thrown out mostly by the skin, which irritates it, dries it, makes it shiny, pimply and murky. If women would use very much more brown flour and brown whole grain cereals, milk, nuts, beans, eggs, leafy vegetables and fruits, all excess alkali foods (opposite of acid) and less acid forming white flour, refined cereals, meats and sweets, they would again have beautiful skins and store complexions would not injure them.

Roman Meals is 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali," the only alkaline cereal sold to-day. It clarifies and softens the skin because it keeps the blood normally alkaline, free from irritating acids which must find a way out of the blood by the pores of the skin or kill the body that retains them.

Roman Meal makes delicious porridge. Muffins made from it "melt in your mouth." And for the sake of your children and your own well-being, you should always mix Roman Meal with your white flour (at least 25%) to restore valuable properties lost in making flour white.

"TOSS UP" AND BREAKS WILL COUNT IS FINAL "DOPE" ON THE SERIES

Cripples Apparently Fully Recovered and Ready For the Fray — Left-Handers May Pitch the First.

MOST SEATS GONE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A House Divided Against Itself! Gotham's diamond forces were arrayed last night in battle formation—on the eve of that annual institution—the world's baseball championship—for which the New York Giants and Yankees, rulers of all they have surveyed for the past three seasons, will start the 1923 struggle today. The records for attendance and receipts at a single game are expected to be shattered when the series opens this afternoon in the Yankee Stadium, home of the American League champions, the biggest and costliest park in the country. It was predicted that the capacity of the stadium, 70,000, would be taxed and that the receipts would be close to $200,000.

Reserved sections of the Yankee Stadium, accommodating between 20-000 and 25,000, have been sold out, the club announced, for the first, third and fifth games. All but 2,500 of the 20,000 reserved seats at the Polo Grounds, where the second, fourth and sixth games are to be played, had been disposed of last night.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball, announced the assignment of umpires for the opening game as follows: Evans, American League, at home plate; O'Day, National League, at first base; Nallin, American League, at second base; Hart, National League, at third base. They will change places daily, rotating from first base to home plate, in order.

Same Teams Clash Again.

With the exception of the battery departments, the opposing line-ups are the same which opposed each other last season. The Giants have added the veteran Gowdy to the catching staff, and Jack Bentley, a southpaw, and John Watson, former Boston Brave, to the pitching staff. Huggins' chief acquisition was Pennock, while Bengough, a young catcher, is another new eligible.

The twirlers upon whom McGraw banks much of his hope of victory are Scott, Nehf, Watson, Hugh McQuillan, four veterans, with "Rosy" Ryan and Bentley, younger stars, as likely reserve material.

Huggins, besides Pennock and Hoyt, has Sam Jones, Bob Shawkey and Joe Bush to depend upon. Shawkey and Bush have not come quite up to their 1922 form, when they were Huggins' mainstays, but Jones, Pennock and Hoyt have performed brilliantly most of this season.

May Pitch Southpaws.

No definite pitching selections for the opening game had been made known last night by either McGraw or Huggins, but they indicated that the initial struggle might be a battle of southpaws—with Arthur Nehf, diminutive star of the Giants who twirled the opening games of both 1921 and 1922, arrayed against Herb Pennock, crack southpaw of the Yankees, whose acquisition from the Red Sox this season proved one of the deciding factors in the Yankee pennant triumph.

Alternate choices were understood to be Waite Hoyt, youthful right-hander of the Yankees, and Jack Scott, Giant veteran, who gained fame in the last series. Both have shown a lot of "stuff" in workouts the past few days.

The only change in the rival line-ups which pitching will affect is the centre field post of the Giants. If Pennock twirls for the Yankees, Bill Cunningham will hold down the job, but if Hoyt or any other right-hander opposes the champions, Casey stengel will cover the middle garden.

The Fielding Positions.

Ross Young and Emil Meusel will hold down the other outfield positions for the Giants, while the Yankee trio, barring a last-minute change by Huggins, will consist of Bob Meusel, Whitey Witt and Ruth. Against the Giant infield combination of Kelly, Frisch, Bancroft and Groh, will be arrayed the Yankee inner defense of Pipp, Ward, Scott and Dugan. Wally Schang of the Yankees and Pancho Snyder of the Giants are expected to handle the catching burdens, although Hank Gowdy, hero of the Boston Braves' victory in the 1914 series, may share honors with Snyder.

Dope is Indefinite.

The Giants, who have gained baseball's premier honors for the past two years at the expense of their metropolitan rivals, enter the battle under the leadership of John Joseph McGraw determined to establish a record of three straight triumphs. The Yankees, aided and abetted by Babe Ruth—this season's star of stars—and other winning their third straight pennant by a record margin, go into the fray equally as determined to turn the tables and rule out the string of reverses in '21 and '22.

The experts and the "dope"—that nebulous quantity which has acquired a pretty wide bit of going wrong—played by a bit of going viewing the fo last night by a those up. ming struggle as

There were, herents of the those adherents of the Yankees who declared the superior pitching strength of the latter twirling champions, plus the League morals and the improved of Ruth, would be fatness ing factors. And backers of the Giants, recalling the fighting siprit that carried them to victory in eight games in the 1921 series, and the remarkable, upset last Fall when they routed the Yanks with four triumphs and one tie game were just as confident that the McGraw men had the requisite punch, courage and skill to make it three straight.

Breaks Will Count

But generally keen analysts of the respective merit of the two clubs, predicted a close, hard-fought series, with the "breaks' likely to decide the issue. On paper, the Yankees with five star twirlers have a marked advantage over their rivals in pitching—that all-important factor in such a struggle—but there is evidence that the Giant mound artists have rounded in excellent form and may again win the premier baseball honors.

Those who looked for an evenly-waged battle were strengthened in their views to-night by reports from rival camps that both teams probably would take the field to-morrow with their regular line-ups intact. Some apprehension on both sides had been caused by injuries to several stars, notably Wally Pipp, first sacker of the Yankees, who had been out of the game for a fortnight with a bad ankle. Pipp, however, took his regular place in the final workout of the Yankees to-day, and while Manager Miller Huggins declined to commit himself definitely, he indicated that the lanky guardian of the initial bag would be on the job.

Intermediate Rugby Team Practice Thursday—Oshawa Looks For New Rink.

An important practice of the intermediate rugby squad has been called for Thursday at 5.15 at Central Park. The following players are expected to turn out: "Hod" and Claire Stuart, Evans, Carson, Turnbull, Brimmell, Jobbitt, Anderson, Barber, Hickey, Green, Sloan, Hatrick, George and Jack Rutherford, M. Sheehy, Griffin, Batten, Helson, Collins, Welsh, Webb, Rishor, Ward and Huff. Any other fellows who turn out will be welcomed.

The question as to whether rugby is coming back in Peterboro is definitely settled by the line up of candidates for the intermediate and junior teams. Most of the prospects are graduates of the Collegiate, others have had experience with college teams, and others are picking up the game form their natural aptitude for it.

Peterboro has always been a rugby city until the disturbance that began in 1914, and the players may feel assured that their games will be well patronized providing the class of rugby deserves it. In other words it is largely up to themselves, and their sincerity will be tested by their punctual attendance at practice.

Parkdale Canoe Club, according to a note in the Globe, expect to play an exhibition game with Peterboro next Saturday, but the local team have no information from the Paddlers end. Certainly there won't be a game here with Riverside given over to the biggest baseball event in the history of the city.

A modern athletic field with suitable dressing quarters is one of Peterboro's needs. It took a long time to get a couple of wholly inadequate bath houses for the beaches, as an improvement upon the screen of convenient bushes, but the city's athletes in practically all the leading games will probably wait a long time yet until they have a respectable building with lockers and showers and other conveniences that are not found on ten-acre lots.

The local intermediates are likely to be set down for their first O.R.F.U. games as early as October 23. That leaves only ten days for working out, and the squad needs a lot of it, for all the promise they have already shown. Good hard conditioning will also be an asset for which the team should go after strong during their practices.

Ross Craig who is guiding the Hamilton Rowing Club was in the city over Sunday. His team bumped Varsity's O.R.F.U. entry on Saturday.

CUBAN STAR FEARS PENNOCK WILL UPSET M'GRAW CLAN

BY ADOLFO LUQUE
Leading Pitcher of the National League

HIS will be a tight world series.

I wouldn't be surprised to see the Yankees beat the Giants.

Here's how I figure it: The Yankees have better pitching than the Giants. The Giants have a better hitting team than the Yankees and one that is faster.

John Scott and Jack Bentley, I believe, are the best pitching bets the Giants have to send against the Yankees.

LUQUE

I hardly think John Watson, Hugh McQuillan or Art Nehf can beat Babe Ruth & Co.

By a tight series, I don't mean I look for a seven-game series.

I really look for it to end in about five games, six at the most, but that the games will be close.

Rosy Ryan is likely to do some good pitching for the Giants but I hardly believe McGraw will start him in a game. I think Ryan will be used for relief purposes and in that role do like Jess Barnes did a couple of years ago when he was the pitching hero of the series, but did not start a game.

McGraw probably will start off with Bentley or Scott. Huggins, I think, will lead off with Herb Pennock or Sam Jones.

Pennock is likely to beat the Giants, who are none too strong against a good southpaw. The Yankees would have given the Giants more of a battle in the last two world series had Huggins had a good left-hander to send against them.

Hug knew this then. That's why he went out and got Pennock.

If Huggins doesn't open up with Pennock I think he'll start off with Sam Jones. Sam has pitched wonderful ball for the Yankees this year. He and Pennock are liable to win their games. Pennock is likely to start, two games, with Hoyt and Bush or Shawkey starting one each.

Although the Giants, hit a little harder than the Yankees, the American League champions can, I believe, hit McGraw's pitchers hard enough to win behind the pitching they will get from Pennock, Jones Hoyt, Bush and Shawkey.

The speed of the Giant infield, together with Kelly's great reach, which makes it almost impossible to throw a ball by him, is going to be a great help to McGraw's pitchers. So is Ross Young, who is lots faster than any outfielder the Yankees have.

But the pitching of the American Leaguers is so good I can't see how the Giants are going to win unless they play a better brand of ball than they have shown in the National League this year.

I only wish things had broken a little differently and that my club, the Cincinnati Reds, was going into the series against the Yankees instead of the Giants.

If we were to play the Yankees with our full ball club in line (and it wasn't through the home stretch of the National League season when we had a grand chance to cop the pennant) I would feel certain of the world championship remaining in our league because the Reds, when not crippled, have more strength in every department than any other club in baseball. I think we showed this several times this year.

I'm pulling for the Giants to come through and cop, but I doubt if they can.

M'GILL LEARNS FROM MISTAKES

More Dash Behind the Line Needed — Meet Varsity Next.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9. — McGill senior Rugby players settled down to hard drills in preparation for the game against the University of Toronto here Saturday when they lined up against the Intermediates, and later the junior team in practice scrimmages this afternoon.

Coach Shaughnessy worked many of his first string substitutes in the scrimmages, some of the regulars being given an extra day to recover from their bruises received in the Queen's game. Art Manson was in uniform but was kept out of the heavy work, as was Dick Wilson and Selby Cope. Gordie Hughes is expected to resume drill tomorrow after his rest up from a most strenuous battle last week end.

The Red and White backs showed improvement in the practice, and against the two younger teams yesterday showed signs of having learned a good lesson from the mistake made in the game against the tricolor. Their end runs were executed with greater speed, the ball being carried straighter in front, and being sent out to the wing after good passing bouts.

M'CANN AGAIN WITH OTTAWA

Veteran Emerges Once More From Retirement—Will Play Saturday.

OTTAWA, October 9. Canadian Press. — The return of Dave McCann to active participation in Rugby and the addition to the present squad of George Green, were the chief items of interest to the daily practice of the Ottawa Rugby team to-day. After apparently retiring, and having acted on the Board of Referees for the past two seasons, McCann staged a real come back when he donned a Senator uniform, and fell in alongside of Joe Miller at quarter back.

It is reported that he will remain for the season and be used in Saturday's game here against Hamilton Tigers.

Green, who comes from the New Edinburgh team of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, is a promising player who will likely be given a chance against the Tigers. He is a big rugged boy, his position being outside wing. The team is being drilled hard for the game with Hamilton.

While Ottawas are practically out of the race for the season they will make a mighty effort to win their remaining fixtures.

CHEWING TOBACCO KILLS FULLBACK DURING GAME.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—Chewing tobacco while playing football cost the life of Chester Mares, 23 years old, a Cleveland semi-pro player, who died of stragulation while being taken to a hospital at Painesville.

Mares, playing fullback at Willoughby, east of here, had just thrown a forward pass when he was knocked from his feet. In falling, a wad of tobacco became lodged in his throat. Efforts of physicians at the field to prevent death failed.

The Ottawa Journal says Brian Timmins is the best line plunger seen in the Interprovincial Union since Ross Craig was in his prime.

The Senators have already thrown up their championship hopes and are aiming simply to work out of the Big Four's cellar.

In the evening the time was devoted almost entirely to signal drills, the Seniors being put through their work with the intermediate players.

There will be one or two changes made in the line-up against the Argonauts. "Boo" Anderson will be ready to take his place on the back field; Weir Wright may be given a chance at outside wing. Wright is the substitute quarter-back.

SCHALK PICKS YANKS TO WIN

Ruth's Comeback and Team Spirit Will Turn the Trick.

BY RAY SCHALK.
World's Greatest Catcher.

Who will win the world series? There are a lot of people who would like to know the correct answer to that question. Will the Giants for the third time in succession triumph over the Yankees, desptie the opinion of the baseball experts to the contrary?

It is my very humble opinion that the Yankees are due to turn the tables on the Giants. I pick the Yankees to win, although I wouldn't be at all surprised if it took them the limit of seven games to turn the trick.

In picking the Yankees to win, I am not unmindful of the strength of the Giants. McGraw has a great team, a smart aggregation, a club quick to take advantage of any slip on the part of the opposition. However, I am well aware of the punch the Yankees possess, and I cannot set aside the remarkable power of the pitching staff, even though the value of an all-star staff in a short series is a mooted question.

The Yankees are a peculiar ball club. When the team is at the top of its game, getting high class pitching, it is well night invincible. On the other hand, the Yankees, when in a slump, can look very ordinary. Without a doubt the New York Americans failed to play up to their standard in the last two series with the Giants.

With the two clubs so evenly matched as the Giants and the Yankees, I feel that the law of averages will eventually assert itself. On two occasions the Giants have captured the world series. McGraw's club has played the best ball and gotten the breaks. I look for the Yankees to be a different ball club this year, one that will surprise the Giants with its new spirit.

The Yankees of 1923 are a different ball club from that of the past two years. Individual play has been shunted aside for team work. The ill feeling that seemed to exist among the stars in other years has been entirely eliminated. A fine spirit pervades the entire club, harmony seems to reign supreme, and the word of Miller Huggins is accepted as the law without the slightest murmur.

The "I am bigger than the manager" idea appears to have entirely disappeared from the ranks of the Yankees. That is going to be a big factor in reversing the success the Giants have enjoyed during the past two years.

In favoring the Yankees to win, I am banking on Babe Ruth to come through. In the two previous clashes Ruth has been a handicap rather than a help to the American League entry. In each series the pitching staff of the Giants has stopped Ruth. Instead of being the big threat of the Yankee offense, Ruth has been practically helpless at the bat. During the season the Yankees are a much stronger club when Ruth is hitting. Unquestionably his absolute failure at the bat hurt the morale of the club in the series.

In the coming series Ruth cannot be worse than he was in the two previous events. However, I look for Ruth to deliver this year. He is a far different player than the Ruth of 1921 and 1922. He is playing baseball, not merely swinging for home runs. With Ruth in there hitting and fielding in top form the Yankees are far more formidable. I am doping Ruth to be a great asset this year rather than a liability.

I look for Southpaw Herb Pennock to be a most troublesome pitcher for the Giants to solve. Pennock may prove to be the man who will swing the margin of victory to the Yankees. Pitchers who can slow up like Sam Jones and Waite Hoyt are the type of right handers that bothers the Giants. Fast ball pitching as supplied by Shawkey and Bush is a style favored by the Giants, according to my observations. Bush's fork ball is his best asset against the Giants.

Southpaw Jack Bentley is the only newcomer in the ranks of the Giants who stands out as a barrier to the Yankees' chances to win.

Bentley has a good curve ball and an excellent change of pace. Southpaws of that style always bother the Yankees. The veteran Sherrod Smith of the Cleveland team is a good example of what a heady southpaw can do with the Yankees. For the last two months of the race Smith has had little or no success against any club other than the Yankees.

Aside from Bentley and McQuillan, the rest of the staff of the Giants should not prove overly troublesome for the Yankees.

Superior pitching, the thought that Ruth is due to deliver, the decided improvement in the play of Second Baseman Ward, and the fine spirit that now prevails in the Yankee's lineup, are my reasons for believing that 1923 is an American League year.

OSHAWA TALKS NEW RINK.

The Oshawa Telegram has the following on the hockey situation in Oshawa.

The latest information possible as to the hockey situation for Oshawa for the coming season has been accepted with great favor. The season is going to be a good one as far as Oshawa is concerned, and the team will be represented in the Intermediate series of the O.H.A. with a very strong team. Contradictions to rumors that Oshawa have but very little real material to work with is made by "those on the inside." Those who are really on the inside are most conservative as to what they do know and one can't blame them. However, The Telegram was told yesterday that "Oshawa would have one sweet team." These were the glad tidings given out with all other "inside information" withheld. It means the players who think catching a place on the team is going to be "soft picking" will be greatly surprised to learn they are much in error. When the practice season arrives it will then be seen who will be able to make the team.

The Telegram was also informed from the best of authority that the Oshawa Hockey Club are taking all precautions and have more material here than will likely be used. Several new faces who are and have been in Oshawa since August 1st will appear in uniform. It is quite evident that the local club does not intend to be caught napping as was the ball club and have any of their players questioned but have their material right at hand and working at the various large shops about town. Since the much talked of industrial and mercantile league situation, many players who have not played O.H.A. for a considerable time will likely find themselves returning to the fold.

Next spring and summer will likely find themselves returning to the fold.

Next spring and summer will likely see one of the most modern ice palaces between Montreal and Toronto built here. It was unofficially stated that a large canning concern is behind the project and will use the proposed new building to refrigerate fresh fruit. This will mean an artificial ice plant, giving the rink a similar ice surface in winter. As the Grimbsy proposition has proven itself successful, the same idea will likely be carried out here.

BASEBALL

Says Sandy Lockington in the Port Hope Guide:

"The Central League has decided to request the O.B.A.A. to change the date of the residence rule to March 1st. It will be remembered that at the last annual meeting the Port Hope delegates fought for this very point, but met with strong opposition. Some of the delegates pointed out that it was the only way to stop the ringing in of players and if baseball was to be kept in the amateur ranks, the first of January rule would have to be adopted. And it was adopted, and to show the world that expense was a secondary consideration down this way, the Central League was split in two groups. Section B wanted lots of baseball and the jump of 150 miles from Peterboro to Kingston was considered trifling. A single schedule was laughed at, a double one would be no better, a triple would not give enough home games so the Big Four decided on a quadruple schedule. Certainly they found it hard going before the close, but they carried it through. Now they recommend reverting back to the single group and adopting March 1st as the residence rule. What reasons will the representatives to the O.B.A.A. meeting give, should the Association question them on the proposed change. To fall from a quadruple schedule under a January 1st rule to a single schedule with a March 1st residence rule all within twelve months tells its own story of "amateur" ball in the Central League.

SHAG AND HIS TEAM

Shaughnessy, like many another coach, made a name in football because he happened, early in his Canadian career, to act as mentor to a good team, remarks the Toronto Telegram. It was good because it had the requisite bee, muscle and football brains with which nature endowed its members. "Shag" didn't make its fame, but it did make "Shag's" name. Since then he has proved early and often that while a great team can make a great name for an ordinary coach, a coach, even if he is acclaimed as great, cannot make a great team out of a bunch of ordinary athletes.

And as it is with "Shag" so it has been with many another of the coaching or managing tribe, whose names live in sporting history. Connie Mack was the greatest man in baseball till he sold the players that made him great. John McGraw still retains his reputation, and probably will so long as he has the money to buy the pick of the league, as well as the advisers to tell him which man to buy.

And in lacrosse, too. You'll remember when the country rang with the names of Tom O'Connell and Barney Dunphy. That was in the days when the Shamrocks were sweeping all before them, when Paddy Brennan and Henry Hoobin, and Albert Dade, and Tack Hendry and Johnnie Brennan, too, were on the home. And behind them they had a defence on which Roddy Finlayson and Jim Cavanagh and Johnnie Howard did their bit. If, htat crowd had been coached by the office boy of the Ladies' Home Journal and managed by the editor of the Delineator, they would have been a great team. Anyway, while they did the playing, Tim O'Connell and Barney Dunphy made the noise. But you heard more of the last two named than you did of any of the men who really won the games.

PARK HEADS TO MEET.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (United Press.)—The seventh annual conference of national park superintendents will open here Oct. 22. New policies of the Department of the Interior toward park administration will be laid before the meeting and plans for wider public use and better care of visitors to the parks discussed.

SOCCER STARS FEWER IN OLD COUNTRY GAMES

"Box Office Attractions" Have Been Substituted By Speed and Goal Getting.

Eight hundred thousand people watched football on the opening day of the old country football season, recently begun. Forty-four English league matches alone drew over three-quarter of a million spectators, not to speak of the countless other minor leagues scattered up and down England. And in the majority of the games played the quality of football was reported to be—even allowing for lack of practice—poor and unsatisfactory.

Nowadays, not only is the general level of footballing skill lower than it used to be, but there are no footballers of the genius of Bloomer (who, it will be remembered, was in Canada last year, coaching Montreal Grenadier Guards' team), G.O. Smith (the greatest centre forward of all time), Needham, Crabtree, W. J. Oakly, R. E. Foster, V. J. Woodward and Robert Crompton, playing in English games. Nor has Wales a Meredith or an L. R. Roose, or Ireland a McCracken.

Not So Badly Off In Scotland.

Scotland is not quite so badly off. There are two or three Scots—Andrew Wilson and A. L. Morton for example—who would have to be seriously considered for a "best ever" Scottish side.

But the shoes of a great many famous players remain unfilled. Where are the real successors of such wonderful players as Bobby Walker, Pete McWilliam, Jacky Robertson, Nick Smith, Neilly Gibson, Jamie Quinn, Jamie McMenemy and Bobby Templeton? And the echo only is to be heard—"Where?"

These men had a faculty of football that would astonish most of the present generation of followers of the game. The youths and boys of today have really very little idea of the artistry of some of the old-time stars.

The Bonus System.

The bonus system which prevails in the old land may have something to do with the poor quality of football being dished up. The players are made on goals. Goals must be scored at almost any price, with the result that there is much rough-and-tumble football. A player must be strong physically to stand the pace of old country professional football, which, as everyone knows, has been highly commercialized, much the same as baseball is on this side of the Atlantic.

And there seems no hope of a change for the better. The game has entered upon a new era, but the crowds are not diminishing. For a country where unemployment is rife, the support the games gets in the old land is remarkable. It is the turnstiles that keep football going, and so long as the turnstiles click merrily, the officials have no cause for worry. The new generation of spectators do not know the difference between the old styles of football and the new, but the old-timers do, and it is with a sigh of regret that they see the passing of the old.

Not Many Stars Nowadays.

In the old days there were individual players who drew the crowd. They were "box office attractions" just as certain actors and actresses were and are. But today who is there whom people in the old land will go specially to see. There are probably only half a dozen —Grimsdell and Walden, of Totten; Watson, of West Ham; Kelly, of Burnley, Sam Hardy of Notts Forest and Andrew Wilson, of Middlesboro.

What, then, is the reason, for this lack of stars? Two may be cited, and one of these is the absurd objection on the part of clubs and spectators to players who attempt to exploit any individualism. Another reason is the ruling passion for pace in football. Speed appears to be in greater demand than skill. The players have no time to try to be clever. They are athletes first, exponents of the game second. It's a bad thing for the game, this mania for speed, and England did not take its cue from Scotland in this regard. In the old days the Scots relied more on craft than in speed, and it was generally successful. But even in the land ayont the Tweed the cry is for speed, and still more speed.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Will you allow me a little space in your esteemed paper in regard to Campbell Morgan's questions 3 and 4. If our friend had read 1 Timothy 2, 6, instead of 2, 5, he would see that Jesus gave Himself a ransom for all to be testified to all in due time. A ransom is a corresponding price. Adam was a perfect man. Jesus was a perfect man. He became a man for that purpose. All was in Adam lost and all will in Christ in due time be found. All in Adam died, so all in Christ will be made alive, but that does not change the human nature. When our Lord finished the work that the Heavenly Father gave Him to do, He returned to heaven as said St. Peter, Acts 3, 21, until the restitution of all things which all the prophets foretold. And our Lord said, If I go away I will come again. Jer. 31, 16-17, represents death as the land of the enemy. Thus saith the Lord, thy children shall come again from the land of the enemy. Job 3. 18, says there the prisoners rest together. Psa. 69, 33, The Lord despiseth not his prisoners. Isa. 42, 7, The Lord will bring out the prisoners out of the prison house. Isa. 49, 9, Thou mayest say to the prisoners, go forth. Zech. 9, 11-12, Turn to the strongholds, ye prisoners of hope. Death is termed the great prison house over which Satan has had charge and the Scriptures say He openeth not the house of his prisoners, and as death is not a place, so the prison used as a figure of speech, and when Christ comes again all that are in their graves shall hear His voice and shall come forth. The raising of Lazarus was not a resurrection. Martha said, John 11, 24, I know he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Man is not yet freed from the penalty of death, for it is appointed unto man once to die. 1 Cor. 15, 35-40, and after death the judgment, and they shall be judged according as their works shall be, i.e., when they come forth, not as their work had been. One of the signs of our Lord's return is the distress of nations. Another sign, earthquakes in divers places. Rev. 11, 15, The kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever. Isa. 11, 9, The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.—Yours truly,

John Boorman.

PRESBYTERIANS AND CHURCH UNION.

To the Editor,
Peterborough Examiner.

Sir.—Dr. E. Scott's war-whoop in the press calling upon all Catholics as well as Protestants to "oppose in Parliament" (his own words) the church union scheme as unconstitutional, reminds me of Butler's Hudibras satirizing the "Presbyterian true blue" who "proved his doctrine orthodox by apostolic blows and knocks" on the drum ecclesiastic. The banner he waves, however, is not "true blue," but amazingly streaked with the red of the anarchist! His lurid terms for the General Assembly—always addressed as "the venerable," but branded by him as "iniquitous"—indicate that, despite Scripture, he is "not afraid to speak evil of dignities." It is, he says, "scrapping the church, wiping it out forever, winding it up, selling it up," compelling the faithful to "get out homeless on to the street," although he knows that equitable provision is made for nonconcurring congregations to retain their property and share in church funds.

What crazy rascals they must be, these moderators, the 427 majority members of last assembly, almost all our foreign missionaries and college professors! But Parliament can be relied upon (with proper push and pull) to bring them to their senses! Catholics must join in the Parliamentary fight for "religious liberty vs. despotism," else, he tells them, "your turn may be the next to have your church scrapped"—an evil bid for the rescue of the minority of Quebec Catholics. We might let him go on thus; he is doing fine, alienating moderate men from extremist courses. But the assembly's pastoral to the church, signed by Principal Gandier as moderator, did not appear in your pages, and your readers must not be left to Dr. Scott's perversion of it.

The authority of the Presbyterian Church in its stated courts is repudiated. Dr. Scott and his company are dethroning the General Assembly. It was, according to the Presbyterian Church Association, "in no sense a representative body and its action therefore could not bind the church at large." Is that self-appointed association more representative of the church than the assembly?

Dr. Scott says that Dr. Gandier in the assembly's pastoral "does not even refer to the people; to him the people are nowhere, not worth mentioning, to be kept quiet till tied hand and foot." Is there a blind spot in his eye, or how? The pastoral in plain words cites "overwhelming majorities of our people," etc. He and his company would not accept the vote of the people when it was twice given, and try to excite blind passion by branding the assembly's action as "coercion."

Dr. Scott makes an addition to the constitution of the church, for there is no provision for consulting the people at all. Such questions must go down to Presbyteries and no lower. The Free Church of Scotland never took a vote of the people before proceeding to union. He is not even a good Presbyterian; he would make us Congregationalists. More curiously still, he says the church is under "clerical despotism"; yet he knows that all our courts are equally composed of ministers and lavmen.

Dr. Scott's other plea contradicts and undercuts his appeal to the people in claiming that constitutionally it was beyond its powers for the assembly or church to decide for union at all. He says "the church has no provision for its own disbanding (a word I challenge); all the constitutional steps are for its own continuance." On this principle the people, no matter how big the vote, could not legally determine for union. Sending down the question to the people was a fool's errand, for union was blocked in advance by the absence of provision for it. Why did not anti-unionists, instead of debating the question as if it were valid, enter an injunction to prevent any vote being taken in either courts or congregations? It was only when defeated in church courts that they fortunately discovered the whole thing illegal.

Some associates of Dr. Scott would have liked to unite with the Anglicans, and I led in negotiations for a larger union. But such a union would be unconstitutional; according to Dr. Scott, we can never unite with any other body! So here our church is struck perpetually.

What is really at stake now is the spiritual freedom of the church. Is it free to adjust the expression of its prevailing mind upon creed and government, or is it in the grip of the "dead hand"? Is church union to be prevented by Parliament or any Legislature? Having failed in the church courts these extremists are to appeal to Caesar or the secular arm to override the assembly and thwart the will of the church, Dr. Scott even invoking Catholics to oppose it in Parliament. The Enabling Bill deals only with property interests and civil matters, and if extreme anti-unionists are going to manipulate political powers to overthrow the spiritual freedom of the church in respect of union itself, such ecclesiastical sedition will surely set the heather on fire!

All honor to brethren who on conscientious grounds must stay out of the union to their own and our distress; but if they temporarily thwart union do they suppose the three conferring churches will throw up their hands?

I am not thrashing the merits of church union, on which I had my own personal difficulties, which were finally overborne by the larger interests of the church and country. Every one was free to maintain his own opinions up to the last ditch at the recent assembly. But it is quite another matter when the church, through the assembly, is robbed of authority and loyal adhesion, and may be overridden by Erastians who final trust is in Parliament.

Yours,
R. E. WELSH.

To the Editor of the Examiner

Sir—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the famous authoress, gives a vivid account of the Oneida Community of New York, the white settlement in New York state ultimately supressed by the United States Government.

It was founded on the eugenics' plan, and for that purpose. Of course in slavery days negroes were led around like stallions so as to turn out a eugenical progeny. Anything more degrading and soul-destroying cannot be imagined than this talk now going on in some of our chruches if as it seems to be, it is intended to develop a taste for eugenics which means "well begotten") in our midst. It is said that those whom the Gods wish to de? stroy they first make crazy. However, here is what Mrs. Wilcox says—"No woman was to bear a child unless she desired motherhood, and she was then to select the father for her child. But before she was allowed to become a mother a committee of twelve wise men investigated the mental, moral and physical conditions of the two contracting parties, and of their ancestors. If any cause was found which seemed to menace the desired offspring, the parties were expected to abandon their idea, for the good of the world. * * * If the man and woman wanting offspring were found to be unsuitable parents by the committee, each was expected to accept a mate chosen by that committee as better suited to produce wholesome children. * * * * One of the sweetest and most admirable women I ever knew * * * * entered the community when only 3 years old. * * * At sixteen she found herself romantically stirred by the presence of a young man of the community. The committee found him unsuitable. * * * They believed her, however, to be a suitable mother and selected a man for her who was to be the father of her child.". The head of the community was, of course a favorite. He had seventeen or more illegitimate children, but physicaly he was thoroughbred, just like a prize boar or a Holstein bull. "Children, like property, belonged to the community, not to individuals." Lenin and Trotsky have nothing on this. It is their pet scheme. It is the belly and brains of Bolshevism. The churches are doing a grand work. The soul is dead—long live the body. Our young people ought to be uplifted nightily by this week's talk. Have you been examined yet? Make no mistake, human blood is a question of the soul, not of the body. The moment you make it a matter of the body it becomes animal.

DRAFTED TO BIG LEAGUES.

Operation Does Not Affect the International—Terms Are Now Cash on Delivery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. — Fifteen minor league stars were drafted yesterday by National and American League clubs at the annual draft meeting held under the direction of Commissioner Landis. Players were obtained under the selective system by five American and four National League clubs.

The draft took place under the new rules which provided that it be held the day before the opening of the world's series, instead of after the championship, as heretofore. Clubs obtaining minor leaguers are obliged to pay the full draft price at once, instead of in instalments. The prices fixed range from $1,000 to $4,000, according to the classification.

Less importance than in former years, however, is attached to the draft process, as five of the big minor leagues, including the International, do not recognize its operation.

The draftees include Churry, of the London, Ont., Michigan-Ontario League, team, drafted by the Chicago Nationals. He is the only player from a Canadian team in the list.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Where the North Begins," a screen drama featuring Rintintin, the famous dog, will play at the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a drama set in the far north silences with a woman for prize, in which a dog's instincts and intelligence thwart the diabolic cunning of a brute-man.

The picture is reported to be replete with mystery, glamour and adventure, and has won praise of the first order wherever already shown. Rintintin is credited with almost uncanny intuition, acting like a true veteran of screendom.

It is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, directed by Chester M. Franklin. The story deals with Gabriel Dupre, a young French-Canadian trapper, who returns from a far north trip and finds the Hudson Bay trading post in consternation over the disappearance of five men, missing after setting out singly with loads of fur. Gabriel undertakes to make the trip, leaving Felice McTavish, his sweetheart, behind, to the tender mercies of Shad Galloway, the tyrranical factor.

Gabriel himself is shot down, wounded and left for dead by a band of outlaws. A wolf attacks him in his weakened condition, but is withheld in time by some inner force —the spirit of devotion of his canine forbears, for he turns out to be a dog who had joined with a wolf-pack. The two become friends, and together succeed in running down the gang of crooks in Galloway's employ. The wolf-dog bears down on Galloway just when Felice is helpless and the camp deserted.

Claire Adams plays the feminine lead as Felice, with Walter McGrail opposite her as Gabriel. Others in the cast are Pat Hartigan, Myrtle Owen, Charles Stevens and Fred Huntley.

To-day, "Strangers of the Night" will be shown for the last time.

"MERRY-GO-ROUND" SPLENDID LOVE STORY AT ROYAL

Magnificent Screen Production Illustrates Trend Toward More Pretentious Pictures.

More and more every day the screen is turning to stories which require careful conscientious filming for the public delights in stories which contain "meat" in the way of detail and atmosphere.

"Merry-Go-Round," Universal's most elaborate production to date, now showing at the Royal Theatre is the sort of story which tells much more than its own plot. It tells the facts and still more important, the psychlogy behind the facts of pre-war life in Austria. This is done without a lot of heavy, irrelevant scenes simply by a powerful love story and the actions of a few principle characters.

Authenticity is one of the many noticeable things in this picture triumph and was largely secured through the help of Anton Vaverka and Captain Albebrt Conti de Cedassomaro. The first was an Austrian military officer who was most familiar with the court and social life of Vienna, while the second was a Captain of the Hussars.

THRILLING STORMS SHOWN IN PICTURE

Latest William Fox Special, "The Face on the Bar-room Floor," Replete With Thrills.

One of the most thrilling storms at sea ever shown on the screen will be seen in the new William Fox special production. "The Face on the Bar-room Floor," which will be the featured attraction at the Royal Theatre for a two day's engagement starting Friday.

The scenes were taken off the rocky coast of Maine during a gale that destroyed more than a score of fishing and other craft. The boat from which the scenes were taken seemed threatened with disaster on more than one occasion according to those on board.

"The Face on the Bar-room Floor," which was directed by Jack Ford, who will be remembered as the director of "The Village Blacksmith," and other Fox successes, features a notable cast of screen artists, including Henry B. Walthall, "The Little Colonel" of "Birth of a Nation," fame; Ruth Clifford, star of both serial and regular features; Alma Bennett recognized as one of the most beautiful and talented actresses in motion pictures; Harry Gribbon, for years a star in various comedy productions and numerous others of equal fame.

The picture, it is claimed, is replete with thrills, including, in addition to the terrific storms at sea, a sensational outbreak among the prisoners in a penitentiary; their thrilling escape over the prison walls; the daring leap for life of one of the fugitives and numerous other scenes destined to make the audience sit on the end of the seats.

SCHALK PICKS YANKS TO WIN

Ruth's Comeback and Team Spirit Will Turn the Trick.

BY RAY SCHALK.

World's Greatest Catcher.

Who will win the world series? There are a lot of people who would like to know the correct answer to that question. Will the Giants for the third time in succession triumph over the Yankees, desptie the opinion of the baseball experts to the contrary?

It is my very humble opinion that the Yankees are due to turn the tables on the Giants. I pick the Yankees to win, although I wouldn't be at all surprised if it took them the limit of seven games to turn the trick.

In picking the Yankees to win, I am not unmindful of the strength of the Giants. McGraw has a great team, a smart aggregation, a club quick to take advantage of any slip on the part of the opposition. However, I am well aware of the punch the Yankees possess, and I cannot set aside the remarkable power of the pitching staff, even though the value of an all-star staff in a short series is a mooted question.

The Yankees are a peculiar ball club. When the team is at the top of its game, getting high class pitching, it is well night invincible. On the other hand, the Yankees, when in a slump, can look very ordinary. Without a doubt the New York Americans failed to play up to their standard in the last two series with the Giants.

With the two clubs so evenly matched as the Giants and the Yankees, I feel that the law of averages will eventually assert itself. On two occasions the Giants have captured the world series. McGraw's club has played the best ball and gotten the breaks. I look for the Yankees to be a different ball club this year, one that will surprise the Giants with its new spirit.

The Yankees of 1923 are a different ball club from that of the past two years. Individual play has been shunted aside for team work. The ill feeling that seemed to exist among the stars in other years has been entirely eliminated. A fine spirit pervades the entire club, harmony seems to reign supreme, and the word of Miller Huggins is accepted as the law without the slightest murmur.

The "I am bigger than the manager" idea appears to have entirely disappeared from the ranks of the Yankees. That is going to be a big factor in reversing the success the Giants have enjoyed during the past two years.

In favoring the Yankees to win, I am banking on Babe Ruth to come through. In the two previous clashes Ruth has been a handicap rather than a help to the American League entry. In each series the pitching staff of the Giants has stopped Ruth. Instead of being the big threat of the Yankee offense, Ruth has been practically helpless at the bat. During the season the Yankees are a much stronger club when Ruth is hitting. Unquestionably his absolute failure at the bat hurt the morale of the club in the series.

In the coming series Ruth cannot be worse than he was in the two previous events. However, I look for Ruth to deliver this year. He is a far different player than the Ruth of 1921 and 1922. He is playing baseball, not merely swinging for home runs. With Ruth in there hitting and fielding in top form the Yankees are far more formidable. I am doping Ruth to be a great asset this year rather than a liability.

I look for Southpaw Herb Pennock to be a most troublesome pitcher for the Giants to solve. Pennock may prove to be the man who will swing the margin of victory to the Yankees. Pitchers who can slow up like Sam Jones and Waite Hoyt are the type of right handers that bothers the Giants. Fast ball pitching as supplied by Shawkey and Bush is a style favored by the Giants, according to my observations. Bush's fork ball is his best asset against the Giants.

Southpaw Jack Bentley is the only newcomer in the ranks of the Giants who stands out as a barrier to the Yankees' chances to win.

Bentley has a good curve ball and an excellent change of pace. Southpaws of that style always bother the Yankees. The veteran Sherrod Smith of the Cleveland team is a good example of what a heady southpaw can do with the Yankees. For the last two months of the race Smith has had little or no success against any club other than the Yankees.

Aside from Bentley and McQuillan, the rest of the staff of the Giants should not prove overly troublesome for the Yankees.

Superior pitching, the thought that Ruth is due to deliver, the decided improvement in the play of Second Baseman Ward, and the fine spirit that now prevails in the Yankee's lineup, are my reasons for believing that 1923 is an American League year.

OSHAWA TALKS NEW RINK.

The Oshawa Telegram has the following on the hockey situation in Oshawa.

The latest information possible as to the hockey situation for Oshawa for the coming season has been accepted with great favor. The season is going to be a good one as far as Oshawa is concerned, and the team will be represented in the Intermediate series of the O.H.A. with a very strong team. Contradictions to rumors that Oshawa have but very little real material to work with is made by "those on the inside." Those who are really on the inside are most conservative as to what they do know and one can't blame them. However, The Telegram was told yesterday that "Oshawa would have one sweet team." These were the glad tidings given out with all other "inside information" withheld. It means the players who think catching a place on the team is going to be "soft picking" will be greatly surprised to learn they are much in error. When the practice season arrives it will then be seen who will be able to make the team.

The Telegram was also informed from the best of authority that the Oshawa Hockey Club are taking all precautions and have more material here than will likely be used. Several new faces who are and have been in Oshawa since August 1st will appear in uniform. It is quite evident that the local club does not intend to be caught napping as was the ball club and have any of their players questioned but have their material right at hand and working at the various large shops about town. Since the much talked of industrial and mercantile league situation, many players who have not played O.H.A. for a considerable time will likely find themselves returning to the fold.

Next spring and summer will likely find themselves returning to the fold.

Next spring and summer will likely see one of the most modern ice palaces between Montreal and Toronto built here. It was unofficially stated that a large canning concern is behind the project and will use the proposed new building to refrigerate fresh fruit. This will mean an artificial ice plant, giving the rink a similar ice surface in winter. As the Grimbsy proposition has proven itself successful, the same idea will likely be carried out here.

BASEBALL

Says Sandy Lockington in the Port Hope Guide:

"The Central League has decided to request the O.B.A.A. to change the date of the residence rule to March 1st. It will be remembered that at the last annual meeting the Port Hope delegates fought for this very point, but met with strong opposition. Some of the delegates pointed out that it was the only way to stop the ringing in of players and if baseball was to be kept in the amateur ranks, the first of January rule would have to be adopted. And it was adopted, and to show the world that expense was a secondary consideration down this way, the Central League was split in two groups. Section B wanted lots of baseball and the jump of 150 miles from Peterboro to Kingston was considered trifling. A single schedule was laughed at, a double one would be no better, a triple would not give enough home games so the Big Four decided on a quadruple schedule. Certainly they found it hard going before the close, but they carried it through. Now they recommend reverting back to the single group and adopting March 1st as the residence rule. What reason will the representatives to the O.B.A.A. meeting give, should the Association question them on the proposed change. To fall from a quadruple schedule under a January 1st rule to a single schedule with a March 1st residence rule all within twelve months tells its own story of "amateur" ball in the Central League.

SHAG AND HIS TEAM

Shaughnessy, like many another coach, made a name in football because he happened, early in his Canadian career, to act as mentor to a good team, remarks the Toronto Telegram. It was good because it had the requisite bee, muscle and football brains with which nature endowed its members. "Shag" didn't make its fame, but it did make "Shag's" name. Since then he has proved early and often that while a great team can make a great name for an ordinary coach, a coach, even if he is acclaimed as great, cannot make a great team out of a bunch of ordinary athletes.

And as it is with "Shag" so it has been with many another of the coaching or managing tribe, whose names live in sporting history. Connie Mack was the greatest man in baseball till he sold the players that made him great. John McGraw still retains his reputation, and probably will so long as he has the money to buy the pick of the league, as well as the advisers to tell him which man to buy.

And in lacrosse, too. You'll remember when the country rang with the names of Tom O'Connell and Barney Dunphy. That was in the days when the Shamrocks were sweeping all before them, when Paddy Brennan and Henry Hoobin, and Albert Dade, and Tack Hendry and Johnnie Brennan, too, were on the home. And behind them they had a defence on which Roddy Finlayson and Jim Cavanagh and Johnnie Howard did their bit. If, htat crowd had been coached by the office boy of the Ladies' Home Journal and managed by the editor of the Delineator, they would have been a great team. Anyway, while they did the playing, Tim O'Connell and Barney Dunphy made the noise. But you heard more of the last two named than you did of any of the men who really won the games.

PARK HEADS TO MEET.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (United Press.)—The seventh annual conference of national park superintendents will open here Oct. 22, New policies of the Department of the Interior toward park administration will be laid before the meeting and plans for wider public use and better care of visitors to the parks discussed.

SOCCER STARS FEWER IN OLD COUNTRY GAMES

"Box Office Attractions" Have Been Substituted By Speed and Goal Getting.

Eight hundred thousand people watched football on the opening day of the old country football season, recently begun. Forty-four English league matches alone drew over three-quarter of a million spectators, not to speak of the countless other minor leagues scattered up and down England. And in the majority of the games played the quality of football was reported to be—even allowing for lack of practice—poor and unsatisfactory.

Nowadays, not only is the general level of footballing skill lower than it used to be, but there are no footballers of the genius of Bloomer (who, it will be remembered, was in Canada last year, coaching Montreal Grenadier Guards' team),G.O. Smith (the greatest centre forward of all time), Needham, Crabtree, W. J. Oakly, R. E. Foster, V. J. Woodward and Robert Crompton, playing in English games. Nor has Wales a Meredith or an L. R. Roose, or Ireland a McCracken.

Not So Badly Off In Scotland.

Scotland is not quite so badly off. There are two or three Scots—Andrew Wilson and A. L. Morton for example—who would have to be seriously considered for a "best ever" Scottish side.

But the shoes of a great many famous players remain unfilled. Where are the real successors of such wonderful players as Bobby Walker, Pete McWilliam, Jacky Robertson, Nick Smith, Neilly Gibson, Jamie Quinn, Jamie McMenemy and Bobby Templeton? And the echo only is to be heard—"Where?"

These men had a faculty of football that would astonish most of the present generation of followers of the game. The youths and boys of today have really very little idea of the artistry of some of the old-time stars.

The Bonus System.

The bonus system which prevails in the old land may have something to do with the poor quality of football being dished up. The players are made on goals. Goals must be scored at almost any price, with the result that there is much rough-and-tumble football. A player must be strong physically to stand the pace of old country professional football, which, as everyone knows, has been highly commercialized, much the same as baseball is on this side of the Atlantic.

And there seems no hope of a change for the better. The game has entered upon a new era, but the crowds are not diminishing. For a country where unemployment is rife, the support the games gets in the old land is remarkable. It is the turnstiles that keep football going, and so long as the turnstiles click merrily, the officials have no cause for worry. The new generation of spectators do not know the difference between the old styles of football and the new, but the old-timers do, and it is with a sigh of regret that they see the passing of the old.

Not Many Stars Nowadays.

In the old days there were individual players who drew the crowd. They were "box office attractions" just as certain actors and actresses were and are. But today who is there whom people in the old land will go specially to see. There are probably only half a dozen —Grimsdell and Walden, of Totten; Watson, of West Ham; Kelly, of Burnley, Sam Hardy of Notts Forest and Andrew Wilson, of Middlesboro.

What, then, is the reason, for this lack of stars? Two may be cited, and one of these is the absurd objection on the part of clubs and spectators to players who attempt to exploit any individualism. Another reason is the ruling passion for pace in football. Speed appears to be in greater demand than skill. The players have no time to try to be clever. They are athletes first, exponents of the game second. It's a bad thing for the game, this mania for speed, and England did not take its cue from Scotland in this regard. In the old days the Scots relied more on craft than in speed, and it was generally successful. But even in the land ayont the Tweed the cry is for speed, and still more speed.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Will you allow me a little space in your esteemed paper in regard to Campbell Morgan's questions 3 and 4. If our friend had read 1 Timothy 2, 6, instead of 2, 5, he would see that Jesus gave Himself a ransom for all to be testified to all in due time. A ransom is a corresponding price. Adam was a perfect man. Jesus was a perfect man. He became a man for that purpose. All was in Adam lost and all will in Christ in due time be found. All in Adam died, so all in Christ will be made alive, but that does not change the human nature. When our Lord finished the work that the Heavenly Father gave Him to do, He returned to heaven as said St. Peter, Acts 3, 21, until the restitution of all things which all the prophets foretold. And our Lord said, If I go away I will come again. . Jer. 31, 16-17, represents death as the land of the enemy. Thus saith the Lord, thy children shall come again from the land of the enemy. Job 3, 18, says there the prisoners rest together. Psa. 69, 33, The Lord despiseth not his prisoners. Isa. 42, 7, The Lord will bring out the prisoners out of the prison house. Isa. 49, 9, Thou mayest say to the prisoners, go forth. Zech. 9, 11-12, Turn to the strongholds, ye prisoners of hope. Death is termed the great prison house over which Satan has had charge and the Scriptures say He openeth not the house of his prisoners, and as death is not a place, so the prison used as a figure of speech, and when Christ comes again all that are in their graves shall hear His voice and shall come forth. The raising of Lazarus was not a resurrection. Martha said, John 11, 24, I know he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Man is not yet freed from the penalty of death, for it is appointed unto man once to die. 1 Cor. 15, 35-40, and after death the judgment, and they shall be judged according as their works shall be, i.e., when they come forth, not as their work had been. One of the signs of our Lord's return is the distress of nations. Another sign, earthquakes in divers places. Rev. 11, 15, The kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever. Isa. 11, 9, The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.—Yours truly,

John Boorman.

PRESBYTERIANS AND CHURCH UNION.

To the Editor,

Peterborough Examiner.

Sir,—Dr. E. Scott's war-whoop in the press calling upon all Catholics as well as Protestants to "oppose in Parliament" (his own words) the church union scheme as unconstitutional, reminds me of Butler's Hudibras satirizing the "Presbyterian true blue" who "proved his doctrine orthodox by apostolic blows and knocks" on the drum ecclesiastic. The banner he waves, however, is not "true blue," but amazingly streaked with the red of the anarchist! His lurid terms for the General Assembly—always addressed as "the venerable," but branded by him as "iniquitous"—indicate that, despite Scripture, he is "not afraid to speak evil of dignities." It is, he says, "scrapping the church, wiping it out forever, winding it up, selling it up," compelling the faithful to "get out homeless on to the street," although he knows that equitable provision is made for non-concurring congregations to retain their property and share in church funds.

What crazy rascals they must be, these moderators, the 427 majority members of last assembly, almost all our foreign missionaries and college professors! But Parliament can be relied upon (with proper push and pull) to bring them to their senses! Catholics must join in the Parliamentary fight for "religious liberty vs. despotism," else, he tells them, "your turn may be the next to have your church scrapped"—an evil bid for the rescue of the minority of Quebec Catholics. We might let him go on thus; he is doing fine, alienating moderate men from extremist courses. But the assembly's pastoral to the church, signed by Principal Gandier as moderator, did not appear in your pages, and your readers must not be left to Dr. Scott's perversion of it.

The authority of the Presbyterian Church in its stated courts is repudiated. Dr. Scott and his company are dethroning the General Assembly. It was, according to the Presbyterian Church Association, "in no sense a representative body and its action therefore could not bind the church at large." Is that self-appointed association more representative of the church than the assembly?

Dr. Scott says that Dr. Gandier in the assembly's pastoral "does not even refer to the people; to him the people are nowhere, not worth mentioning, to be kept quiet till tied hand and foot." Is there a blind spot in his eye, or how? The pastoral in plain words cites "overwhelming majorities of our people," etc. He and his company would not accept the vote of the people when it was twice given, and try to excite blind passion by branding the assembly's action as "coercion."

Dr. Scott makes an addition to the constitution of the church, for there is no provision for consulting the people at all. Such questions must go down to Presbyteries and no lower. The Free Church of Scotland never took a vote of the people before proceeding to union. He is not even a good Presbyterian; he would make us Congregationalists. More curiously still, he says the church is under "clerical despotism"; yet he knows that all our courts are equally composed of ministers and laymen.

Dr. Scott's other plea contradicts and undercuts his appeal to the people in claiming that constitutionally it was beyond its powers for the assembly or church to decide for union at all. He says "the church has no provision for its own disbanding (a word I challenge); all the constitutional steps are for its own continuance." On this principle the people, no matter how big the vote, could not legally determine for union. Sending down the question to the people was a fool's errand, for union was blocked in advance by the absence of provision for it. Why did not anti-unionists, instead of debating the question as if it were valid, enter an injunction to prevent any vote being taken in either courts or congregations?, It was only when defeated in church courts that they fortunately discovered the whole thing illegal.

Some associates of Dr. Scott would have liked to unite with the Anglicans, and I led in negotiations for a larger union. But such a union would be unconstitutional; according to Dr. Scott, we can never unite with any other body! So here our church is struck perpetually.

What is really at stake now is the spiritual freedom of the church. Is it free to adjust the expression of its prevailing mind upon creed and government, or is it in the grip of the "dead hand"? Is church union to be prevented by Parliament or any Legislature? Having failed in the church courts these extremists are to appeal to Caesar or the secular arm to override the assembly and thwart the will of the church, Dr. Scott even invoking Catholics to oppose it in Parliament. The Enabling Bill deals only with property interests and civil matters, and if extreme anti-unionists are going to manipulate political powers to overthrow the spiritual freedom of the church in respect of union itself, such ecclesiastical sedition will surely set the heather on fire!

All honor to brethren who on conscientious grounds must stay out of the union to their own and our distress; but if they temporarily thwart union do they suppose the three conferring churches will throw up their hands?

I am not thrashing the merits of church union on which I had my own personal difficulties, which were finally overborne by the larger interests of the church and country. Every one was free to maintain his own opinions up to the last ditch at the recent assembly. But it is quite another matter when the church, through the assembly, is robbed of authority and loyal adhesion, and may be overridden by Erastians who final trust is in Parliament.

Yours,

R. E. WELSH.

To the Editor of the Examiner

Sir—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the famous authoress, gives a vivid account of the Oneida Community of New York, the white settlement in New York state ultimately supressed by the United States Government.

It was founded on the eugenics' plan, and for that purpose. Of course in slavery days negroes were led around like stallions so as to turn out a eugenical progeny. Anything more degrading and soul-destroying cannot be imagined than this talk now going on in some of our chruches if as it seems to be, it is intended to develop a taste for eugenics which means "well begotten") in our midst. It is said that those whom the Gods wish to de? stroy they first make crazy. However, here is what Mrs. Wilcox says—"No woman was to bear a child unless she desired motherhood, and she was then to select the father for her child. But before she was allowed to become a mother a committee of twelve wise men investigated the mental, moral and physical conditions of the two contracting parties, and of their ancestors. If any cause was found which seemed to menace the desired offispring, the parties were expected to abandon their idea, for the good of the world. * * * If the man and woman wanting offspring were found to be unsuitable parents by the committee, each was expected to accept a mate chosen by that committee as better suited to produce wholesome children. * * * * One of the sweetest and most admirable women I ever knew * * * * entered the community when only 3 years old. * * * At sixteen she found herself romantically stirred by the presence of a young man of the community. The committee found him unsuitable. * * * They believed her, however, to be a suitable mother and selected a man for her who was to be the father of her child.". The head of the community was, of course a favorite. He had seventeen or more illegitimate children, but physically he was thoroughbred, just like a prize boar or a Holstein bull. "Children, like property, belonged to the community, not to individuals." Lenin and Trotsky have nothing on this. It is their pet scheme. It is the belly and brains of Bolshevism. The churches are doing a grand work. The soul is dead—long live the body. Our young people ought to be uplifted mightily by this week's talk. Have you been examined yet? Make no mistake, human blood is a question of the soul, not of the body. The moment you make it a matter of the body it becomes animal.

DRAFTED TO BIG LEAGUES.

Operation Does Not Affect the International—Terms Are Now Cash on Delivery.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. — Fifteen minor league stars were drafted yesterday by National and American League clubs at the annual draft meeting held under the direction of Commissioner Landis. Players were obtained under the selective system by five American and four National League clubs.

The draft took place under the new regulations which provided that it be made on the day before the opening of the world's series, instead of after the championship, as heretofore. Clubs obtaining minor leaguers now are obliged to pay the full draft price at once, instead of in instalments. The prices fixed range from $1,000 to $4,000, according to the classification.

Less importance than in former years, however, is attached to the draft process, as five of the big minor leagues, including the International, do not recognize its operation.

The draftees include Churry, of the London, Ont., Michigan-Ontario League, team, drafted by the Chicago Nationals. He is the only player from a Canadian team in the list.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Where the North Begins," a screen drama featuring Rintintin, the famous dog, will play at the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a drama set in the far north silences with a woman for prize, in which a dog's instincts and intelligence thwart the diabolic cunning of a brute-man.

The picture is reported to be replete with mystery, glamour and adventure, and has won praise of the first order wherever already shown. Rintintin is credited with almost uncanny intuition, acting like a true veteran of screendom.

It is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, directed by Chester M. Franklin. The story deals with Gabriel Dupre, a young French-Canadian trapper, who returns from a far north trip and finds the Hudson Bay trading post in consternation over the disappearance of five men, missing after setting out singly with loads of fur. Gabriel undertakes to make the trip, leaving Felice McTavish, his sweetheart, behind, to the tender mercies of Shad Galloway, the tyrranical factor.

Gabriel himself is shot down, wounded and left for dead by a band of outlaws. A wolf attacks him in his weakened condition, but is whhheld in time by some inner force —the spirit of devotion of his canine forbears, for he turns out to be a dog who had joined with a wolf-pack. The two become friends, and together succeed in running down the gang of crooks in Galloway's employ. The wolf-dog bears down on Galloway just when Felice is helpless and the camp deserted.

Claire Adams plays the feminine lead as Felice, with Walter McGrail opposite her as Gabriel. Others in the cast are Pat Hartigan, Myrtle Owen, Charles Stevens and Fred Huntley.

To-day, "Strangers of the Night" will be shown for the last time.

"MERRY-GO-ROUND" SPLENDID LOVE STORY AT ROYAL

Magnificent Screen Production Illustrates Trend Toward More Pretentious Pictures.

More and more every day the screen is turning to stories which require careful conscientious filming for the public delights in stories which contain "meat" in the way of detail and atmosphere.

"Merry-Go-Round," Universal's most elaborate production to date, now showing at the Royal Theatre is the sort of story which tells much more than its own plot. It tells the facts and still more important, the psychology behind the facts of prewar life in Austria. This is done without a lot of heavy, irrelevant scenes simply by a powerful love story and the actions of a few principle characters.

Authenticity is one of the many noticeable things in this picture triumph and was largely secured through the help of Anton Vaverka and Captain Albebrt Conti de Cedassomaro. The first was an Austrian military officer who was most familiar with the court and social life of Vienna, while the second was a Captain of the Hussars.

Latest William Fox Special, "The Face on the Bar-room Floor," Replete With Thrills.

One of the most thrilling storms at sea ever shown on the screen will be seen in the new William Fox special production. "The Face on the Bar-room Floor," which will be the featured attraction at the Royal Theatre for a two day's engagement starting Friday.

The scenes were taken off the rocky coast of Maine during a gale that destroyed more than a score of fishing and other craft. The boat from which the scenes were taken seemed threatened with disaster on more than one occasion according to those on board.

"The Face on the Bar-room Floor," which was directed by Jack Ford, who will be remembered as the director of "The Village Blacksmith," and other Fox successes, features a notable cast of screen artists, including Henry B. Walthall, "The Little Colonel" of "Birth of a Nation," fame; Ruth Clifford, star of both serial and regular features; Alma Bennett recognized as one of the most beautiful and talented actresses in motion pictures; Harry Gribbon, for years a star in various comedy productions and numerous others of equal fame.

The picture, it is claimed, is replete with thrills, including, in addition to the terrific storms at sea, a sensational outbreak among the prisoners in a penitentiary; their thrilling escape over the prison walls; the daring leap for life of one of the fugitives and numerous other scenes destined to make the audience sit on the end of the seats.

WEDDING BELLS

RUDD—LAVERY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, when Irene Marie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Lavery, 212 Sherbourne Street, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. George Rudd, also of Toronto. The ceremnoy was performed by Rev. Father McQuillen.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, Mr. P. Lavery, Peterborough, and was assisted by her sister, Miss Anna Lavery. The groom was assisted by Mr. Tom Mullaney, also of Toronto.

The bride looked lovely, gowned in silver grey with silver slippers and a French hat to match. The bridesmaid was also gowned in silver grey.

A dainty wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home, which was decked with palms, ferns, and gladioli. In the evening the drawing-room doors were thrown open to the crowds of people for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudd will reside at 212 Sherbourne Street, Toronto.

WAGAR—ROOT.

A quiet wedding took place at Deseronto on Wednesday morning, 3rd October, when Myrtle Fern, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Dorland Wagar, Deseronto, Ontario, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to William Howley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Root, Hall's Bridge. Rev. Mr. Richardson performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a lovely dress of sand messaline, trimmed with pearls, and carried a bouquet of roses. The couple were attended by Miss Mary Wagar of Peterborough and Mr. Arthur Aselstine, of Frankford.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served, and the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Napanee, where they took the train to Hall's Bridge and Peterborough, for their honeymoon, after which they will reside in Oshawa.

The bride travelled in a navy blue serge suit. Her hat was a turban of navy velvet and grey duvetyn.

The couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, including silverware and cut-glass.

IN MEMORIAM.

McKEE.—In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mrs. John McKee, who passed away one year ago to-day, October 10, 1922.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought her death so near.
The silent grief that's in the hearts
No human life can trace,
For many an aching heart is hid
Behind a smiling face.
The golden gates were open,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewell words unspoken
She calmly entered home.

—Inserted by her two Granddaughters, Mrs. L. A. Smithson and Mrs. V. Scully.

IN MEMORIAM.

McKEE.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. John McKee, who passed away one year ago to-day, October 10, 1922.

This day brings back to memery
A loved one called to rest,
And those who think of her to-day
Are those who loved her best.
But some day we will meet her,
Some day, we know not when,
We will clasp her hand in a better land,
Never to part again.

BLAMES CHICAGO FOR THE JAPANESE QUAKE

CHICAGO, (United Press)—The Japanese earthquake was caused by the failure of Chicago to build a subway back in 1899 according to a statement made by a St. Louis scientist.

The reasoning is simple he says. Had Chicago built a subway, they would have been forced to use an electrolytic method of sewage disposal in which event the drainage canal, from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi River, would never have been built.

The earthquake he theorizes was the result of an abnormal quantity of water diverted from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico, through the drainage canal. This in turn caused a change of balance on the earth's surface that brought about the Japanes, earthquake.

To this same state of affairs he also attributes the climatic changes that have affected the cotton crop.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — = New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Prices —

Today's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.— (United Press.)— The opening of the stock market to-day was decidedly mixed with advances and declines registered in the leading stocks about equally divided.

American Woollen opening at 71 1-8, was 1-4 above the previous close, while American Can, selling at 90 3-8, was off 1-8. Steel opened at 87 1-8.

A vast contingent is going to leave the street for the first game of the world baseball series, so the attendance on the floor is likely to peter out as the session advances.

There was scattered selling in an uninteresting market in the first half hour.

Steel was under pressure, selling at 86 1-2 against a close of 87 1-8.

Studebaker is receiving substantial support around the prevailing levels and Tuesday, when it was selling under 95, there was considerable inside buying. This stock has been one of the favorites of the shorts. Selling at 95 34 it was off 1-4 from the close.

National Biscuit was quite active around 47, which is but 1 1-2 points below the high of the year. Company's earnings are fulfilling the most optimistic expectations with net after taxes running about $1,000,000 a month. For nine months ended September 30, net after taxes amounted to 9,000,091 against $5,223,956 in the same period a year ago. In other words, earnings are running about $6 a share on the common stock.

Weakness in Oils was due to the unfavorable sentiment created by the sharp cutting in the price of California Oil Tuesday, when the price was brought down to a level where further reduction in price of Midday Continental Oil is necessary, if producers in the last named field are to be in a position to compete for business along the Atlantic seaboard. Reduction in price came at a time when much was being said about the peak of oil production having been passed in California. Whether the peak is passed or not, the facts remain that California will continue to produce extraordinary quantities of oil over the next year and that its influence on the market will continue for a long time.

A brisk rally set after the first hour had absorbed some overnight selling orders, chiefly from wire houses.

South Porto Rico Sugar sold at 55, up 4 from yesterday's low and Punta Alegre at 56 3-4, up 3-8 net.

Baldwin sold at 117, up 3-4 from the close. Wabash A, sold at 32 1-2 up 3-4 from the low. Woolworth at 257 was up 4 3-4. Dupont rallied to 126 against a low of 122 1-2 Tuesday.

Tobacco Products issues were strong.

Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation to-day declared the regular quarterly dividends of fifty cents on the common and $2 on the preferred. The common is payable November 30th to stockholders of record of November 11th and the preferred November 15 to stock of record November 1st.

Opening prices included: United States Steel 87, off 1-8. Sinclair 17 5-8, off 1-4; American Woollen 71 1-8, up 1-4; New Haven 12 7-8, up 3-8; Studebaker 95 1-2, off 1-2; Can. 90 1-8, off 1-8; U. S. Rubber 37 1-8, off 3-8; Southern Railway 35, off 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 58 5-8, up 1-8; Reading 78 3-8, up 1-8; American Locomotive 65 5-8, up 1-8; Pan. Petroleum B 54 1-8; Northern Pacific 54 1-2, off 1-4.

The general public displayed a keener interest in the local market yesterday than has appeared for some little time. The active list was broad, and while prices moved irregularly there were several distinctly firm spots.

Canadian General Electric Common was an active trading feature, over 600 shares changing hands. The close at 105 represented a net advance of two points. Interest in this particular stock revives periodically, and on those occasions is revived, too, the persistent rumor that the General Electric Co. of America is buying in the stock in order to acquire control. No confirmation of this rumor can be secured from the company's officials here, although it is fairly generally accepted that there is substantial foundation for the gossip. Brokers admit that the bulk of the stock which has changed hands in the past year has gone across the international border. Its final destiny is not known.

SITUATION IN GERMANY AT A CRITICAL TURN

Stresemann Given Authority to Dissolve Reichstag Should Authorization Bill Fail to Carry.

GOVERNMENT CURSED

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—(Special.) — President Ebert this afternoon invested Chancellor Stresemann with authority to dissolve the Reichstag. In event that Government's authorization bill giving the Chancellor wide authority in dictation of measures for economic rehabilitation, fails to command the necessary two-thirds majority in that body.

The Chancellor immediately informed Coalition party leaders of the alternative confronting the Government parties. Socialists thereupon immediately called a caucus with the idea of uniting the party in support of the authorization law. Minority defection in the ranks of the Socialists was a treat which hung over the measure, giving rise to fears that it would be defeated when it came up for final vote, which was expected before 4 p.m.

A Critical Turn.

The parliamentary situation took a critical turn this afternoon as a result of the Government's inability to command a two-thirds majority for its authorization law. When the bill came up for the third reading, Chairman Loebe informed the Reichstag that Chancellor Stresemann had gone to President Ebert to report on the situation and to demand that if the Government were not guaranteed the necessary votes, President Ebert forthwith dissolve the Reichstag.

Hurried Consultation.

Chancellor Stresemann left the Reichstag shortly before noon and sought a hurried consultation with President Ebert, giving rise to rumors that he was asking the dissolution of the Reichstag.

It was believed the Chancellor feared that the bill giving his government dictatorial powers for six months was not going to pass its third and final reading and that this caused him to ask that the session be adjourned indefinitely.

It was understood on good authority that Stresemann obtained authorization to dissolve the Reichstag if the bill is defeated.

A New Crisis.

Failure of the bill means a new political crisis for the Paris government.

The Bourse manifests little optimism over the possibility that the Chancellor can cope with the situation. Early quotations of the dollar around 5,550,000,000 reflected the situation.

The market places were filled with crying women, who found the sudden flop in currency values beyond their pocket books. Many could not make the table purchases they had planned.

The curses of the buyers against the government were mingled with those of the dealrs.

A GLASGOW WOMAN GOES TO GALLOWS

First Woman to Pay the Death Penalty in Seventy Years.

LONDON, Oct. 11. — Susan Newell, the first woman to go to the gallows in Glasgow in the past 70 years, was executed in the Duke Street Prison, Glasgow, yesterday for murdering a schoolboy at Coatbridge.

Attempts were made to obtain a reprieve for the woman and when these proved unsuccessful she was informed of her fate by the Lord Provost and Town Clerk. The Lord Provost was visibly moved and expressed profound regret that he was obliged to be the bearer of the sad message that the Secretary for Scotland had not seen his way to grant a reprieve.

Such a distressing scene followed this announcement, that those who witnessed it are not likely to forget it.

The crime for which Susan Newell suffered execution was discovered when she was seen entering a back court with a bundle containing the body of a boy who had called at her house with papers and was not seen again alive.

It was stated at her trial that she had attempted to lift the boards in the floor of the room she occupied with a view to concealing the body. The next morning she wheeled the body 11 miles into Glasgow from Coatbridge on a go-cart. She was arrested when about to leave the bundle in a back court.

County Teachers Open Convention In Normal School

A convention of the Peterborough Teachers' Institute representing the teachers of the county of Peterborough, opened this morning at half past nine o'clock at the Normal school, for a two-day session. Teachers to the number of about a hundred and ten are expected from the district for the morning, afternoon and evening sessions, which will be presided over by Mr. W. Madill, of Lakefield.

This evening, an illustrated lecture will be given by Mr. Perry of Toronto, representing the Provincial Department of Education.

MOMEN FAINT MASONIC MEET

Thirty Collapse While Waiting to Vote in Long Controversy Within Eastern Star.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. — Thirty women fainted for lack of air in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria, when one of the bitterest fights within the ranks of the Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, with a membership of 120,000 women in New York State, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the administration.

By a vote that was estimated at 30 to 1 the 2,500 delegates who jammed the ballroom and the balconies sustained the action of Grand Matron Mildred V. Everson in suspending former Grand Matron Clara Smith Heisenbuttle of Buffalo from her position as a Grand Trustee. Mrs. Heisenbuttle was suspended April 27, 1923. The action of the delegates to the annual convention formally removed Mrs. Heisenbuttle from her position.

The meeting began at 1 p.m. Mrs. Everson read her annual report. The delegates paid the closest attention to the voluminous document which took two hours to read. In the report Mrs. Everson appealed to the members to support her stand in the controversy with Mrs. Heisenbuttle, which has caused turmoil in the women's Masonic Order for about two years.

Faint Waiting to Vote.

Mrs. Everson frequently was applauded. The air became close, but the women in the ballroom remained in their places eager for the end of the report so that they might cast their ballots. Toward the close of the reading of the report, several women fainted. After the voting began, and the excitement mounted high, some more fainted. They were carried out to the lobby of the second floor and restoratives administered.

The session lasted several hours. It was not until 8 o'clock that all the votes had been cast. Two hours later an estimate that the votes had run about 30 to 1 was made. Old members said the meeting was one of the most exciting within their memory.

BOTH NATURE AND MAN ARE AGAINST AGRARIAN

Two tragedies have left their mark on the agricultural history of the United States in the last ten years. The scene of one was in the fertile corn belt in which fabulous prices were paid for lands, mainly in the form of mortgages, during the boom, and where the owners now find it impossible to meet mortgage payments out of the diminished returns obtainable from farm products.

The second and greater tragedy has been enacted in Montana and other parts of the semi-arid district included in the States flanked by the Rockies. The abnormal rainfall between 1912 and 1915 led thousands to undertake ordinary farming operations on lands previously devoted to ranching. Then the dry years came again, and as a result men and women, after losing their all, have given up the struggle against forces of nature. A writer in the Breeders' Gazette says that last summer he made a trip over a district where four years ago practically every quarter section was occupied. Last summer all but three of those seen in an 18-mile drive were deserted.

An elderly "dry farmer" said that in one community of 15 or 20 farmers only one had been able to meet his tax bill in the last two years.

"In the years when drought, hot winds, late frosts, early freezes, and grasshoppers miss us we are subject to destructive hailstorms," he said. It was indeed the case, for a hailstorm the afternoon previous had ploughed two or three strips of destruction across the country, cheating many a homesteader out of a crop almost ready for harvest.

"The roads for days," says the writer quoted, "were dotted with nondescript moving outfits containing a discouraged homesteader's family, with household effects, a few bony cayuse horses, gaunt from a lack of feed, a hungry looking dog or two and an occasional cow tied to the rear of the wagon."

WILL NOT OPEN NEGOTIATIONS WITH GERMANY

Berlin Government Ignored by France in Favor of French and German Industrials.

CREDIT EXTENSION

PARIS, Oct. 11. — (Special). Premier Poicare has refused to open negotiations with the German Government to wind up the Ruhr muddle and pave the way for resumption of reparation deliveries.

His refusal is based on the ground that negotiations are already under way between France and German industralists dealing directly with German big business. France ignores the Berlin Government. In a 25 minute talk with Poincare Herr Von Hoesch, German charge D'Affaires in Paris, advanced Berlin's proposals for negotiations.

Poincare replied that negotiations were proceeding between Franco-Belgium authorties and German employers and workers in the disrupted territories and that there was no reason to add or substract negotiations with the German Government.

Germany Must Move.

Poincare repeated his statement that Germany must make any reparations proposals directly to the Reparations Commission:

He added that the French Government does not think Berlin should interfere in the present Ruhr negotiations.

Extension of Credits

Negotiations are under way for an extension of credits to Germany by American Bankers. Dr. Wiedfeldt German ambassador to Washington, has cut short his visit to Berlin and is sailing for America to continue the negotiations which were begun in New York by ex-Chancellor Cuno and a prominent member of the German industrialists Association.

Wiedfeldt is sailing on October 17 in the Reliance. Banking circles in Berlin are optimistic over reports of favorable progress in the negotiations.

LINDSAY PRESIDENT WAS NOT AUTHOR

Has Nothing But Kindest Feelings for Peterboro Exhibition Board.

Some weeks ago during the progress of the Peterboro Exhibition the Peterboro Kiwanis Club and Exhibition Board directors met together at a luncheon on the grounds at which a good deal of comedy took place. Two ficticious messages were produced one supposedly from Lord Renfrew expressing his regret at being unable to stop over and take in the Fair and the other purporting to be from President Carew of the Lindsay Fair Board designating the Peterboro Exhibition as a "winter Fair" on account of the prevailing weather and inviting the local fair directors to visit Lindsay the following week in their "palm beach suits." While it was evident to the general public that the one from Lord Renfrew was concocted for the occasion, a different interpretation was placed on the one that bore the name of Mr. Carew. A great many people thought that Mr. Carew was the author of the message whereas as a matter of fact he had nothing to do with and did not known anything about it until he saw it in the press. Mr. Carew has nothing but the kindest feelings for the Peterboro Exhibition Board and he does not desire to be placed in a false light. A great number of people have spoken to Mr. Carew about the matter believing him to be the author of the message in question. The Examiner gladly takes this opportunity of enlightening those who may labor under a wrong impression regarding a matter and point out that Mr. Carew was not the author of the message in question.

Home Nursing Class to Be Arranged For.

MONTREAL, October 11 (Canadian Press). — The Central Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society at its meeting held here yesterday passed a resolution favouring the establishment of classes in home nursing throughout Canada.

These classes will be arranged for and conducted under the direction of the Provinical divisions in the several Provinces, and special grants will be made to the Provincial divisions sufficient to cover 50 per cent. of the cost of such work for a period of one year.

In connection with the Japanese Relief Fund it was stated that British Columbia had supplied $17,000 in cash and $2,500 in supplies. Ontario showed a possibility of nearly $150,000 being raised there. Quebec would give about $20,000. Nova Scotia reported $8,000 already raised. Good progress was reported from the other Provinces.

HOME RUNS IN TODAY'S GAME AT BALL PARK

Ruth Came Through in Good Style—Big Crowd Saw Second Game.

STORY OF GAME

NEW YORK POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press). — Stunned in late sleeping, perhaps by the thrills of yesterday's epic game, jaded baseball fans arrived slowly at the Polo Grounds to-day for the second encounter between the champions of the two major baseball leagues for a world's title. When the advance guards from the two teams appeared on the field there was hardly a ripple from the crowds.

Looking jaunty and full of fight, the Yankees evidently believed, with their manager, Miller Huggins, that all the breaks went to the Giants in the opening tussle, and they would have better luck to-day.

Babe Ruth, one of the first on the field, swung his trusty bludgeon on the side lines, while Cozy Dolan gave the Giant recruits some batting practice on the diamond. The Giants were attired in their spic and span white uniforms, while the Yankees had on their blue gray travelling costumes. Underneath the grandstand the rival boards of strategy mapped out their plans for the battle.

The sky became overcast near the game time, and the half light gave an opportunity for rival managers to send speed pitchers to the hurling hill.

Batteries for the Giants were: McQuillan, pitching, and Snyder, catching. Yankees: Pennock, pitching, and Schang, catching.

The batting order was as follows:

Yankees—Witt, cf; Dugan, 3b; Ruth, rf; R. Meusel, lf; Pipp, 1b; Ward, 2b; Schang, c; Scott, ss; Pennock, p.

Giants—Bancroft, ss; Groh, 3b; Frisch, 2b; Young, rf; E. Meusel, lf; Cunningham, cf; Kelly, 1b; Snyder, c; McQuillan, p.

First Innings.

Yankees—There was delay until the photographers had been cleared from the field. Frisch tossed out Witt. Dugan walked on four straight balls. Ruth walked and the crowd howled. Meusel hit into a double play, Bancroft to Frisch to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Scott threw out Bancroft. Pennock took Groh's slash and threw him out. Ward robbed Frisch of a hit with a one hand stop and a quick throw to first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Yankees—Groh threw out Pipp, making a nice play on Pipp's hot grounder. Ward hit a home run into the upper left field stand. Schang lofted out to Snyder. Scott flied out to Meusel. One run, one hit, no errors.

Giants—Young popped to Dugan. Meusel up. Meusel hit a home run into the left field stand, tieing the count. Cunningham flied out to Ruth. Kelly up. Kelly singled into right. Snyder sent up a high fly to Ward. One run, two hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Yankees—Frisch tossed out Pennock. Frisch also got Witt at first. Dugan flied out to Meusel. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants—Dugan made a wonderful play on McQuillan's roller and threw him out. Bancroft flied to Meusel. Groh got a base on balls. Frisch singled into centre field, Groh holding second. Young lined out to Ruth. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Yankees—Ruth got a home run over the right field stand. Meusel fanned. Pipp singled into right. Ward popped to Kelly. Schang shot a single into right, Pipp going to third. Young juggled the ball and got an error on the play. Pipp scored on Scott's single to centre, Schang going to second. McQuillan was knocked off the box at this stage and Bentley went into the box. Pennock up, and was hit by a pitched ball. He fell to the ground and his face was contorted with pain and the players of both clubs gathered around him. The crowd cheered when he arose to his feet and limped to first base. The bases were filled. Witt flied out to Cunningham. Two runs, four hits, one error.

Giants—Ward threw out Meusel. Cunningham flied out to Ruth. Kelly whiffed. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Yankees—Bancroft got Dugan at first. Ruth got another home run into the left field stand. Meusel got a single into right, and when Young fumbled the ball he went to second. Error for Young. Pipp grounded out to Kelly, unassisted, Meusel going to third. Ward fouled out to Kelly. One run, two hits, one error.

Giants—Snyder flied out to Meusel. Ward threw out Bentley. Scott threw out Bancroft. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Yankees—Bancroft got Schang at first. Scott got a single past Bancroft. Snyder almost caught Scott off first. Pennock hit into a double play, Bancroft to Frisch to Kelly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Giants — Groh singled over the middle bag; Frish got near home run in the right field, stand, ball being foul by inches; Frisch singled

FERGUSON BUYS THE ICE CREAM

Ontario's Premier Entertains "Les Petits Quebecois" and is Cheered To the Echo.

QUEBEC, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Ferguson of Ontario forged another link in the chain of "Bon Entente" yesterday when he became host to several hundred Quebec school children at an impromptu ice cream jamboree.

Ontario's Prime Minister was being shown the roads leading to the Provincial Highway in company with Hon. Mr. Perron, Hon. Mr. Stewart, Premier of Prince Edward Island, and J. O. Boulanger, Deputy Minister of Roads, when his curiosity was aroused by a large number of children in the streets. He commented on the fact and was informed that race suicide in Quebec was the least of that province's troubles. Mr. Ferguson thereupon decided to entertain "Les Petits Quebecois," and, repairing to a nearby ice cream parlor, he bought up all the product and invited the youngsters to help themselves. Little "Jean Baptistes" and "Gabrielles" were at first diffident until the situation was explained to them in French. Their yells of delight attracted others, and soon several hundred perfectly healthy young Quebecers were milling around the store, endeavoring to grab the coveted cones from the hand of the Premier.

When it was all over three cheers were given for Ontario's Premier.

JUNIOR AUXILIARY HAD SOCIAL NIGHT

St. George's Church Was Prettily Decorated For Occasion.

The Junior Auxiliary of St. George's church, South Peterborough, held a pleasant social evening last night in the church basement, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers, ferns and colored streamers. In connection with the social was a sale of fancy work and home-made cooking, the booths arranged with pleasing effect, also a programme of vocal and instrumental music. Tea was served by Mrs. S. Parks, Mrs. Wm. Andrews and Mrs. G. Kitchen, assisted by the Misses Isabel Simmons, Thelma Blake, Katie Kitchen and Beatrice Simmons. The ice-cream booth was in charge of Miss Lizzie Blake and Miss Dorothy Butler. Home-made cooking was sold by Miss Millie Huxley, assisted by the Misses Eva Scott and Grace Fields.

The fancy work booth, containing many contributions made by the little girls and their friends, and very prettily decorated, was in charge of Miss Elsie Parks, assisted by the Misses Polly Parks and Elfreda Pavey. Other little girls assisted in various ways.

At half past eight o'clock, an enjoyable musical programme was given, the rector, Rev. W. R. Courage, acting as chairman. Piano selections were rendered by Miss Linda Bloor, and vocal solos by Mr. B. Breadman, accompanied by Miss M. Andrews. Mrs. H .E Connolly gave several well-received readings.

The success of the affair was due to the energetic work by the little girls of the Auxiliary, with supervision of the president and secretary, Miss Millie Huxley and Miss Elsie Parks.

A beautiful quilt worked by the little girls was won by Mrs. Gatfield, with Ticket No .17, and a pretty white ruff went to the possessor of Ticket No. 22, Miss Millie Huxley.

CLERIC TAKES HIS OWN LIFE IN AN HOTEL

Rev. J. W. Jones Found Dead in Kansas City—Wife is On The Stage.

FAMILY TROUBLES

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11.—An unfulfilled desire to maintain a home for his five children, ranging in age from 12 to 19 years, was believed by the police to have been the principal motive behind the suicide here of the Rev. John William Jones, 47 years old, an Episcopal clergyman. His body was found last night in a hotel room where he had killed himself with a shot gun several hours before.

In a letter addressed to his wife, a theatrical woman of New York, the Rev. Mr. Jones said:

"We never seem to have gotten anywhere on the divorce question, nor have we succeeded in making a go. The kids need a home. For nearly six years now I have been unable to do the right thing by you and them. Let's call it quits, and may God take care of you all. I am well in body and mind, but sick in heart and soul and have decided to go 'beyond the vale.'"

The clergyman said that his wife's stage name was Pauline La Verne, Mary Tupper Jones, or Mary Tupper.

A week ago last Sunday Mr. Jones preached in a church at West Chester, Pa. He recently resigned from the Archdeaconship of Western Kansas.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE HEARD WAR-PREMIER

Hon. Lloyd George, Suffering from Sore Throat Spoke Briefly.

Mr. G. N. Gordon told the Examiner this morning that there was quite a group of Peterborough people to hear Lloyd-George in Toronto yesterday. However the War Prime Minister of Britain was suffering from a sore throat and spoke only briefly at Massey Hall, but he was given a most enthusiastic reception and at the close of his address, the vast audience of nearly five thousand people arose to their feet and cheered him for several moments

Mr. Gordon said it was a red letter day for many of the Canadian people to be able, even to have a look at the Right Honourable David Lloyd-George, who has been so well known throughout the world during the last few years and according to the local member, the ExPrime Minister had usual poise and manner and even his very gestures while on the platform were most attractive and impressive. A good deal of feeling was aroused in Toronto, because the Brotherhood Congress required each person to pay $3.00 a seat to be present tohear Lloyd-George speak, as the public generally thought they had a right to hear him on account of him being such an outstanding figure and that his secretaries should not allow his prestige to be exploited by an organization.

However Mr. Gordon remarked, those who went to hear him were privileged even to have a sight of the great man, notwithstanding the very brief speech he made and which could not be heard by all on account of his inability to speak in his usual strength and tone.

Sir Robert Borden, according to Mr. Gordon introduced the distinguished visitor with an address that reached every person in the audience in its enthusiasm and warm welcome.

Find Skeletons Of a Race That Lived 15,000 Years Ago

PARIS, Oct. 11. — Further excavations at Solutre, near Macon, where scientists have already found thousands of bones of prehistoric horses and buffaloes, have just brought to light skeletons of three Cro-Magnon men. The skeletons, which are intact, give a perfect illustration of the physical characteristics of man 15,000 years ago. They are of men between 20 and 30 years of age and of great stature. The skull in each case is well developed, but not of great length. The nose is long and the jaw exaggeratedly high.

The discovery, which was made by Dr. Arcelin, is declared by palaeontologists here as one of the greatest in their branch of science.

GERM AN GOVERNMENT CONTINUE TO IGNORE REP ARATION PROBLEM

And French Decline Berlin's Advances For the Resumption of Ruhr Activites — Negotiate With Industrial Leaders

NO PRO RESS SHOWN.

PARIS, October 11 (Canadian Press). — he reparation problem as a whole still where it was before the G rman Government announced ces tion of the passive resistance in e Ruhr. This is the conclusion i French official circles after yeste ly's visit to the French Foreign Offi e of Herr von Hoesch, the German Charge d'Affaires.

Herr von Hoesch told Premier Poincare he was nstructed to open negotiations betw en the Berlin and Paris Gover m ts and to offer Germany's c -operation toward the resumption o the normal economic life of the Ruhr

The Germans are credited in French circles with being ready to negotiate only in order to have a hand in the Ruhr regime now that resistance has ended, and Premier Poincare told the German envoy that inasmuch as negottations were in progress between the Allies and the groups of industrialists and labour leaders in the Ruhr, he did not consider it advisable to undertake further conversations with Berlin on the same subject. When Germany was ready to make a proposition covering the entire reparation question, he would be glad to consider it.

Material Results.

The communication made at Brussels on Monday and in Paris yesterday on behalf of the Reich are regarded as making no progress whatever toward a final solution of the problem. A real gain, however, it is held, has been made toward material results from the Ruhr occupation in the agreements reached directly with the Ruhr industrial leaders, and the Allies will centre their attention upon such agreements until they receive something more promising from Berlin.

What the Allies are expecting from Germany, it is pointed out, is a proposal for such arrangements as will furnish the guarantee they require before formally consenting to a moratorium. This was the real question up for consideration at the time Great Britain and France broke on their reparation policies, and it is still regarded as the uppermost question, although it has been obscured by the more recent events.

Fix Period of Relief.

The Reparation Commission still has the moratorium proposition on his calendar, and everyhody, including Premier Poincare, is said to recognise that such financial relief must be formally accorded for a fixed number of years.

The French theory is that the Germans desire to enjoy the benefits of a moratorium without accepting any of the conditions the Allies proposed as indispensable — hence the absence from the communications to the Franco-Belgians of any hint that Berlin is getting ready to mage a general reparation proposal or institute the reforms that France and Belgium have insisted upon.

There is a strong suspicion here that the idea in Berlin is to seek economic accords that would give the Germans some return for the advantages which may be gained from the Ruhr occupation by the Allies when the industrial activity there is revived.

Stinnes Suspected.

The activities of Hugo Stinnes, German industrial magnate, during the last week, are responsible in some measure at least, it is intimated, for the caution displayed by M. Poincare. Stinnes is understood to have endeavoured to get General DeGoutte to impose an increast in working hours on the Ruhr employees, but the Allied commander, acting on instructions from Paris, refused to have anything to do with it, telling Herr Stinnes that the French Government was determined not to interfere in purely domastic questions. This, it is said at the Foreign Office, did not prevent the Stinnes newspapers from reporting that it was the French who wanted to impose the longer working hours.

The negotiations between the Allied Mine Control Commission and the operators are continuing at Dusseldorf satisfactorily to the French authorities, it was declared last night, and for the moment the hopes of the Allies are centred there.

Indications are that the railroad workers will return to their posts within a few days and that the movement of coal and coke will soon be resumed.

The accords already signed are in the hands of the Reparation Commission for approval of the clauses providing for resumption of coal deliveries to the Allies. If no objection is raised the Allies, it is thought, will begin to receive shipments before the end of the present month.

Brockville's Milk from Tested Cows

BROCKVILLE, October 11 (Canadian Press). — Dr. D. M. Robertson, Government veterinarian, yesterday ordered the destruction of 45 head of cattle from the herds supplying milk to the town.

In all, 300 animals were given the tuberculin test.

A few herd owners refused to allow the test, and were ordered to discontinue sending milk to the town.

CARRIED AWAY MAJOR PART OF MACHINE SHOP

Steel Beams Cut Out of Walls By Thieves With Acetylene Torches.

STOLE THREE CRANES

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—How the major part of a large machine shop and foundry was stolen and the buildings wrecked was related in the Court of Special Sessions here this afternoon in the case of Sam Weilman, charged with receiving 61 steel beams, a number of rails, wooden beams and three cranes.

Witnesses for the prosecution said that between October and December 1922, the premises of the John MacDougall Caledonia Iron Works, in liquidation, were practically destroyed by thieves who took every second steel beam away from one side of the long building, burning them away by means of acetylene torches. The damage was set at $50,000. Wellman told the court he bought the steel and wooden beams, the rails and the three cranes for a sum of $300, but added that his purchases had been made in perfectly good faith.

The case was adjourned till next Tuesday.

DEMAND OF SECTION MEN'S UNION WILL MEAN HIGHER FREIGHT RATES

MONTREAL, October 11 (Canadian Press). — If the Canadian railroads are forced to pay the maintenance-of-way men increased rates of pay demanded and involving approximately from four to four and three-quarters million dollars per annum, there will be no alternative but to pass on such expenditure to the public in higher freights, which is not desirable at a time when there is need for a settled condition, explained George Hodge, assistant general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway Eastern lines before the Board of Conciliation here yesterday.

The Board is dealing with the application of the employees for an increase in wages of 5 cents an hour all round.

5,000 AT NORWOOD ON SECOND DAY OF FAIR HORSE SHOW FEATURE

Threat of Rain Did Not Materially Affect the Attendance—Most of the Exhibits Were Above the Average.

MANY ATTRACTIONS.

NORWOOD, Oct. 11. — (By Staff Reporter).—The big day of the 55th annual two-day exhibition of the East Peterboro Agricultural Society saw an attendance at the Norwood Fair Grounds yesterday of over five thousand people. The sum of $1,714.75 was taken in, with 3,500 entering the turnstile and over $600 collected at the gate. Children were admitted free. Receipts this year show an increase of over $500 on last year's $1,200 total.

Police from Peterboro, Campbellford and Warsaw augmented the efforts of Norwood's staff in regulating traffic. Hundreds of cars were parked on the little hill that looks down on the Fair Grounds, and, despite a day of mizzling rain, people came from far and near to Norwood's annual event. All along the line, coaches were crowded and motor cars filled with visitors to the Fair, who swarmed through the village streets and formed in long waiting lines outside the triple small box-offices where tickets were sold. "In Peterboro, they had men selling tickets on the street. That was a good idea," remarked one impatient customer. Men and women jostled and elbowed each other for place, and a careful tobacco-chewer was compelled to expectorate for the length of fifteen minutes through a handy hole in the fence while he waited his turn.

Inside the grounds, the Caledonian Pipers' Band from Peterboro made a brave showing and attracted as much attention as any of the exhibits. Brave in their Cameron tartan, in full Highland regalia, they valiantly blew the pipes and beat the drums, assisted by two of the pipers from the Arlie Marks troupe, quartered in the village, to the intense admiration of a pleased and large audience.

Exhibits Numerous.

Exhibits in some departments were far and away above the average, as in the grains, poultry and cattle. Other exhibits slightly below previous years in quantity were outstanding in quality. The directors of the Norwood Fair wisely believe in variety. "Something doing every minute" might well be their motto. Those who tired of the well-placed exhibits might go and watch the horse-drawing contests that attracted audiences of a thousand people or more during their performance, or listen to spoken essays in the public-speaking contest, or watch the Midway, or take a peep at the baby show, while ring and tracks events were begun in good time and progressed through a series of interesting races and speeding in the ring.

Among the livestock entries, the cattle were pre-eminent, with every variety on view, scattered at intervals in the open-air stalls that fringe the circular bowl that makes Norwood's Fair Grounds. Durhams made the best showing, in the herds of William and Andrew Knox, of Asphodel. Adam Humphries, of Asphodel, showed a few polled Angus; Mitchell Brothers of Norham had some good Herefords; G. A. Brethen of Norwood and Chas. Coughlin of Asphodel showed Holsteins, and two fine herds were quartered in a separate building by themselves; the Ayrshires of F. Rutherford of Bonar Law and the Jerseys of G. Carr of Campbellford.

The swine were very few, but of good quality Yorkshires, shown by Richard Honey of Warkworth, Thos. Carew of Roseneath, Wm. Knox of Asphodel, and George Would of Belmont.

There was a particularly large and extensive showing of sheep, excelling any previous showing in this class at the Norwood fair. Lincolns, Shropshire Downs, Oxfords, Dorset Horned, Leicesters and Cotswolds, were shown, with the Shropshire predominating, with George Hutchinson, H. Curtis, Richard and Gordon Honey of Warkworth, and Geo. Hendy of Campbellford, among the exxhibitors.

Poultry Show a Feature.

The poultry show was outstanding for size and variety. "One of the best shows ever seen outside of Toronto," was the verdict of the judge, L. G. Jarvis of Burlington, after sizing up the quantity and the quality of the thousand or more birds that made up Norwood's poultry show for this year. In every sort of color, with every variety of loud outcry, they gazed out at the fascinated spectators who paraded before their cages yesterday. Waterfowl were particularly noticeable, but it would be hard to pick out any class that was outstanding, so varied was the nature of the exhibit, with fancy birds of every description, and plenty of game birds.

Big exhibitors were Andrew Frank of Norwood, H. Curtis, and Lorne Hutchinson of Warkworth, J. VanAllen of Stirling, Mr. Jamieson and Dr. Alyea of Colborne, and H. G. Lush of Peterboro, whose list of about a hundred entries took between sixty and sevenyt first prizes. Bantams made a good display and utility varieties were strong, but the odd birds got the rcowd's attention; huge white turkeys, with pink wattles and black breast ornaments; pure white Emden geese, African geese with orange knobbed foreheads little whispering ducks in mottled black and white, with red heads; Brahmas with their fussy leg feathers and Polish fowl bearing tufted coronets. There was a heavy showing of Asiatic birds in Cochin fowl and Brahmas.

Exhibition Building.

In the big main biulding, with its slippery sanded floor that gave the crowd the appearance of waltzing about the premises to the music of the gay piano that played constantly, there was plenty to interest and amuse. The vendor of tinsel jewellery and little yellow birds mounted on long sticks had a good audience, and there was a constant succession of people to look at the exhibits of war trophies, scrumptious cakes and pies, guarded by glass showcases, and screened off tables ranged along the walls and a large art exhibit included examples of pyrography and punched brass work, and a good assortment of paintings, with some clever water-color pieces. In the chinaware a pretty specimen was a loving cup done in lustres, with silver conventionalized water lilies on a purple ground. The children had an art and penmanship section all to themselves flanked by pots of golden butter, large cheeses, honey in the comb and glassed preserves. There was a small but good-looking showing of apples, all by itself.

Peterboro's blind man, J. R. Brownlee, had a well patronized sale of his reed and cane wares; the Singer people of Peterboro had an exhibit, also the Newcombe Piano Company, with E. M. Quinn of Toronto, in charge, and Archie Lang, from Mr. James Craighead's Havelock agency, at the piano for the afternoon.

The fancy work exhibit was large and varied, the display running to large pieces done in gorgeous colors. There were some wonderfully bright quilts, and a couple of lovely spreads, with dozens of pieces in intricate and dainty designs.

On two long tables in the centre of the hall were spread a collection of vegetables, with a good showing of celery, and huge cabbages, and white Globe turnips. Citrons, squash and pumpkins also were remarkable for size.

The flower display consisted almost entirely of potted plants in tall sizes. An advantage quickly noted about is the Norwood Fair is the maner of its ticketing of exhibits. As in the poultry shed, so here with

CORN EQUIVALENT WITH WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Unusual shifting of grain values to-day made corn and wheat almost identical in value. No. 2 Yellow Corn in Chicago was worth $1.10 a bushel at the close of trading, No 2 Hard Wheat ranged from $1.10 to $1.14 3-4.

Corn sells ordinarily about 25c a bushel under wheat, but the supply of corn has been nearly used up before the new crop is ready. As a result corn meal is actually quoted higher than some good grades of wheat flour.

To-day's advance in Number Two Yellow Corn amounted to four cents a bushel.

VETERANS PLAN FUND TO CARRY ON THEIR WORK

Campaign For Public Subscriptions to Provide For Continuance of Adjustments.

COMMANDS TO HELP.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—Urgent demands from all parts of Canada that the legislative and adjustment work of the Dominion Command G.W.V.A. should be continued have resulted in a decision to inaugurate a "carry on" fund for this purpose. The proposal originated with the Manitoba provincial command of the association which offered to conduct a campaign in that province for public subscriptions. Each provincial command and local branch will be asked to co-operate with a view to establishing an endowment in order to guarantee an independent bureau to serve all veterans and the dependents for many years to come.

The money subscribed or offered by commands of the association since the predicament of the Dominion Command was made known will be utilized towards continuing the work for at least another month, until the results of the voluntary subscriptions campaign is known. G. G. MacNeil, Dominion Secretary, who has resigned, has offered to remain for that period in a voluntary capacity.

Another Honor For David Lloyd George.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 11. —(Canadian Press.)— An honorary membership in the local branch of the G.W.V.A. awaits David Lloyd George if he finds that he is able to fill the engagement and carry out his visit to St. Catharines and Niagara Falls to-day. The local veterans have arranged to present him with a gold badge of honorary membership during the five minutes tentatively arranged for his visit here early to-morrow afternoon if ill-health does not prevent.

GERMANS FRANTIC AS MARK'S VALUE VARIES AND PRICES INCREASE

Fabulous Quotations For Simple Necessaries of Life — Bread 80,000,000 Marks a Loaf.

PEOPLE ARE DAZED.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—The people of Berlin awoke this morning to find the dollar "at two million marks," and to-night went to bed with the knowledge that the mark fell to 6,500,000,000 in unofficial quotations late in the day, with little hope that the morrow will bring improvement. Prices were as wild as the mark quotations, and shoppers who had to have food and other necessary supplies, rushed madly from market to market in an effort to get some. There was a great variation in the price sales in various parts of the city, and utter confusion.

Although dealers generally quote prices on larger articles in gold pfennigs, they vary greatly in their quotations and use such a sliding scale in converting the gold into paper that the public is frantic. From hour to hour to-day the prices varied with rumors of the mark's further fall, and housewives were dazed by the staggering sums asked for foodstuffs.

Railway rates increased fifty per cent. to-day and will again go up sitxy per cent. Saturday, which will not be an increase comparable to the decline of the paper mark in relation to the pound and the dollar. Beef for boiling, of the cheapest quanity was quoted this morning at 150,000,000 marks for a pound of twelve ounces, but none was available in the market at any such price. The people, especially the older persons, are wholly incapable of comprehending prics in billions. They stand in the shops speechless and can scarcely find words to discuss with each other conditions which shake the financial structure of the family.

A twenty-four ounce loaf of bread sold to-day for 80,000,000 marks, but the price to-morrow will be 110,000,000. Butter was 600,000,000 marks today for a twelve-ounce pound, but scarce. Potatoes brought 7,500,000 marks per pound ,and grapes 100,000,000 marks per pound.

GRAIN MOVING RECORD RATE

Both Railways Loading Rapidly at Winnipeg — Figures For Season.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Indicative of a tremendous crop and smooth working facilities for transportation of the harvest, yesterday's loading and marketing figures for the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways are believed to have constituted a record. Loadings numbered 2,901 cars as against 1,876 cars for October 9, 1922. Marketings aggregated 5,014,801 bushels as compared with 3,488,208 last autumn. The Canadian Pacific Railway handled 2,827,801 bushels Tuesday as compared with 2,023,208 last year, while Canadian National marketings totalled 2,187,000 bushels as against 1,465,000 bushels for the corresponding day of 1922.

Since the commencement of the crop year, September 1, the Canadian National has handled 32,284 cars, representing 41,202,000 bushels from the prairie provinces.

TRIS SPEAKER'S VISIT.

There are many citizens who are of the opinion that it would be a very graceful and fitting action to have some civic recognition given of the appearance here on Saturday of Manager Tris Speaker of the Cleveland American League club.

Speaker is not only one of the greatest ball players of all time, but he is a clean-cut, gentlemanly athlete who is rightly hailed as an ornament to the game in which he has scored such a conspicuous success.

His willingness to assist Canada's returned soldiers by taking part in benefit games in Toronto and Peterborough is a measure of the calibre of the man, and the Provincial authorities have shown their appreciation by presenting him with a lifetime license to hunt and fish in Ontario.

Here in Peterborough we owe much to this famous ball player inasmuch as his annual pilgrimage to Rice Lake is one of the finest advertisements this city and district has received.

Columns of news and scores of pictures have appeared in American newspapers as a result of Speaker's visits here, and the amount of publicity secured in this way has been invaluable because it has brought the advantages of this district before thousands of potential visitors.

It would be a pity if Saturday's opportunity of showing Peterborough's appreciation were to be allowed to slip away unused.

NO WELCOME FOR REDS.

The almost unanimous vote with which a Communist delegate was expelled from the American Federation of Labour convention is another convincing proof that Sovietism and the Red doctrine of direct action have no following in the ranks of organized labour.

The trades unionists rightly regard the Commune as a foe to their organization, and the fact that their opposition to the Red policy is, in a sense, a selfish one does not alter the condition that there is little danger of the Communist agitators gaining control of the labour movement on this Continent.

Nevertheless there are dangerous radical leaders at work in the United States and to a lesser degree in Canada, and it is necessary to be at all times on guard against their preaching and their secret propaganda.

Meanwhile, however, the stand of organized labour is a bulwark against the spread of Sovietism, and unless it is undermined from within—and the Reds are doing their utmost to use just that manoeuvre—the chief danger of the Communist menace will be held in check.

The Federation's uncompromising attitude in this respect will be applauded by the whole Continent.

SAFETY FIRST IN THE WOODS.

The Ontario Safety League, which has been doing excellent work in promulgating the doctrine of safety first, has prepared some splendid bulletins in connection with the hunting season.

It is to be hoped that every hunt club will obtain one of these posters and hang it in a prominent place at headquarters.

The Examiner believes that the number of accidents in the woods would be very materially reduced if these elementary principles of carefulness and caution were followed.

It should be a point of pride for huntsmen to know these rules and a demonstration of inexperience to fail to carry them out.

Every hunter should indeed feel it a reproach to his woodcraft to fail to live up to the standard set forth by the Safety League as to the handling of firearms and general conduct in the woods.

And yet even experienced woodsmen sometimes grow careless. Familiarity breeds contempt, and they take chances in handling loaded guns in boats or in pulling through fences, they fire too hastily at moving objects in the bush, or violate some of the other common-sense suggestions mentioned in the posters.

For that reason the bulletins should be prominently displayed in every camp—they may help to avert a fatality.

FIRE PREVENTION.

The trouble with such campaigns a Fire Prevention Week, which is being observed this week in Peterborough and generally throughout Canada, is that the majority of people either dismiss the whole thing as a fad or else refuse to recognize that there is any message for them.

Both these attitudes are illogical and erroneous.

Fire prevention is not a fad; it is a safeguard against the enormous destruction of property and the heavy loss of life that are every year enacted by fires in Canada, fires that in three cases out of four are caused by sheer carelessness or neglect.

And, secondly, there is a personal responsibility in this effort.

It depends upon the individual.

No community can successfully prevent fires if the individual citizens refuse to be careful or to exercise ordinary precautions.

The best fire brigade on earth cannot keep down the fire loss if the people it serves refuse to help by eliminating fire hazards in their homes and by watching their own actions.

A "Let George do it" attitude will not solve the problem, for even if George does do it the situation ...he altered unless Bill does it and Harry does ...body else does it.

THROUGH AMERICAN EYES.

From an editorial on "Canada As The States See Her" by Bert E. Collyer in his newspaper, the Referee:

"While we realize that the people of Canada would not regard exaggerated flattery in the light of a compliment, we believe we remain within the confines of simple truth when we remark that no nation in history has met the financial demands of war with greater good spirit and carried the financial burdens with greater intelligence than the vast Dominion that tops the North American Continent. Ten years ago Canada's debt was less than $350,000,000. On January 1, 1923, it was $2,516,929,000—over two billion dollars added by the war. Were it not for the fact that the bulk of this colossal debt is owed within the Dominion—Canadians themselves owing bonds to the extent of $1,969,995,000—the interest payments would doubtless drain the country dry, reduce the exchange value of the Canadian dollar to a ruinous figure and plunge Canadian finance and business into a chaotic condition. As it is, the semi-annual interest payments go into hundreds of thousands of Canadian homes, and provide money for the payment of the Federal taxes from which the interest payments are drawn. At the time, Canada might have met the enormous demands of the war by borrowing from New York, but the wisdom, as well as the patriotism, in resisting the temptation and instead placing the burden immediately upon the shoulders of her own people is now apparent. Within a few weeks $172,000,000 of Dominion Government bonds will fall due. With the same spirit and intelligence, the Government is again co-operating with bankers and brokers to keep the debt in Canada. The prospect that practically the entire amount will be replaced by money advanced by Canadian investors is pleasing to the friends of plucky Canada the world over.

THE LLOYD GEORGE SPEECH.

Ten thousand Montrealers—or more—saw yesterday in the Arena the vivid personality, the dynamic human motive power, which more than any other single force drove the great engine of the British Empire through the worst years of the war. And they understand it all better now. Under such inspiring leadership, it would have been impossible to doubt or waver.

Mr. Lloyd George insisted upon conveying to Canadians the gratitude of the United Kingdom for their prompt, spontaneous and effective contribution toward winning the war. Sir Arthur Currie very properly repudiated in advance the need for "gratitude." We were only doing our duty. Yet we can now more readily understand the inspiration which the swift and loyal rallying of our overseas Dominion to the Mother Country in an old-world conflict must have given the British people. We can perhaps better envisage it by trying to imagine what would have been the effect if Canada had sent cold word that this was a European quarrel in which we were not concerned.

Such a step is not beyond the power of imagination; for we are taking it now. We are sending cold word—unless all indications are misleading—not only to the Mother Country; but to our Sister Dominions in the South Pacific, that Singapore is an old-world stronghold, and that in its strengthening we are not concerned. Thank God, Canada has always been clearer-sighted in war than in peace.

Mr. Lloyd George made a telling point when he emphasized the difference between the racial problem which confronts the United States and that which confronts the British Empire. The United States must fuse their various races into one American people in their vast "melting pot" of a coterminous and united nation. The British Empire must on its life never dream of attempting anything so silly or suicidal. We must keep our many races distinct, independent—and contented.

This was a particularly appropriate point to make in Montreal. The gift of the British Empire to the French-Canadian race is perpetuity. So far from absorbing or striving forcibly to fuse such a race into a British "composite," it is British policy to defend and preserve that race in all its attractive characteristics, all its individual features such as language and religion, all its treaty-guaranteed privileges which its people cherish so highly.

Very well do the leaders of French Canada appreciate this situation, especially when they picture to themselves what would happen to their privileges and peculiar institutions if they were suddenly to be dumped into the "melting pot" to the South. Uniformity is the motto of the American Republic. By the very nature of their self-contained country—by the iron decrees of geography—they are compelled to take this position. But the widely separated British Empire is granted a greater freedom; and its motto is toleration, encouragement of racial aspirations, and the defence of the lingual and religious tendencies of every people which finds shelter beneath the Union Jack.

So Mr. Lloyd George was especially well-inspired to emphasize this point here; though there is hardly a part of the Empire—certainly not in the United Kingdom itself—where a reference to it would not be fitting and be feelingly appreciated.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Pictures of the Prince of Wales have been always popular, but the new edition shown on $2.00 bank notes promises to be even more in demand than ever.

What a terrible calamity it would have been for a lot of baseball players if the pressmen's strike had been in operation this week.

Lloyd George's tribute to the fighting qualities of the Canadian army overseas was not mere flattery from a vote-seeking politician. It was a heart-felt message from the man who was on the inside when the job was being done.

SAGHALIEN RICH IN OIL

TOKIO, Oct. 11.— (Associated Press)—Professor Iki, of Toyko University, has just returned from a years' sojourn in North Saghalien, among the fish-eating natives. He describes the habits of these people, but more interesting is his statement about oil. He says petroleum is oozing out of the ground all over the northern part of the island, and that oil pools of great size are found everywhere.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, October 11. — The only cheerful note heard at the Union Stock Lards yesterday was in connection with a slow down in receipts at the Winnipeg yards. Only about 400 head were taken in there on Tuesday, and this left the inference that Western shipments to this market would therefore slow up.

Yesterday's sales here were 1,301 cattle, and this left with yesterday's arrivals a total on sale of well over 2,500 head for the balance of the week. Of Tuesday's receipts there were over 600 from the West, and C. Galloway, formerly of Milton, brought down 17 loads.

Tuesday's advance in lambs was maintained yesterday, and the ruling market was 12 1-4 to 12 1-2 cents for ewes and $10.75 to $11.00 a cwt. for the bucks.

Sheep are unchanged.

The slump in the Old Country bacon market has strengthened the packers in their demand for lower priced hogs. To-day they say that the new price of $7.75 a cwt. f.o.b. must go into effect to-morrow.

There is nothing special to note either in the butter or cheese markets.

Sheep and lambs slow, early bidding 25 to 50 cents lower.

Hogs weaker, thick smooths $8.75, a decline of 25 cents from Tuesday's close.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 11 (Canadian Press). — Wheat took a decided new upturn in the price yesterday, owing chiefly to bullish aspects of the Government crop report and as a result of the notable strength in the corn market.

Wheat closed strong, at the day's best level, 1 1-2c to 2 1-8c net higher, with December $1.09 3-4 to $1.09 7-8, and May $1.13 7-8 to $1.14.

Corn finished 1 1-4c to 1 3-8c to 2 3-8c up; oats at 1-2c to 7-8c to 1c; and provisions ranging from 7c decline to 20c advance.

In view of the fact that the Government estimate as to the domestic yield of spring wheat was not only smaller than private reports had indicated, but was the smallest since 1919, many commission houses went promptly to the buying side, and met with little response until after the market had scored the greater part of the day's advance. Bulls asserted that the spring crop in Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Montana was shown to be the smallest in thirty years. Much notice also was given to the fact that despite a bearish report which the Government had made as to corn, the corn market yesterday was soaring above the season's previous top prices of corn for immediate delivery and for October and December as well.

Some additional purchasing of wheat was ascribed to vague reports about a gold loan to Germany. Scarcity of current supplies of old corn became so pronounced that talk was heard as to a likelihood of corn selling higher than wheat, although some new corn is being booked for early shipment to Chicago from the nearby farms.

Oats ascended with corn and wheat.

Improved shipping demand helped to lift the provision market.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, October 11 (Canadian Press).—Cattle, receipts 16,000; most killing classes uneven; weak to 25c lower; top matured steers, $12.10; vealers 25c higher; other classes about steady; bulk stockers and feeders, 5.25 to $7.00.

Hogs, receipts 24,000; mostly steady; bulk good and choice 160 to 325 pound averages, $7.80 to $8.00; top, $8.10; better grades, 150 to 175 pound average $7.50 to $7.75; packing sows, $6.70 to $6.90; better grades weighty slaughter pigs, $6.50 to $7.25; estimated holdover, 8,000.

Sheep, receipts 26,000; killing classes generally steady to strong; feeder lambs steady; most natives, $13.25 to $13.50; top, $13.75; culls, $9.50 to $10.00; best yearlings, $11.50; choice wethers, $9.00; fed ewes upward to $7.00; feeder lambs, $12.75 to $13.25

ORDERS CUT ON GRAIN RATES FOR THE COAST

Railway Commission Bases The Reduction On Comparison with Rates In Eastern Canada and United States.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 11.—By a majority judgment, the Board of Railway Commissioners yesterday ordered a reduction of ten per cent. in the rates on grain for export from the prairie to Pacific Coast points. Hon. Frank Oliver dissented from the decision of the board, which was agreed to by the Chief Commissioner, Hon. F. B. Carvell; Assistant Chief Commissioner McLean, Deputy Chief Commissioner Nantel and Commissioners Boyce and Lawrence.

The new tariffs under the order of the board are to become effective on the 22nd instant. This judgment by the Railway Commission follows upon the action of the Governor-in-Council referring the grain export rates from the Prairie Provinces west to the board for action.

The majority of the board held that the Crow's Nest pass rates could not be accepted as the basis for grain rates in any part of Canada, excepting the territory between the mountains and the Great Lakes, eastward, as set forth in the special agreement of 1897; and arrived at its conclusion by a somewhat lengthy comparison of important routes in other parts of Canada and in the United States, where grain is moved in very large quantities. These routes include Fort William to Montreal; bay ports to Montreal, Minneapolis to New York, Buffalo to New York; etc., all of which are kept down by water competition.

The rate established in the judgment, while not as low as the general Crow's Nest basis, is stated to be far below the standards referred to on the eastern part of the continnt.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 11.—A regrettable accident occurred last Wednesday at the Port Hope Fair, when James McMurray, son of Mr. William McMurray, Provincial Highway, West, was thrown from his horse and had three ribs broken as well as receiving other bruises. It is stated that the youth was riding in a race for boys. As he was going around the ring two little children started to cross the track in front of his horse. He pulled to one side to avoid running over them and was thrown off against a truck. The number of accidents and near accidents at fall fairs this year would seem to warrant fair directors making strict rules, prohibiting spectators from crossing the tracks at any time when a horse race is on.

Mr. James Phillips' Orchard.

The fact that Mr. James Phillips, who resides on the Provincial Highway between Port Hope and Cobourg, has sold the apples in his thirty-acre orchard for over $8,000 sas brought this orchard and farm into considerable prominence. The orchard consists of some nine hundred tree standing about forty feet apart and each one loaded down with apples.

Had Fingers Broken.

Mr. William Moon, Port Hope was assisting one day recently in filling a silo, and when engaged installing a blower pipe the pipe slipped and fell on Mr. Moon's left hand, breaking the two middle fingers and inflicting several nasty cuts.

Teachers Want Increase.

Nearly every Urban School Board is up against the problems arising from increased attendance, which is crowding the rooms to such an extent that some have had to engage another teacher. Such a condition apparently prevails at Port Hope, where six of the Public School teachers are asking for increased salaries. A reason given is the extra work and time involved in teaching extra classes assigned to them this term. They pointe out to the Board that they were really doing the work of an extra teacher.

Local and Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mulholland have returned to their home in Pasadena, Cal., after a pleasant visit in Port Hope with Mr. Mulholland's parents, Senator and Mrs. R. A. Mulholland.

At another corn cutting the blow pipe became choked and one of the men undertaking to clear it while the machine was going got his foot too near the knives. More than an inch from the end of his boot was cut off, also the end of the sock, without so much as drawing blood.

Talk on Bunyan.

Whe. Rev. J. L. Hughes chose "The Life of John Bunyan" as the subject of his address he did so because he had spent several years in Bedfordshire and knew the part where Bunyan lived quite well. The following is a short synopsis:

As a young man Bunyan was rather wild. Several times he was forced to consider things religious, but for years fought against it. His wife was a very pious woman, and after years of struggle he finally was converted, when his whole soul was thrown into his religion. God, Jesus Christ and the Holy Ghost were real to him, and so was the devil. One day, on preaching with peculiar warmth and enlargement, a hearer remarked, "What a sweet sermon he had delivered." He replied, "No need to tell me that. The devil whispered it before I was well out of the pulpit."

Bunyan's first literary efforts appeared in 1656—a controversial work against the Quaker doctrine. In October, 1660, there was an order to restore public reading of the Church of England lithurgy. This did not suit Bunyan, who could not compromise, and the first half of his 12 years' imprisonment began November, 1660, and continued until 1666, when after a brief pardon he was again imprisoned until the indulgence of 1672. During his first 6 years' imprisonment he wrote 10 works, among them being "Grace Abounding." During the latter half of his confinement he wrote "Confession of Faith" and "Defence of the Doctrine of Justification by Faith."

As a controversialist Bunyan was violent, unsparing, at times coarse, and often unfair.

His tract on prayer is written in an exalted strain, evidently by one who knew the meaning of prayer as the offering of the soul to God and a wrestling with Him; yet he reviled the book of common prayer. Bunyan attempted a little poetry, which was generally pithy, but mere doggerel.

After his release from prison in 1672 his efforts for those who had been denied free worship were untiring, and he took the general oversight of the churches in his surrounding districts. Then he had peace, except for a period of six months' imprisonment in 1675. During this perior he wrote the world famous "Pilgrims' Progress," published in 1678. He also wrote many other works, of which "Holy War" is second only to "Pilgrims' Progress." He wrote because he considered he had something to say worth saying. He wrote as he spoke, and one charm of his works is the pure Saxon English used.

Bunyan was plain, but never vulgar; homely, but never coarse; always straight and to the point, in the fewest and simplest words. His characters were all drawn from life as he knew it. He was tempted to forsake Bedford for other fields, but always refused, as he did not look for worldly advancement. His heart was ever with the humble folk of Bedford, yet his remains lie in London. Ever a peacemaker, he journeyed to London on behalf of a young man, caught cold on the trip in the rain, and the result was fatal.

BUTTER AND BARLEY PAY

MUNSTER, Germany, Oct. 11.—(Associated Press)—The school system of the little Westphalian town of Oelde, near here, has been placed almost entirely upon a butter-barley basis.

Pupils pay their high school fees in fats and grain which in turn are "spent" for school maintenance purposes. Children from Oelde are assessed a pound of butter monthly, while pupils from the country districts may pay either in butter or barley, forty pounds of barley a month. The proceeds thus collected have gone to assist in buying the school's winter coal supply and to reimburse, in part, the teachers who gratefully receive butter or barley in preferenc to the constantly depreciating paper mark.

"The Quest"

Weston's Newest English Quality Biscuit

Weston's English Biscuit Bakery

OUR English master-makers have scored another triumph. From an inimitable Old Country recipe and by the aid of the most modern English baking equipment they have produced one of the most delightful wafers ever offered the Canadian table.

The "Quest" is Weston's latest English Biscuit creation—a delectable short-bread wafer, thin, crisp and oven-fresh, stamped with a reproduction of Shackleton's famous ship.

We do not believe we have ever produced a more delicious biscuit or one that will prove more popular.

We wrote Lady Shackleton

Telling her of our idea of making a biscuit with a reproduction of the "Quest" and named after it. She graciously replied: "I am sure Sir Earnest would have been interested in your idea of making a biscuit reproducing the "Quest" and named after it. I send you my best wishes for its success."

The Late Sir Ernest Shackleton

On receiving the biscuits, Lady Shackleton wrote: "The biscuits were delicious and the design quite unique."

Try the "Quest" to-night yourself, and you'll think so, too!

the flowers, neat small cards placed the specimen immediately with their name and station. A high rubber-plant, tall begonias and foliages were prominent, every example, in fact, apearing to be arranged on some sort of frame in a high manner.

On the grounds the Presbyterian ladies served hot meals. In the council chamber in the village, one could get a good home made meal served by the Baptist ladies, who advertised their wares by means of a poster affixed to the little wooden bridge leading to the fair grounds, decorated with the lean and fat silhouettes of the "before" and "after"condition of the meal taker.

Judging in the ring progressed through the afternoon, with heavy teams making the best showing. Fred Doughty, John O'Callaghan, and L. W. Shaw were local exhibitors of horses, with W. E. Lewis of Port Hope showing carriage horses, and Hope Brothers of Indian River showing agricultural horses.

Shaw Brothers of Peterborough, with light road horses, won four firsts.

Prizes for lady drivers went to (1) Miss Gertrude Lewis of Port Hope, (2) Miss Helen Shaw of Peterborough, and (3) Mrs. Bert Preston of Hastings.

Children Take Part.

There was a sizeable Midway, with plenty of fun and frolic about the kewpie stands, the hot dog and pink lemonade booths. Under a threatening sky, with intermittent light rainfall, a group of little girls from the third and fourth forms in the Public School, directed by the principal, William F. Wendt, went through a series of graceful dances in middy blouses, pleated skirts and autumn leaves in their hair. Mrs. F. B. Garlick played the piano for the children, who were displaced later by the public-speaking contestants among the school children, when prizes in E. M. McDonald's special went to (1) Nellie Bullock of Clarina, speaking on Education; 2) Rita Watley, R. R. No. 6, Douro, on Lord Byng of Vimy, and (3) W. Rogers, Douro, on Patriotism. The contest was in charge of William Barrie of Dummer.

The judges in the speaking contest were Mr. R. G. Lawlor, B.A., principal of the Norwood High School, and Mr. Wendt.

Drawing Contest.

The crowd strained its neck occasionally after the coloured balloons went up at intervals, and gathered about the booth of Fred Bullied,who cried his "hot dog" wares with his usual eloquence.

An audience of a thousand or more people, men and women both, clustered about the drawing contest.

The winning team in the heavy longed to Percy Wilson, of Norwood, drawing the load 60 feet 6 inches, against teams owned by F. Doughty, of Peterborough, and John Lecke, of Campbellford.

In the intermediate class, drawing 5,500 pounds, F. Doughty, of Peterborough, had the winning team, drawing the load for 6 feet 4 inches, against teams entered by Earl Dunham of Campbellford, and Mr. Killingbeck of Norwood.

Loads of 2800 pounds and under were drawn to victory by F. Doughty's team in the third section of the contest drawing the load 8' 4" against H. Puffer's team from Burleigh. Mr. Oliver Buck of Norwood was in charge of the drawing contests.

Automobiles were shown by McLaughlin agencies from Belleville and Peterboro, the latter in charge of A. Brown and Son, the Maxwell Pacemaker by G. A. Gillespie, Dodge and Chevrolet cars and Ford cars and tractors. Graftons, Limited had their usual brightly decorated section showing men's and boys' clothing.

The two troops of Boy Scouts in Norwood had a competition in camp craft, judged by Drill Major Nelson of Hastings, the award going to Squirrel Patrol, T. Wesley, scoutmaster, for drilling, the prize for bandaging going to (1) Ronald Garlick of Norwood and (2) Roddy Webb of Norwood.

In a big tent near the track was a grain exhibit, considered exceptionally fine by its judges, with an exhibit of potatoes, exclaimed over by lady spectators. The Dominion Experimental Farm had a neat display of the various varieties of grain recommended by the Dominion Cerealist, with toll stooks of grain and miniature models in wood of nests, self-feeders and fattening crates.

In this tent also was an exhibit of the Provincial Board of Health, Toronto, in charge of Miss K. E. Osborn, displaying posters describing Child Welfare activities, and samples of infants' clothing, layettes and washable toys.

Baby Show Too

A baby show was in progress, judged by Dr. Wade of Norwood, who had to decide on the rival merits of ten entries; six girls and four boys the majority from outside of Norwood village. The age limit was set from six to eighteen months, and many of the children lost out on one item; using of the comfort.

Winners were (1) Ruth Fairman, R.R. No. 1 Campbellford, (2) Harold Fife Hastings, 3 Albert Lamey Hastings.

Results of Races

Three races formed the afternoon's track events, with Dr. Munro of Warsaw and George Lipsett of Peterboro as judges Ira Nattrass of Millbrook, starter, and time-keepers; Chas. Schooley of Peterboro and Chas. Armstrong of Havelock.

The free-for-all had four horses starting with Polly Stout owned by R. Elmhirst of Keene, drawn after the second heat. Major Hal, owned by S. Blewett of Peterboro and Liberty Patch, owned by B. Tinney of Cobourg ran the deciding sixth heat, with the first place won by Liberty Patch. The heats stood as follows: Bub; owned by Ed. Jones of Peterboro; 1-2-3-3-3 Major Hal; 4-1-1-2-2; Liberty Patch; 2-3-2-1-1-1 Time: 1.50 1-2.

A familiar figur, for over thirty years in the judge's box, that of the late J. B. Pearce of Norwood, was absent this year. Mr. Pearce was one of the most active officials last year, despite his age.

Mr. William Barrie of Belmont township and Miss L. Starke of the Norwood High School Staff won Mr. Copen's special prize for the best appearing couple on the grounds.

NEXT WAR MAY WELL DESTROY CIVILIZATION

So Declared David Lloyd George, Who Wished He Could Say That Armed Conflicts are Done With

TORONTO, Oct. 11. — (Canadian Press). — Massey Hall yesterday afternoon thrilled to the emotion of great moments. Before an audience struck numb by the significance of his message fraught with unthinkable possibilities, David Lloyd George, "the great War Premier," who, when it was "guns, guns, and yet more guns," was the very soul of victory, brought a triumphant day to a staggering climax by pointing at an armed Europe and warning the world that civilization itself is facing destruction in the war's awful crucible.

"Are wars done with? I wish to God I could say 'Yes' — I wish I could. The next war might well destroy civilization — unless something or somebody intervenes.

"That is why I want to see the British Empire strong and mighty, so that when her arms go up and when she calls 'Halt,' these deadly weapons of war shall fall down."

Empire's War Record.

His theme was one which he, of all men, should be best fitted to expound — the war record of the British Empire. The world, he said, should know what the Empire had sacrificed, what an Empire had accomplished, in order that the world might know what might be accomplished again if freedom were imperilled.

One Effective Nation.

The British Empire is one effective nation in the world. Other nations will succeed only when it accomplishes what the British Empire has done, was his way of conveying his sense of futility of the international effort to curb militarism in the absence of unity such as Britain and her overseas Dominions had shown when the great world crisis of 1914 developed.

Lloyd George's voice was somewhat impaired in carrying power. Never remarkable for its robustness, infirmity which revealed itself a few days ago was manifested in the touch of huskiness, for which he apologized at the outset.

Humor in Evidence.

The famous Lloyd George humor displayed itself often. Even when he was picturing Europe's present desperate plight, he draw laughter by likening the continent to a drunken man who, contrite when recovering from debauch, soon reverted to his old ways when his cellars were again stocked with liquors, Europe's cellars being her replenished arsenals.

The speaker reviewed the outstanding statistics of the war as they related to the British Empire, including the loss of 900,000 lives, total casualties of three million men, and an outlay of ten billion pounds sterling. Was it worth the price? he asked, and said that if one could tell what was the price of liberty he could answer the question. His allusion to the British fleet as having saved the Empire from becoming a collection of vassal states was heartily applauded.

Stirring Eloquence.

With stirring eloquence he touched upon the heroic achievements of the Canadian forces, citing in particular the Second Battle of Ypres, Vimy Ridge and Cambrai. These things, he said, were part of the credit of Canada in the bank of nations. When the Versailles Treaty was effected, Canada signed as the equal of other nations, and Sir Robert Borden went away with a certificate of nationhood signed by all the nations of the earth.

"The world had better know that what the British Empire has done once she can do again—and she will do it again if freedom is imperilled."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

STRAIGHT LINE.

The straightline coat with pleated ruffle bottom which gives a ripple to the hem but does not alter the straight outline is a popular winter style.

D. LLOYD GEORGE LEFT TORONTO THIS MORNING

TORONTO, October 11 (Canadian Press). — The Right Hon. David Lloyd-George and party spent a quiet morning at Government House, following the trying round of demonstrations here yesterday.

At 11.15 a.m. the party left for Niagara Falls.

En route the Canadian National train, aboard which they travelled, was stopped for ten minutes at Hamilton to enable Lloyd-George to speak at the station to the assembled crowd.

A brief stop was made also at St. Catharines for a similar purpose.

The train arrived at Niagara Falls, Ont., at 2 p.m., and arrangements were made there to enable Britain's war Premier and his family to view the sights with as great a degree of privacy as possible.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Former Highly Esteemed Resident Dead—Teachers' Convention Held at Brighton Today—News Paragraphs.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 11. —The funeral of Gertrude McGregor, wife of T. E. Moffatt, formerly principal of the High School here, and now holding a similar position in Tweed, was held yesterday afternoon at Ottawa from the residence of her husband's mother.

The late Mrs. Moffatt, who was 39 years old, had been ill for a long time, and the news of her death was no surprise to her friends here. Every available resource of medical science was invoked in an effort to save her life, but all to no avail. She underwent a number of operations, and three times blood transfusions were resorted to.

The deceased was a daughter of the late D. A. McGregor, at one time Chancellor of the University of McMaster. She was reared in Tweed, and educated in the schools of that city, making a brilliant academic record. At the time of her marriage to Mr. Moffatt she was teaching in the Toronto Collegiate Institute, and up to the last always took an active interest in educational affairs.

A Campbellford lady who was an intimate friend of the late Mrs. Moffatt, pays a high tribute to her personal qualities and to her intellectual endowments. "She was the salt of the earth," says this lady. Few people stood as high in literary accomplishments as while she regarded her children and her home as her chief care, she found time for making contributions of prose and poetry to the magazines of the day, being one of the leading writers for the Presbyterian of Toronto. Her life was one combined and unwearied effort to do good to others, and her passing is regarded with general regret by all who had the good fortune to meet her during her residence here.

The late Mrs. Moffatt was a member of the Baptist Church up to the time of her marriage, when she joined the Presbyterian denomination to which her husband belonged. She is survived by seven children, the eldest a girl of 13 and the youngest an infant of two months. The eldest, Allison, gives promise of the high attainments which distinguished her mother, and at the last entrance examination, after being taken out of school here to go to Ottawa where her mother was in a hospital and to nurse her baby sister, she passed with high honours.

Mr. Moffatt, the bereaved husband, first came to Campbellford as mathematical teacher under Principal T. C. Smith, but later was placed at the head of the staff, going to Tweed in February last. He was successful in his work here, giving the local school a high place in the departmental examinations.

Teachers' Convention.

The annual convention of the Teachers' Institute of Inspectorate No. 3, Northumberland and Durham Counties, will be held at Brighton to-day and Friday. The pupils of the Public school in Campbellford are enjoying a two days' holiday as a result, as Principal Haig and the members of his staff will take in the convention. Mr. Haig is secretary of the Institute and Principal W. Bellamy of Brighton High school, is president. One of the features of the programme Thursday afternoon will be an address by Mayor Belford, M.L.A.

Outing For Regiment.

The Northumberland Regiment will go into barracks at Cobourg on November 19th for a nine days' outing. The four companies composing the regiment, Campbellford, Brighton, Norwood and Cobourg, will be represented. The Campbellford band, official band of the regiment, will be on hand to furnish the music.

Residence Sold.

It was rumored that A. L. Malcolm had purchased the Weston residence on Rear street, but the owners of this property have no intention of selling it. Mr. Macloim has purchased the house which he now occupies on Sebastopol street and will begin the work of remodelling it at once.

Sudden Death of Child.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Colvy, who occupy the house of A. S. Free, on Sebastopol street, in the loss of their infant child. The parents had the child down town in the carriage on Tuesday afternoon. At midnight she was taken with convulsions and died on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Colvy have taken the remains to Quebec for burial, motoring to Belleville to catch the midnight train east.

Personal Mention.

J. F. Mile, of Toronto, is visiting his niece, Mrs. J. A. Anderson.

Despite the rain of Wednesday, Norwood Fair drew its usual large crowd. Among those noticed from Campbellford were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Abernethy, Mrs. Robert MacDonald, Mrs. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cassan, Messrs. C. H. Davidson, C. A. O'Connor, A. J. Beavis, W. H. Martin, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Meiklejohn.

Mr. Fred. Wigglesworth, organist and choirmaster of St. Andrew's Church, sang very acceptably at the concert held in Brighton in connection with the teachers' convention.

Mrs. Wm. Oliver, Garry Street, is visiting friends in Trenton.

Mr. Archie Hatfield, near Stirling, has sold his farm and is taking up residence in Campbellford. At present he is looking for a suitable house to buy or rent.

Miss Sara Nevin and Miss Alice Rutty visited Warkworth last week.

Mr. W. A. Diamond has been confined to the house since Friday of last week through illness.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat as a rule is looking well, although the greater part of it was sown during the first three weeks of September, to avoid the Hessian fly. Peel says that "Never better" is a common comment.

Satisfactory progress is being made with silo-filling. The corn has stood somewhat smaller in length and bulk, but is nicely eared and will make good feed.

Farmers are also very busy with late harvest work. The weather has been favourable for potato and root gathering, and also for threshing, and much work has been done along these lines.

Considering the claims of other field work, a good deal of fall ploughing has been done. The open weather of the last week or two was favourable for the work, but the land is again getting dry and hard in many sections of the Province, and a good rain would be welcome.

Peel says that alfalfa buyers are in keen competition and that several carloads have been shipped recently.

York—A conservative estimate of alfalfa seed in this county would be between 4,000 and 5,000 bushels. One farmer threshed 190 bushels from 20 acres, and sold it from the machine at $9.50 per bushel. The apple crop has been a pleasant surprise. The yield is heavier than was at one time anticipated. The colour and quality of the apples this year is considerably above the average.

Dundas—Apple picking is in full swing, and the yield is somewhat larger than was generally expected. Prices are good. McIntoshes sell from $7.50 to $8.50 for No. 1's, and extra fancy in some cases bring as high as $10.00 per barrel.

Timiskaming—During the week ending the the 22nd September, Mr. Stanley Logan, of Sutton Bay, marketed thirty boxes of everbearing strawberries, and he intimated that he would have another shipment to market a week later. This speaks well for the future of the small fruit industry in this district. Mr. Logan is preparing to plant quite a large acreage next year, as he sees a very bright prospect for a good cash crop in the production of everbearing strawberries.

Cattle have been doing fairly well on pastures, which are now failing from close cropping and for renewal of moisture. The milk flow has slackened in most dairy sections.

Carleton — Shippers of whole milk received an increase in price from $2.10 to $2.40 per 100 pounds.

Leeds — The market for dairy products has been gradually getting firmer. The price of cheese now makes cheesemaking a profitable business, and if farmers were dairying all winter here in the East it would be a good business proposition.

Kenora — There is a movement on foot to start up a creamery and dairy in the town of Dryden. This will prove of very much assistance to farmers wishing to go into the dairy business and make a good outlet for dairy products. This is essentially a mixed farming district, and dairying should take a prominent place where feed is so plentiful.

Haldimand — Quite a number of farmers are buying stockers and feeders for the winter, although the demand is not quite equal to last year. Good feeders are going in at 4c to 5c per pound.

Brant — A considerable number of cattle are being offered for feeding purposes at the present time, many of them being offered per animal rather than per pound. The smaller cattle offerings have figured out from 4c to 5c per pound.

South Simcoe—Extra heavy shipments of hogs, for which $9.00 per cwt. on the thick smooth basis was paid, were made from some sections of the county last week. Lambs were a light shipment and brought $10.00 per cwt. to the farmer. As high as $11.00 per cwt. was paid for a few choice calves. The best of the cattle sent out would class as medium butchers, and brought $5.50 per cwt. at point of shipment.

Dufferin — Observes that sheep exhibits have been much stronger than in many years at most of the fall fairs in the county, and that there is a good demand for breeding stock.

Peterborough — There was rather a small shipment of live stock during the week. Hogs brought $9.00. Cattle and lambs somewhat draggy. Good springer cows are in fair demand at from $75.00 to $100.00.

TWENTY-FOUR REBELS SCORNING SURRENDER FOUGHT ONE REGIMENT

Battle Waged to the Death in Brazilian Revolution, From Which Curtain Has Been Recently Lifted.

STORY OF HEROISM.

RIO DE JANIERO, Oct. 11.—Lifting of the press censorship which for the last year prevented publication of the story of the ill-fated "revolution" of July, 1922, has brought to light for the first time the facts concerning one of the most remarkable battles in the history of warfare. It was a battle of 24 men against a regiment armed with machine guns, waged to the death in a suburb of the city of Rio de Janiero.

The "revolution" itself is all but forgotten. The causes that led up to it have been removed by the election and inauguration of a new president and the position of the present Federal Government is as firm and stable as though the events of a year ago had never occurred. But the foolhardy action of the 24 rebels who rather than relinquish their adherence to what they conceived to be the right, even to the extent of a surrender, chose to die, still lives and will continue to live in Brazilian history.

The attempted coup de ètat of a year ago, came to naught because the Government was forewarned of the revolutionary intent, taking steps to forestall it, with the result that because unknown to conspirators in other parts of the country, the movement was prematurely brought to a head in the Federal capital several days before the time set for the outbreak. The result was hopeless before it started.

Took Over Port.

At 10 o'clock on the night of July 4 the Rio revolutionaries took possession of the Fortress of Copacabana which is located on the sea front, about two miles south of the Suga Loaf and the mouth of the Bay of Rio. They were then 34 in number, including a half dozen officers and were practically all members of the garrison of the fort, accustomed to operation of the coast defense guns with which it is equipped. Later they were joined by several civilians but, before the end, enough desertions had taken place to bring the total down to the 24 who actually took part in the battle.

By daylight on the morning of the 5th the rebel garrison knew that the uprising was a failure and that their fate was sealed for the other forts in the mouth of the bay, which were to have joined the movement, agreed to answer to the signals previously agreed on. The garrison of Copacabana might have made its escape any time before the sixth, but it declined to do so, at first hoping against hope for the arrival of aid from the interior and later preferring death to ignominious flight.

Government Wanted.

The Government on its part did nothing, evidently rightly judging it had nothing to fear from the guns of the fort as long as it attempted no offensive.

July 5 and 6 were passed in a state of deadlock, waiting for something to happen. The situation was too bizarre for fiction. Along the beach between the fort and the Hill of Sao Joao, where the road ducks through a tunnel to come out on the shore of the bay in Rio proper, is the fashionable suburb from which the fortress takes it name.

While the Government forces in the city and the rebels in the redoubt rested on their arms, Copacabana went about its business as usual. People remained in their homes, ate, slept and went bathing in the evening, as is their wont, almost literally under the mouths of the cannon. Automobiles hummed along the Avenida Atlantico; street cars clanged their way through the busy streets. People came out from the city to have a look at the fort, and some even called on the defenders and urged them to yield to the inevitable and either surrender or escape.

A Strange Campaign.

It was as strange a campaign, these two days that preceded this South American Balaklava, as ever was imagined. The garrison of the fort took a few pot shots at the arsenal and other conspicuous and isolated landmarks and the Government artillery sent a few shells back in reply, but there was no real engagement. On the part of the garrison the time was spent chiefly in waiting and reconnoitering, the latter activity being carried on with impunity, even in the city itself. The reconnaissance of "J. M. P.," a civilian volunteer who survived the battle and who has written an account of his adventures for the Correio da Manha, is unique in military annals. He writes of his movements on July 5:

"I got a lift (in the direction of the city) on a truck of the Antartica Brewery and a little after mid-day was at Leme. Passing through the tunnel I was able to observe the effects of a shell on the fortifications there, hearing as well that several officers of the Government forces had been wounded. I thereupon returnd to the fort, but on the orders of Lieut. Siqueira Campos immediately resumed my reconnoitering, going to Ipanema, Leblon, Gavea, and Humayta (suburbs) and again to the New Tunnel.

Got the News.

"Near the terminus of the Ipanema street car line I was stopped by a family of the neighborhood who wanted news of the Military School. From there I went to Gavea where I met a negro woman carrying a package of laundry. I asked her the news and she replied nervously: 'Things are black. Chico down there on the corner tells me that a large body of cavalry is coming to Gavea early tomorrow morning.' I was returning to the fort when I met a man who on interrogation declared it was rumored the revolutionaries had overpowered two battalions of police and that the Campinho artillery had adhered to the movement. I took a street car as far as the Cuanabara Palace, but after noting that a battalion of artillery was in position behind the palace determined to return again to the fort."

J. M. J. made other trips into the city during which he questioned motormen and chauffeurs and on one occasion even mingled with a group of Government soldiers and civilians who were discussing the situation. Perhaps the most fantastical feature of this strange siege was the fact that all during it the defenders of the fort were in constant telephone communication with the city and it was over the telephone that final and conclusive news was received of the failure of the revolution.

Council of War.

After the receipt of that news a council of war was held. The question of turning the guns of the fort on the city and holding out to the last was discussed. But after one look at the crowds of innocent bystanders gathered on the beach to view the progress of events the suggestion was rejected as involving a large and in the end useless waste of the lives of non-combatants. There was only one alternative for the "heroes of the fort" and they took it without hesitation. That alternative was to start out for the city, held by the Brazilian army, and see how far they could go.

What they did was absolute self-immolation in the service of an ideal, mistakes or otherwise. It may have been equalled in the past, but it has never been excelled, for every man in the little company knew he was going to his death, and for no other purpose than that merely of avoiding the eventual necessity of surrender. Word was received from the Government offering generous terms in exchange for a capitulation of the fort: expulsion from the army and from the country. Several men left the fort and were freely permitted to go, but on the part of the majority there was no thought of acceptance.

Then the March.

At three o'clock on July 6 the 28 who remained, armed with rifles and revolvers, commenced their historic march on Rio. In a loose and somewhat straggling formation they proceeded directly down the Avenida Atlantico with the beach on their right hand and on the left the luxurious homes of Copacabana. The day was clear and the Brazilian sun shone with dazzling brightness on the deep blue of the sea and the whiteness of the sea sands.

Several times Lieut. Siqueira Campos called out to his followers that none of them need feel bound by military discipline to continue and that what they did must be of their own volition. Men and women appeared along the line of march, offering food and water. Many of the women, falling on their knees weeping, begged the invaders to desist from carrying out their tragic purpose. Four of the marchers withdrew and made their escape. But the rest kept on. They walked very slowly, looking neither to right nor left.

It was a prosy, uninspiring sort of a march and they must have felt the lack of military pageantry, for all of them were young and nearly all of them, on parade, had swung down this same avenue many times before to the roll of stirring drums and with colors flying. Photographers appeared and took pictures. An automobile trundled up prosaically from the rear quite as though this were any other day, than the last day of the revolution. It contained a foreigner who asked who the little band might be and what they were going to do. They replied, "We are the rebels from Copacabana Fort and we are going to fight the Brazilian army." The foreigner found something amusing in the reply and he laughed, but thought it wise to alter his course away from the avenue.

The Government troops were encountered about half way down the beach, a regiment of them ambuscaded in the side streets that lead down to the avenue and the sea. There was a burst of machine gun fire and two of the marchers fell mortally wounded. The rest ran for a ditch along the sidewalk that had been left by workers who had been laying sewer pipe, and there entrenched themselves to give battle. The fight did not have long to last, for 22 men in a shallow trench partially enfiladed by machine gun and rifle fire could not long remain alive. Before the end a final attempt was made by the opposing forces to persuade them to surrender, but the offer was stonily repulsed. Twenty-two of them were killed in all; one was taken, wounded; one, "J. M. P." made good his escape by swimming for it. The July revolution was over.

Post Office Exhibit, Peterboro Exhibition

So successful was the Post Office exhibit at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition that the postmaster, J. Corkery, has received three letters from the Postal Department congratulating him on his efforts.

The object of the exposition was to bring before the public the several departments through which the Post Office can serve them and to show the co-operation of all the departments. The method of insuring parcels, sending packages by the Post Office C.O.D. system and the proper packing of parcels were some of the features. A precaution which was stressed was the putting of the return address on the corner of the envelope to facilitate the return of the letter in the event of non-delivery. In this connection the assistant postmaster declared that 30,000 letters every year are returned from the Peterborough office alone because of insufficient or wrong address. Of this number, 10,000 are returned to the dead letter office because the return address was omitted. A point that should appeal to most persons who post letters is the fact that letters bearing a return address are not opened at the dead letter office if undelivered, whereas it is necessary to open other letters to obtain the address of the sender.

Benefitted Public.

That the public took a great interest in the exhibit and benefitted by it, is the opinion of Mr. Lacheur. This benefit may be extended by putting into force the suggestions of the postmaster and his assistants at the Fair.

In the peterborough office a clerk spends an average of two and a half hours every day looking up insufficiently addressed mail matter, and mail carriers on their routes waste an hour and a half through the lack of letter drops. It takes three minutes at every house to deliver a letter by hand, whereas a few seconds would suffice to put it through the letter drop. In addition, mail is safer from rain when delivered inside the door.

Fragile parcels when sent by parcel post should be marked by the clerk. If persons mailing perishable goods will inform the clerk of the nature of the contents, a label will be affixed, ensuring greater care. Stamps should be placed on the upper right-hand corner of the envelope to facilitate cancelling.

Another way to speed up the postal business is for business firms to mail their letters periodically throughout the day, avoiding congestion at rush hours. This also tends towards better service, since the day mails are lighter than the night, and quicker sorting and delivery are possible.

With the approach of the Christmas season the Post Office Department points out the advisability of insuring all parcels. The slogan of the department is, "If a parcel is worth mailing it is worth insuring." Insurance up to $5 costs 3 cents; up to $25, 6 cents; up to $50, 12 cents, and up to $100, 30 cents. These charges are in addition to regular postage.

All of these possible improvements were pointed out graphically at the exhibit last month.
